THIS IS THE WAY TO FIGHT WAR ON HOME FRONT!

Production Lines Never Stop.

(This is the second article in a series describing the epochal achievements of Chicagoland industries in their transition from peacetime to war production.)

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

The clicking conveyor line jerked to a stop. The foreman lifted off the last of the motor driven automobile heaters and glanced at its number.

"Series 780-A," he read. "No. 1,522,-688. That washes us up. There'll be no more of these babies until after the war. This is the last one."

"You won't be hearing that this time next week," said the foreman. "We're shipping the last of the radios now. In just a little while we'll be all out for Uncle Sam."

Output 98% for War.

All about him in the vast, brilliantly lighted room, strange monsters were taking shape. Strange looking parts were slipping smoothly from the maws of stranger machines. The few lingering reminders of consumer goods were being packed rapidly into cases and cleared from the floor.

For this and other plant units of the Stewart-Warner corporation had gone 98 per cent on war production. The company is converting the remaining 2 per cent as fast as stocks and parts can be used up. And most of the articles representing the 2 per cent have been frozen by order of the War Production board in advance of assembly.

Government officials regard the Stewart-Warner corporation's response to the nation's wartime needs as typical of the prodigious effort being put forth by Chicago area industries and their armies of workers. The smooth speed of conversion to war prouction by this and other Chicago concerns is considered outstanding in the nation.

Answer War Call.

It was on May 16, 1940, that President Roosevelt called for rearmament of the United States. On May 23 Stewart-Warner shipped its first defense material to the army ordnance department. Conversion has gone on steadily.

In the process, not one employé has been dropped thru dislocation. There have been no layoffs. Each employé was assigned to the war production job most like the task he had been doing.

A large scale apprentice training division was set up. This has helped supply the men and women who have more than doubled the company's pay roll in its various plants.

The tireless earnestness of this production army which keeps the sinews of war moving from Stewart-Warner plants 24 hours a day seven days a week is given full credit by company officials for the high rating accorded by the ordnance department. There was a voluntary 50 per cent speedup after Pearl Harbor. There are victory banners and printed exhortations thruout the plants, but these are considered superfluous.

Workers Set Own Pace.

Many workers have asked leave to work more than the customary number of hours each day. The company permits them to set their own pace and keep to it as long as they feel they can.

"If every one would go to war as earnestly as these people have, it wouldn't take the United States long to finish the job," one executive said.

The fervor with which these hun-

Dewey Warns of Lewis Food Dictator Plot

New York, April 24 [Special].—The attempt of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers and former president of the CIO, to organize the milk producers was attacked tonight by Thomas E. Dewey, former district attorney and prospective Republican nominee for governor, who spoke at the annual dinner of the Long Island association, a civic organization. Lewis' move is considered a preliminary to an effort to unionize all farmers and control the food supply of the country.

Dewey said Lewis was trying to collect 25 million dollars a year from farmers for his private war chest, which he said would be the most staggering slush fund ever placed in the hands of an American. He said farm organizations of New York state had undertaken to insure farmers up to $10,000 for any barn that might be burned in the course of resistance to unionization, and expressed confidence Lewis' attempt to regain power would be defeated.

At the Utica, N. Y., headquarters of the Lewis drive it was announced tonight a campaign will be launched next week to organize dairymen in Washington state. Enrollments already are being sought in six eastern states and in Michigan.

Branded Dictator Pattern.

Dewey said the Lewis move is one of the most serious threatened diversions and divisions of the American people which has appeared on the scene since Pearl Harbor.

"It is a scheme that represents a perfect pattern for American dictatorship," he said. "It affects the lives, the livelihood, and the day to day existence of every one of us. It is a grave threat to obstruct the successful prosecution of the war.

"In fact, it is an effort to grasp a throttle hold upon the food supply of the United States, which is rapidly becoming the granary of the united nations. It is a none too subtle attempt to regain a lost prestige and power at the expense of our people while the rest of the country is busy fighting a war."

Assails UMW's Scheme.

Dewey said Ora Gasaway of the Mine Workers' union, an organizer in the Kentucky coal fields and president of District 50 of the mine union, had been named head milk bargainer for the farmers of America.

"Now what is District 50 of the United Mine Workers union?" Dewey asked. "Does it have anything to do with mine workers? Well, let's see. It is already organizing among workers in the field of cosmetics, electric utilities, casket workers, boatyard employés, stump pullers in Louisiana, and drop forge workers in Michigan. By no means neglecting the war effort, it is organizing in power plants, munitions plants, chemical plants, and gas works.

"Logical" Shift Cited.

"This shrinking violet in the mine workers' union passes logically to milk. After all, milk does contain casein. Some casein is used in cosmetics. Casein is used in plastics.

"So it is all logically a part of the mine workers' union. Moreover, minerals from the ground help in growing the feed consumed by cows. What could be more natural than that this District 50 should take over the cows?"

Dewey quoted Gasaway as having said his group did not "intend to confine itself to dairy farmers, but regards all other classes of farmers as subject to organization within District 50 of the United Mine Workers."

1939 Violence Recalled.

"There is the promise," Dewey said, "the Lewis family, with its combined union salaries of $112,000 a year, aside from expenses, has taken over. And there is 6 million dollars of mine workers' money to back it up. The organizers are in the field. New York farmers know what this means.

"They had a taste of just such a business in 1939. There were goon squads with baseball bats and guns. Barns were burned, cattle were mutilated, and crops were destroyed. A lonesome farmer living miles from any settled community is at the mercy of such tactics.

"While we defeat dictators abroad we must not become enslaved by a home grown despot. The home front in modern war is more important than ever before. We have been challenged to major battle to save the home front. Victory on the world front will be imperiled unless we defeat this threat at home. I know we shall do our duty here."

British Cruiser Afire at Gibraltar, Says Rome

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—The Rome radio quoted a dispatch from La Linea, Spain, tonight, saying fire broke out today on a British cruise under repair at Gibraltar and caused considerable damage.

2 Robins Have Adventures to Warble About

Two stories of robins:

I.

Donald Wooldridge's mother didn't scold him for being late. She knew he couldn't have walked as fast as the robin flew, and the robin couldn't have hopped as fast as a boy of 7 hurrying home to dinner. So they had come at the robin's pace. She opened the door at 545 North Central avenue wider and said:

Donald Wooldridge.

"Splendid! You've brought a guest."

"Robin, mother," said Donald. "Don't know his first name. I just call him Robin. We met down the street. Robin, this is my mother."

Nods His Approval.

The robin bowed gravely, hopped in, flew up on the table and nodded approvingly when Donald's mother said she had laid an extra plate, just in case Donald brought home a friend.

The robin thought she meant the bread plate, and ate almost all of a piece of bread. When Donald and his mother told him to make himself at home after the dessert, the robin flew into the bathroom, where he perched on the washbowl.

Takes a Bath.

They turned on the water, thinking he wanted a drink, but he began taking a bath before they could tell him they'd be waiting for him in the living room. Then he sang a song.

They gave him the back porch for a guest room. But he was gone when they got up yesterday, on urgent business, probably, said Donald's mother. She's expecting a bread and butter note tomorrow.

II.

Don Quixote lived a very long time ago, and it is entirely possible that the robin who came to visit Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kullas yesterday never read about him. Anyway, the robin waged a furious war from 9 a. m. until 3:23 p. m. with a horde of imaginary robins.

He saw them in the polished hub caps of the trailers that Mr. and Mrs. Kullas have for sale on a lot at 3833 Harlem avenue in Berwyn. Every time he looked into a hub cap, he saw another enemy and charged.

He's a Skeptic.

The Kullases tried to explain that he was only fighting his own reflection, but he doubted them. Sometimes he flew so hard at the hub caps that he knocked himself out. But as soon as he recovered he went back to the battle.

OFFICIAL URGES OCD AIDS TO STUDY LESSON IN THE TRIBUNE TODAY

Ralph H. Burke, deputy coördinator in charge of protective services of the Office of Civilian Defense, urged all civilian defense workers yesterday to clip and study the outlines of OCD basic training courses which start today in the Metropolitan section of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Lesson No. 1 appears today. Lessons 2 and 3 will follow on succeeding Sundays to prepare workers for new classes which start May 18. The first group of workers completed the course last week.

"The outline of the general survey course will serve as a reminder to those who have taken this branch of the training," Burke said. "It can be used as a study outline for those who still have to take the course required of most workers who wear OCD insignia.

"The average citizen and householder also can gain much from the study of the outline as it will direct his questions to block captains regarding the essentials of protection of lives and property."

French Army Hero Escapes German Camp

BERLIN, April 25 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, for the second time in his career as a French army officer, was a fugitive from a German prison camp tonight.

Gen. Henri Giraud.

Gen. Giraud had been a German prisoner since May 21, 1940, when German armies cut off his forces in northern France in the "Battle of the Bulge" on the Meuse. The German announcement that he escaped from his prison in the fortress of Koenigstein in Saxony gave no details, but a reward of 100,000 marks [$40,000] was offered for his recapture.

He was wounded and captured in the battle of Guise in 1914 during the first world war. He was interned in Germany, but escaped to return to France and take part in the battle of Malmaison in 1917.

Death for Any Who Aid Him.

Gen. Giraud presumably would try to reach the French frontier, and the German authorities tonight announced that any one aiding him would be sentenced to death.

The general is 63 years old.

Before the war Gen. Giraud had been governor of the fortress at Metz. At the start of the war, he was made commander of the 7th army. After the Germans broke thru he was appointed commander in chief of the French-British forces in northern France and commander of the 9th army.

The 9th army, however, was cut off by German tank forces, and Gen. Giraud and his staff were captured.

HERO TO FRENCH SOLDIERS.

In the eyes of the French, Gen. Giraud is a paladin—bearing more wounds than any man can number, having been given up for dead on the field of battle, beloved of the rank and file.

After passing thru the military academy of St. Cyr, he served in Morocco. When World War No. 1 broke out he was recalled to France. His capture by the Germans came about when he was left for dead on the field of battle. However, disguised as a butcher, he escaped from a German internment camp and rejoined his unit.

CURB BATTERY OUTPUT, SEIZE HEAVY LEATHER

Halt Production of Sewing Machines.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Passenger automobile batteries, leather used for soles in heavy work shoes, and sewing machines were brought within the War Production board's curtailment program today. Manufacturers of batteries were ordered to limit their output to 75 per cent of last year. Manufacture of sewing machines after June 15 was prohibited. The nation's entire stock of heavyweight sole leather was taken over by WPB to fill military and lend-lease requirements.

MOVE TO SAVE LEAD

The War Production board's battery edict ordered the number of sizes and models reduced from 75 to 15. Between now and September 30, each manufacturer must cut his output to 75 per cent of the number of batteries he sold during the corresponding period last year. After April 30, retailers are forbidden to sell or deliver new replacement batteries unless purchasers trade in used batteries in exchange.

Normally the industry consumes from 26 to 28 per cent of the nation's total lead output. WPB estimated the curtailment program will save about 46 million pounds of lead, 1,600,-000 pounds of antimony and considerable amounts of rubber.

In 1941 nearly 16 million batteries were sold for replacement purposes. Under the new restriction no manufacturer will be permitted to have in stock, on the first day of any month, a number of batteries in excess of the number he sold during the 60 day period in 1941 which corresponds to the 60 day period after the inventory date. Retailers, jobbers and warehouses are limited to a 45 day supply.

HEAVY SOLES SEIZED

The nation's entire stock and production of heavyweight sole leather was taken over by the War Production board under today's action. Previously WPB had ordered 80 per cent of such leather set aside for the government, but this amount was found insufficient.

WPB officials said that only heavyweight outersole leather is affected, leaving for civilian shoes the entire supply of ordinary and lightweight outersoles—of the type used in most civilian footwear other than heavy work shoes.

Demand for civilian shoes this year is expected to run below 1941, WPB explained, since thousands of last year's civilians are this year's soldiers. In addition, indications are that stores and consumers have large stocks of shoes on hand.

NO MORE SEWING MACHINES

The sewing machine curtailment order also covers attachments. Between now and the shutdown date, June 15, manufacturers may produce at the rate of 75 per cent of 1940 production.

WPB estimated this restriction will permit production of about 75,000 new machines, which, when added to about 175,000 made since January 1, will give a total production for this year of about 250,000 units. Production last year totaled 800,000 units.

The order will result in a substantial savings of critical materials, WPB declared, and will mean that "at least a part" of the industry's plant facilities can be converted to war production.

Four companies which make new machines and several others which manufacture repair parts are affected by the order. After 30 days, restrictions are imposed on sewing machine rebuilding. No new part may be installed after that time in a new or used machine, other than a repair part, except in filling the production quotas. Manufacturers thus will be prevented from using materials for rebuilding, rehabilitating, or modernizing old machines.

Japs Admit 114 Killed in U. S. Raids on Tokio

New York, April 25 [Special].—A death toll of 114 in the raids on Japan by United States air forces has been admitted by the Japanese, the British Broadcasting company said today.

DIGEST OF WAR NEWS FROM ALL MAJOR SECTORS

Latest war developments:

The RAF struck at Nazi-occupied northern France with six large scale onslaughts in 11 hours and fought some of the fiercest air battles of the year against latest type German planes over a 250 mile front. Targets at Cherbourg, LeHavre, Calais, Abbeville, and other points were pounded during the raids, London said. The British lost 15 fighters and one bomber, while German losses were put at eight fighters. Retaliating, the Germans dropped high explosives and bombs on a town in western England.

Malta Strikes Back.

Malta, Mediterranean island, victim of more than 2,000 axis air raids, struck back with the bombing of an airfield at Comiso, Sicily, and an enemy supply ship. RAF fighters defending the British base knocked down four planes and damaged 10 more during three raids, it was announced.

Heavy Japanese forces supported by planes, tanks, and artillery, struck in three columns at Chinese defenders in Burma 100 miles from Mandalay but a Chinese counterattack halted one spearhead of the encircling drive, according to a communique.

Bomb Jap Airfield.

Russian cavalry units, despite the mud which has bogged down other ground forces, were said to have captured a number of German occupied villages and reached an important highway used to supply Nazi armies.

CCC to Close 250 Camps in War Job Shift

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—Retrenchment in operation of the Civilian Conservation corps, reducing the number of camps to 350 and the personnel to 70,000, was announced today by Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security administrator.

A CCC spokesman described the action as an adjustment to wartime conditions, particularly to the present employment opportunities for youth.

Of 600 camps now operating, McNutt said 202 would be closed before May 31 and an additional 48 in June, making a total of 250 to cease operations. There are 85,000 enrollees in the CCC at present.

Expenditures Reduced.

The reduced operating basis compares with the 1935 high of 2,652 camps with 520,000 enrollees. On April 1 last year the corps maintained 1,500 camps with 270,000 enrollees. The CCC expended approximately $500,000,000 in the fiscal year 1936, but expects to use about $141,000,000 this year.

James J. McEntee, CCC director, said the corps would concentrate on war work for the armed forces and forest protection, the latter principally in the northwest.

Building Training Grounds.

"The men now at work on war department projects are developing such combat training aids as obstacle courses, target ranges, air fields, and maneuver grounds," McEntee said. "When the transfer of 202 camps to war department projects is completed approximately 40,000 young men, mostly youngsters in the 17 to 19 year old age brackets, will be carrying on essential war work for the armed forces."

Of the 202 camps designated for military area work, 111 now are on reservations, 36 in process of transfer, and 55 will be moved before July 1.

YANKS WIN RACE WITH JAPS FOR NEW CALEDONIA

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—The United States announced today it had landed troops in New Caledonia to assist the "Free French" in the defense of that vitally strategic island which flanks the supply route between this country and Australia.

The action, which the war department said was taken "with the approval of local authorities," was the first announcement of American troops moving into French territory. The size of the American force was not disclosed.

The landing represented the winning of a race with Japan's invading armies. For weeks the Japanese have been moving steadily east and southward from Java, nearer and nearer to the trans-Pacific route from the United States to Australia.

Japs 1,200 Miles Away.

The Nipponese now are about 1,200 miles northwest of New Caledonia on the Island of New Britain and they claim to have taken two other smaller islands slightly east of New Britain.

In view of the new collaborationist régime of Pierre Laval at Vichy—and of the previous angry outburst from Vichy when the United States sent a consul-general to Brazzaville in "Free French" Equatorial Africa—observers expected a new outcry from Vichy over the troops in New Caledonia.

Relations between the Washington and Vichy governments have steadily deteriorated since announcement that Laval was returning to power. Ambassador William D. Leahy has been called to Washington for consultations.

Guards Australia Route.

This country has enunciated a policy of maintaining relations with French citizens who are in actual control of French territories. Thus, the way for the troop landing in New Caledonia was paved last month with an announcement by the state department that the United States would aid "Free French" forces there in the defense of the island.

From a military standpoint, New Caledonia is of utmost importance to the united nations. Lying 800 miles east of Australia, it is close to the route for the ships carrying men and munitions to the Australian bases for the projected offensive against the Japanese.

Its value as an air base was recognized even before the southward surge of the Japanese focused attention on the islands off Australia. Pan-American Airways chose Noumea, the capital, as a port of call for its San Francisco-Auckland, New Zealand, route.

The island, about 260 miles long, has a white population of 17,300, of which more than 15,000 are French.

About 1,430 Japanese live on the island, most of them free immigrants but a small proportion indentured laborers in the mines.

Welcomed by "Free French."

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—The arrival of United States troops in New Caledonia was described by a "Free French" source tonight as a "highly welcome step to insure the common defense of the allied lifeline to Australia and New Zealand."

He said the "Free French" agreed fully to participation of the United States in the defense of the island and that Gen. Charles de Gaulle had been in communication frequently with the United States commander there.

Free French sources declined to speculate on the possible application of the policy to the situation in Madagascar, the strategic island in the Indian ocean off Africa's east coast, or in other French possessions outside the Pacific war zone.

RICH WITH MINERALS.

New Caledonia is believed to be the most richly endowed mineral area in the world. Its chief export is nickel, for which, in the days immediately following the fall of France, Japanese interests eagerly bid. A shipment of 450 tons of the metal that had accumulated was finally sold to the British.

Discovered in 1774 by Capt. James Cook, the island was given its name because its heavily wooded, rocky shores reminded him of Scotland. Until 1900 it was used by France as a penal colony, and many of the 17,000 white inhabitants are descendants of the original convict settlers.

PIONEER CHURCH SEEKS HYMN FOR ITS CENTENNIAL

Second Presbyterian Is 100 Years Old in May.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A centennial hymn is being sought by the Second Presbyterian church. It will be sung at services during the week of May 17, when the sons and daughters of the venerable congregation will assemble at the famous edifice at 20th street and Michigan avenue to signalize the first 100 years of the church's service.

Entries in the hymn contest must reach the Rev. Dr. William Clyde Howard, minister of the church, by May 5. Only the words are sought, but the announcement stated that the four to six verses must fit some song in the Presbyterian hymnal. Few churches in the central west offer a richer background for poetic representation than old Second.

Church of Pioneers.

Among those who worshipped at Second church in the Elegant '80s were Robert Todd Lincoln and the George Armours, the William and Silas Blairs, the Thomas Murdochs and Albert Keeps, the T. S. Hoynes, George M. Pullman, Edward S. Isham, the Norman Williamses, Eugene Pikes, Silas Cobbs, William A. Giles, and many others whose names are associated with the building of Chicago.

John Crerar, the bulk of whose fortune went to found the Crerar library, 86 East Randolph street, left a handsome legacy to Second church which, with other benefactions, enables the institution to carry on its beneficent work in a radically altered neighborhood.

Pastor Paid $600 Yearly.

The theme of the verses of the centennial hymn might well include the spiritual call of a famous pulpit, founded by the Rev. Dr. Robert W. Patterson. The church was an offshoot of First Presbyterian church of Chicago, which had been founded about a decade earlier. The young minister, father of Robert W. Patterson Jr., later editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was called to the church on a salary of $600 a year.

That was not bad in the 1840s. But the salary grew up with the city and church, and, after serving Second church for 32 years, Dr. Patterson was made a professor in McCormick [now Presbyterian] Theological seminary, and a fund was established by Second church in his honor. At the time of Dr. Patterson's death in 1894 he was mourned as the "untitled bishop of the northwest."

Church Built in 1873.

The centennial hymn writers also will be stimulated by the beauty of the present Second church edifice, which was erected in 1873 at a cost of $360,000. The family of George Armour gave the bell tower in 1881. Partially destroyed by fire in 1900, the edifice was restored by the Chicago architect, Howard Shaw, and is known today as one of the country's most beautiful churches.

The murals were painted by Frederick Clay Bartlett, and two memorial windows, given by Isabell Gray in memory of her parents, are among Chicago's art treasures. A large window was given by Mrs. T. B. Blackstone in honor of Mr. Crerar.

Given in Memory of Mother.

The latter window fills the east end of the nave and represents Christ's ascension. Another window which attracts attention was one given by Mrs. George M. Pullman in memory of her mother, Mrs. Mary C. Sanger.

Dr. Howard announced that two former pastors will take part in the centennial observances. They are Dr. Charles F. Wishart, president of the College of Wooster, Wooster, O., and the Rev. Dr. Josiah Sibley of Memphis, Tenn.

The splendidly equipped church, with its gymnasium and recreation center, known as Shaw hall, is widely used as an institutional center. The church conducts a Chinese Sunday school and has a number of Chinese on its membership rolls.

M'NEAR DEMANDS PUBLIC INQUIRY IN SEIZURE OF ROAD

Peoria, Ill., April 25 [Special].—A public investigation of "the real issues involved" in the labor dispute leading to government seizure of the Toledo, Peoria, and Western railroad was demanded in a telegram sent to the National War Labor board today by George P. McNear, president of the road.

McNear, who with other officials of the road and the railroad corporation itself was acquitted recently of charges of violating the railway labor act, called on the labor board to revoke what he termed "the unlawful order" of seizure and to appoint an impartial emergency board for a full public investigation and report.

The rail president said the atmosphere has been cleared by acquittal of the road's officials and by the conviction of brotherhood officials in a dynamiting plot designed to stop interstate commerce in time of war. The "grossly wasteful practices" of the "featherbed" rules demanded by the brotherhoods should be given an airing without delay, he said.

AUSTRALIAN CAR A VEGETARIAN—RUNS ON WHEAT

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 25.—A representative of the Melbourne Herald, after making a test run in an automobile with a gas producer powered by wheat instead of charcoal, thinks it possible to make use of Australia's wheat surplus of 6,000,000 bushels, equivalent to 18,000,000 gallons of gasoline. The inventor, M. J. Martin, a chemical engineer, has driven a car several months on grain mixed with charcoal gas in a gas producer. A bushel of wheat was estimated to equal the three gallons of gasoline in mileage, and costs five shillings [about $1].

23-TIME RAPIST TRANSFERRED TO MENTAL PRISON

Steffey to Get Shock Therapy at Menard.

David Reese Steffey III, 18 years old, former Wright Junior college student who was sentenced to life imprisonment for rape last February, has been transferred from the Stateville penitentiary to the Menard prison for the insane, it was revealed yesterday.

Steffey confessed that he assaulted and raped 23 women to assure himself that he was not abnormal. He was found to be legally sane in the Criminal court of Judge Julius H. Miner and received life sentences on three charges of rape and one of 1 to 14 years for assault.

Find Superiority Complex.

His transfer to Menard was ordered by Warden Edward M. Stubblefield on recommendation of Dr. R. C. Barrick, state criminologist, and Dr. Marvin Sukov, prison psychiatrist. The warden said that the prisoner, who was a student of Schopenhauer and Nietzsche, egocentric philosophers, was suffering from a superiority complex.

"In my opinion he was just plain ornery," Warden Stubblefield added. Steffey, according to the warden, refused to be civil to other prisoners, kicked the guards and convict nurses and refused to answer questions put to him by the warden and psychiatrists.

Called a Split Personality.

Steffey has been a prisoner at Stateville since March 5. He was sent to prison immediately after his conviction because of his actions in the county jail. Dr. William H. Haines, head of the county behavior clinic, reported that the rapist was suffering from schizophrenia [split personality].

Warden Stubblefield said that the rapist will be given shock treatment at Menard and will be sent to some other penal institution if he recovers.

A New Officers' Training Plan for 100,000 Men — 18 to 26

(INCLUSIVE)

Whether you are in business, in high school or college—find out now, if you can qualify for Officer's Training in the Army Air Forces.

The enemy has had a taste of American fighters in American fighting planes.

But it is only a beginning! Today the greatest air fleet of all time is being mobilized for victory.

And the U. S. Army Air Forces are ready for applications from 100,000 men to train for officers' commissions—in flight or ground crew service.

So urgent is the need that every young man from 18 to 26, inclusive, who can meet the new simplified requirements, should apply for Aviation Cadet training at once.

Under the new training plan commissions may be won not only by college men, but by high school students and men in other walks of life who have not completed formal education. Married men, too, are now acceptable.

DIPLOMAS NO LONGER REQUIRED

Almost all intelligent young men can pass the new simplified tests which determine a man's ability to master the training. If you are physically fit, by all means take the new Air Force physical examinations.

$75 A MONTH WHILE YOU TRAIN

Those accepted will go into training as quickly as facilities permit. As an Aviation Cadet, you are paid $75 per month from the time training starts, with practically all your living expenses taken care of.

You fly as you learn—working directly with your flying instructor, you are advanced strictly in accordance with your ability.

In 8 months from the time training starts, you and your fellow students try for a flying officer's commission—become one of the three musketeers of the air—a bombardier, a navigator, or a pilot—and be well started on your way in serving America and preparing yourself for the great and growing opportunities in aviation.

Three Ways to Enlist

All Men of 18 to 26 Years (Inclusive)

1. may enlist as privates in the Army Air Forces (unassigned) and serve there until their turns come for Aviation Cadet training,
2. or they may enlist in the Air Force Enlisted Reserve and wait until they are ordered to report for Aviation Cadet training.
3. In addition to the two ways outlined above, College men and High School seniors (upon entering college) aged 18 to 26, inclusive, may enlist in the Air Force Enlisted Reserve and continue their schooling, provided they maintain satisfactory scholastic standings.

Upon graduation or withdrawal from college, men will be assigned to active duty at a training center as facilities become available.

If the necessity of war demands, the deferred status in the Army Reserve may be terminated at any time by the Secretary of War.

The new Army Air Force Enlisted Reserve Plan is part of an over-all Army Enlisted Reserve Corps program shortly to be announced. This program will provide opportunities for college men to enlist in other branches of the Army on a deferred basis and to continue their education through graduation if a satisfactory standard of work is maintained. In case of necessity the Secretary of War shall determine when they be called to active duty.

Men so enlisted will have the opportunity of competing for vacancies in officer's candidate schools.

This plan has been approved in the belief that continuance of education will develop capacities for leadership. (Reserve enlistment will not alter regulations regarding established R.O.T.C. plans.)

80% HAVE WON COMMISSIONS

You also have opportunities of winning a commission in ground service with the Air Forces. College men particularly will be interested in the requirements for Armaments, Communications, Engineering, Meteorology, Photography.

Your chances of getting a commission are excellent. This past year, about 80% of all Aviation Cadets were commissioned as Second Lieutenants—of which about 67% are now flying officers. Those who do not qualify remain in the Army Air Forces on an enlisted basis and have further opportunities to improve themselves.

YOUR PAY WHEN COMMISSIONED

As a commissioned officer, you are placed on active duty with the Army Air Forces, with pay ranging from $183 for ground officers to $245 a month for flying officers.

Due to the tremendous expansion of the Air Forces, your advancement should be rapid.

You will receive further operational training before you take your place in the greatest air army the world has ever seen—for by the time you finish training, America expects to have overwhelming superiority in the air.

AVIATION—THE COMING INDUSTRY

There is little doubt that aviation will offer brilliant opportunities after this war. You will be ready for them—not only through training and experience, but because service as an Army officer gives you executive training—helpful in whatever kind of business you enter.

FLY WITH YOUR FRIENDS

Never before has there been such an opportunity to serve your country—and particularly, to become a flying officer in the Army Air Forces.

Investigate the flying squadron of Aviation Cadets that is now being formed for training from men in this locality. Talk to your friends about it—you can apply together and share the fun and work of training.

ACT AT ONCE

For further information . . . see any Army Recruiting and Induction Station listed below, without obligation. If you want to enlist now, arrangements can be made for you to take your mental and physical examinations the same day.

You can best serve your country—and yourself—as an officer in the Army Air Forces. Join now and help win this war—help hit the enemy first and hardest. Apply now—for an early place on the list for Cadet training.

NOTE: Those under 21 years of age will require parents' or guardian's consent. Birth certificates and three letters of recommendation will be required of all applicants.

OPA PRICE CEILING CLAMPED ON ALL EXPORT BUSINESS

Viewed as Forerunner of Domestic 'Freezing.'

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—On the eve of President Roosevelt's message to congress outlining the administration's program to curb inflation, Price Administrator Leon Henderson today established overall price ceilings on commodities and products sold for export. The move is interpreted as foreshadowing the freezing next week of prices on all commodities sold in this country.

Earlier today the White House announced that Mr. Roosevelt was hard at work on his message, which he will send to congress Monday. A Presidential radio address to the nation will follow later in the week.

The program to halt inflation envisioned by administration leaders in White House conferences during the last two weeks reportedly embraces more taxation, wage and rent controls, further credit curbs and price ceilings on everything. Price ceilings are scheduled to be put into effect thru an OPA freezing order Tuesday and will represent the largest single step yet taken to combat inflation.

Become Effective Thursday.

The Office of Price Administration indicated that runaway prices in foreign markets are threatening to disrupt the price levels at home and to divert important domestic supplies to export trade. It was noted that this government promised at the recent conference in Rio de Janeiro that Latin American purchasers would be required to pay no more for commodities than the approximate domestic price plus normal export charges.

The new export rules go into effect next Thursday. While the ceilings cut across all outstanding contracts of sale or purchase in the foreign trade market, they will not disturb prices involved in any export made under a validly outstanding export license issued by the Board of Economic Warfare prior to April 30. Any export license issued after that date will come under the new provisions.

Henderson's announcement defines an export sale as that of any commodity or product exported outside the territorial limits of the 48 states and the District of Columbia.

Aims of Order Explained.

According to OPA, the ceilings will:

1. Provide United States exporters with a fair margin for their services in line with existing trade practices.
2. Protect foreign purchasers against speculative trends.
3. Remove the threat to domestic price levels engendered by excessive export prices.
4. Prevent diversion of domestic supplies to foreign markets under more advantageous price levels.
5. Eliminate danger of loss of foreign markets because of insufficient export margins.

Under the order, the export price of any commodity shall be the cost of acquisition by the exporter plus the average premium charged in the export trade on a similar transaction during the base period. This period is to be July 1 to Dec. 31, 1940, or March 1 to April 15, 1942, whichever is lower.

In addition, the regulations provide that the exporter may add an amount sufficient to compensate him for expenses such as war risk insurance, consular fees, demurrage charges, and shipping costs.

Manufacturers or producers who export directly can add the lower of the two average premiums and the export expenses to their domestic price for the product or commodity exported.

The order requires each exporter to keep a record of all export transactions, itemizing his costs and charges. These records must be available for inspection by the OPA upon demand.

O'HARE'S BOYISH GRIN CAPTIVATES OLD HOME TOWN

Visit to Mother Signals St. Louis Turnout.

St. Louis, Mo., April 25 (AP).—This city surrendered to a boyish smile today as Lieut. Comm. Edward H. O'Hare, the navy's No. 1 ace, came home to mother and a civic welcome.

It was done wholeheartedly with a parade and ceremony at Memorial plaza for the modest 28 year old pilot who shot down five Japanese bombers and damaged a sixth in solitary Pacific combat.

The smile broke out as he stepped into the arms of his mother, Mrs. Selma O'Hare, at the naval reserve aviation base at Lambert-St. Louis field. It stayed thruout a three hour public appearance in his home town where he grew from a pudgy little Irish lad to a broad shouldered athlete.

It's Worse than War.

But strictly from the heart, the big fellow admitted:

"It will be a relief to get back to flying. Looking into machine guns isn't nearly as hard as facing cameras."

O'Hare, in a brief speech, presented a navy E pennant to St. Louis for its successful navy relief fund campaign. Mayor William Dee Becker gave the flyer a scroll, a key to the city and a gold navigator's chronometer.

But it wasn't officialdom or pomp which gave this homecoming its flavor. It was the little things.

That's the Guy.

It was O'Hare's hand on his mother's shoulder. The way he grinned at his sisters, Mrs. Paul V. Palmer and Mrs. Phil E. Tovrea Jr., both of Phoenix, Ariz.

It was Joe, the watermelon man, who ran alongside the O'Hare machine and tossed a bouquet of carnations to the flyer's wife and mother.

It was the awed little boy who nudged his grimy companion and piped, "that's the guy that shot the Japs."

ARMY AIR FORCE SEEKS 100,000 TO TRAIN FOR FLIGHT

Washington, D. C., April 25 [Special].—Using newspaper advertisments in more than 150 cities, the army air force today opened an intensive campaign for 100,000 applicants for flight training.

Officials said the appeal was especially directed at communities where colleges and universities are located which are coöperating in the new air force plan of recruiting students for the enlisted reserve, permitting them to continue with their studies until ordered to active duty as aviation cadets.

Men 18 to 26 years old, inclusive, are eligible for the service, it was stated. They were given a choice of three ways of entering army air training. They may enlist as privates and serve until the opportunity for flight training arises. They may join the enlisted reserve and await a call to active duty. College men and high school seniors upon entering college, may join the enlisted reserve and continue their studies until called.

They were on a cross country trip to the air corps training headquarters at Santa Ana.

Graybill's home was in Heron Lake, Minn. Brown formerly was a San Francisco, Cal., banker.

Planes Collide; 1 Killed.

Mission, Tex., April 25 (AP).—Aviation Cadet John H. Simmons, 22 years old, plunged to his death today after the collision of two Moore field primary training planes.

He bailed out, but his parachute fouled. Cadet Richard J. Shipway, Sioux City, Ia., pilot of the second plane, bailed out safely.

CHICAGO OFFICER WHO TORPEDOED CARRIER HONORED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—The navy today announced award of the navy cross to Lieut. Comm. Richard G. Voge, 37 years old, 7426 N. Ashland avenue, Chicago, and in the award revealed that some of his exploits that earned him the decoration occurred when he was in command of the salvaged submarine Squalus.

Lieut. Comm. Richard T. Voge.

Altho the navy does not link commanding officers' names with their ships while they are still in command, the Squalus, when recommissioned, was renamed the Sailfish. Comm. Voge also had commanded the submarine Sealion, which was destroyed in Cavite so that it would not fall into Jap hands.

The Squalus, which went down in diving tests off Portsmouth, N. H., May 23, 1939, with loss of 26 officers and men, was salvaged after great difficulty, refitted and recommissioned as the Sailfish Feb. 10, 1940.

Torpedoed Jap Carrier.

The navy, describing the actions which brought the honor, said simply:

A navy communique issued Jan. 26 reported that a United States submarine had torpedoed a Japanese aircraft carrier in Macassar straits. Another communique, on March 9, reported damaging of a Japanese cruiser in far eastern waters.

[Lieut. Comm. Voge, 37 years old, is a native Chicagoan and a former student at Harrison High school. He was graduated from Annapolis with the class of 1925 and was assigned first to the naval unit in Shanghai. His wife and child are now living in Honolulu and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Voge, at 334 North Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park.]

Lieut. Robb Decorated.

New Orleans, La., April 25 (AP).—Lieut. James W. Robb, Jr., daring navy pilot who went gunning for Japanese bombers at Pearl Harbor Dec. 7 in an amphibian plane armed only with a rifle, was awarded the navy cross for his heroism in ceremonies today at eighth district navy headquarters here.

High praise was paid the pilot by Secretary Knox in an official citation and the award was presented by Capt. Frank T. Leighton, district commandant, before his entire staff.

Lieut. Robb in telling of his experience said he was "a little bit mad" and didn't realize he didn't have any protection until his plane without armor was a couple of hundred miles out.

She'll Get Medal

MRS. COLIN KELLY.

March Field, Cal., April 25 (AP).—Mrs. Colin Kelly will be tendered the distinguished flying cross and the public will be admitted for the first time in many months into a section of March field Monday afternoon to witness the colorful ceremony. Brig. Gen. William E. Kepner, commanding general of the 4th area, will present the medal to the widow as a pothumous award for the Pacific war's first air hero—and together they will review a dress parade of a number of the flyer's former comrades in the army air corps.

COL. M'CORMICK ASSERTS CRITICS HELP WIN WARS

Tells How Britain Rose to Defense of Press.

Keeping alive the right to criticize government in wartime, a right which is largely exercised by newspapers, is an important means to victory, Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, asserted in a radio address last night.

"The duty of criticism which rests heavily upon newspapers, especially in times when our country is in danger, is not an end in itself, but is a means to an all-important end—victory in war," Col. McCormick said. "To be effective the criticism must be forceful and specific. Lloyd George, British prime minister in the last war, used to say that it was the critics who won the first World war for Britain. It is for the newspapers to see that this war is not lost because of a shortage of criticism."

The speech was broadcast by W-G-N, W59C, and the Mutual Broadcasting system as a feature of the America Loves a Melody hour.

TEXT OF THE ADDRESS

The text of the address follows:

"Tonight I will talk about a cartoon which appeared in a lively little tabloid read daily by about 2 million people. The drawing showed a sailor adrift on a raft. The caption was 'The price of petrol has been increased by one penny.' From that you will understand that it was a British newspaper. It was the London Mirror.

"The average motorist who saw the cartoon may have felt that it was intended to promote the conservation of gasoline. But the British government placed a different construction upon the drawing. The home secretary, Herbert Morrison, said that the cartoon conveyed the idea that lives of men were being sacrificed at sea 'in order that the petrol combines might make another penny a gallon.' He warned the Mirror that it faced suppression by the government unless it mended its ways.

Gets Under Churchill's Skin.

"This was, of course, not the first time the paper had irritated British governmental officials. Right along the Mirror had been criticizing the conduct of the war by the government and its predecessor. But for that matter so had many other publications. The press had gotten under the prime minister's skin.

"And so the British government, resentful of criticism, cracked down on the picture newspaper because it published the little cartoon showing the forlorn sailor afloat on the raft. The result was not what had been expected. Not only the tabloids, but the more sedate newspapers of Britain, of every political affiliation and economic philosophy, joined in denouncing the threat to the Mirror. It was widely recognized that the picture paper had been selected for the government's guinea pig.

Attacked on All Sides.

"Members of parliament of all parties and what are referred to as thinking people in all walks of life joined in denouncing the British government for what was recognized as an assault upon the freedom of speech and of the press. The reaction was so strong against the Churchill government that it can be taken for granted that a crackdown upon the press in England will not occur soon again.

"The comments of some of the British newspapers are worthy of note. The London Times, most influential of British papers and stanchest supporter of the present government, declared that 'the purpose of a censorship is to prevent information from reaching the enemy, not to silence critics at home. Its purpose must not be to maintain morale—not because morale should not, but because it cannot, be maintained by suppression. The lesson of France on that point is final. If morale is bad, mere censorship will make it worse, will destroy it. The morale of this nation is good, and could only be threatened if it were not free to speak its mind. Sooner or later policy immune from criticism always lands itself in the fatal blunder—fatal because it cannot be retrieved. The power to retrieve blunders depends upon criticism, which gives the whole community a responsible share in the remedial action. Without the constructive force of criticism it is unlikely that this country would have survived the disasters of the past two years, or be in any position to confront the urgent perils ahead.'

Oppose Unsuccessful Effort.

"The London News Chronicle set forth its position in these words: 'The motive behind those who criticize defects in our war effort and call for stronger measures is not to create opposition to the successful prosecution of the war, but precisely the opposite—to create opposition to the unsuccessful prosecution of the war. We are tired of hearing cries of "rocking the boat" and other clichés from those who resent well-intentioned criticism.'

"Said the London Evening Standard, one of Lord Beaverbrook's papers: 'The issue is not small. France fell largely because her people were gagged and blindfold. The government in its own interest and the nation's interest must remove the faintest suspicion that the British people are to suffer the same handicap by an arbitrary interference with the British press.'

"And to select only one more from many others that might be quoted, the Edinburgh Scotsman said: 'The widespread concern which the action of the government has caused largely arises out of the fact that the government, while paying lip service to the value and indeed the necessity of preserving the freedom of the press even in wartime, have shown themselves strongly resentful of criticism, whether in parliament or the press, and have been too ready to attribute it to bad motives. And yet it is only as a result of such criticism that the government have made some reforms, which they thus inferentially admit to have been desirable and necessary.'

Reviews Press' Achievements.

"The World's Press News, a British trade paper for the newspaper publishing industry, recently reviewed what British newspaper criticism had accomplished since the war started. The press, it was said, was primarily responsible for bringing about the downfall of the Chamberlain government and placing in office the Churchill government; the press exposed the weakness in aircraft production; the press demanded and brought on the drive for bigger tank production; the home guard was created as a result of the persistent demand of the press; it exposed the deficiencies in defense organization; it brought about the use of London subways as air raid shelters; it prepared public opinion for accepting rationing on a steadily widening scale.

"The British newspapers have a record of high achievement in the war. They have been critical of their government, but have been ahead of it in their joint demand for action. Frequently they have used stronger language in discussing governmental mistakes than would be considered good taste in America.

"Mr. Churchill has complained that both parliament and the press discount good news and emphasize bad. But what can he expect since time and again official optimism has been found to be without justification? Even the scholarly, temperate, and venerable weekly, the London Economist, accused the Churchill government of making statements which were 'willfully deceptive.' It is not easy to forget Chamberlain's famous saying, 'Hitler has missed the bus,' nor the assurances Mr. Churchill gave about the impregnability of Singapore, assurances which were accepted so readily that the allies were in no hurry to lay up large quantities of rubber, creating the predicament in which we now find ourselves with reference to that commodity. Here is proof again that a nation which sets out to deceive its citizens winds up by deceiving itself.

Conscious of Responsibilities.

"I might be pardoned for talking shop to you tonight because I have just come home after a week in New York at the annual meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' association. The publishers of the United States on the whole are as conscious of their wartime responsibilities as are the British newspapers from which I have quoted. As my grandfather, Joseph Medill, said in an editorial first published in THE TRIBUNE on Oct. 3, 1861, shortly after the beginning of the Civil war, and recently republished there: 'Leading and influential journals like our own are in some sort regarded as watchmen on the walls, to look for the approach of danger toward what their readers hold dear. They have had thrust upon them the duty, not always pleasant, of acting as conservators of the public good, often at the expense of their private interests. Men look to them not only for facts but for opinions. They do not often create, but they shape and give direction to public sentiment. They are the narrators of facts, the exponents of policy, the enemies of wrong.'

"The duty of criticism which rests heavily upon newspapers, especially in times when our country is in danger, is not an end in itself, but is a means to an all-important end—victory in the war. To be effective, the criticism must be forceful and specific. Lloyd George, British prime minister in the last war, used to say that it was the critics who won the first World war for Britain. It is for the newspapers to see that this war is not lost because of a shortage of criticism."

WILSON'S OPPOSITION TO SILENCING CRITICS OF OFFICIALS BARED

New York, April 25 [Special].—Hugh Grant Straus, vice president and treasurer of Abraham & Straus, New York department store, revealed today that he is in possession of a letter written by Woodrow Wilson in 1917 in which the late President expressed his views against a censorship which would ban criticism of public officials.

"I can imagine no greater disservice to the country," wrote Mr. Wilson, "than to establish a system of censorship that would deny to the people of a free republic like our own their indisputable right to criticize their own public officials.

"While exercising the great powers of the office I hold I would regret in a crisis like this one thru which we are now passing to lose the benefits of patriotic and intelligent criticism."

SALUTE TO LATIN AMERICA

Marion Claire, soprano; Ray Charles, tenor; and Bruce Foote, baritone, were the soloists in the America Loves a Melody program, which was a salute to Latin American countries. A highlight of the program was a cello solo arrangement of "Liebestraum" played by Adolph Hoffman. The soloists, orchestra, and chorus gave a medley of familiar Spanish American melodies.

Henry Weber directed the orchestra; Robert Trendler the chorus, and Kenneth MacGregor was the producer.

PACIFISTS, REDS IN FRIENDS OF DEMOCRACY, INC.

Group Hits All-American War Effort.

The Friends of Democracy, Inc., now trying to raise 5 million dollars in a national membership drive, has begun spending its collections on advertisments to "blackguard newspapers which insist on all-American war effort.

Scrutiny of the Friends' 38 national committeemen and officers discloses that of the 32 known outside their own circles, only two are under 50 years old. Just one was young enough to register last Feb. 16.

Many are very old. Of those with records in the last war, a good percentage were chaplains or stretcher bearers. Some are members of conscientious objector groups.

Some in Communist Front.

A majority of the national committeemen belong to one or more communist front organizations. Some appear to be out and out Reds. A plentiful sprinkling of the Friends of Democracy are foreign born or were educated abroad.

The organization's propaganda describes its 5 million dollar campaign as a movement to establish "a battle fund for American democracy," which is being threatened by "proponents of fascism, naziism, and communism, spending 30 million dollars a year."

In none of the organization propaganda, however, could any attacks upon communism be found. There is much outcry, however, against the foes of communism.

Attack Henry Ford.

One of their most imposing brochures is devoted exclusively to villification of Henry Ford. All their propaganda is leftist, some of it openly communistic. It is guised, however, as a crusade for American democracy's preservation.

Other pamphlets or releases issued by the organization have sniped at the Catholic church. One release described "Our Sunday Visitor," a Catholic journal published in Huntington, Ind., as pro-Nazi. The paper is sold weekly at Catholic churches and has a circulation of 1,500,000. In another release the Trinity league, of New York City, an association of Catholic churches, was smeared as a Nazi organization.

Letterheads sent out by the group since it was founded in 1937 show a number of changes in its national directorate. Since last year it has lost such luminaries as Norman Thomas and Dr. Anton J. Carlson, University of Chicago physiologist. He left the Friends to become a leading speaker for the America First committee in the months before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Leon Milton Birkhead, founder and national director, began his career as a dissident Methodist, preaching and promoting money in various cities and eventually embracing the Unitarian faith. In 1917 he became pastor of All Souls' Unitarian church in Kansas City, Mo., which was known as "The Liberal Center," and housed meetings of the American League Against War and Fascism, a communist front organization.

Advocates Legalized Gambling.

In 1939 Birkhead began giving his full time to the Friends of Democracy. While manning the church, in which the Red "Internationale" was sung, he advocated legalized gambling and in 1927 gathered additional publicity by performing the companionate marriage ceremony of Josephine Haldeman-Julius and Aubrey Roselle.

Birkhead later did some writing for the bride's father, the sex pamphleteer who published the "little blue books." In 1927 Birkhead wrote "The Sins of Good People," in which he said:

"Good people are essentially selfish people. They would be better if they would commit 'a dark, pleasant, terrible, wicked deed.'"

For years he has been a militant mover in the American Civil Liberties union and in 1941 fluttered into the ranks of the Fight for Freedom. Birkhead was a consistent smearer of the forces that opposed war and was one of the loudest of the prowar shouters. He was widely quoted by the war propaganda groups clustered on the eastern seaboard. The Friends' eastern offices are on Park avenue, New York City.

Author Is President.

The Friends' president is Louis Bromfield, author. He spent most of the time between the World war—in which he was attached to the French ambulance corps—and the outbreak of the present war in Europe. During the Paris years he was the idol of the rich American expatriates there and an associate of the marrying Princes Mdivani and other royalty and near royalty.

Bromfield, who is 46 years old, has been prominent in communist front organizations. He was head of the Paris committee of the Abraham Lincoln brigade, which fought for the Reds in the Spanish revolution.

Accompanied by thousands of communist sympathizers, he greeted 149 members of the brigade when they returned to New York from Spain in 1938. As a member of the brigade's veterans' auxiliary, Bromfield was one of those who called a meeting to protest federal agents' investigations of the Spanish fighters' activities in this country.

Attacks Dies Committee.

His name appears on the call for the New York city-wide conference in 1939 of the American League for Peace and Democracy. Bromfield assailed the Dies committee after it had listed the league as a communist front organization as it did the League of American Writers, of which he was elected a vice president. In July, 1940, Bromfield joined the war mongering William Allen White committee.

Bromfield is much better known than the Friends' last president, the Rev. Joseph C. Cleveland. Cleveland's nearest approach to becoming a national figure appears to have been his presentation of Sally Rand, the fan dancer, as a speaker in the pulpit of Kansas City's First Congregational church, of which he was pastor in 1938. She asked American support for the Spanish Red army.

The youngest member of the national committee is Peter H. Odegard, 41. Professor of political science at Amherst college, he was 1939 chairman of the Amherst chapter of the American Civil Liberties union and program and policy chairman for the League for Independent Political Action.

Location of the Grunewald and of resort areas near it in the Greater Berlin area. The German radio reported a fire raging in the Grunewald, attributed to careless children.

Children Blamed

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—A fire in the Grunewald forest in Berlin caused "considerable damage to valuable timber stocks" and was controled only after hours of tedious work by fire brigades, the Berlin radio said tonight. The fire was attributed to the "carlessness of playing children."

Der Grunewald is a 7,500 acre forest in the southwest part of Greater Berlin, between Charlottensburg and Potsdam. It is a favorite resort of Berliners and contains the fashionable villa colony of Grunewald, an area of small lakes and fine homes. The popular Wansee borders the area on the south.

BERLIN CLAIMS SERBIAN REBEL CHIEF CAPTURED

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BERNE, Switzerland, April 25.—Capture of Gen. Draja Mikhailovitch, leader of Serb patriots who have been holding out in the mountains since the collapse of Jugo-Slavia, was claimed in Berlin tonight. The date and place of his capture were not given, however.

Reports from Zagreb told of the "complete annihilation" of "bolshevist banditry" by German and Croat troops.

Report Unrest Increasing.

LONDON, April 25.—Reports of increasingly violent unrest flooded into London today from France, Belgium, and Jugo-Slavia. There were stories of sabotage, including one instance in which Belgian workers in a munitions factory thoughtfully failed to fill 1,500,000 cartridges with powder, as well as a report that Belgian hostages now were being executed at the rate of 20 to 25 a day.

The German people's anti-Nazi radio was quoted as saying that "when the second front comes it will be the signal for an uprising of the French and the Norwegian peoples, as has been already proved by the [British] raid on Saint Nazaire where Frenchmen actively took part in the fighting."

HOUSEWIVES BUY SUGAR STOCK TO OUTLAST FREEZE

Industries Register on April 28 and 29.

Grocers reported yesterday that many housewives were stocking up with sugar to carry their families thru the "freeze" period of one week, which begins Tuesday and continues thru May 4. No sales of sugar may be made during the period.

Hundreds of commercial users of sugar called yesterday at the Public Service office of THE TRIBUNE for blanks which they must fill out and file with the rationing administration Tuesday and Wednesday. Michael F. Mulcahy, rationing chief in Chicago, has urged that the commercial applicants obtain and fill out the blanks before signing them in the registration offices, as required by the regulations.

Register in High Schools.

High schools, one to a ward, will be used as registration centers and a list of these schools is printed in the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE today.

Registration of home users of sugar will be held May 4, 5, 6, and 7 in school buildings. An adult member of each household must report any sugar on hand over two pounds per person. Separate ration books will be issued to each individual, who will be allowed not more than one-half a pound per week for the first ration period of eight weeks.

It is expected that the commercial users in the city will number 35,000, and the high school teachers will be the registrars. Volunteer workers will assist in the consumer registration.

Sales to Be by Coupon.

Households with excess amounts of sugar on hand will have their ration books depleted by the amounts hoarded. Sugar sales will be by coupon after the registration. The penalty for misstatements of fact are severe; fines up to $10,000 and imprisonment up to a year, or both.

The intricate rules provide that any consumer who borrows a little sugar from a neighbor must pay it back in kind, and cannot legally pay money for it.

HITLER REPORTED IN BERLIN FOR TALK TOMORROW

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—Continental reports said tonight that Adolf Hitler had returned to Berlin and was expected to call a meeting of the reichstag probably Monday to make a statement on German-French relations.

A Reuters dispatch from Vichy quoted the Swedish newspaper Nya Dagligt Allehanda as saying German newspapers published reports that the Kroll Opera house—scene of reichstag sessions—is to be closed, indicating a session is imminent.

An earlier report credited to the Berlin correspondent of the Swiss Gazette de Lausanne said this correspondent had learned a large number of French prisoners were to be released soon, but that most of them would remain in Germany as factory hands.

MARINES ACCEPT DOUGLAS, 50, AS FIGHTING PRIVATE

Beaten Senate Candidate Pronounced Sound.

Ald. Paul H. Douglas.

Economics professor at the University of Chicago, crusading 5th ward alderman, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, husband and father—and now a buck private in the fighting marines.

That, in brief, is an up to date sketch of the career of Paul H. Douglas, 50 years old, who completed the last step yesterday when he was acecpted by the marine corps for enlistment as a private—"fit for duty on the sea or in the field."

The alderman, who is gray haired, but huskily built, passed his physical examination with flying colors, according to Lieut. Col. Chester L. Forney, in charge of marine recruiting for the Chicago area. He will be given until May 15 to settle his personal affairs, take leave of his professorship and resign his aldermanic post, and then will be sworn in.

To Training Center First.

Lieut. Col. Fordney said Ald. Douglas will be sent to the Marine barracks at Parris Island, S. C., regular recruit training center, where he will be put into condition for the fighting action he said is his one desire.

Ald. Douglas applied for enlistment the day after the April 14 primary, Lieut. Col. Fordney revealed. However, because of his age—20 years over marine standards for general service—the application had to be approved by the commandant of the corps.

An outstanding advocate of American intervention in the European war theater prior to last Dec. 7, Douglas is consistently following his principles in seeking a fighting post. Enlistment for real war service has not been noteworthy in the interventionist ranks, even tho some of the leaders are younger than the alderman.

Other Interventionists Stay Out.

Sen. Claude Pepper of Florida is 41 years old. Archibald MacLeish, head of the government's Office of Facts and Figures, who is now warning the country that an axis "peace offensive" must be squelched, is not quite 50. Henry R. Luce, magazine editor who has been receiving feathers thru the mail, is 44. Walter Winchell, gossipist who doubles as a naval officer, is 45. None of them has indicated any intention to rush to the front with Douglas.

Lieut. Col. Fordney said Ald. Douglas asked to be admitted as a recruit assigned to general service — doing any of the duties as a soldier or a sailor to which a marine is assigned.

Wants Action, He Says.

After being notified of his acceptance, Douglas said:

"I didn't want a desk job, I wanted action. As a private in the marines, I should get it."

Then he, his wife, Emily, a daughter of the famed sculptor, Lorado Taft, and a daughter left to spend the week-end in the Indiana dunes. They reside at 5658 Blackstone avenue.

The aldermanic vacancy can be filled by the council's ordering a special election or at the next general election. Because of the cost involved, the latter procedure is generally used.

F.D.R. BODYGUARD QUITS TO BECOME CAPTAIN IN ARMY

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—Thomas J. Qualters, President Roosevelt's bodyguard, relinquished his job today and his duties were taken over by Charles W. Frederick, a secret service man.

The job of Presidential bodyguard is being dropped and Frederick will not have the title, nor that of assistan chief of the White House secret service detail, as did Qualters. Fredericks, however, will be by the President's side most of the time when the chief executive appears in public.

Qualters, a former Notre Dame football player who came to the White House from the Massachusetts state police, began a few days' leave today before entering the army as a captain on May 1.

3 BURNED BY GASOLINE BLAZE.

Three men suffered minor burns yesterday when gasoline which they had drained from a car they were dismantling caught fire in a garage at 2112 North Hoyne avenue. The victims are Leonard Franz, 23 years old, 2112 North Hoyne avenue; his brother, Alfred Franz, 26, of 2021 North Seeley avenue, and Robert Selesky, 26, of 2241 Shakespeare avenue.

Anti-Typhus Serum Sent to Poles in Russia, Iran

CAIRO, Egypt, April 25 (AP).—Ralph Bain, American Red Cross chief in the east Mediterranean district, ancunced today that $30,000 worth of anti-typhus vaccine had been sent to Teheran, Iran, from Cairo in the last few weeks. He said, "The disease among Poles in Iran and southern Russia now is largely under control."

MACARTHUR MORE THAN A NATIONAL HERO TO HOOVER

He's the Man He Selected to Be Chief of Staff.

Emergence of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as the brilliant defender of Bataan and supreme commander of the united nations in the southwest Pacific has been followed with deep satisfaction by the man who first selected him to head the United States army.

That man is Herbert Hoover, only living ex-President of the United States. Exceedingly fit at the age of 67, Hoover, who spent a few hours in Chicago yesterday en route from his Palo Alto, Cal., home to New York, commented that his choice of MacArthur, then 50 year old, as army chief of staff, was an example of his policy of placing in vital executive positions the youngest capable men he could find.

Judgment Born Out.

There was no "I told you so" attitude evident in Hoover's manner as he reflected how strikingly his judgment in naming MacArthur to high command has been borne out by recent events. Rather, the former President appeared to derive from MacArthur's success the same glow of pleasure which a schoolmaster or business leader feels from the achievements of an affectionately remembered pupil or protégé.

MacArthur was made a major general in 1925 and was the youngest ranking officer available when it became necessary to select a new chief of staff in 1930, Hoover recalled. The appointment carried with it the rank of general, and thus advanced MacArthur over many of his seniors.

"Of course I considered the brilliance of the general's career and the reputation he had developed for leadership," the former President said, "but his comparative youngness was the deciding factor."

Hoover Here

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

War Incident Recalled.

As an example of previous demonstration of courage and military sagacity on MacArthur's part, Hoover cited a little known incident of the first World war. In 1918, on the western front, the general was told that a maneuver he suggested could not succeed and if attempted would cost all of his 3,000 men, Hoover said.

MacArthur's reply, according to Hoover, was, "Very well, if we lose 3,000 we will lose 3,001." MacArthur then proceeded to execute his projected maneuver with the result that he captured an important salient with negligible losses.

Hoover said MacArthur's quality also was demonstrated by the skilful manner in which he handled the evacuation of the bonus army from Washington in 1932. Quoting from a report on the evacuation written by MacArthur at the time, he revealed that the general's first move had been to send word to the various camps of the bonus marchers that they were going to be evacuated and that he "hoped they would not be humiliated by being forced out."

Given Hour's Notice.

The former President said MacArthur's report revealed the camps were given an hour's notice of the approach of troops. The result was that the camp at Thirteenth and C streets was completely evacuated when the troops arrived and the camp at Anacostia nearly so.

"There were a few people in the interior of the camp still packing, and they were given full oportunity and time to go," the general reported.

GEN. MACARTHUR HONORS ANZACS' MEMORIAL DAY

Places Wreath Silently at National Shrine.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 25 (AP).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur took part quietly today in the observance of Anzac day, the memorial day of Australia, and pledged simply that the fighting men of the land down under would have America's continued comradeship-in-arms thru their commonwealth's grave ordeal.

With the sun glinting on the stars and the medals of his old campaigns, the new commander in chief of allied headquarters, accompanied by his American, Australian, and Dutch aides, climbed the steps to the nation's shrine and placed a wreath on flower-decked Remembrance rock.

A card with the wreath was inscribed: "To Anzac forces from their comrades-in-arms of yesterday, today, and tomorrow."

Makes No Speech.

Several thousands who began gathering before daybreak stood silent with bared heads. Criss-crossing the grounds where they stood in tearful tribute to the men who stormed Gallipoli 27 years ago were the newly dug air raid shelter trenches in reminder of the present hour of trial.

MacArthur made no speech. He stood at the shrine, head bared and bowed in prayer, for only a few moments.

Missing from the ceremony this war year was the customary parade of the veterans. They held their observance at the shrine quietly, before dawn. Missing, too, because of wartime precautions, was the usual children's massmeeting at the shrine. It was replaced yesterday by a nation-wide broadcast concluded with the playing of the Australian anthem and the Star Spangled Banner.

Planes Battle at Moresby.

Allied headquarters announced a new exchange of blows in the aerial battle for control of the island barrier north of Australia.

A communique said fighter planes defending Port Moresby "successfully intercepted in sanguinary combat" seven Japanese navy fighters which struck at the New Guinea port yesterday.

Allied bombers, it said, raided the airfield at Japanese-held Lae on the northeast coast of New Guinea. Unofficial sources said the Japanese apparently were intensifying their aerial efforts to loosen the allies hold on Port Moresby.

Eight Bombers Attack.

These sources said raids on Port Moresby Thursday were the heaviest in a month, with three navy fighters opening the day's operations in a low-flying attack on a Port Moresby airfield.

Half an hour later fighter planes were reported back again, this time accompanied by eight bombers. Thursday afternoon fighter planes attempted new machine-gunning sweeps over the field.

MRS. MacARTHUR DODGES AUSSIE SOCIAL EVENTS

Spends Time with General, Son.

BY CLARK LEE.

MELBOURNE, Australia, April 25—[Wide World].—After ducking bombs for several months during the battle of Bataan, Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, the general's wife, is now adroitly dodging a barrage of social invitations.

Finding it impossible to accept even a small percentage of the overwhelming offers of Australian hospitality, Mrs. MacArthur has solved the problem of not hurting anybody's feelings by using the legitimate excuse that her husband is extremely busy and that she would be unable to accept without him.

She has made a few exceptions, however, in the case of charity bazaars and campaigns for army and navy funds. On one appearance at a hospital flower show she was presented with Gen. MacArthur roses—a strain developed by and named for her husband's father.

Makes Shopping Tours.

She has made repeated shopping tours and occasionally has visited small tea rooms with Señora Quezon wife of Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippines, or with other friends. She was seen in the market one noon with a shopping basket on her arm, buying a few delicacies for her son, Arthur.

Mrs. MacArthur, a slim, dark, trim woman, finds her major outdoor recreation in long walks with the general and in taking her son for short automobile drives in the afternoon. She plays no bridge. She does some sewing and knitting. The general often works until 7:30 p. m., including Sundays, so the MacArthurs never go out evenings.

Arthur who witnessed a bombing raid on his 4th birthday, Feb. 21, on Corregidor, attends kindergarten at a private school in the morning.

Nurse Always with Him.

He is a quiet, well behaved boy with dark brown hair. His constant companion since his birth has been his Cantonese amah [nurse], Ah Chiu. Ah Chiu speaks pidgin English and is devoted to only one person, Arthur.

During the aerial assaults on Corregidor in January and February, the general was easily the coolest person in the fortress. His wife ran a close second. Her first concern was always the safety of their child.

When there were no air raids or shelling, Mrs. MacArthur would sit at a table in the officers' mess outside the big shelter tunnel and read, smoke and knit while Arthur played near-by.

General Last to Shelter.

Several times daily the general would come from his headquarters to smoke and talk with his wife and Arthur. The child usually wore play-suits with a military cap, tipped on the side of his head, and often pointed an imaginary gun and shouted, "bang!"

When an air raid alarm sounded, Mrs. MacArthur would call Arthur and walk to the shelter a few yards away. Frequently she was the last person, the general excepted, to enter.

Despite the dangers, the MacArthurs lived above ground about a half mile from the nearest of Corregidor's many underground places of safety.

Usually when the morning siren screamed, the general would wait until his wife and son were safely on the way to the tunnel and would then emerge and stroll around our nearby quarters swinging a cane and puffing a cigaret in a long holder and watching the approaching planes.

Ship Leaves Brazil to Take European Diplomats Home

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, April 25 (AP).—The Spanish steamer Cabo de Buena Esperanza left today with axis diplomats en route to Europe from South America. The ship had lain in port since April 13 awaiting a larger fuel supply. The captain said he did not have enough fuel for the voyage to Spain, where South American diplomats are waiting to be exchanged. American and British oil companies said they were unable to provide more fuel because of the war shortage.

RAF HURLS 6 BIG DAYLIGHT RAIDS AT FRENCH COAST

Aerial Offensive Reaches a New Peak.

LONDON, April 26 [Sunday]—(AP).—The royal air force daylight offensive over France reached a new peak yesterday with six large scale onslaughts in 11 hours in a fiery aftermath to a second violent night attack on Rostock.

The Germans retaliated by sending large numbers of bombers over western England last night and early today, cascading high explosives and fire bombs on one town.

Maintaining attacks over the longest daylight raid period of the war, the RAF pounded targets at Cherbourg, Le Havre, Calais, Abbeville, and other points between Saturday's dawn and sunset.

British Lose 16 Planes.

The RAF forced the Germans to put into the air the greatest number of fighters encountered during any one day of 1942.

The success of these sweeps and the comparatively small British losses—15 fighters and one bomber—appeared to indicate the Nazis now are unable to muster enough fighters to match the RAF. German losses for the day were given by the British as eight fighters.

While fighters engaged in dogfights, American-made Bostons unloaded their bombs along the German held coast even as Rostock, the important German Baltic port, still flamed and crumbled from its second straight British assault.

After the first retaliatory raids upon England last night, the Germans again sent over large formations around last midnight, and one town experienced a short but sharp attack. One enemy bomber was reported downed.

Hardest Blows at Rostock.

In addition to heavy attacks upon docks at Cherbourg and Le Havre, and a factory at Calais, the RAF's targets yesterday included communications at Abbeville and military installations at numerous other places in France.

The hardest blows, however, were dealt Friday night at Rostock, second of Hitler's great Baltic bases for the German armies of Norway, Finland, and northern Russia to be wrecked by British bombs. Nearly a million pounds of explosives were used to blast it in two of the most violent allied air raids of the war, the British said.

Striking in perfect bombing weather, the RAF for the second consecutive night showered bombs on the Baltic rail-sea outlet and raiding base, ripping the Heinkel aircraft works again and leaving great fires in the Neptune shipyards and other port installations in the Warnow estuary.

Preliminary reports on the second 1,000 mile round trip attack on Rostock "are as promising as the first," in which the RAF dropped the biggest bomb load in its history, the air ministry said.

Nazis Make Reprisal Raid.

Four bombers were lost in Friday night's raid.

In announced reprisal for the Baltic attacks, the Nazis sent small groups of dive bombers across the southwest English coast. In one city—the Germans said it was Exeter—the death toll was 12 and hundreds were made homeless. But the reprisal attacks were conducted by no more than 25 planes, British authorities said.

Following the assault on the Baltic port of Luebeck March 28, the two attacks on Rostock demonstrated the RAF's new tactics—the opening of a full fledged Baltic air front in which Nazi rear guard bases are to be devastated to assist the armies of Russia.

3 Ships Sunk, Berlin Claims.

BERLIN, April 25 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—The German high command announced tonight that German bombers sank three freighters totaling 10,000 tons off southern England today.

HARD HIT MALTA HITS BACK; RAIDS ENEMY IN SICILY

Its Planes Attack Axis Airfield and Big Ship.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 25 (AP).—Despite continuous axis air raids, the battered little Island of Malta—Britain's unsinkable "aircraft carrier" 60 miles from Sicily—struck back today at an enemy airdrome and a big merchant ship which was carrying supplies to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's North African corps.

The air field bombed was at Comiso in Sicily, whence most of the axis planes have flown against Malta in virtually ceaseless attacks for four months. The supply ship in the central Mediterranean was reported probably hit by bombers from one of Malta's three air bases at Halfar, Luea, and Tahalt.

In defense of the island itself, RAF fighters and ground batteries knocked down four planes and damaged 10 more in heavy axis raids during the last 24 hours, a Malta communique said tonight. It added that civilian casualties during this period were "considerable."

Batter Valetta Harbor.

The heaviest assaults came last night when axis bombers concentrated on Valetta harbor and some bombs fell on the city itself. Other planes bombed and machine gunned a nearby airport without serious damage.

In daylight followups the raiders struck three times at Malta today, but casualties were described as lighter than last night.

Malta has undergone more than 2,000 enemy raids—123 in one day and night—since Italy entered the war. Since the mass raids started Dec. 19, an average of 70 tons of explosives daily has been dropped on Malta by a total of 11,000 planes.

Malta's planes and anti-aircraft guns probably have downed 520 raiders, at least 200 of which have been seen to crash.

Not only has Malta been a deadly spearhead against Libya bound convoys, but it has forced the axis to withhold perhaps 400 enemy bombers and 400 fighters which otherwise would be hurled against the Russian and North Africa fronts.

The weight of the axis attacks has been centered on the harbor and airdromes and has grown steadily this year. But so has Malta's defense.

Worst Beating of War.

In the four months beating, Malta has taken the most persistent and prolonged attack of the war. Not excepting London, Rotterdam, and Warsaw. In the heaviest raids on April 7, the Germans used 600 planes, of which half were bombers.

Deadly Swordfish torpedo planes, Blenheims, Beaufighters, Wellingtons, and American made Maryland [Martin] bombers still rise from Malta to make the Mediterranean perilous for axis convoys.

Bad weather today kept the armies in Libya immobilized and only patrol activity was reported.

CHARGES SWEDEN'S RAILWAYS MOVE ARMS FOR NAZIS IN FINLAND

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—One of Sweden's best known newspapers, the Handels Och Sjoefartstidningnen of Goteborg, was quoted by Reuters news agency today as asserting that Swedish railways were "ceaselessly" transporting arms intended for German troops in Finland.

The newspaper made the charge in commenting sarcastically about the government's protest to England on arming the Norwegian ships which recently made a dash from Goteborg thru German naval forces and minefields to England. Said the newspaper:

"Norwegians clearly belong to a wicked class of animals which defend themselves."

ROBBED OF CAR AND MONEY.

Harry Teinowitz, 4128 Van Buren street, an instalment dealer, was robbed yesterday of $40, his car, and $200 worth of bed linens by two armed men in front of 1315 Orleans street.

RUSSIAN CAVALRY RAIDS THRU MUD REWIN VILLAGES

Reach Important Nazi Supply Road.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, April 25 (AP).—Red army cavalry units, scorning the spring swamps which have bogged down other ground forces, have taken a number of German occupied villages and reached an important highway feeding the German front, dispatches to Izvestia said today.

The horsemen were reported to be harassing the Germans at every turn by lightning raids on villages despite the efforts of German planes and artillery to check them.

On the Karelian front, it was reported that a unit of Russian guardists attacked a hilly sector where the Germans had been fortifying the crests during the winter and captured an important height.

Advance in Bryansk Sector.

The newspaper reported that the Russians also were continuing their advance in the Bryansk sector, where guerrillas in contact with the Red army are supporting the attack.

The fighting on the southern front consisted mostly of trench warfare, it was said. In the Sevastopol sector, snipers of the Black sea naval infantry were credited with killing 1,050 Germans in the last two weeks.

A press notice today announced the death of Maj. Gen. Nicolai Levitsky, 55 years old, one of the leading officers assigned with Marshals Klementi Voroshilov and Semeon M. Budenny from the reserves.

The Moscow radio broadcast tonight that the Germans had lost 35 planes in raids on Leningrad alone Friday and Saturday. Five Russian planes were lost over Leningrad. The few German planes which penetrated the city's defenses were said to have dropped bombs indiscriminately upon dwellings, causing a number of casualties. The midnight communique of the soviet information bureau reported that 68 German planes were shot down along the front yesterday. It also said the Red navy had sunk a 12,000 ton German ship in the Barents sea.

Smash Across River.

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—New local successes for the Russians in the Smolensk and Kursk areas were reported today as spring thaws spread northward and bogged down the armies on the Finnish front.

Red army dispatches to Kuibyshev said soviet troops had smashed across a river in the Smolensk sector, driven thru barbed wire networks and captured heavily fortified German positions under cover of an artillery barrage.

The other report of a soviet success was from Istanbul, where it was said the Red army had cut the railway between Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow and Kursk, 280 miles south of the capital, and were driving toward Fatezh, 30 miles northwest of Kursk in an effort to sever communications in the German rear.

Stockholm dispatches, giving credence to German claims, told of a setback to Russian forces on the northern front, however. This report said the German 16th army, long encircled at Staraya Russa, south of Lake Ilmen, finally had broken out and made contact with German forces to the west.

German General Berthold Killed on Smolensk Front

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—The German radio said today it was officially announced that Maj. Gen. Gerhard Berthold, commander of a German infantry division, had been killed on the Smolensk front.

PASSENGER SHIP SUNK OFF U. S. BY PACK OF U-BOATS

Set Afire from Stem to Stern; 169 Saved.

The sinking of two more American ships by submarines off the Atlantic coast was announced yesterday by the navy. 142 One was a passenger-cargo ship carrying 104 passengers and a crew of 79 and the other was a freighter. At the same time it was announced a Norwegian merchant ship escaped after a gun battle with a submarine off the Atlantic coast. The two sinkings brought to 142 the number of vessels sunk in American waters since Pearl Harbor, with 882 known dead, 1,166 missing, and 4,233 rescued. Details follow:

95 PASSENGERS SAVED

Norfolk, Va., April 25 (AP).—An American cargo passenger ship was sunk Tuesday night off the Atlantic coast after a torpedo and shellfire attack by three submarines set her afire from stem to stem.

The navy said nine passengers and five crew members were missing and presumed lost from the 104 passengers and crew of 79 and that 169 persons, 95 of them passengers, were rescued. Survivors were adrift 18 hours in six lifeboats.

Lawrence W. Earle, 18 years old, son of Pennsylvania's former Gov. George H. Earle, was among survivors who were landed at Norfolk. He said the crew of their rescue vessel told him they had destroyed one of the submarines and believed they had destroyed another.

Captain Goes Down With Ship.

Earle said Capt. Robert W. Hart of Rutherford, N. J., remained on the bridge and went down with his ship.

Rescued with Earle was Harry King Jr., 18, of New York, whose father is a member of the War Production board. Survivors included a honeymooning couple, William R. Henry, 21, of New York and his bride, Blanche, 23.

King said he saw submarines following the ship thruout the day—sometimes two and sometimes three.

Earle said one of the attacking submarines fired a torpedo into the passenger ship's port side just aft of amidship. He said the raiders waited until about 15 minutes after the last of the six lifeboats had been launched and then pumped about 30 shells into the vessel.

18 on Cargo Ship Saved.

The navy also announced that a medium size American cargo ship, carrying one passenger and a crew of 47, had been sunk Sunday night. Eighteen men were rescued by the same ship that picked up survivors of the cargo-passenger ship. Three men were presumed lost, and 27 others in a lifeboat had not been reported.

Etbino Villanova of Brooklyn, N. Y., deck engineer, said the freighter sank 12 minutes after one torpedo struck aft on the port side. He said he saw two submarines signaling and that one of them approached to within 10 feet of his lifeboat and the commander, apparently a German, asked the ship's name, nationality, and tonnage.

Alex Andrews of Gary, Ind., a seaman, said the U-boat commander told survivors: "Good luck, and don't worry. We'll send a message and you will be saved."

ESCAPES AFTER DUEL

New York, April 25.—A Norwegian merchant ship fought a running gun battle with a submarine on the Atlantic coast Thursday, and the submarine dived to safety at the approach of American destroyers and aircraft, it was announced today.

One member of the ship's crew was killed and two were wounded, but the vessel reached New York safely.

The captain of the ship said the submarine was sighted between 80 and 100 miles off the coast. He said the ship turned her stern to the U-boat, which began firing shells from a deck gun. The first shells had no effect, but the fourth set fire to the crew's quarters and killed the boatswain.

The ship meanwhile returned the fire, and shot 14 shells at the submarine before running out of ammunition after the fire exploded the remaining shells in her ammunition compartment.

The captain said the submarine fired 50 or 60 shells in less than half an hour, scoring hits with about one-fourth of them.

The sound of gunfire attracted an American plane, a blimp, and warships to the scene and the submarine dived.

Subs Signal Congratulations.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 25 (AP).—Survivors of an American freighter sunk by two submarines told tonight how the submarine commanders signalled congratulations to each other on the sinking while officers and crewmen struggled in the water and in one lifeboat for their lives.

A United States naval vessel brought 26 survivors from the freighter into port here. Fourteen other crewmen were reported missing. The lifeboat drifted for eight days before being found.

CHICAGOAN TELLS HOW U-BOAT SANK TANKER, APRIL 8

Kenneth Koch, 22 years old, 4017 North Keeler avenue, a Senn High school graduate, yesterday told of his experiences on a tanker which was torpedoed off the Atlantic coast last April 8. He spoke over W-G-N.

Koch joined the maritime service two days after Pearl Harbor was attacked and after a short period of training was assigned to the tanker. He said that he was thrown out of his bunk by a terrific explosion and made his way to the deck.

"We just got into the life boat when the sub came to the surface and circled the ship," he said. "We expected to be machine gunned. The sub crew must have thought that we were done for and left. We were picked up the next day." He said that 35 members of the crew of 38 were rescued.

VICHY'S BEST AIR FORCE REPORTED MOVED TO AFRICA

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—The aviation correspondent of the Sunday Express said today he had learned "on excellent authority" that the best planes and fliers of the Vichy air force had been transfered to north African bases.

"This is a complete and unexplained reversal of policy," he added. "Formerly the crack squadrons were kept in France.

"The rearrangement may be intended to strengthen the hand of the Vichy government if it wishes to resist further pressure by the Nazis. Alternatively, it may indicate an intention to give further assistance to the axis."

JAPS HUNT U. S. PLANES; RAID AIR FIELDS IN CHINA

Attack at Three Points for Three Days.

TOKIO, April 25 [from Japanese broadcasts]. — (AP) — Successive aerial attacks for the last three days on Chinese air bases nearest to Japan were reported today in a communique from the Japanese fleet in China waters.

It said naval and army bombers destroyed planes and hangars in attacks on Chuhsien in western Chekiang province, Lishui in southern Chekiang, and Yushan in northern Kiangsi.

The bases have been attacked repeatedly since the imperial headquarters announced that it believed the United States bombers which raided Japan a week ago continued on to bases in China.

Fleet Off China Coast.

San Francisco, Cal., April 25 (AP).—The Chungking radio quoted a Foochow dispatch today that a fleet of Japanese warships was observed patroling the south Fukien coast Thursday.

"Chinese coastal batteries fired on them, forcing them to steam away in a southerly direction," the broadcast said. "Several Japanese warships also were seen off Amoy, but so far they have remained inactive."

Chungking reported that 22 Japanese planes raided Kiangsi province yesterday.

Demand Unified Strategy.

CHUNGKING, April 25 (AP). — The official Central Daily News said today that a unified allied strategy was a growing, imperative necessity, and proposed the establishment of one council with power to determine strategy in all war theaters.

"The presence of American troops in Australia, Northern Ireland, and India will surely add to the chances of the allied offensive," it said. "This makes a unified strategy on a permanent, centralized basis all-important."

U. of Minnesota Refuses to Admit Jap Students

Minneapolis, Minn., April 25 (AP).—W. C. Coffey, president of the University of Minnesota, said today the board of regents had voted not to accept Japanese students pending formulation of a policy by the federal government. The announcement followed reports that 7 Japanese-American students from California and Washington schools were here seeking admission and that 25 others had applied for enrollment by mail.

CHINESE DEFEAT FLANK ATTACK IN MANDALAY DRIVE

Counter-Offensive Inflicts Heavy Casualties.

NEW DELHI, India, April 25 (AP).—The hard-pressed Chinese defending the allied left flank counterattacked tonight and halted a Japanese drive six miles west of Taunggyi, but the strongly reënforced enemy struck furiously with tanks, artillery, and planes on both sides of their stalled comrades.

The Japanese, striking thru the Shan states within 100 miles of devastated Mandalay, thrust forward in three columns around Taunggyi in an effort to encircle the outnumbered troops under Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, U. S. A.

One Japanese spearhead which reached Hopong drove abruptly northeast in the direction of Loilem, 22 miles away, while another column sought to move west and encircle Taunggyi. Still a third unit was striking out 16 miles farther west of Taunggyi.

Inflict Heavy Losses.

The Chinese, almost devoid of air support, inflicted heavy casualties and captured several trucks and other material.

Heavy fighting also was reported in the center on the Sittang river front, and on the British-held right on the Irrawaddy.

The Chinese of the center and their British allies were reported officially to have held their positions. The central front is south of Tatkon and the British are drawn up behind the Pinchaung river near the burned oil center of Yenangyaung.

The Japanese were attempting to overrun Burma and isolate China before the steaming monsoon of mid-May bogs down their mechanized might.

Drive Makes Progress.

"Recent reports are confused regarding Japanese progress in the northward drive thru the Shan states. It is fairly clear that the drive has made progress."

Some experts expected the Japanese columns driving up the Salween to turn abruptly west to cut allied communications with Mandalay and encircle the defending armies of the center.

The front was shaped like a huge semicircle with its anchors near the ruined oil city of Yenangyaung and Taunggyi, with the sagging center several miles south in the vicinity of Tatkon, 30 miles above Pyinmana. It was this central force which was menaced with encirclement. The Chinese there were resisting stubbornly, but the numerically superior Japanese pressed on over the bodies of 6,000 of their dead.

Retreating British Rest.

The British on the right, after two months of constant retreat, were resting and refitting behind the Pinchaung river. The enemy was reported digging in south of Yenangyaung, which a Chinese rescue column recaptured early this week, saving 7,000 trapped imperials.

The Japanese have complete air superiority above the entire front, and have 10 times the number of ground troops on some sectors. The allied supply problem has been almost hopeless since the fall of Rangoon. India, the nearest arsenal, is separated by rugged mountains.

The two or three Japanese divisions which opened the battle for Burma appear to have been strengthened appreciably thru Rangoon.

The Japanese have three weeks in which to subjugate Mandalay and Lashio, the railhead for the Burma road, before the monsoon. Vanguards of their forces already are operating in the high and relatively dry plateaus of central Burma, but they still have to annihilate the defenders and consolidate their positions before the mid-May rains bog down their communications.

1ST SUBMARINE TO BE LAUNCHED ON GREAT LAKES

Milwaukee, Wis., April 25 (AP).—The first submarine ever built completely on the Great Lakes will be launched April 30 at a Wisconsin shipyard, the navy announced today.

The submarine will be christened the Peto by Mrs. E. A. Lofquist, whose husband is chief of staff of the ninth naval district. The Peto, like all submarines, is named after a fish. Petos abound in the tropical waters of the South Pacific and in the gulf stream where they are better known as "wahoos." The peto is shaped like a swordfish but is smaller and extremely fast.

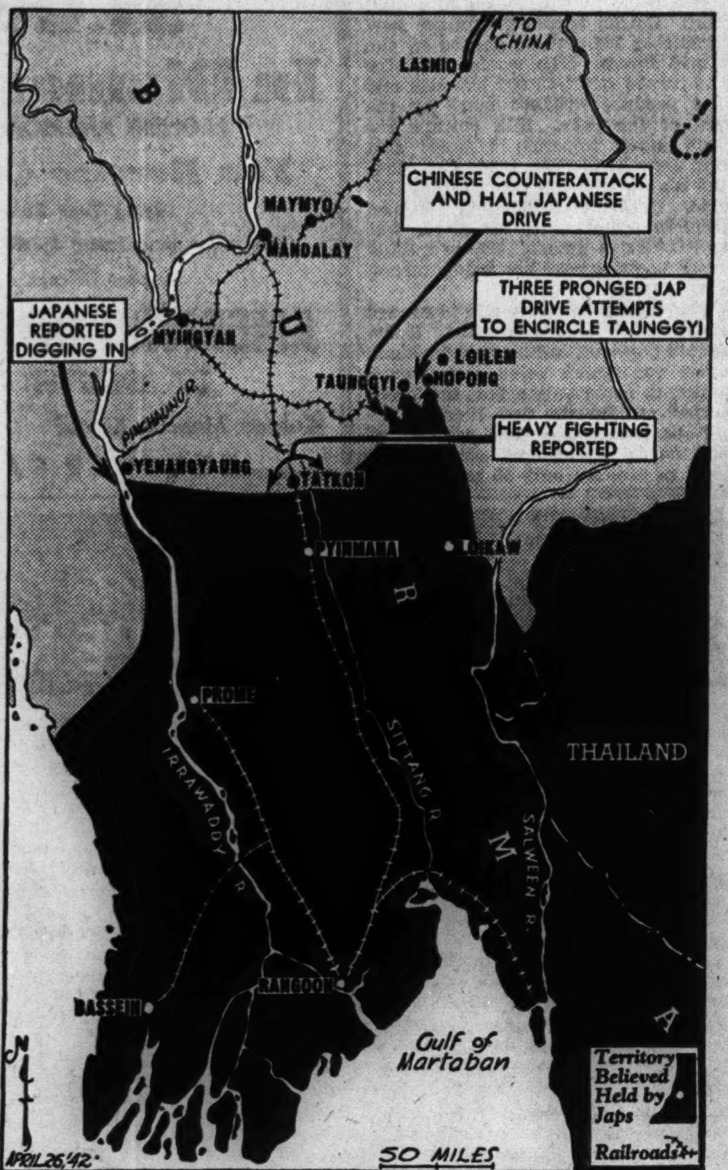
This picture, made from the last boat to leave Rangoon, in Burma, shows, according to the British caption, military stores and installations burning after British forces had set them afire to prevent their falling into the hands of the Japanese.



Captions explain latest developments in the fighting in Burma, and map indicates extent of the Japanese penetration of that country.

BANS PARAGUAY LIBERAL PARTY OVER "TREASON"

ASUNCION, Paraguay, April 25.—The Liberal party and all activities supporting it were ordered dissolved today by a presidential decree which accused the party of "high treason."

The Liberals ruled from 1904 to 1936, with Colorados as the principal opposition, until the depression resulting from the Chaco war brought about their fall. The present regime is not dependent upon parties, but upon an army clique, for its support. Most Liberal leaders, including former Presidents Eusebio Ayala and Jose Guggiari, now are in exile in Argentina.

HIGHEST BRITISH MILITARY HONOR GIVEN TO CHIANG

San Francisco, Cal., April 25 (AP).—Britain has presented Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek its highest military honor in recognition of his "brilliant leadership, his glorious successes, and his invaluable contribution to the united nations," the Chungking radio said today.

The honor was the grand cross of the bath and was presented yesterday to the Chinese leader personally by Sir Horace Seymour, the British ambassador to China, in behalf of King George.

"The generalissimo, who personally received the cross, thanked the king for the honor and expressed his fervent hope that the bond between China and Britain would be strengthened and that the final victory for the united nations would not be far distant," said the broadcast.

STARS BLAZE ON HONOR ROLL OF PROVISO HIGH

Valiant Tank Fighters Jap Prisoners.

There's a "Mr. Chips" [remember the movie, Goodbye, Mr. Chips?] out at Proviso Township high school. He thinks often of the boys who, in 1935, '36, '37, and up to last year were studying American history there; learning about Gettysburg, Valley Forge, Chateau Thierry. They hadn't heard then of Bataan. They hadn't dreamed then of making their own American history.

M. W. Timmel is the name of this "Mr. Chips" at Proviso. He has been busy of late compiling names for the school's service flag. And to refresh his memory of the personality that belongs to each name, he has gathered the school annuals that tell of ambitions, traits, and characters of his boys of Bataan. There are 50 or more Proviso boys who are members of Company B, 192d [Maywood] Tank battalion, now presumed to be prisoners of the Japanese.

Three Gold Stars.

Three of the gold stars in the flag will be for First Class Pvt. Henry Deckert, Pvt. Frank Byars, and Lieut. Edward Winger. Lieut. Winger, a graduate of the class of 1939, is referred to in the annual as "a likable all around good fellow and winner of the bronze medal for scholarship." One of the gold stars also will be for Frank Yomine, a fireman on the battleship Arizona who lost his life at Pearl Harbor.

Some of the comments by their their fellow students follow the names below:

First Lieut. Emmett F. Gibson, '33, football manager, and First Lieut. William Slicer, '37, "a serious and courteous fellow." Both of the men were wounded and evacuated to Australia on a hospital ship on Christmas day.

First Lieut. Matthew MacDowell, '31, monitor captain.

First Lieut. Arthur A. Holland, '37, gold medal winner and National Honor society.

Sergt. Don Bertrand, '39, "enjoys shooting off government ammunition, zealous to attend West Point, army captain his ideal."

Sergt. Al Edwards, '37, captain of football team, "athlete in heart, mind, and soul as well as in body."

Known as Rifleman.

First Lieut. Ben. J. Morin, '38, "a rifleman, private in National Guard, silver medal winner for scholarship."

Sergt. Ralph Ellis, '35, active in choral work.

Sergt. Warren Hildebrandt, '39, "aspires to go to West Point some day if luck holds." Mentioned in dispatches for bravery.

Champion of Freedom.

Corp. Jack Griswold, '38, "champion of freedom and independence."

Pvt. James A. Bainbridge, '37, "happy go lucky Jimmy will always find the world a pleasant place to live in."

Pvt. James B. Fitzgerald, '39, "hopes to become a lawyer." National Honor society.

Pvt. Harry A. King, '38, state and national band contest gold medal champion on saxophone.

Pvt. Robert J. Martin, '37, interested in dramatics.

Pvt. Russell Vertuno, '35, member of Spanish club, "personality is before anything else."

Pvt. William Patrick Hullihan, '35, "too much discipline destroys individuality."

Others Not Graduates.

The list of those who attended Proviso but did not graduate and do not appear in the annuals and who merit stars for their valiant defense of Bataan includes:

Sergeants Henry G. Crowe, Robert C. Bronge, Norman Goodman, Walter J. Mahr, George W. Smith, Norman Spencer.

Corporals Herbert J. Kirtchoff and Jack Swinehamer.

Privates Edward Colb, Joseph Kwiatowski, Harold D. Lane, Fred W. Lovering, Earl A. Maggio, James Mallof, Henry A. Rusch, Harry Gross, William A. Kindell, Roy Mason, James H. Paterob, Charles A. Peterson, Frederick G. Schweinsberg, and Lester C. Watson.

Former Proviso students not with the tank company but in service on Bataan are Dr. John Rago and Radio Operator Harold Becker.

Speaking at a recent assembly, Supt. Sifert said:

"We pause in complete humility, thinking of our boys and all their comrades, in these hours of trial. We pause to hear their piercing challenge for an equal service—a challenge flung to Proviso, to America, to democracy, yes, to all the civilized world.

"And all Proviso, all America, even God Himself will heed that call. It shall not go unanswered. Their faith will not be broken."

PROMOTION TOLD IN LETTER SENT AS BATAAN HELD

Maj. Irving R. Mandelson.

A letter written by Irving R. Mandelson from the Philippines before the fall of Bataan, and announcing his promotion from captain to major, was received yesterday by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manne Mandelson, 540 Briar place. The letter was written March 11, the day Maj. Mandelson returned to active duty after recovering from a severe wound suffered in battle in January. The Mandelsons do not know whether their son was caught in the fall of Bataan or is safe elsewhere. Maj. Mandelson is 30 years old. He practiced law in Chicago before entering the army two years ago. In the Philippines he commanded an infantry battalion.

INDIA'S INDUSTRY BLOSSOMS UNDER WAR'S STIMULUS

Output of Army Supplies, Munitions Soars.

The upsurge of war industries in India may soon place that country among the more important producing nations of the world. This is suggested by statistics in detail [over-all figures are military secrets] issued by Indian Information, official publication of the government of India.

At the beginning of the war India's capacity for making munitions, guns, and other military supplies was limited to a metal and steel factory, a gun and shell factory, and a few other plants for making rifles, gun carriages, and cordite.

The government poured $12,148,000 into India's industrial system. This expanded munitions and allied industries by 20 per cent, with full production to be attained in 1942. Another $35,000,000 was added in 1940 to pay for the erection of 20 new munitions projects. How much of the $255,502,810 Indian defense budget of 1941-'42 went into war industry is not publicly known.

Railway Shops Turn to War.

However, it is known that railway shops have been turning out shells, hand grenades, fuse parts, tent poles, packing cases, nuts and bolts. This was in addition to the conversion of many railway passenger cars into kitchen and ambulance cars, and the manufacture in railway shops of more than 24 million dollars in heavy goods for overseas. More than 13,000 railway employés are thus contributing directly to Indian defense.

From 250 to 300 civilian shops are turning out 700 items in munitions supply—more than 20 million different articles.

By the middle of 1941, gun production was 500 per cent above prewar level. Filled shell output had been multiplied by 24, and will soon be multiplied by 96. India has developed a new type of cordite which eliminates the use of imported ingredients.

India's army, which now numbers more than 1,000,000, imported all its armored equipment before the war. But the army now has several thousand armored cars, carriers, lorries, and field artillery tractors turned out in India's own armored vehicle factories. It also has increased its unarmored equipment from 5,000 to 60,000 "made in India" vehicles since the war began.

Produce Smaller Warships.

In shipbuilding the chief manufacturing handicap was in engines and boilers, but facilities for making hulls and a quick speedup of the program enabled India to turn out minesweepers, trawlers, and other small vessels for the royal Indian navy. The merchant fleet also benefited.

Before the end of 1941 an Indian aircraft factory was turning out "Harlow" trainers and "Curtiss Hawk" fighters, for which most of the materials came from the United States.

One of the first problems of India's basic industry, steel, was to produce better grades. As this problem was disposed of, the industry, aside from meeting armored and vehicular needs, expanded its output of fabrications, sending 200,000 tons of sheds, Nissen huts, storage tanks, bridges, and cranes overseas.

Telegraph and telephone industries have supplied more than 50,000 miles of copper wire to the war effort, large quantities of "degaussing" wire for protecting ships against magnetic mines, and many items of army field equipment.

The machine tool bottleneck is being overcome. By August, 1941, 71 licenses for this purpose were issued, and 50 of the recipient firms were producing. Scientific instrument manufacture, another bottleneck, improved greatly.

Industry in High Gear.

Peacetime industry went into high gear. Cotton textile plants are now producing 138 articles needed by the armed forces. The woolen industry has turned out 1,000,000 blankets and will produce 1,000,000 more by the end of the year. Silk culture has been given impetus; 4,000,000 sola pith hats have been made for other British nations in the western Pacific. Garment production jumped from 200,000 a month before the war to 8,000,000 a month. Three million army boots a year are being turned out.

Remarkable improvement in canned and processed foods is noted. Dehydrated potatoes, canned tomatoes, and other vegetables, dried and canned fruits, to name only a few, are being turned out for the first time.

India now produces 60 per cent of her needs in medical stores. She used to produce only 25 per cent.

CANADIANS VOTE TOMORROW ON DRAFT QUESTION

Vow to Send No Conscripts Overseas at Stake.

BY GEORGE SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., April 25.—Monday is voting day in Canada's plebiscite to determine whether Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King's government is to be released from its pledge not to conscript Canadian youth for overseas conflict. Pleas to vote "yes" have been hurled at Canadians during the last week from public meetings and nation-wide broadcasts with all the fervor of an election campaign.

The keynote of all the pleas of cabinet ministers and leading citizens generally has been that defeat on the overseas battlefronts means certain invasion of the North American continent and the choice, therefore, is on where the ravages of modern war are to be imposed.

Let Down Allies.

Canadians have been told repeatedly that to vote "no" means to let down Canada's allies and dampen the morale of the dominion's overseas troops.

But a new note emanated from French Canada, the only section from which an anti-conscription vote is feared, when Canada's new justice minister, Louis S. St. Laurent, of Quebec City, in urging his compatriots to vote "yes," also enjoined them to abandon their dream of a "French state in America."

"We must be rid, at least during the hour of danger, and perhaps for a long time, if not forever, of this illusive dream of a French state in America," he said. "We must be realists and reality means that in this land of America we are barely 4 millions amidst a population of 150,000,000. We run no risk of being absorbed. We shall not absorb others either."

Handbills Are Circulated.

Handbills urging a "no" vote were circulated in Ottawa last night in some home delivered copies of local newspapers which declared the distribution was by delivery boys who "did not realize the seriousness of their actions."

At present Canada conscripts single men and childless widowers from 21 to 30 years old for military training in Canada, but only volunteers are sent overseas.

The nation has just been advised by Pensions Minister Ian MacKenzie of government plans to spend $80,000,000 on settling 25,000 of Canada's soldiers on the land at the conclusion of the war. Of that amount $34,000,000 would be in outright grants to secure each settler an equity in his holding.

Censorship Rules Tightened.

With enemy assaults upon Canada's coastal defenses held to be not only possible but likely before the end of the year, the government has clamped stricter censorship on news of the dominion's industrial war effort.

No news respecting the activities or anticipated activities of any war industry may now be "automatically released." Everything of that nature must be submitted for approval.

KIDNAPED BABY IS FOUND SAFE; WOMAN IS HELD

Los Angeles, Cal., April 25 [Special].—Five day old Louis Francone Jr., one of twin boys abducted yesterday from a maternity hospital, was found safe today after a tipster sent police to the home of Mrs. Florence Post.

Mrs. Post, wife of a railroad worker, admitted she took the child. She said. She gave birth to a baby six days ago in Silver City, N. M., but it is in a dying condition.

She said she went to the maternity hospital here and saw the Francone twins in their crib. One bore such a resemblance to her own child that she couldn't resist picking him up and taking him away, she told police.

Cicero Lumber Yard Burns; Estimate Loss at $40,000

Five Chicago engine companies and the Cicero fire department fought a spectacular $40,000 blaze yesterday at the R. T. Seltus Lumber company, 1634 South 52d avenue, Cicero, for several hours before it was brought under control. Flames rose several hundred feet in the air and attracted a huge crowd. The estimate of the damage was made by the Cicero fire chief, George Knoll, who said the origin of the fire had not been determined.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO TAILOR.

Lorenz Holy, 62 years old, 1623 South 59th court, Cicero, a tailor, died of a heart attack yesterday while at work at 205 West Monroe street.

Draft Revision Explained; Older Men Enroll Tomorrow

Reclassify 3A Group

New selective service orders clearing the way for the induction of thousands of married men with or without children will affect about two-thirds of present draft registrants, a survey revealed yesterday.

Under the new ruling, all 3-A registrants will be reclassified. Those who are engaged in necessary war work will be placed in a new classification, 3-B, the final group to be called to military duty. Only those whose civilian earnings are absolutely necessary for the support of dependents will remain in 3-A. The others will be subject to army inductions.

Compilation of figures for the first two registrations [men between 21 and 35 years old who registered in October, 1940, and men 21 years old who registered in July, 1941] disclose that 64.8 per cent of all registrants were placed in class 3-A. Men who registered last Feb. 16 have not been classified.

The following table shows the number of men registered in the first two calls, those classified, and the number deferred because of dependents:

	Registered.	Classified.	Class 3-A	Pct. in 3-A
Nation.	17,639,118	16,640,212	10,784,575	64.8
Illinois	1,065,309	1,039,050	650,075	62.5
Cook C.	585,851	562,741	333,325	59.2

The percentage of men with dependents in the Feb. 16 registration [men between 35 and 45 years old] is expected to be much higher than for men in the lower age brackets, draft officials said.

Many Deferred Because of Jobs.

Reclassification of men with dependents is necessary, national selective service headquarters said, because many physically fit men who are eligible for induction have been deferred because they are employed on jobs vital to the war effort.

They emphasized, however, that all fit unmarried men will be called before men with wives and children. Men with wives who are able to support themselves will be called before men with children.

The new order instructed local boards to carefully examine two factors in determining the degree of dependency. Boards must determine "the actual need of the dependent for the civilian earnings of the registrant, regardless of whether the dependent is working or capable of working." They must determine whether the dependents were acquired "when the registrant had reason to anticipate selection for military service."

Decide Reason of Marriages.

The second factor requires the board to decide whether the registrant was moved to matrimony by the hope of escaping military service. Newly married men, it was said, will have a difficult time convincing the board they should not be classified as available for service.

Officials emphasized that there is no justification at present for putting a man in class 1-A [available for immediate service] when he has a wife or children financially dependent upon him.

The prevailing standards of the community in which the registrant lives and the amount of support he gives the dependent should be the yardsticks by which the degree of dependency is determined, the memorandum said.

Seek Pilots at Schools.

Meanwhile, army air corps officials said officers would begin visiting college campuses tomorrow to promte enlistment in the Air Forces Enlisted Reserve. High school or college students may enlist in the army air corps and then apply for a two year deferment to continue their studies. The army air force hopes to sign up 178,000 future pilots and ground men this year.

Students enlisted in the AFER are subject to call to active duty at any time. The plan, however, is to defer them, permitting further scholastic training provided they maintain a satisfactory scholastic standard.

Speak at Six Colleges.

Maj. Paul L. Smith and Lieut. Earl R. Thomas, both of Fort Devens, Mass., will visit six Illinois colleges between tomorrow and May 14, addressing student massmeetings. Other colleges and high schools will be contacted thru the six college "focal points."

The itinerary for Illinois, Wisconsin, and Michigan follows: April 27—Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago, and Marquette university, Milwaukee, Wis.; April 28—De Paul university; April 29—University of Michigan and Loyola university, Chicago; April 30—Wayne university, Detroit; May 1—Michigan State college; May 4—University of Wisconsin; May 11—University of Illinois; May 13—Northwestern university; May 14—University of Chicago.

SHOT BY WATCHMAN; DIES.

Harmon Jones, 22 years old, a Negro, died in County hospital yesterday of gunshot wounds received last Nov. 9 when he was shot by a watchman at the Owl theater, 4653 State street. He lived at 4447 South Dearborn street.

Registrars Start at 7

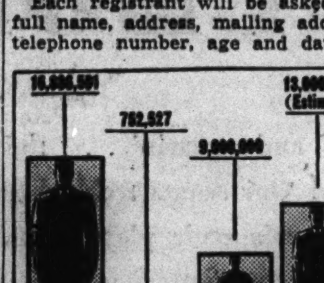
About 13,000,000 men, 45 thru 64 years old, will add their names to the nation's local draft board lists tomorrow at the fourth selective service registration. Some 840,000 Illinoisans are expected to register, including 397,000 in Chicago. Thousands of registration stations, most of them in elementary schools, will be open from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m.

None of tomorrow's registrants, however, will face military service unless the present congressional act is amended. They will be sent vocational questionnaires in order that their trade or business skills may be made available to the war effort.

Only Few Minutes Required.

Only a few minutes will be required to answer the nine simple questions and give a brief physical description. With the experience of three registrations behind them, registrants are expected to take tomorrow's task in stride.

Each registrant will be asked his full name, address, mailing address, telephone number, age and date of birth, place of birth, the name and address of a person who will always know the registrant's address, employer's name and address, and place of employment or business.



Heights of the figures indicate comparative numbers registered in each of the four drafts. Men from 45 to 64 will register tomorrow.

The registration card also will include space for race, height, weight, color of eyes and hair, complexion, and a description of obvious physical characteristics which will aid in identification.

All Males, 45 to 64, Must Enroll.

All male residents of the United States, citizen and alien alike, who reached their 45th birthdays on or before last Feb. 16 and have not reached their 65th birthdays on or before April 27 must register.

Special registration booths will be set up in some large war production plants in order that no man in war work will lose time on his job. Travelers and out of town visitors may register in room 230 of the county building. Men in hospitals will be registered there, while men ill at home may send a representative to the nearst draft station to be sworn in as a special registrar. The representative then will record the data in the presence of the sick man and return the card to the draft station.

Persons on transcontinental trains or buses may wait until they reach the end of their journey before registering.

Jap Envoy Reaches Vatican, Takes Rap at U. S., Britain

TOKIO, April 25 [from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Ken Harada, Japan's first minister to the Vatican, announced upon his arrival yesterday in Rome that he would exert every effort "to diffuse Japan's just and fair spirit among the Catholic nations," Domei news agency reported today from the Italian capital. "Britain and the United States," Harada declared, "seem to have employed every possible means to drive a wedge into relations between Japan and the Vatican. But Japan's sincere intentions won over these machinations."

FRANCE TO HAVE ITS BREAD, IS LAVAL'S PLEDGE

Decides Against Ration Cut May 1.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, April 25.—Orders against any reduction in the French bread ration for the month of May were issued by Pierre Laval, chief of government, following the second meeting of his council of ministers today. It had been strongly hinted that because of the wheat shortage, the bread ration would have to be reduced May 1 to tide the country over until the new wheat crop is available late in August.

The council, devoting most of its time to the question of bread and other foodstuffs, decided that before cutting the bread ration, which now consists of 275 grams [about three-fifths of a pound] a day, "all other means must be exhausted before taking a measure so gravely harmful to the population, which is already undernourished."

Council Gets Details.

Laval has had several meetings this week with his new minister of agriculture and food supplies, Jacques Leroy Ladurie, and his secretary for agriculture, Georges Bonnefous. Both put a detailed exposition of the situation facing the country before the council.

An announcement said the government soon would make known the results of its efforts to alleviate the bread situation. Great efforts are being made to induce peasants to release grain they have been holding back because of controls which they believe harmful.

Sees Darlan Keeping Navy.

HAMILTON, Ont., April 24 (AP).—Col. Philippe Henri Pierrene, who represents Gen. Charles de Gaulle in Canada, told the "Free French" society here tonight that Adm. Jean Darlan of Vichy would never give the French fleet to the Nazis, "not because he [Darlan] is such a nice gentleman, but he considers it his own property—like a little dog."

RETURN 2 OF HAT LOSERS LINKED TO 2 SLAYINGS

Two young gunmen involved in the two killings of "The Case of the Three Hats," were returned to Chicago yesterday from Dallas, Tex., by Sergts. Tim O'Connor and Harry Calfee of the detective bureau. They are John Pantano, 21 years old, and Joseph Burgo, 23.

Accomplices in the three "hat" holdups have named Pantano as the trigger man who, on Dec. 10, killed Park Policeman Charles Williams while robbing a tavern at 4301 North Western avenue, and Burgo as the leader of a robbery attempt in a tavern at 3642 Belmont avenue on Feb. 8. Two other members of the gang—Eugene Landeck, 20, and Herbert Dietz, 21, have confessed that they shot and killed a St. Louis tavern keeper on Dec. 3.

In each holdup one of the hoodlums lost a hat; two of the hats carried Landeck's and Pantano's initials, and the third had a note inside the band linking it to Burgo. Following those clews, ploice seized the members of the gang. Pantano and Burgo had fled to Dallas and were arrested there.

SPAIN NOW TALKS OF BIG NAVY TO REBUILD EMPIRE

Press Tells of Program for New Ships.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, April 25.—Authorities in Spain, apparently in keeping with their proclaimed imperial aspirations, now are emphasizing the importance of the Spanish navy, according to dispatches from Madrid to the newspaper Temps today.

A big naval development program is being prepared against the day when Spain's geographical position will enable her to gain control of maritime routes and "satisfy" her "claims," these dispatches said.

Ramon Serrano Suner, Spanish foreign minister and brother-in-law of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, only a few days ago decried the policies adopted by South American states friendly to the United States.

Urges Naval Strength.

The Spanish Falange [Fascist] newspaper Arriba has just published a special supplement urging naval development in which the Spanish minister of marine said that Spain's navy, which suffered heavily during the civil war, must be brought up to adequate strength.

Not only must new construction be undertaken, he said, but attention must be centered on naval training schools for developing officers, modernization of old ships and erection of docks and arsenals.

At the beginning of the civil war the Spanish navy had 2 16,000 ton battleships, 7 cruisers, including 2 under construction; 17 destroyers, 3 minelayers, 5 gunboats, and 12 submarines. Both battleships were destroyed during the war and one 10,000 ton cruiser was destroyed. Several destroyers and submarines also were lost, but others were acquired from Italy and new ones were built.

Has 10,000 Ton Cruiser.

The Spanish navy now consists of 6 cruisers, 1 of 10,000 tons and fairly new, 3 of 7,500 tons, and 2 of around 5,000 tons, all of which are being modernized. The six displace about 45,000 tons.

In addition there are 20 destroyers with a total displacement of 28,000 tons; 9 submarines, 6 of which remained from the civil war and 3 in construction; 6 minelayers, 4 gunboats, 3 training ships, 21 fast speed gunbats, 11 coast guard cutters, 1 tanker supply ship, and 2 transports.

Spanish newspapers also are stressing development of aviation as indispensable to "imperial expansion."

Three Arrested by Police in Raids on Handbooks

Police raided three handbooks in loop cigar stores late yesterday. At 410 Sherman avenue, they arrested Anthony Spalo, 40 years old, 431 South Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, who said he was a clerk in the store. Police took into custody Emil Balzano, 32, in a raid at 324 West Van Buren street. In the third raid, at 221 West Jackson boulevard, they arrested Irving Tennerbaum, 43, of 4057 North Sacramento avenue.

SERGT. LEE CASE RULING AWAITED TO SET STANDARD

State's Attorney to Base Procedure on It.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

The city civil service commission will set a standard of conduct for Chicago policemen by its ruling in the case of Sergt. Tom Lee, suspended leader of a morals division gambling squad, First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley said yesterday. On that standard, the prosecutor's office will base its future activities, he declared.

The case against Lee, who was charged with neglect of duty and falsifying reports, was finished Friday after Crowley was denied the right to give his views on gambling enforcement to the commission and Police Commissioner Allman, who preferred the charges, was not permitted to answer questions concerning Lee's efficiency.

Three Others Face Charges.

"Charges are pending against three other policemen who were formerly members of the morals division," Crowley said. "They are Capt. Martin E. McCormick, head of the division, and Policemen Fred L. Trauth and James E. Kehoe. The charges are similar to those preferred against Lee.

"The civil service commission did nothing about Lee's refusal to make a personal answer to the charges. We took the attitude that the civil service board was acting in the capacity of employer or agent of the employer and had a right to call an employé to account.

Trial Set for May 13.

"The city trial board, in our opinion, should have asked Lee on what grounds he refused to testify. His refusal should have been accepted only if he stated he feared to incriminate himself. Otherwise the commission should have stopped the hearing then and there and told Lee he was fired."

The trial of Trauth and Kehoe has been set for May 13. Capt. McCormick is to face the trial board next Wednesday when it is expected a trial date will be set for him.

1,760 OFFICERS OF BRITISH ARMY OVER 45 RESIGN

LONDON, April 25 (AP).—A drive to place younger officers in more active positions in the British army has caused 1,760 officers over 45 years of age to leave the service and 1,600 to transfer to less rigorous duties, the war office announced today.

They were among 16,000 men over 45 holding rank below lieutenant colonel reviewed under orders from War Secretary Sir James Grigg for elimination of administrative misfits. All the remainder were reported retained.

One observer said the figures were given to answer allegations that thousands of officers over 45 had been purged at a time when Britain needed experienced military leaders.

FOREIGNERS HELP SWELL BRITAIN'S WAR PRODUCTION

40,000 Men and Women Now in Factories.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON [by airmail].—In its efforts to secure maximum output from industry under war conditions, the British government is making full use of foreign workers now in this country. Over 86 per cent of registered allied civilians have been absorbed into war industries, authoritative statistics disclose.

Compared with Germany, however, Britain is at a big disadvantage in employing foreign labor. Despite the influx of allied nationals since the outbreak of war, it is estimated even now they number no more than 100,000. Of this total, 40,500—men between the ages of 16 and 65, and women aged 16-50—have registered for war work under the international labor force registration order.

The fact that approximately 40,000 of them are fully occupied on war jobs marks a drastic change in the official attitude towards foreign labor. At the outbreak of war the ministry of labor showed no enthusiasm about issuing work permits to foreigners. It's books were still loaded with 1,231,692 unemployed Britons, and the war factories were slow in absorbing skilled men. For more than a year unemployment remained over the million mark.

Dunkirk the Turning Point.

The disaster of Dunkirk, which is estimated to have cost this country approximately 12 months war output, and the sudden fresh insurge of refugees from Holland, Belgium, France, Denmark, and Norway, presented acute problems calling for immediate action. Politically, this became apparent in the forced resignation of Prime Minister Chamberlain and the appointment of Winston Churchill as his successor. At the same time Ernest Bevin, stocky, bespectacled trade union leader became minister of labor and national service.

A great campaign was launched to expand industrial output. Bevin issued a series of stirring appeals to workers to produce to the limit. Unemployment figures, which in March, 1940, stood at 1,121,213, dropped to 760,835 by June.

Set Up Special Offices.

To facilitate recruitment of foreign workers, special employment bureaus were set up by the ministry of labor, staffed partly by British and partly by allied officials, where refugees could explain and discuss their problems in their own language. Working in conjunction with the allied governments here, these bureaus now have completed a detailed record of the distribution and employment of all registered foreign laborers.

As far as possible, the labor bureaus provide jobs for allied workers in national groups. Thus, Belgians, who are the most numerous, Norwegians and Czecho-Slovaks are employed in forestry; Belgians, French, Poles, and others in aircraft works and engineering factories; Norwegians in rope manufacture; Belgians, Dutch, and Boles in diamond polishing and cutting; Belgians and fishermen of other nationalities have been recruited for the naval auxiliary service.

The attendant emergency resulting from Dunkirk also induced the British Trades Union congress to consent to relax some of its stringent membership rules. Allied workers, in fact, are allowed to become members of appropriate British unions, as well as to join their own national trade union groups which have been organized by exiled European labor leaders in this country.

A WARNING: YOUR TAX DEADLINE IS FIVE DAYS AWAY

County Treasurer John Toman warned yesterday that only five days remain to pay the first instalment of the 1941 property taxes without penalty. After May 1 a penalty of 1 per cent a month will be added.

Tax collections during the day totaled $2,578,180.53, one of the largest Saturday collections since March 10 when the first bills were sent out, the treasurer said. The total collected thru yesterday was $32,628,147, compared with $42,896,409.39 for a comparable period last year.

Treasurer Toman expressed the belief that the collections this year would equal, if not pass those of last year. He said that large taxpayers probably were waiting for the last few days to make payments.

Temporary Houses Built by U.S. to Lack Bathtubs

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—There'll be no bathtubs in future demountable and temporary houses built in defense areas by the Federal Public Housing authority. Ordering that only shower baths be installed, it figured today that elimination of tubs would save 10,000 tons of metal—enough, it said, to build 750 standard 13 ton tanks.

COUNTY SPELLING CHAMP A BOY 1ST TIME IN 16 YEARS

Wins Over 70; Girls Tie for Second Place.

A tow-headed, freckle faced lad yesterday became the first boy spelling champion in the last 16 years of Cook county spelling contests. Albert Cappelen Jr., 12 years old, a seventh grade pupil in Northbrook school, is the new title-holder.

Albert bested more than 70 spellers seated solemnly in the aldermen's chairs in the city hall council chamber, scribbling down words dictated by Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools. All were champions in their own townships.

The first 50 words stumped all but four of the spellers. Aluminum, accessory, gingham, and apology were easy. The real twisters were abyss, embarrassment, aquarium, deficit, toboggan, and perilous.

Some Queer Misspellings.

Abyss emerged as "ablyss," "abis," and "abiece." A "c" hopped into aquarium and paralis substituted for "perilous." The same boy who wrote "semtery" for cemetery penned "deathicit" for deficit.

Some misspelled only once. Others erred 12 times in 50. Only Albert, Carol Thurneau, 13, of Bartlett school in Hanover township; Claire Neher, 13, Ideal school in Lyons township, and Paul Baptist, 11, Tinley Park school in Bremen township, scored 100.

Round two brought isosceles, contiguous, psychiatry, quorum, implementing, zealous, and supremacy. Only equity tripped up Albert. He wanted to put an "a" in it.

Carol and Claire tied for second. Both the girls and Paul lost on isosceles, psychiatry, dictaphone, equity, and supremacy.

Girls Tie Second Time.

While Paul crossed his fingers, hoping for another tie which would sweep him into third place, the girls spelled again. This time, five dollar words such as casuistry, reticence, nonentity, machinate, iridescent, irrelevant, capillary, innate, and paroxysm were the teasers.

The finger crossing worked for Paul and the girls were tied again with six errors each. They flipped a coin to decide which would take home the banner and silver medal. Claire won and Carol's banner and medal will be sent to her later.

CANAL GUARDED BY GIANT GUNS HIDDEN ON ISLES

Panama Fortresses Cut Deep Into Rock.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

A SECRET ISLAND FORTRESS IN PANAMA, April 25.—Ponderously, the huge gun swung on its steel turntable to track an imaginary enemy ship thousands of yards away. Nearby, in another reinforced concrete emplacement, a sister weapon poked its great snout thru a camouflage screen and swung onto the line of fire.

Men of the gun crews, stripped to the waist in the blazing heat of the pits, appeared pygmy-like as they clambered around and over their mammoth charges. Some worked the guns into position as telephone men called out the firing data computed far underground in the range sections.

The moment came. At a nod from the gun commander three men tugged the projectile cart into position against the breech. Others rammed home the shell, weighing almost a ton, and others brought up the long powder bags of the propelling charge.

It's Ready to Fire.

Like the immense steel door of a safety deposit vault, the gun's breech mechanism slid shut. A final hair adjustment. Then the pointer, head protruding thru the camouflage screen atop the gun, yanked the firing lever.

Instead of the earth shaking concussion of a live charge, there was a sharp click as the firing mechanism snapped home on the dud load. This was a practice run, and Uncle Sam's men on these big guns cannot afford to waste costly ammunition or the precious rifling of their weapons on an empty sea.

I was one of a small group allowed to inspect the island emplacement of these great coastal defense rifles today. At our side every minute were artillery officers, cautioning us against revealing secret devices. Sharp eyes watched us always to be sure we did not become too interested in certain details of the fortress.

Fortress Carved Out of Rock.

I cannot mention the location of this island, nor the size of its great guns, nor even which ocean they look out upon, for very obvious reasons. But I can say that they, and dozens of others like them, are counted upon to bring death and destruction to many an enemy ship in the event of a thrust by sea at the Panama canal.

At the start of the inspection we entered the mouth of a great concrete tunnel, walking past heavy machine guns in sandbagged pillboxes guarding the entrance.

Inside, we found ourselves in an underground city, carved out of rock. After traversing the tunnel, we entered a modern electric elevator which lifted us to another underground level.

Here, in double deck bunks, men of the gun crews sleep and loaf away their few off duty hours. Here they eat from homemade tables, play cards and other games, and carefully peruse the few magazines and books which fall into their hands.

Where They Find the Range.

On another level we visited the fortress switchboards, for all the world like a modern big city telephone exchange, and the great sealed magazines in which are stored the projectiles and propelling charges. In other small, sweaty rooms we watched experts of the range section work out the details of a mathematical problem which, if carried to a realistic conclusion, would have dropped hundreds of pounds of high explosive into the bowels of a ship at that moment moving unconcernedly across the sea 10 miles away.

Finally, after another elevator ride, we emerged thru a steel door into the actual gun emplacements to watch the practice run put on for our benefit.

This fortress and others like it are small Corregidors, capable of absorbing a tremendous amount of punishment without being put out of action. When and if the time arrives, any enemy invaders will find tons of trouble coming their way from such fortresses as these.

Sentenced to 199 Years for Slaying in Tavern

Bruno Jachymiak, 23 years old, whose friend, Joseph Skupien, 20, was slain when he attempted to release Jachymiak from the New City police lockup Feb. 8, was found guilty yesterday of the murder of Raymond Basserra, 42, a Mexican, by a jury in Criminal court. Judge Harold G. Ward sentenced him to 199 years in prison. Besserra was one of two Mexicans killed during the robbery of a tavern at 4458 South Ashland avenue Feb. 7.

Kidney Strain May Cause Swollen Ankles and Backache

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and overload your kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Remove Acids

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters through which the heart pumps blood about 200 times an hour, night and day, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down when overloaded.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three simple ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose, under this positive money back guarantee. Don't take chances on any Kidney medicine that isn't guaranteed. MEXICO SEIZES U. S. WOMAN SPY AFTER GUNFIGHT

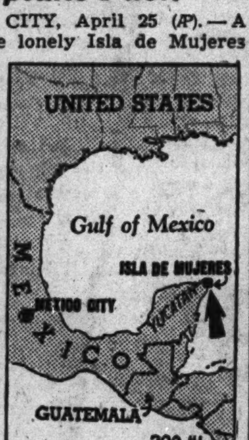
She Reveals Cache of Airplane Fuel.

MEXICO CITY, April 25 (AP).—A story of the lonely Isla de Mujeres [Isle of Women], a good looking woman spy, and how they added up to axis intrigue was told today by the newspaper Novedades.



Map locate Isla de Mujeres.

The newspaper said Mexican authorities had seized "submarine and airplane fuel" at a secret base on the isle, which is off Yucatan, 900 miles from the Panama canal, and after a running gun fight had captured the spy.

She was reported sent off in a plane in custody of United States spy hunters, presumably the FBI.

Plot Against Guatemala.

Novedades, attributing its information indirectly to Yucatan authorities, said discovery of the secret base resulted from investigation of a suspected axis plot to seize Guatemala and the adjacent Mexican area with the help of fifth columnists.

Rich coffee regions near by long have been settled by well-to-do German planters.

The newspaper said Mexican agents began trailing the woman, an American citizen who belonged to the German-American bund, who had established herself at Merida and made frequent trips by automobile which, it later was learned, were for the purpose of mapping airdromes.

Confesses After Gun Fight.

She also made frequent overnight trips from Port Progreso in a launch.

When the agents went to arrest her she resisted capture at pistol point, but was made prisoner without any one being hurt. She was said to have confessed and disclosed location of the base.

The military commander in the territory of Quintana Roo took 100 soldiers to the island and seized the base, and Mexican tankers were sent to pump the "many tons" of submarine and airplane fuel from the tanks, said Novedades.

The article did not give the name of the spy.

SHAW BARES HIS LIFE TRAGEDY: HE WANTED TO BE AN OBOE PLAYER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 25.—George Bernard Shaw in an open letter to the London Times today raises a plaintive voice against the doubling of the purchase tax on musical instruments, recently announced by the government.

"May I beg the Times to remind the chancellor of the exchequer [Sir Kingsley Wood]," he writes, "that musical instruments are among the first necessities of civilized life and not luxuries to be made unobtainable by a purchase tax of 67⅓ per cent."

In defense particularly of the orchestral player whose instrument "must have been provided by his parents in his or her teens," the famous author says, "Now the parents of orchestral players are not luxurious millionaires. Many of them come from families living so closely within modest incomes that a sudden demand for 20 pounds [$80] or even 10 pounds [$40] is a very difficult matter. In my boyhood I had the chance of being qualified as an oboist, and I would have jumped at it if I could have obtained the 14 pounds [$56] which was the price of a second hand oboe 70 years ago. For want of that sum I was lost to the woodwind forever and had to adopt a profession in which the equipment was 6 pennies' worth of stationery."

SEN. CONNALLY WEDS WIDOW OF SEN. SHEPPARD

Legislator, 64, Marries in New Orleans Church.

New Orleans, La., April 25 (AP).—Wearing borrowed sables in a ceremony planned only this morning, Mrs. Lucile Sanderson Sheppard, widow of Sen. Morris Sheppard of Texas, was married today to Sen. Tom Connally of Texas at the First Baptist church here.

Both came from Washington earlier this week, Mrs. Sheppard to be with her father, Noah P. Sanderson of Texarkana, Tex., in Touro infirmary for an operation.

The couple had planned to be married about two months hence. The ceremony was performed in the presence of only five friends and relatives by the Rev. J. D. Grey.

Mayor Sends Flowers.

Mayor Robert S. Maestri sent the only flowers, which the newly married couple later sent to Mr. Sanderson. Mrs. Sanderson attended the wedding.

Sen. and Mrs. Connally gave a small luncheon afterward, then went to the Inn-by-the-Sea at Henderson Point, Miss. Tomorrow Connally will fly to Washington, D. C. Mrs. Connally will remain here until he returns for a honeymoon.

Mrs. Connally wore a tan wool crêpe ensemble with the borrowed sables, a dark brown straw hat with a blue ribbon, dark brown accessories, and tan gloves, and a corsage of purple orchids.

No "International" Comment.

"How about discussing the international situation?" a reporter jokingly asked the veteran chairman of the senate foreign relations committee.

"Boy, I'm too tied up with the domestic situation right now to think about anything international," Connally replied.

Both the bride, 51 years old, and the bridegroom, 64, have married children. Sen. Sheppard died about a year ago, and Sen. Connally's wife died several years ago. Sheppard's widow kept her home in Washington, where they will return to live.

Sen. Connally obtained the license at the city hall at 10:30 a. m., then hurried to a hotel barber shop to get a shave and have his famous shaggy white hair trimmed. He bought his bride some orchids and they drove up St. Charles avenue to the church.

APRIL AID FOR STATE'S YOUNG AND OLD HITS ALL-TIME HIGH MARK

Disbursements in the Illinois aid to dependent children and old age assistance programs reached an all time high level of $4,618,586 this month, it was announced yesterday by State Auditor Arthur C. Lueder.

Checks for dependent children aggregated $721,077 and helped 50,171 boys and girls, compared with $709,302 benefitting 49,352 in March.

The programs are administered by the state, but the federal government contributes half the payments.

Downstate children received $353,908 of the April funds, and Cook county children $367,169. Downstate residents received $2,337,970 of the old age funds, and Cook county residents $1,559,539.

Who can buy a new car—and how to go about it

For the specific purpose of maintaining essential public functions and assuring the successful prosecution of the war effort, the government has made it possible for many people to purchase new automobiles.

Those eligible include not only physicians, nurses, ministers and persons engaged in certain civic services, but all persons directly or indirectly employed in the prosecution of the war. In this latter group are included many types of activity ranging from factory work to farming, lumbering and mining.

Due largely to misunderstanding, only a small part of those entitled to buy a new car are taking advantage of the government's regulation—which had behind it the patriotic purpose of enabling such people to replace worn and inefficient cars with modern, economical transportation.

If you are in any way—directly or indirectly—connected with a war activity—or if your present car should be replaced—come in and we will help you determine whether you are eligible, and then help you get a "certificate of purchase" on a new Pontiac.

AVAILABLE AS A SIX OR EIGHT IN ANY MODEL

THIS IS NO TIME to be penny-wise and pound-foolish when buying a new car. Choose one that has a long-established reputation for dependability and economy—choose a Pontiac which, despite its many special advantages, is still priced just above the lowest.

In the past few years, Pontiac has won literally hundreds of thousands of new friends—largely because of its unfaltering ability to go mile upon mile with minimum upkeep expense and maximum gas and oil mileage. And the 1942 model is no exception—in fact, it's the finest Pontiac ever produced. It has the finest Pontiac brakes—triple-sealed all around.

It has Pontiac's exclusive Triple-Cushioned Ride and scientific weight distribution to assure supreme comfort—and maximum tire mileage! And it has that fine-car look and feel everybody wants. Yet it's still low-priced and can be purchased on convenient monthly terms.

PLANE DESIGNER SAYS RAF KNOWS ROCKET 'SECRET'

Maj. de Seversky Favors Aircraft Over Ships.

Alexander P. de Seversky.

Maj. de Seversky, who will speak this morning on the Northwestern Reviewing Stand program over W-G-N on "Victory Thru Air Power," said the British have captured a number of Nazi planes equipped with adapters for a rocket device.

This device enables the planes to take off by being catapulted into the air, he said. The advantage is that these planes can carry much heavier loads than they could in a take off under their own power.

Former Czarist Flyer.

Maj. de Seversky, who was a Czarist flyer in the Russian air force during World War I, became an American citizen in 1927. His pursuit planes were the first all metal single seater fighters adopted as standard equipment by the army air corps. He is an advocate of an autonomous air arm, fighting as a separate unit under a high command that would synchronize air, sea, and land operations.

At a press conference yesterday in the Palmer House, he said: "If we had listened to Billy Mitchell we would not only have a great striking air force but fast transport service as well. Now we use cumbersome battleships to transport war supplies."

Russia Too Big for Blitz.

The reason the blitz was not as effective in Russia as it was in France and in other smaller countries is because of Russia's vast size, he said. "After each blitz attack it had to be redesigned for the next jump, which permitted the Russian forces freedom of movement," he declared. "In other words, because of the great spaces the Russians couldn't be bottled up as in the smaller countries for concentrated blitz attacks."

America can score a decision over the Japs, "if it will concentrate part of the war effort in bombing the vitals of the enemy, in air raids of Tokio and other important cities," Maj. de Seversky asserted. "Such vital bombing would help win the war sooner."

On the European front the battle of Britain will go down in the textbooks as a classic example of how an air force won a major military victory, he believes.

Hails British Air Power.

"The Nazi air force was never supreme," he said. "Germany had the greatest military aviation, but no air power. Theirs was strictly land strategy, with aviation used as an auxiliary to the ground forces.

"On the other hand, Britain, with little ground strength, has a great air force, great air power. That's why Britain was able to drive the Nazi bombers out of the skies and save London."

Maj. de Seversky addressed a meeting of 500 engineering instructors and industrial executives yesterday afternoon at the Northwestern university technological institute on the Evanston campus.

Stressing the importance of engineers in modern war, he declared, "an army in the old days used to travel on its belly, but now it travels in machines."

GLIDER TRAINING WORK DISCLOSED BY MARINE CORPS

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—The marine corps disclosed today that marine officers and men had been training in glider operations since last summer.

Marine headquarters said marine aviators were being trained as glider pilots and ground crews also were receiving training. The marines said glider troops could be air-borne infantry, or special weapon troops, paratroops.

ACTS TO CUT USE OF FUEL OIL FOR HEATING HOMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Drestic limitations would be imposed upon residential use of fuel oil under recommendations issued today by Harold L. Ickes, petroleum coördinator. Contracts for supplying oil to householders which expire after June 1 are to be canceled and suppliers are forbidden to make any contracts for future deliveries.

The recommendations are tantamount to a direct order, but are expected to be followed by a conservation order from the War Production board. Reduction of oil for home use, it was explained, is designed to make available an increased supply for war industries.

Homes will continue to receive minimum quantities of oil essential for heating, Ickes' announcement emphasized, but no deliveries will be permitted that are not absolutely necessary. The order does not apply to fuel oil used for cooking or lighting, nor to liquified petroleum gases.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

THE SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME.

What we are seeing now in Asia and in the southwest Pacific is the evening of empire for the colonial powers of the west. To the Japanese it must appear as if this process of western imperial devolution or dissolution means the birth of Japanese imperialism on a scale exceeding the wildest imaginings in Tokio. The condition of the subject lands and the subject peoples is not to change, but the masters are to change.

We may be confident that this is a temporary hallucination, for the Japanese have yet to be dealt with by us. But when the war is won, what then? The defeated and discredited imperialisms of the west can hardly expect to return to the status quo ante 1939, and the Japanese will have been driven back to their islands. What will that new world of Asia and the Pacific be like?

There are many bright young men in Washington who have found plenty of time to devote lofty thoughts to that question. They may not have made the fighting their responsibility, but they have made the peace their special property. Perhaps it is rude to introduce the jarring note of reality into this nirvana.

It seems pretty clear, for instance, that China, having fought heroically and freed her soil, will emerge as a sovereign nation. There will be no more international settlements, treaty ports, extraterritoriality, or customs exemptions. Japan has expelled the British from Hongkong, and China's victory will not be followed by the restoration of the British crown colony. The population of Hongkong is predominantly Cantonese, indistinguishable from that of the adjoining territory. Hongkong will be Chinese because it is Chinese.

The British game is also up in India. The first law of politics is to make concessions early or not at all. The only alternatives are to crush or conciliate. The British are no longer capable of doing the former, and the conciliatory Sir Stafford Cripps arrived on the scene too late. India after the war will be found forming her own constitution, with the prospect that it will be modeled generally upon that of the United States.

We may expect that there will be a federation of Indian states, shaped along racial and religious lines, so that the conflicting religions will, as far as possible, have boundaries between them, and that each state will have a large measure of sovereignty over its own affairs. For the necessary national functions, there may be a general government like our own, with a lower house based upon proportional representation and a senate composed of representatives of the various states. The president, in turn, will be chosen by an electoral college, as with us, while the Canadian system of protecting minorities, such as that in Quebec, will be adapted to Indian circumstances.

The Philippines were promised independence in 1946, and the promise would have been fulfilled, even if the Filipinos had not earned their freedom by the defense they have made of their homeland. We may expect them to remain on the most friendly terms with us and to coöperate economically as well as militarily.

Burma and Malaya are politically backward and cannot be expected at once to rise to the responsibilities of self-government. That they should revert to British rule is, however, most unlikely. British rule has rested on prestige and on symbols. The memory of the surrender of Singapore to Asiatic troops will not be easily effaced from the consciousness of Asiatic peoples, and if the prestige and the symbols had not suffered sufficiently in that humiliation, there is also the fact that Britain found it necessary to call in Chinese forces to stiffen the British troops defending Burma.

If Burma and Malaya, therefore, find it impossible to accept anew the rule of Britain and if they must go thru a period of education before they can manage their own affairs, it would apparently devolve upon the United States to do for them what we did for the Philippines. We will be accepted without prejudice on the record of our administration of Philippine affairs, and we will come not as a discredited imperialist power. As most of the rubber and tin are fabricated in the United States, our stewardship is not only natural but practically inevitable over the producing regions.

The problem of reorganizing Asia may be expected more or less to take care of itself. Thailand was a sovereign nation with a national consciousness before the war. Indo-China under the Vichy French is no better than a Japanese puppet state. The French have been treated brusquely and contemptuously by the Japs and cannot hope to regain face. A graceful retirement is indicated, with the new Chinese republic the probable inheritor of the territory.

The principal problem after the war will be to find some kind of justice in Europe and to free oppressed native populations of Africa from conditions that are often tantamount to slavery. The Africans are probably not prepared for self-government, but perhaps a way can be found of improving the lot of these people and of preventing the wealth of Africa from becoming the stake of a future war.

NAMES ACROSS THE SEA.

Englishmen and Americans mean the same thing when they speak of Tom, Dick, and Harry. There as here the phrase suggests the ordinary fellow who works at the next desk or the next bench; the man in the street; the plain man who pays his taxes, shoulders his rifle when called upon to do so, is neither poor nor rich, nor in any other way particularly conspicuous.

There are vast numbers of these people in England and America, but with the Atlantic ocean to separate them they have few opportunities to meet and talk things over. Insofar as our Toms know their Dicks and Harrys, it is generally thru fiction and that is often misleading. The living Englishmen we see and hear about bear names which seem to have been devised to put the owner in a class apart from the ordinary guy. If that wasn't the idea, it was nevertheless the result.

These Englishmen bear, at the very least, names like Anthony, Stafford, and Winston which sound pretty fancy in the ears of a citizen named Elmer or Gus, and when the English upper classes really put their minds to the job of naming offspring they go to town with something like Basil or Esme, Cuthbert or Nigel, and on a really good day may hit upon something like Tudor or Clement. It is not easy to say or even to think of saying, "Gus, I'd like you to shake hands with my friend Nigel." The idea is appalling, like mixing tea and coffee.

And then there are the ladies.

In America we sometimes give our daughters pretty fancy names, tho in this matter there seems to be an ebb and flow of the tide. Following a generation of Marys, Anns, and Janes, comes a generation of Pansys, Portias, and Penelopes. Latterly, when the times have demanded something truly impressive, the movies have made their considerable contribution of Shirleys and Doloreses.

Perhaps there is the same ebb and flow in English society, but to a casual reader of the illustrated papers it doesn't seem so. There never appears to be a lack of Daphnes and Denises, Irises, Felicias, and the Hon. Gwendolines. These are marble names. The ladies who possess them do not sweat or plan meals. The slowly circulating blood is Norman and very exalted Norman at that.

The English Speaking union ought to do something about this. If there is to be a better understanding between our two great nations, if hands are to meet across the sea, we must either name our kids Nigel and Iris or they must name theirs Elmer and Shirley.

INSTALMENT PAYMENTS IN REVERSE.

All over Germany there are Heinrichs who are wondering when they are going to get their Volkswagens. These were the $250 automobiles Hitler told the workers of Germany their government was going to make for them so that they could travel about like Americans. Der Fuehrer had some models developed and placed where many could see them. Heinrich couldn't take a trip on Sunday in the Volkswagen, on which he was painfully making payments, but he could read about it, hear politicians tell about it, or even see a model of it.

Hitler never got around to producing the cars for which he collected instalment payments from his workers. Opler, Daimler-Benz, and other German auto makers said the Volkswagen was impractical. Probably Hitler never meant to deliver the cars. It has been said that it was just a fake money raising scheme. But Volkswagen payments did have the effect of sopping up excess earnings of workers, and by doing so helped to keep prices from rising. It gave Germans something to look forward to when butter and meat supplies were running low.

Rolf Nugent, the economist who thought up the idea of regulating time payments which is being followed in the United States, has proposed that the Hitler Volkswagen time payment scheme be adopted as a means of preventing inflation in the United States. The difference is that instead of being a racket as it was in Germany, it would be an honest time payment arrangement.

As described by the magazine Tide, the Nugent plan is the instalment system in reverse. Manufacturers would begin to sell at once—for delivery after the war—automobiles, electric refrigerators, radios, washing machines, and other durable goods which have disappeared from the market or soon will. A down payment would be made at the time the order was taken with regular monthly instalments thereafter. The buyers would be assured of delivery at a time when demand is bound to exceed what factories can turn out. Nugent proposes that interest be paid on the purchase certificates, with the government guaranteeing the contract. The funds could be invested in government bonds for the period of the war.

This plan, which is reminiscent of the ideas of John M. Keynes, the British economist, appears to have won favor in some quarters, altho its practicability is open to serious question. It would draw off some of the extra spending money which is causing the government concern, and it would provide funds for financing the war. These are results greatly to be desired.

But what is the postwar model to look like and how much is it to cost to produce? It seems doubtful that many buyers could be inspired to make present sacrifices when both X and Y are unknown—X equaling the article and Y when it is to be had. Manufacturers will have a third unknown, Z, which equals the cost of manufacture. Mr. Nugent's idea is that the government would pay the manufacturer for any rise in costs above the present level. But is the government willing to undertake further peacetime contingent liabilities of undetermined amounts with a several hundred billion dollar war on its hands?

The Nugent plan and all the other forced saving plans rest upon the assumption that there is danger of inflation during the war, and of depression and deflation right after the war. Spending money is to be taken up during hostilities to be returned with the coming of peace. But experience shows that the price rise during wars is relatively slight. The great flight of prices comes after the war. We don't have to accumulate orders now for postwar cars. Plenty will be wanted when peace returns. Thus forced saving schemes as proposed would, if adopted, tend to reduce the amount of spending money during the war when the danger of inflation is relatively slight, and increase the amount of spending money in time of peace when the danger of inflation is relatively great.

Editorial of the Day

JAPS SPREADING OUT AGAIN.

[Detroit News.]

Winston Churchill, questioned in parliament as to the feasibility of meeting the Japs' naval challenge in the Indian ocean, hinted at the possibility—a mite wishful perhaps—that in extending their naval operations to the Indian ocean the Japs some day may find they have forfeited naval superiority, either there or in the Pacific.

Churchill had been asked about the heavy force they now have in the Bay of Bengal. The question was whether the British would have to withdraw from those seas and confine themselves to submarine and light surface raiding.

"We have the Pacific ocean and the Indian ocean with the Japanese occupying an intermediate position between the two," was the reply. "It is possible to use large forces on one side and small forces on the other, or vice versa."

This appeared to hint at the possibility above mentioned. When operating even as far as the Bay of Bengal, the Japs are farther from Yokohama than is San Diego, let alone Pearl Harbor. Whenever their fleet may become well divided between the two oceans, an opportunity plainly will offer for a decisive naval blow by our side.

WHAT IS AT STAKE IN INDIA?

BY JOHN CUDAHY.

[Former ambassador to Belgium and Poland, former minister to Eire.]

Americans can gain some slight conception of the Indian problem by trying to imagine that the people in each of our separate states have different languages and divergent religions which cut deeper than racial antipathy into an ancient ethnic and political stratum. The empire of India is smaller in area than the United States, but among the population—three times greater than ours—over 200 languages are spoken, and among the 2,000 castes and undercastes social distinction ranges from turbaned, bejeweled Hollywood maharajas, whose wealth is beyond the dream of Midas, to the mean, degrading poverty of the average man with an income less than $30 a year. Last of all, the 50 million untouchables, whose contact is considered pollution by the castes.

The governmental structure of this vast heterogeneous medley is 11 provinces directly under British rule and 562 Indian states which accede to British controling authority. The 250 million Hindu majority has for centuries been irreconcilable with the Moslems [23 per cent of the population] and other alien groups such as the Sikhs, Parsis, Buddhists, Jains, and Christians. But the most discouraging political aspect of India is the ignorance of the people, for scarcely 15 per cent of the males can read or write, and among the women illiteracy is almost universal. This is sterile soil wherein to plant the seeds of the four freedoms or any semblance of self-government or democratic institutions.

Sir Stafford Cripps has been dispatched in a mortal emergency to gain the coöperation of the Indian masses at a moment when the British empire fights for its life. It was a desperate undertaking, one calculated to test the resourcefulness of the most skilled and experienced negotiator.

No one could have been found more favorably disposed toward the Indians. Two years ago, during the early months of the war, he visited India and conferred with the Indian leaders, afterward submitting to the British colonial office the draft of a constitution for dominion status, and on his return to England afterwards issued a written statement, "The crux of the whole situation is whether the British government will acknowledge the right of India to determine its own form of government and constitution."

That Sir Stafford Cripps has failed is eloquent of the obstacles he encountered. A portent of failure was Gandhi's reported cynical observation at the outset of the discussion that the British proposition was a "postdated check." Why, Indians asked, if the British considered India worthy of self-government, should performance of the promise be postponed until after the war?

The British answer that the harassed hour does not permit a constitutional convention or the deliberate thought necessary for the creation of any enduring form of representative government. The Indian rejoinder is that a provisional government, ceding the concept of liberty, could readily be set up pending the outcome of hostilities.

Primarily what they demanded was a government of India by Indians, for Indians, and they knew that Britain's difficulty was India's opportunity. But they were wary and distrustful not of this clever man who sat opposite them at the conference table, but of the great power he represented, and the atmosphere was charged with resentment that the viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, had, in conformity with Britain's entry into the war, committed India without consultation of Indian representatives. Nor had they forgotten the reforms and concessions promised under the stress of the last war by the Montagu report of 1917. Twelve years later this declaration of 1917 was construed by Lord Halifax, then viceroy, as leading to the attainment of dominion status. India is not yet a British dominion, altho 25 years have passed since the Montagu report and, gauged by Indian standards, the government of India act of 1935 is far short of any fulfillment of that promise.

In the Cripps conference the Indian millions were represented by the National congress and All-Moslem league. The congress has two million members, only 1 per cent of the Hindu population, and the president of the All-Moslem league, Mohammed Ali Jannah, is the spokesman, technically speaking, of only 1 per cent of the Mohammedans, yet such is the wide appeal among the masses of Leaders Gandhi, Nehru, and Maulana Abdul Kalam Azad that all Indians claim to be united for Mother India under the standard of the National congress.

This claim must have had some persuasion with Churchill, the hard-headed. Before he was prime minister he said in parliament that England could never afford to let India go. For India, supplying one-third the imports and taking one-third of all exports from the United Kingdom, is the most precious jewel in the crown of the empire. And yet, with the Japanese invaders storming at the gates, Churchill authorized Cripps to concede the potential emancipation of India.

What could be gained by the Indian coöperation for which he was willing to give so much? The Indian army, 1,500,000, musters the combat force of India. It is made up of Gurkhas from the hill country and sturdy Sikhs from the Punjab, and like all mercenaries, these soldiers will fight as directed by their British masters. Many of them have been dispatched to the far stretched fronts of the empire; thousands were captured in Dunkirk, Singapore, and Malaya; thousands of others are fighting in the far east and on the Libyan desert with devoted loyalty in the British cause. And it was not for these brown soldiers of the king that Sir Stafford Cripps was ready to pay so liberally. He bargained for the civilian population.

Yet even if these do throw in their lot with Britain it is difficult to see how 300 million Indians can spring to arms between the rising and the setting of a single sun, as William Jennings Bryan years ago conjured a million Americans leaping to rhetorical arms in this country. For the British government in India, as in Africa, is an amazing spectacle of the white man's supremacy and how with a trifling physical force a superior race can control vast territory and millions of inferior aliens. Yet it would be courting disaster to permit lethal weapons among the subjugated millions and under British rule in India even the possession of a knife over six inches in length means the most drastic punishment for the possessor.

Many generations of this British enforced defenselessness have not been calculated to engender a combative spirit, and the Hindu majority readily fell in with Gandhi's campaign of satyagraha or nonresistance, begun 25 years ago. So the collapse of potential guerrilla fighting power in India is not the serious consequence of Sir Stafford Cripps' failure. The most significant feature of this defeat is the rebellious opposition to the British which Agitators Gandhi and Nehru can set in motion among the workers of the industrial regions—Calcutta, Madras, and Hyderabad to the south.

The Tata mills at Jamshedpur, 130 miles northwest of Calcutta, are crucial to any scheme of Indian defense. These steel mills, with an annual capacity of 2 million tons, have supplied the British armies with heavy armament and small arms ammunition thruout the far east campaign. Now if they are to close down or be destroyed thru strikes or sabotage the munitions supplies for China and the united nations in the Pacific will be reduced to a critically slow pace.

Already the Japanese are only 400 miles from this vital Calcutta industrial region, and now that the army of Yamashita is released from the Philippines for the campaign of India, the Japanese can move in to Calcutta, the western coast of India, and Ceylon, where their fleet and bombers can dominate ingress to the Persian gulf and the Red sea. Even delaying actions cannot be attempted unless India will join with the defending forces. That is the tragedy of Sir Stafford Cripps' failure.

HOW KLEPTOMANIACS GET THAT WAY.

NOT many instances of true kleptomania are seen by the police. Reported cases of theft for the most part are intentional, deliberate, and actuated by the profit motive. Nevertheless, in certain instances it is possible to charge the episode to the mental makeup of the culprit.

We find it difficult to understand why one with plenty of funds to purchase whatever is desired will take the property of others. As a rule, there is no money return from the robbery.

Curiously enough, women are more subject to the tendency than men. Males who develop the habit are likely to present many feminine characteristics. Incidents of this nature occur commonly in girls' schools or co-ed institutions. Dormitories and sorority houses are favored sites.

A case which came to my attention two years ago involved a personable young lady of 19 who was a student in a neighboring school. Without warning she developed a passion for coins and medals. Within a few months she had a large collection hidden away in boxes in one of her suitcases. When alone she would take them out, play with them, and arrange and rearrange the specimens according to dates and denominations. She was an excellent student. Her people were well-to-do, but every item had been stolen. Their total value approximated $100.

The habit was discovered accidentally when a classmate who roomed across the corridor came upon her suddenly. She made no effort to deny the origin of her hoard. When her parents were summoned, however, she felt that she was being grossly mistreated—even insulted. Altho urged to consult a psychiatrist she declined to do so. Fortunately the family doctor was an understanding person. He advised that she be put to work in an industrial establishment and, at the same time, relieve her mother of certain portions of the household responsibilities.

The plan was advised because the physician realized that the patient was a victim of too much mothering. Since childhood her every move had been suggested or ordered. Even at the table she was bombarded with admonitions, "eat slowly, "don't bolt your food," "be more polite to your brother," "fold your napkin," "don't push against the table when you get up," and so on, ad infinitum.

The whole episode was explained on the ground that when the girl became a free agent away from home she indulged in a longing which had never been satisfied. Altho supplied with everything she needed she was never allowed to be in possession of more than 50 cents at any one time. Of course the parents required more treatment than the daughter. Both were obliged to school themselves to encourage independence on the part of their offspring rather than submerge it. A far happier household was the outcome. The girl returned to her studies the following year and since that time there has been no recurrence of the trouble.

Instead of calling these episodes "compulsive," why not look upon them as "compensations" or "substitutes" for hidden longings? The articles purloined are desired not perhaps for their intrinsic value, but to hide away and gloat over.

THE SULFA COMPOUNDS.

A. L. writes: You recently wrote about sulfanilamide and its derivatives in erysipelas. In what other diseases are these drugs used?

REPLY.

There are many members of the sulfonamide family. New types are being developed right along. As a group, the dyes are employed against ailments such as pneumonia, meningitis, blood poisoning, middle ear disease, etc.

RARE.

M. L. writes: My 4 year old brother has shed one of his permanent teeth. I am quite worried about this. Isn't it unusual?

REPLY.

Yes, indeed. The chances are that the structure was part of the milk set.

CIRCULATORY.

F. G. writes: What is meant by cerebral arteriosclerosis?

REPLY.

OPPOSITE YOUR HEART.

Warrensburg, Mo., April 18.—When displaying the flag it is difficult to remember the correct way. One may ask: "Did THE TRIBUNE say to place the union to the observer's left, or to the observer's right, or to the flag's left, and which is the observer's right and the flag's left? Each year the newspapers and magazines tell again about the union and the flag's right and each year the chairman worries and the flag goes up awry.

Why not try this simple way of hanging the flag according to the flag code: "Always hang the flag with the stars directly opposite your heart when you stand facing the flag"? That does not answer the question of how to hang the flag across the street, but it is so seldom that the average person meets that problem that he can easily take time to look up the proper manner of display. Generally he is called upon to hang the flag in the assembly room or at home and one can remember to stand before the flag and arrange the flag with the stars opposite one's heart. JEWELL ROSS DAVIS.

"L" FARES.

Chicago, April 12.—The "L" in asking for an increase in fare to 12 cents states that beginning in 1935 operating expenses have not been met. It is interesting to note that the unprofitable transfer arrangement with bus and street car lines started in 1935. If the "L" is making no money on a 10 cent cash fare, what is it losing on a transfer fare of which the "L" division is 6 cents? Yet the transfer arrangement has just been extended for another three months. Why continue a losing game? Why increase the cash fare to make up transfer losses?

North Shore passengers receive free transportation on the "L" resulting in a heavy annual loss to the "L." Why is this leak of revenue not stopped?

SALAD OF NASTURTIUMS.

Glen Ellyn, Ill., April 13.—To save space in your vegetable garden, may I suggest combining flowers and vegetables? For a border line of fence I use okra. It has very beautiful leaves and pretty yellow flowers, and as a vegetable is rich in vitamins.

Then there are nasturtiums. Their leaves are grand in salads. Tho strong in flavor, they are rich in manganese, which improves your resistive power against infection and is strengthening to your memory.

Very pretty is red clover. The blossoms are rich in iron and they look and taste very good in salads. MRS. W. MOTHES.

A MOTHER'S THANKS.

Chicago, April 18.—Thank you for printing my son Sergt. Arthur Weyrich's picture in your paper today. It really was an answer to my prayer that he should have a place to spend his leisure time with kindly folks. We had no letters from him since he landed in Australia, only two telegrams to his wife, saying he was well. It was grand to know more about him.

MRS. ROMAN WEYRICH.

THE WIND BLOWN MENACE.

Chicago, April 20.—Can't something be done about those fillies combing their manes in restaurants—especially during the shedding season? BOB.

STREET CARS HIS HOBBY.

Chicago, April 19.—I ride the street cars every day during the rush hours. Every day I find some one complaining or acting as if not satisfied with the service.

Well, let me tell you something. Chicago has the best street car system in the world. The service cannot be compared with any other city. I have been riding street cars for pleasure for the last 15 years. I have ridden every car line in Chicago, also went to more than 25 different cities in the United States just to ride the street cars.

Besides the wonderful service we have the most beautiful street cars. The next time you are waiting for a car and when it comes within sight notice the beauty of it. The sound will be like music to your ears. Then when you have boarded the car don't just read the car cards. Notice the wonderful design and every detail about it. Then just ride along and listen to the sound of the motors and the drag of brakes, and I'm sure you, too, can learn to love it as I have.

JOHN OLSZEWSKI.

WHAT ABOUT TIRES?

Chicago, April 20.—This morning the street car company charged 8 cents to ride to town. The surface lines have no franchise and use our streets unlawfully and being out of date our city should take up the street car tracks and place busses on the lines, owned and operated by the city, and if that is not done properly by our politicians we could vote them out of office while we still have the power to vote. MICHAEL J. EMJAY.

ALLOTMENT FOR DEPENDENTS.

Chicago, April 21.—A bill before congress proposes payment of $30 monthly to the wife and child of a soldier to be drafted—$30 a month! One dollar a day! It costs more than that to eat. What about rent, clothing, gas, and electricity, to mention just the bare necessities? Why, reliefers get much more than that; and to think this bill is drafted by members of a congress that refused to eliminate the 40 hour week and overtime pay because it would nullify the working man's struggle for a living wage!

H. STERLING.

NO RADIO RAID ALARM.

Chicago, April 15.—I make one suggestion on the air raid alarms: How about having the radio stations carry the same alarm? RALPH S. MURRAY.

ATTENTION, SECRETARY KNOX.

Chicago, April 18.—At the Chicago section meeting of the American Chemical society Dr. Harry N. Holmes, national president of the American Chemical society, suggested that perhaps vitamin B1 might be effective in the treatment and prevention of seasickness. He cited examples where B1 had been taken by people who usually suffered dreadful illness on long train, airplane, and automobile trips, with the result that after taking the vitamin such trips were undertaken in complete comfort.

He also told of occasions where people who drank beer before going on an ocean voyage suffered little or no seasickness compared with the discomfort of their companions who had had no beer. In view of this curious fact, he mentioned that beer is very rich in B1 and suggested that perhaps B1 is the agent which prevented or helped to prevent such illness. Dr. Holmes suggested that B1 be tried by the navy in an effort to curb seasickness among sailors, saying that one live and efficient fighting man is worth several who are nearly or completely seasick. NATURE NOTE.

Chicago, April 18.—This morning a robin took a piece of bread from our feeding station, placed it on the ground and broke it in two, then dug a worm and laid it on one piece of the bread, making a delicious looking open faced sandwich which he ate with much gusto. Then he made another just like it and flew away with it, probably to his mate.

TRANSFER BLIZZARD.

Chicago, April 16.—One way of stopping the waste of paper is to have the conductors on the 63d street run to Oak Park stop throwing their old transfers to the four winds. The ground alongside the tracks between Austin avenue and the end of the line looks like there has been a blizzard of paper.

DIMES MARCHING ON TOKIO.

Chicago, April 21.—Each year we have a "March of Dimes" to celebrate the President's birthday and serve a grand cause. Why not start a campaign for every man, woman, and child to purchase war stamps and bonds from 10 cents up. The climax to be on the birthday of Hirohito? PAUL F. BELLANTE.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on previously printed problems a clipping of the article should accompany the letter. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self addressed envelope will expedite handling.

RIGHT TO SHARE ESTATE.

Decatur, Ill., April 16.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Our grandfather died 10 years ago and left a will in which he gave the use of his land in Illinois to grandmother as long as she lives, and then the land is to be divided among his children, named in the will, of which my mother was one of eight. My mother died leaving my father and two brothers and myself.

Father claims that he is entitled to one-third of what mother would have in the land, and we have been told that because mother did not have possession when she died he gets nothing and that all of her share goes to we three children. M. E.

Illinois Revised statutes, chapter 3, section 200, says: "When a devise or legacy is to a descendant of the testator who dies before the testator and there is no provision in the will for that contingency, the descendants of the devisee or legatee take per stirpes the estate so devised or bequeathed, and if there is no descendant of the devisee or legatee living at the time of the death of the testator, the estate so devised or bequeathed descends and shall be distributed as intestate estate."

OLD-AGE BENEFITS.

Chicago, April 17.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My aunt, living in Cook county, had been receiving an Illinois old age pension for the last four years. She owned a few stocks and bonds and had a small bank account. She made a will. Now she is dead. When the will was read I was made the sole heir. Now in this will she left no statement instructing me to pay any expenses except those for the funeral.

1. Is said will of any value? I understand that accumulated pension payments would be a charge against any estate left by the deceased.
2. Am I right?
3. How can the state collect when there is no provision in the will which authorizes me to pay any other expenses or debts. There are other debts that are coming to my attention now.
4. Is it possible for any one to sue the heir? T. K.

1. If there are other heirs its effect in cutting them off is valuable to you. The fact that the will does not instruct that the debts be paid would not enable you to defeat the debts, if that is what you mean to ask.
2. Yes.
3. The right of creditors to collect out of the estate is not dependent on the desire of the dead person that they should be paid, any more than the right of his creditors to collect from him during his lifetime.
4. The creditors would have no direct right against the heir, but they might be against the assets left by the deceased.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF TITLE.

Oak Park, Ill., April 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—To whom does an abstract belong when a piece of property is left to five different persons? D. M.

How was it "left" to them? Ordinarily two courses of action would be open to the co-owners, one to appoint a managing agent, in which case they would presumably place the abstract in his hands, or two, to bring partition proceedings, in which case the abstract would be available for the proceedings no matter in whose hands it was deposited originally. We do not understand how a practical question arises in your case.

Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree, any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

RULES RELAXED TO SPEED SALE OF 'FROZEN' CARS

Change Does Not Expand Class of Buyers.

Would Seize Cars

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Sen. Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] today proposed a national 40 mile speed limit, with violators being penalized by confiscation of their automobiles. He said he will introduce a bill to this effect on Monday. Just compensation—the fair market value of the car—would be paid to their owners, however. The bill will provide that the owner can sue in the Court of Claims if he is not satisfied with the price set. The confiscated cars would be pooled for the war effort. The bill would exempt United States marshals, peace officers, and members of military and naval establishments in the exercise of their official duties. The senator said the purpose of the bill is to conserve rubber and preserve the life of automobiles.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Revision of regulations governing the rationing of new automobiles was announced today by Price Administrator Leon Henderson. An announcement said the order was designed to increase the flow of vehicles to eligible buyers and to assure more uniform treatment of applicants thruout the country.

Sales of new cars have been about 40 per cent below rationing quotas fixed for March, April, and May. It had been expected that 400,000 cars would be sold in the 12 month period beginning March 2, when frozen stocks were allocated.

When auto rationing began, 535,000 new passenger automobiles were in the hands of dealers, distributors, and manufacturers. The government planned to distribute all these cars except 135,000, which were to be placed in a pool to meet military and essential civilian needs after March 2, 1943.

Adds No New Buyers.

Early regulations for rationing new cars were stringent. Persons empowered to buy new cars included physicians, surgeons, visiting nurses, farm veterinarians, ministers, persons requiring ambulances, fire fighters, police, public health and safety personnel, mail carriers, licensed taxi or bus operators, highway maintenance personnel, executives, engineers, technical workers, farmers where cars are essential to the war effort, officers and employés of state, local, and federal governments, traveling salesmen selling machinery or medical equipment, carriers of newspapers for wholesale delivery, and haulers of produce to and from a farm.

The new regulations do not expand this list of eligibles, but do make it easier for persons in this category to establish "need" for a new car.

Eight Points of Proof.

1. That the applicant must travel quickly and would be better able to do so by automobile than by other means of transportation.
2. That he must transport passengers, heavy or bulky tools or materials.
3. That he would have to spend at least 1½ hours in going to and from work without a car, and could save 45 minutes by using one.
4. That without a car he would have to walk at least three miles in going and coming from work.
5. That his work is arduous, or his hours unusually long, or that he must travel late at night.
6. That local transportation services are overcrowded.
7. That his physical condition would make it a hardship for him to use public transportation facilities.
8. That he clearly needs an automobile because of other circumstances.

If the applicant can meet any one or more of these conditions, he may receive a car if he can show he does not have a car or if the rationing board holds his present car is not adequate. The rationing board may hold his car to be inadequate if it is a 1939 model or earlier, if it has been driven more than 40,000 miles, if it is not reliable for the service which it is called upon to perform, or if the applicant's needs demand he have a second car.

Des Moines, Ia., April 25 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Verne E. Hodges today reported they had received a telegram telling of the marriage yesterday of their actress daughter, Joy Hodges, 25 years old, to Paul D. Helmund, 29, a radio writer and producer.

WHITING OPENS BIDS ON SEWER JOB TOMORROW

Hopes to Start Work Within 3 Weeks.

Competitive bids for construction of intercepting sewers in Whiting, Ind., as an aid toward ending the pollution of Lake Michigan, will be opened by city officials tomorrow. Mayor James McNamara said he hoped work would start within three weeks, if the necessary manpower can be found.

The system will be financed by a $300,000 bond issue authorized by the city, plus a $350,000 fund from the federal government. Mayor McNamara said it will be completed within a year, if all goes well, but there remains for the city the problem of where to find funds for the accompanying sewage disposal plant. Washington, the mayor said, has failed thus far to provide funds for it.

Fourth City to Act.

Whiting is the last of four Lake county, Indiana, cities to make sewage improvements. New sewage systems are functioning in Gary and Hammond, and work is going ahead on similiar projects in East Chicago.

When and if the municipal pollution of the lake is ended, there is likely to remain the matter of industrial waste, engineers say. With the great steel plants in the Calumet district working full blast on war orders, untreated waste is flowing from them into the lake, according to B. A. Poole, chief sanitary engineer of the Indiana State Board of Health.

Reports Increase in Pollution.

In Indianapolis, Poole said that the war virtually had stopped industrial cleanup plans, and that the pollution from factories was greater in 1941 than any previous year. He added that he felt it would be inopportune now to ask the steel companies to tear their plants apart during the war rush to install new sewage systems.

The question of increasing the diversion of lake water into the Chicago sanitary canal—now fixed by Supreme court order at 1,500 cubic feet per second—is expected to be considered next month at the extraordinary session of the National Rivers and Harbors congress, to be held May 29 and 30 at the Congress hotel.

THE LIFE OF DOUGLAS MacARTHUR
THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE
CHAPTER 1

CHAPTER 1

THE story of the MacArthurs begins in Scotland, centuries ago. There the old Scottish clan of fighting MacArthurs carried on for generations. However, in the early part of the 19th century, General Douglas MacArthur's grandfather came to America as a boy from Glasgow, Scotland, with his mother, a widow. He studied law and was admitted to the New York bar in 1840. Later he moved to Springfield, Mass., and soon was made Judge Advocate. He married Aurelia Belcher. On June 2, 1845, the first MacArthur to be born in America was brought into the world. He was to become the father of the present General. His parents named him

CHAPTER 2

IN 1849, the year of the Gold Rush, young men were urged to "Go West" for fame and fortune. General Douglas MacArthur's grandfather, Arthur MacArthur, responded. With his wife and 4-year old son, he traveled to Chicago. However, a new state had just been admitted to the Union. It was called Wisconsin. It attracted him. Soon the family was settled in the city of Milwaukee. Within a few years, Arthur MacArthur became City Attorney of Milwaukee. Subsequently, he was elected Lt. Governor of Wisconsin.

In 1870, President Grant appointed Arthur MacArthur Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, a post he held for seventeen years. Many believe that the strong sense of justice of the present General Douglas MacArthur was inherited from his

ARTHUR MacARTHUR, father of General Douglas MacArthur, spent his boyhood in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War, although he was only 17 years of age, he enlisted. He became First Lt. and Adjutant of the 24th Wisconsin Infantry. He soon showed the qualities of leadership that were to advance him through a long and illustrious military career. His bravery was proved time and again on the battlefields of the South. He was severely wounded and suffered many narrow escapes. His dauntless courage brought him rapid advancements to Major, Colonel, and Lt. Colonel, a post he held when he was mustered out of the service at the end of the Civil War, at which time he was but

IN 1866, Arthur MacArthur, father of the present General, returned to private life after the Civil War but soon became eager once more for the thrill and excitement of a soldier's life. The three years he had spent on the battlefields of the South had stirred his fighting MacArthur blood. He soon resolved to devote his entire life to the American armed forces and immediately enlisted in the regular army as a Second Lieutenant. He advanced through the ranks, defending the American people and American institutions through many wars and ultimately achieved the rank of Lt. General. His amazing military career was climaxed by his appointment to the Philippines as

MUSIC FESTIVAL INVITATIONS GO IN MAIL TOMORROW

Event Aug. 15 Dedicated to Armed Forces.

More than 7,000 handsome brochures telling the details of the 13th annual Chicagoland Music Festival, which will be held Saturday night, Aug. 15, in Soldiers' field, will be mailed tomorrow to as many individuals and organizations planning to participate in the show.

The invitations, done in red, white, and blue and featuring a drawing of a sailor, a soldier, and a marine, emphasize that the entire program is dedicated to the armed forces of the United States.

Asks Songs to Stir Nation.

The invitation, signed by Philip Maxwell, the Festival director, reads:

"The 13th annual Chicagoland Music Festival, in this year of war, is dedicated to the armed forces of America. To those who conduct preliminary festivals as well as to those who carry on in the big show in Soldiers' field in Chicago comes a challenge to arouse America to the single, gigantic task ahead. Song will unify our nation. Let us sing of America's greatness, of her past glory, of her heroic present, and sing for that victory which must come to all nations that fight to keep people free. Therefore, the Chicagoland Music Festival will be more than a musical spectacle this summer. It will be a song and a prayer of 100,000 voices that America will be triumphant."

The brochure lists the Festival contests as follows: vocal, choral, concert band, accordion band, fretted band, accordion, trombone, Hawaiian guitar, Spanish guitar, tenor banjo, piano, marimba, baton twirling, and flag swinging. The piano and marimba competitions are new to the Festival.

LAST MAN'S CLUB OF 7TH REGIMENT HOLDS REUNION

More than a hundred survivors of the old 7th regiment of the Illinois National Guard, organized as the Last Man's club, held their annual reunion dinner in the Stevens Building restaurant last night. Municipal Judge Erwin L. Hasten was the principal speaker. The old 7th regiment was originally an all-Irish outfit, made up of the Irish Rifles and the Clan-Na-Gael guards. It entered the federal service 44 years ago today, the day after the United States declared war on Spain. Maj. C. S. Kelly, senior vice commander in chief of the United Spanish-American War Veterans and president of the Last Man's club, presided.

BIDDLE VISIONS U. S. AS HEART OF WORLD SOCIALISM

Sees Extension of TVA Ideas After War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—A form of international socialism was advanced as a postwar possibility today by Attorney General Francis Biddle, who took a look into the future as he appeared informally before a group of international law experts here.

International business corporations might be formed by coöperation of the various governments, he said, with governments holding stock in mutually profitable enterprises. Biddle told the joint meeting of the American Society of International Law and the international and coöperative section of the American Bar association that the experience this country has gained in similar corporations on a national scale might be invaluable in the postwar era.

He Cites TVA and RFC.

He cited the Tennessee Valley association, which has been described as this country's greatest venture into state socialism, rivaling anything undertaken in soviet Russia during the planning years following the revolution. He also mentioned the Reconstruction Finance corporation as another domestic corporation, which might serve as a model for international corporations of the future.

Such international socialism might pave the way for world unions, which are being advocated in certain sections of the administration. Altho Biddle avoided this subject in his informal remarks, other leaders here, including Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, and Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts of the United States Supreme court, have lent their names to advertisments asking the public to give to thought to Union Now.

In congress the movement has been assailed as a movement to surrender our independence and become part of a world supergovernment.

Move for Union of All.

The movement has taken several forms. Some advocate union of all English speaking peoples as a first step and others are urging a united nations of the world, in which all peoples of the world would be united. Congress has been asked to pass various resolutions facilitating such union.

Turning to the United States after the war, Biddle said that thought must be given to the extent war controls will continue after peace comes. It has been recognized generally that the government will be slow to release the vast powers under which industry and people are being regimented in the war period.

"We are now in a noncompetitive economy, which is becoming a completely integrated government controled economy," he said, "and cannot be abandoned instantly when peace comes."

CAPACITY CROWD HEARS SYMPHONY END 51ST SEASON

Orchestra Member Late; He's in the Army.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The 51st season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra came to its close in Orchestra hall last evening with one of Frederick Stock's inimitable popular concerts. To the capacity audience, so fortunate in its opportunity to hear the best music at phenomenally low prices, the occasion was one of regret, but also one of relief as the popular concerts will be continued next season in spite of rising costs of operation.

After the audience's full throated singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," Dr. Stock began the formal concert with a bit of characteristic waggery. Just as he lifted his baton to begin the Bach Passacaglia, a uniformed soldier scurried breathlessly to an empty chair in the cello section.

Gets Leave for Concert.

Dr. Stock introduced him as Pvt. R. Smith, who was inducted into the army earlier in the week. He was granted a four day furlough to complete his season with the orchestra, but his new circumstances, Dr. Stock claimed, "made him a little late."

Immediately the orchestra stepped into its finest stride, playing the great Passacaglia and Fugue, in Stock's rich orchestration, with even more propulsive power than on Thursday. Dvorak's second symphony, which followed, received so unified and so sweeping a performance that it sounded like more of a masterpiece than it really is.

Pays Tribute to Veterans.

After the intermission Edward L. Ryerson, president of the orchestral association, again introduced Franz Esser, who began as a volinist in the orchestra's second year, and who received a silver plate from the trustees last Thursday evening in token of 50 years of uninterrupted service. Mr. Ryerson also paid tribute to the leadership of Dr. Stock and Hans Lange for their selfless and idealistic pursuit of the loftiest musical values.

The rest of the program consisted of Wagner's overture to "The Flying Dutchman," Paganini's "Perpetual Motion" played by all the violins, the air from Bach's B minor suite, and Tschaikowsky's "Italian Caprice."

On Saturday the orchestra will play two concerts at the Cornell college festival in Mount Vernon, Ia. After that, all will be silence until the opening of Ravinia, June 30.

SABOTAGE was the object of Rawlings' night excursion to the port of London. He was certain that June Clayton loved him desperately, that she would pilot him on his errand of death, and ask no questions.

Because she made one careless mistake, a pretty secretary was catapulted into the British secret service. Her inexperience helped her to confuse a Nazi spy ring. Her intuition helped her to escape the consequences.

There is peril in every paragraph of this exciting new serial. Danger and adventure crowd this story of an English girl who abandoned the quiet routine of a secretary's job to fraternize with the minions of Nazi treachery and death. Don't miss

by Roy Vickers

Author of "The Girl in the Shadows," and "I'll Never Tell"

Here's how the story starts:

June Clayton enjoyed every minute of her life for the good reason that, at twenty-three, she was, in a small way, one of Fortune's darlings. Not the kind you read about in society papers; for June was an ordinary business girl, being secretary to Mr. Tarlinghouse of Tarlinghouse Motor Lawn Mowers.

She was a shade over medium height, springy and vital, natural ash-blonde hair, wide-set blue-grey eyes, regular features and just enough firmness of the mouth to save her from being a poster-beauty.

She had a small office to herself with a window which looked over a group of low-lying, shed-like structures that was the factory.

"I'm not dictating any letters this morning, Miss Clayton," said Mr. Tarlinghouse. "I want you to make a copy of this."

He passed her a small sheaf of papers. The papers were crumpled and rather dirty, but he handled them as if they were very precious.

"I want absolutely perfect copy like a legal document. No erasures."

"One carbon copy or two?" she asked.

"None. Just one copy, perfect."

When she had left the room Mr. Tarlinghouse pressed a button on the staff-board and half a minute later a commissionaire came in.

"Hendricks, leave one of the messenger boys at the gate." He lowered his voice, which was unnecessary because he knew that the room was sound-proof. "I want you to wait in the corridor outside Miss Clayton's room. If anyone goes into her room, just rush in here without knocking."

"Very good, sir."

"And don't let anybody know you're on guard. If anyone comes, fiddle with the fuse box or something."

In her own room June was clattering away at her machine, more slowly than usual, because the copy was very nearly meaningless to her, being a mass of engineering terms. The heading provoked a smile: "Timecat Combinations and Stress."

For all her carefulness, she made two mistakes on the first page, two on the third and three on the fourth.

Now spoilt paper, containing confidential matter, had to be thrust by herself, with her own hands, into the stove in the caretaker's room which supplied heating in winter and hot water for washing in summer. As was her habit on these occasions, she put the fragments temporarily in the side pocket of her personal bag. Then she gathered up the original pages and the copy she had made.

In the corridor on her way to Mr. Tarlinghouse's room, she passed the time of day with Hendricks who was mending the fuse box.

"Good!" said Mr. Tarlinghouse, as she handed him the finished job. "Now we must check this. Read aloud from the original, will you, and I'll check your copy."

By a quarter to one they had finished. Mr. Tarlinghouse opened the big safe and placed both sets of papers inside.

Down to the housekeeper's room she went to thrust that waste paper into the furnace.

"Why, Miss Clayton, you know we don't light the fire on a Saturday, not in the summer," said the housekeeper.

"Oh, bother!" exclaimed June. "Never mind—I can burn it when I get home."

Parked in the roadway as she left the building was a Baby Morstyn, the automobile her heart was set on.

She gazed at the car admiringly and even possessively—became so absorbed she was startled when a man's voice spoke behind her.

"Dere you are, Miss Glayton! I told you when we'd given her a spray she'd look as goot as new. What you t'ink of her?"

Two brothers owned the garage, Henry and Jacob Ferrer. They were both British subjects, they said, but they both had foreign accents because they had spent all their boyhood with their parents abroad.

This was Henry, a stocky little man with a toothbrush moustache, gimlet eyes and an unshaved chin.

"She looks nice enough," admitted June carefully. "But can she stand up to it, Mr. Ferrer?"

"That's what you're going to tell us, Miss Glayton," said Jacob Ferrer, who had joined them, grinning benevolently. Taller and thinner than his brother, he also had a better accent, even if he did pronounce June's name Glayton instead of Clayton.

"Okay," said Henry Ferrer, opening the door. "Now you drive her, Miss Glayton, and I'll sit in der back for ballast."

"Here we go!" said June as she flung down her handbag, took the wheel and started the car rolling.

Occupied with the driving, she didn't see the scrap of paper that slipped out of her purse when it landed with thud on the seat in front of Ferrer.

But he saw it instantly. He also spied on the torn paper the typewritten words, Timecat Combinations. And to think, he and Jacob were hot after secret information concerning the manufacture of Timecat Combinations . . . airplane parts!

The gimlet eyes on June's purse, her back seat passenger further discovered torn edges of paper protruding from the side-pocket. What did all that mean?

Why are the Ferrer brothers so interested in airplane secrets? How do they manage to involve pretty June Clayton in their intrigue?

dreds have applied themselves to building implements of war has earned them an immediate and material reward. Stewart-Warner's male workers are earning 35 per cent more than they did at this time last year. Women's pay is up 30 per cent for the same period.

Multiply the increased individual earnings of these people by the hundreds of thousands of war workers in this area who have materially increased their earnings and it will be apparent that the region's buying power has gained mightily.

Warehouse Now Factory.

The changeover to war production has meant that not a few of the employés have had to learn new skills. The company's peacetime production lines turned out electric refrigerators and ranges, radios, automobile speedometers, heaters, and hardware, automobile and industrial lubricants and equipment, automobile and marine instrument panels, casters, furniture hardware, and die casts.

Some sections of the plants lent themselves to easy conversions. Some were difficult. A big advantage was that much of its peacetime production was accomplished with automatic screw machines, punch presses, and plating equipment. All these are used in war production.

Two months ago one present huge plant was a warehouse that formerly had been a refrigerator factory. It was filled from end to end with crated merchandise. As the great rotary milling machines and other equipment arrived, they were installed at one end of the building. Goods that had been stacked in two or three layers was piled in four and six layers to make room.

Metals March to War.

The sales force launched a drive to clean out the stocks on hand. As the piles of merchandise receded the ponderous machinery in war production advanced, eventually filling the vast room.

At one end, boxcars are switched in for unloading bar and sheet steel, brass, copper, and aluminum. The metals progress down the room, into the machines, thru the cleansing baths, across the inspection tables, into the assembly lines, and finally, into packing cases at the far end of the long building.

Waiting there—where they have been switched meanwhile — are the same boxcars. Into them the finished product is loaded to be sped away. Somewhere in the line of boxcars will be a gondola or two, filled with the scrap accumulated during the manufacturing process. It goes back to the smelters—to return again another day.

Work 'Round the Clock.

Twenty-four hours a day seven days a week this process goes on, to continue until the victory it will have helped make possible.

The company is not forgetting that peace will come again. Independent of its military work, Stewart-Warner is maintaining a corps of scientists and engineers who are preparing for postwar production. They examine an average of 200 inventions a month and hope to apply to the products of peace the advances achieved in war.

FORD PLANT CIO LOCAL TO HOLD FIRST ELECTION

Detroit, Mich., April 25 (AP).—Ford Local union 600, lusty infant of the United Automobile Workers [CIO], comes of age next week with its first election of officers—and expects to poll the largest vote for such an event in the history of American labor unions.

Campaign fever in the Ford Motor company's big Rouge plant approach the aspects of a major political race as 78,124 eligible voters—more than cast Presidential ballots in the entire state of Nevada two years ago —prepare to go to the polls Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to choose a local president and eight other officers.

Competition is keen. No fewer than 629 workers were nominated for the nine posts. Interest centers on four major offices, all full time jobs. The president will draw an annual salary of $5,000, while a vice president and two secretaries will get $4,500 each.

The Ford local is not yet four years old and its union shop contract with the Ford company was signed only last June.

ASK GOVERNORS HELP SIMPLIFY STATE TANGLES

President Calls Session on Law Conflicts.

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—The federal government today invited the states to send representatives to a conference on elimination of state and local restrictions which hamper the war effort, such as labor and truck shipment regulations.

A telegram from President Roosevelt to the state governors proposed a meeting here on May 5, 6, and 7 with Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones and heads of the various war agencies.

The meeting, Mr. Roosevelt said, "should give specific attention to the fullest possible utilization of labor, transportation facilities, construction capacity, and agricultural products."

Cite Women's Work Laws.

The commerce department, outlining the problems to be considered, mentioned prohibitions against night work for women and against Sunday work; anti-migratory laws; lack of uniformity among states on regulations covering motor truck operations, and limitations on practices in certain professions.

A week ago Joseph B. Eastman, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, wrote Rep. John W. McCormack [D., Mass.], house majority leader, that legal barriers were slowing up the movement of vital military material and urged legislation to break those transportation bottlenecks "at the earliest possible time."

McCormack turned Eastman's letter over to the White House, and the President, apparently in the belief that the obstacles could be set aside by coöperative agreements, decided upon the conference.

Sees Substantial Interference.

"I am satisfied that there is actual, continuous, and substantial interference with interstate movement of vital war materials and supplies in many states of the union," Eastman wrote.

He declared that "many of the states have made a sincere effort to be helpful in permitting the free flow of vital traffic by motor vehicles, notwithstanding state restrictions."

URGES FURNACES BE REPAIRED AT END OF SEASON

Frank A. Chambers, head of the city department of smoke abatement, warned householders yesterday to have their furnaces inspected as soon as the heating season is over.

"Now, more than ever," Chambers said, "proper care should be given the metal in furnaces. Fly ash and soot left in the furnace, boiler, or smoke pipes during the year creates sulfuric acid and damages the metal.

"You may have difficulty replacing the metal in your furnace next fall or next year."

Chambers said users of bituminous coals, used especially in large boilers, should exert special care because of the high sulphur content of the coal.

Another precaution that should be taken, according to Chambers, is to make furnace repairs as soon as possible. When the furnace system is cleaned, Chambers said, it should be inspected for breaks.

REDUCED SPEED TO SAVE TIRES CUTS AUTO TOLL

Fewer Killed and Injured than in 1941.

Motorists who have cut their speed to save tires also are saving lives and reducing the number of accidents and injuries in Chicago. This was shown yesterday in figures from the Chicago police accident prevention bureau, and the National Safety council, which has its headquarters here.

From Jan. 1 thru April 19 police records show 5,021 accidents involving injuries or property damage. This is 229 less than the number for a similar period last year.

There were 6,081 persons injured, 384 fewer than in the same period in 1941. Fatalities were 165, against 168 in the comparable period last year, 184 in 1940, and 199 in 1939.

The nation's 1941 traffic accident record—40,000 deaths, an increase of 5,500 over 1940—was the worst since the invention of the automobile, according to safety experts.

First Drop in February.

The National Safety council reported that February, 1942, was the first month in a year and a half to show a lower automobile death toll in comparison with the same month in the preceding year. Cars took 2,380 lives in the nation in February, a reduction of 210 or 8 per cent below the figure for February, 1941.

This lower rate is due primarily to the curtailment of cars and tires, traffic experts believe.

Altho the council does not have statistics to show whether there was as much driving this February as last, it is believed that there was no reduction. Mileage figures for January were up 10 per cent over the previous January, and December showed a 16 per cent rise.

Increase in '41 Over '40.

Figures released by the park district in its annual summary of traffic accidents on the city's boulevards and drives show that 1941 accidents increased 8 per cent over 1940. Boulevard traffic deaths increased 6.6 per cent, compared to a national increase of 15.9 per cent in fatalities.

Park district records show that nonfatal accidents increased 5.7 per cent and property damage mishaps jumped 9 per cent over 1940.

In the park system there were 12,247 traffic accidents, of which 96, or 0.8 per cent, were fatal accidents, 3,427, or 28 per cent, personal injury accidents, and 8,724, or 71.2 per cent, property damage mishaps.

More Pedestrian Victims.

In keeping with the usual accident pattern for urban communities, more pedestrians were killed than motorists. Of the 96 fatalities on the boulevards, 75, or 78 per cent, were pedestrians, and 21 motorists.

Drivers between 20 and 29 years old were the worst offenders, according to the figures. They were involved in 6,502 accidents. Second worst were drivers in the 30 to 39 age bracket who figured in 6,016 accidents. Drivers under 20, altho small in number, were involved in 5 fatal accidents, 306 personal injury, and 842 property damage accidents.

HUNT TEMPORARY WORKERS ON OLD AGE PENSION LIST

Springfield, Ill., April 25 (AP).—Fletcher C. Kettle, state superintendent of public assistance, tonight announced a state-wide survey to determine how many persons on Illinois old age assistance rolls are able to work and willing to take jobs if they are available.

"The purpose of this survey is to find to what degree men 65 to 75 years of age currently receiving old age assistance payments might be drawn upon to replace younger agricultural and industrial workers who have been and will be called into the armed forces," Kettle said.

"No recipient will be required to accept a job if he does not wish to. If he does accept one which is sufficient for his support, his assistance award will be suspended only while he is employed."

Kettle said recipients are being asked thru letters for interviews to discuss their qualifications and willingness to accept jobs, and that the information gained thru the survey will be made available to federal and local employment agencies and the agriculture war board.

San Francisco, Cal., April 25 [Special].—The final financial report by H. C. Bottorff, executive vice president of the Golden Gate International exposition, today showed that the fair had a total net deficit of $9,106,489 for its two years of operation. There was a surplus of $540,347 in 1940, the second year. Profit from operations totaled $6,651,546, but among deductible items were more than $11,000,000 for amortization and $4,500,000 expenses prior to opening.

CRASH IS FATAL TO WIDOW OF INSURANCE HEAD

Mrs. Lay Dies After Kenosha Wreck.

Mrs. Frances I. Lay, 58 years old, widow of Robert B. Lay, insurance executive, died yesterday of injuries suffered in an automobile collision Friday night near Kenosha, Wis. She and her chauffeur, Carl Buelow, 43, were thrown from their car when it collided with another driven by Ralph W. Oliver, 52, of Chicago. Mrs. Lay lived at 3466 Lake Shore drive. Her husband was head of the National Life Insurance company at the time of his death in 1940.

Two navy petty officers from Great Lakes Naval Training station were killed early yesterday when their car skidded and overturned on Skokie highway near Wadsworth road, Lake county. They were Gilbert Warner Bills, 21, of 537 Sheridan road, Evanston; and Howard J. Whitehead, 24, Tecumseh, Neb., both storekeepers third class in the training station's disbursement office.

Son of Real Estate Dealer.

Bills was the son of Benjamin F. Bills, Chicago real estate dealer. He attended Williams college and the University of Chicago and enlisted Feb. 19. Whitehead enlisted in Omaha Jan. 26. They had permission to be absent from the naval station.

Bills was pinned under the car and was dead when aid arrived. Whitehead was taken to the training station hospital with a fractured skull and died an hour later.

Walter Zale, 30, and Frank Perrone, also 30, both midget race car drivers, were killed early yesterday when they drove their automobile thru a stop signal onto the Rock Island railroad tracks at 159th street and Cicero avenue. Their car first was struck by an eastbound freight train and hurled in front of a westbound passenger train.

Car Is Demolished.

Zale lived at 6150 South Western avenue and Perrone at 3434 West 59th street.

Austin Lauterbach, 18, of 3010 Chicago road, Chicago Heights, was killed when he lost control of his motorcycle and was thrown to the pavement on the Dixie highway, two miles north of Grant park.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday, 240 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 189 were killed in Chicago, where 6,311 were injured in traffic accidents.

MOVIE SLAYER IS EXAMINED BY THREE ALIENISTS

Clarence McDonald, 17 years old, who is charged with the theater murder of Miss Dorothy Broz, also 17, his former Morton High school classmate, was examined by three alienists in the county jail yesterday. The psychiatrists were called in by Attorney Donald D. Rogers, who will represent the slayer in the trial.

The three are Dr. Thomas Cusack of the Kings Park State hospital at Long Island, N. Y.; Dr. Samuel Kraines, associate professor of psychiatry at the University of Illinois and assistant state alienist, and Dr. J. K. Klepper, superintendent of the state criminal hospital at Waupun, Wis.

Rogers said that their findings will not be made known until the trial, which will open May 4 in the Criminal court of Judge Robert J. Dunne. McDonald has confessed that he shot and killed Miss Broz in the Palace theater Feb. 24. He said he was afraid he would lose her.

HAMMER SLUGGER FELLS 3 WOMEN ON N. Y. STREET

New York, April 25 [Special].—Three women suffered scalp wounds today when Martin C. De Wreede, 49 years old, Dutch alien, ran amok in the west 80's near Central park, striking passers-by at random with a five pound claw hammer.

De Wreede, who is 6 feet 2 inches and weighs 200 pounds, appeared at 8 a. m. in front of a tailor shop with a towel wrapped around his head. He mumbled incoherently about religion and struck down a Negro woman with his hammer. He struck down two other women before taxi drivers overpowered him.

Police said De Wreede's mind apparently had become unbalanced thru worry over a son who is in Holland.

Transplanted Federal Employes Like Chicago

ODC ASKS CITY FOR LISTINGS OF MORE HOMES

Carries On Record Real Estate Operation.

Undecided at first as to how they would like Chicago, a majority of the 625 employés of the Railroad Retirement board, who came here recently from Washington, were reported yesterday as finding the city much to their liking. A few were said, however, to be unable to shake off their homesickness for the capital.

Getting the newcomers to like the city is part of the program of the Chicago branch of the Office of Decentralization Service, which has its headquarters in the former American Fore building, 37 East Chestnut street. The Chicago branch is engaged in one of the largest individual real estate operations in the city's history—that of finding homes for government workers forced to leave Washington because of war congestion.

James G. Bingham is regional director for the ODS. Henry G. Slavik, manger of the Chicago office, and Lowell Baker, assistant manager, are associated with him.

391 Want Permanent Homes.

Of the 625 employés of the retirement board, 391 are seeking permanent Chicago homes thru the ODS. Of these a substantial number is already placed. This week 300 more workers are to arrive and it is expected that ultimately between 5,000 and 10,000 former residents of the capital will be settled in Chicago.

Members of the ODS staff report that when the new arrivals first come into the office they "carry chips on their shoulders," since they were accustomed to Washington and are disturbed over leaving their homes and friends there. But in a few days their attitudes change, it is said, and they are pleased with their new homes.

Divisional Chief Pleased.

George Pusack, chief of the division of administration of the bureau of wage and service records, who has rented a house in Wilmette, was one of those pleased with the move to Chicago.

"On the whole, all my colleagues are pretty well satisfied," he said. "It takes time to find just the right sort of place wanted. But most of those to whom I have talked are becoming pleased with the city. Many of the young unmarried people want homes near the parks.

"One thing that amazes many of those who moved here is the great distances in Chicago. If one travels seven miles in Washington he is out in the country, but in Chicago he is just getting started."

Listed 10,000 Dwelling Units.

The ODS originally had listings of 10,000 dwelling units in the Chicago area, including furnished and unfurnished apartments, rooms and houses. Because of the changes in the listings, with many units rented and thereby withdrawn, Bingham said it is hoped that others who have such living quarters available will list them. The need for additional housing will grow as the number of persons moving to Chicago increases, he said.

The ODS branch in Chicago has four young women who interview the newcomers and try to place them in the type of neighborhood to which they are accustomed. One recent arrival said she wanted to live among persons of Swedish extraction. She was placed in a Swedish neighborhood.

In some cases the requests are difficult to fill. One woman, for example, wanted living quarters with rooms 14 feet in height.

Newcomers Given Maps.

All newcomers are given maps showing Chicago's points of interest, street guides, information as to churches and shopping centers and other aids to acquaint them rapidly with their new home. The Office of Civilian Defense has coöperated by furnishing automobiles with women drivers to take some of the newcomers around the city. The WPA is arranging tours of Chicago.

The ODS serves only employés who have left Washington because of the congestion. There are, however, hundreds of others coming to the city with government services, such as the army, navy, and maritime commission. It has been suggested that ODS facilities and services also be extended to these workers.

Moving? Here Are Pointers That Will Help

Some pointers on how to move were given yesterday by the Institute of Real Estate Management, a division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Among the suggestions were the following:

Do not pack books or other heavy articles in bureau drawers, unless you want to take the risk of the bottoms falling out. Such space should be packed with anything light and unbreakable, such as bedding, pillows, and linens.

Check with Mover First.

Do not pack all your clothes in suitcases before checking as to whether the mover has a handy wardrobe—a closet-like device in which all garments may be hung during the moving.

Pack those things you may want to use immediately into a separate carton clearly labeled. Tell the movers you want that carton unloaded first.

Label the various articles being moved according to the rooms in which they are to go. This will save time and labor, which means saving money.

Avoid Elevator Congestion.

If you are moving into an elevator building it is wise to consult the manager and to find a time when other tenants are not moving. Thus the movers will not be forced to wait at the elevator with their loads should it be in use. In many instances this wasted time is paid for by the person moving.

HOUSES STARTED PRIOR TO APRIL 9 MAY BE FINISHED

Reassurance was given persons with homes under construction yesterday by Gael Sullivan, Illinois director of the Federal Housing administration, when he explained that any construction started prior to the issuance of the WPB's conservation order on April 9 may be completed. Such construction, he said, is not included in the decree.

The April 9 order also clarified the definition of "defense housing," Sullivan said. Prior to its issuance, he noted, "defense housing" often encompassed virtually every type of home and every worker classification. The WPB, however, defines a defense worker as a member of the armed forces; a worker in a plant producing war materials thru direct or subcontract, or a federal employé engaged directly in war activity.

Two New Leases Reported Closed in Tower Building

In the other the Foot Saver Shoe Shop, Inc., leased the store at 72 East Madison street. The Ridgecroft corporation, headed by Edward K. Hardy, is owner of the building.

PREDICTS SHARP DROP IN DEFENSE HOME FINANCING

A sharp drop in the number of homes financed under title VI. Federal Housing administration loans [largely loans used to finance defense housing, including groups of low priced homes] was predicted yesterday by Irvin Jacobs & Co. in a summary on real estate trends in Cook county.

"Not only will the contractors engaged in such activity who are now building on a large scale under title VI. have enough to keep them busy with the houses already projected but the present freezing orders may have a congealing effect on later building," the company said. "The mortgages now resulting from title VI. construction may not be followed by new mortgages for similar construction."

The company said there now seems to be a drive to have defense homes constructed on a rental basis rather than to be sold. It added that fewer contractors will be able to work on rental housing than on houses to be sold because of the capital which they would have to tie up in rental houses.

CITIZENS LOAN LEASES OFFICES ON STATE CORNER

The Citizens Loan corporation has leased most of the second floor of the building at the southeast corner of Jackson boulevard and State street. After extensive alterations are completed—scheduled for about June 15—the company will establish its executive offices and a new sales office on the premises, J. A. Breen, president, said. The estate of L. Z. Leiter is owner of the property.

The building was cut down from its original seven stories about a year ago to the present two story taxpayer size. Hugh C. Michels, who negotiated the lease, said that plans for the erection of a new building on the site have been abandoned.

LINEN SUPPLY CO. HEAD PURCHASES GLENVIEW HOME

G. Walker Morgan, president of the Morgan Linen Supply service, has purchased the 10 room residence at 631 Glendale drive, Glenview, from E. O. Desremaux, president of Good Impressions, Inc., for an undisclosed amount, the residence is of modern design and includes a number of features, including indirect and fluorescent lighting. Mrs. Hope Matthews of Baird and Warner, Inc., represented the buyer and George F. Nixon the seller.

Pine Grove Ave. Building Bought by Lester Realty

The three story apartment building at 2946-58 Pine Grove avenue, containing 13 four and six room apartments, has been sold by the State Mutual Life Assurance company to the Lester Realty corporation for a reported $62,500. The seller took back a mortgage for $52,500. Robert Wall of the Older Realty company negotiated the sale.

PORTER, OPA'S RENT CHIEF, TO SPEAK IN CITY

Address to Realtors Will Be Aired by W-G-N.

Paul A. Porter, assistant administrator of the Office of Price Administration, Washington, will be the featured speaker at the 58th annual banquet of the Chicago Real Estate board on Thursday evening, it was announced yesterday. The dinner will be held at the Palmer House.

Because of the importance of Porter's talk, which is to be on "Our Wartime Economic Policy," it will be broadcast over station W-G-N at 10 p. m. Porter will be preceded on the speaker's platform by David B. Simpson, Portland, Ore., president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Heads Rent Division.

Porter is in direct charge of the rent division in the OPA's setup and he is expected to outline some of the administration's rent objectives during his visit to Chicago.

Morgan L. Fitch, a past president of the board, will install the new officers during the dinner, which is to start at 6:30 p. m. He will induct the new officers, who are headed by Ronald J. Chinnock. Included will be the board of directors, members of the division boards of governors, and members of the various elected committees. Thomas J. Fleming is the retiring president.

Plan Playlet by MacArthur.

A feature of the entertainment will be a playlet on the life of Gen. MacArthur, commander in chief of the forces in Australia, by a group of actors from station W-G-N.

The board will hold an open house in its new home at 105 West Madison street from 4 to 6 p. m.

Meantime, realtors from all parts of the country will assemble in Chicago to attend a meeting Wednesday and Thursday at the Drake hotel at which rent controls in arms plant areas will be discussed. The meeting was called at the request of Leon Henderson, price administrator.

FURNITURE TO BE FEATURE OF 1942 HOME SHOW HERE

Furniture displays will be one of the features of the annual Chicago Home Show which opens at the Coliseum May 2, John A. Servas, managing director, announced yesterday. The furniture exhibits are expected to offset some displays lost as a result of government restrictions on certain types of construction.

The Chicago Furniture Manufacturers association is sponsoring the new displays of many of the products of the city's large furniture industry. Craftsmen from factories will demonstrate their work.

"The purpose of the exhibit," Servas said, "is to educate the home owner and apartment dweller on how to buy furniture, with regard to craftsmanship, quality of materials, style, and maintenance.

"The exhibit of the furniture manufacturers association will be in conjunction with a large array of model rooms, which will occupy prominent floor space in the main hall of the Coliseum. Some of the largest and best known manufacturers of household furnishings will display their wares in the model settings. They will have experts present to advise visitors on interior decoration."

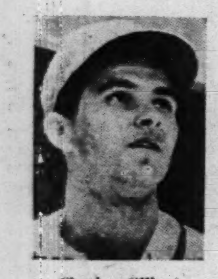
CUBS BEAT REDS IN 11TH, 5-4; WHITE SOX LOSE IN 9TH

GILBERT'S PINCH HIT BRINGS 3D VICTORY IN ROW

Passeau Triumphs Over Derringer.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Charley Gilbert.

Cincinnati, O., April 25.—Charley Gilbert came out of the dugout this afternoon for a pinch hitting job and the success of his venture carried the Cubs to their third straight triumph, 5 to 4. It was another overtime battle with the Reds, against whom they unsuccessfully battled for 14 innings six days ago. Gilbert, who had been out of action since opening day with a leg injury, singled today in the 11th round to register a run that hung an absentee trimming on that long standing Chicago nemesis, Paul Derringer.

After Phil Cavarretta went out in the final inning Lou Stringer launched the decisive thrust by doubling to left and Babe Dahlgren aided with a bouncing single over Derringer's head. The latter walked off willingly, well knowing he was on the tired side. While Elmer Riddle, his successor, was coming in Gilbert was strolling out toward the plate for his act. He slapped Riddle's pitch for a single to right and Stringer carried in the winning run.

Hack's Fumble Costs Two Runs.

Altho the Cubs recorded an imposing total of 12 hits, they were forced to spend a goodly portion of the day as unwilling victims to a possible no hit performance. It took them six innings to get their first blow and the author of this achievement was Claude Passeau, who was in there at the finish to hand back the same treatment the Reds gave him in the aforementioned 14 inning thriller of last Sunday in Wrigley field.

Passeau also was somewhat reluctant to concede the Reds' their first hit. They started operating in the fourth with three safeties after Stan Hack had erred on a possible third out. Two runs resulted. The Reds grabbed another in the sixth on a homer by Bert Haas.

But the Cubs got under way with two runs in the seventh. Passeau forced a run over in the Reds' half, and in the eighth the Cubs stepped up with two for a 4 to 4 tie, an incident in which the second double by Dom Dallessandro featured. And it remained that way until the eleventh.

Pitchers Strong at Start.

Until the Reds made their entry into the run column there wasn't much difference in the work turned out by the two pitchers. Derringer opened with a gift to Hack and this was the extent of the Cubs' base running during the first three innings. In this stretch the only Red to see base was Ival Goodman, who walked in the first inning with two out—one of the outs resulting from a great stop of Lonnie Frey's grounder by Len Merullo. The Cubs' second base runner turned up at the start of the second, Merullo surviving on a fumble by Eddie Joost. This was nullified by a double play ball hit by Bill Nicholson.

Passeau had two out in the fourth and his hitless string remained intact when Hack booted Haas' roller. Gerald Walker lined a single into right and Frank McCormick hit safely to left, Haas scoring. Harry Craft also singled to left and Walker came across the plate. This bit of annoyance ceased when Nicholson caught a liner off Rollie Hemsley's bat. The next Cincinnati hit was in the sixth when, with one out, Haas poled his

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Cleveland Indians yesterday were amazed but not worried when the White Sox gained a 4 to 0 lead over them in the second and third innings. Lou Boudreau's boys simply bided their time before going to work on the now thoroly slaphappy Chicago fellows. When the painful affair was over the Indians were the victors, 5 to 4.

The pushover, Cleveland's seventh straight victory, enabled the Indians to go into a first place tie with the New York Yankees. It was the third straight setback for Jim Dykes' dazed masqueraders, and their eighth loss in 11 starts. Thanks to Connie Mack, who picked the Sox as the American league dark horses, Chicago remained a half game out of the cellar. The A's won't let 'em in.

They Quit Firing Early.

The Sox killers made three hits off Al Milnar for three runs after two were out in the second inning and made another run on one hit in the third. There was only one Chicago hit after that and it served to show the Sox as an utterly befuddled outfit. More of that later, however.

It is no reflection on the Sox's sincerity to point out they are punchless, if not punchdrunk.

It was scarcely believable the way the Chicagoans tore into Milnar in the second inning. After Myril Hoag and Harry Sketchley had supplied infield outs, Jimmy Webb walked. Bob Kennedy then socked the first of his two doubles, Webb stopping at third. Tom Turner dropped a single in center, scoring Webb and Kennedy. Johnny Humphries, Sox starting pitcher, doubled to right, scoring Turner, after which Leo Wells flied to Jeff Heath.

With one down in the third inning, Wally Moses walked and scored on Hoag's triple,

The Sixth Brings Trouble.

That made it 4 to 0 for Chicago, and 4 to 0 it remained until the sixth. With one out in the sixth, Heath and Les Fleming each singled. Manager Boudreau flied to Moses, Heath scoring, whereupon Ray Mack singled, Fleming reaching third. Buster Mills, batting for Gene Desautels, walked on four pitches, loading the bases.

Humphries was withdrawn and Buck Ross, with an earlier record of one good and one sour relief job, went in to pitch. He made Otto Denning, batting for Milnar, bounce out to Kennedy.

With one out in the seventh, Oris Hockett beat out a drag bunt and Ken Keltner, trying to sacrifice, bunted for a single. Heath walked, loading the bases. Then Fleming lined a single to center, scoring Hockett and Keltner. Boudreau walked, again loading the bases, and the score was tied after Heath got home on Mack's fly to Sketchley.

Chubby's Too Good.

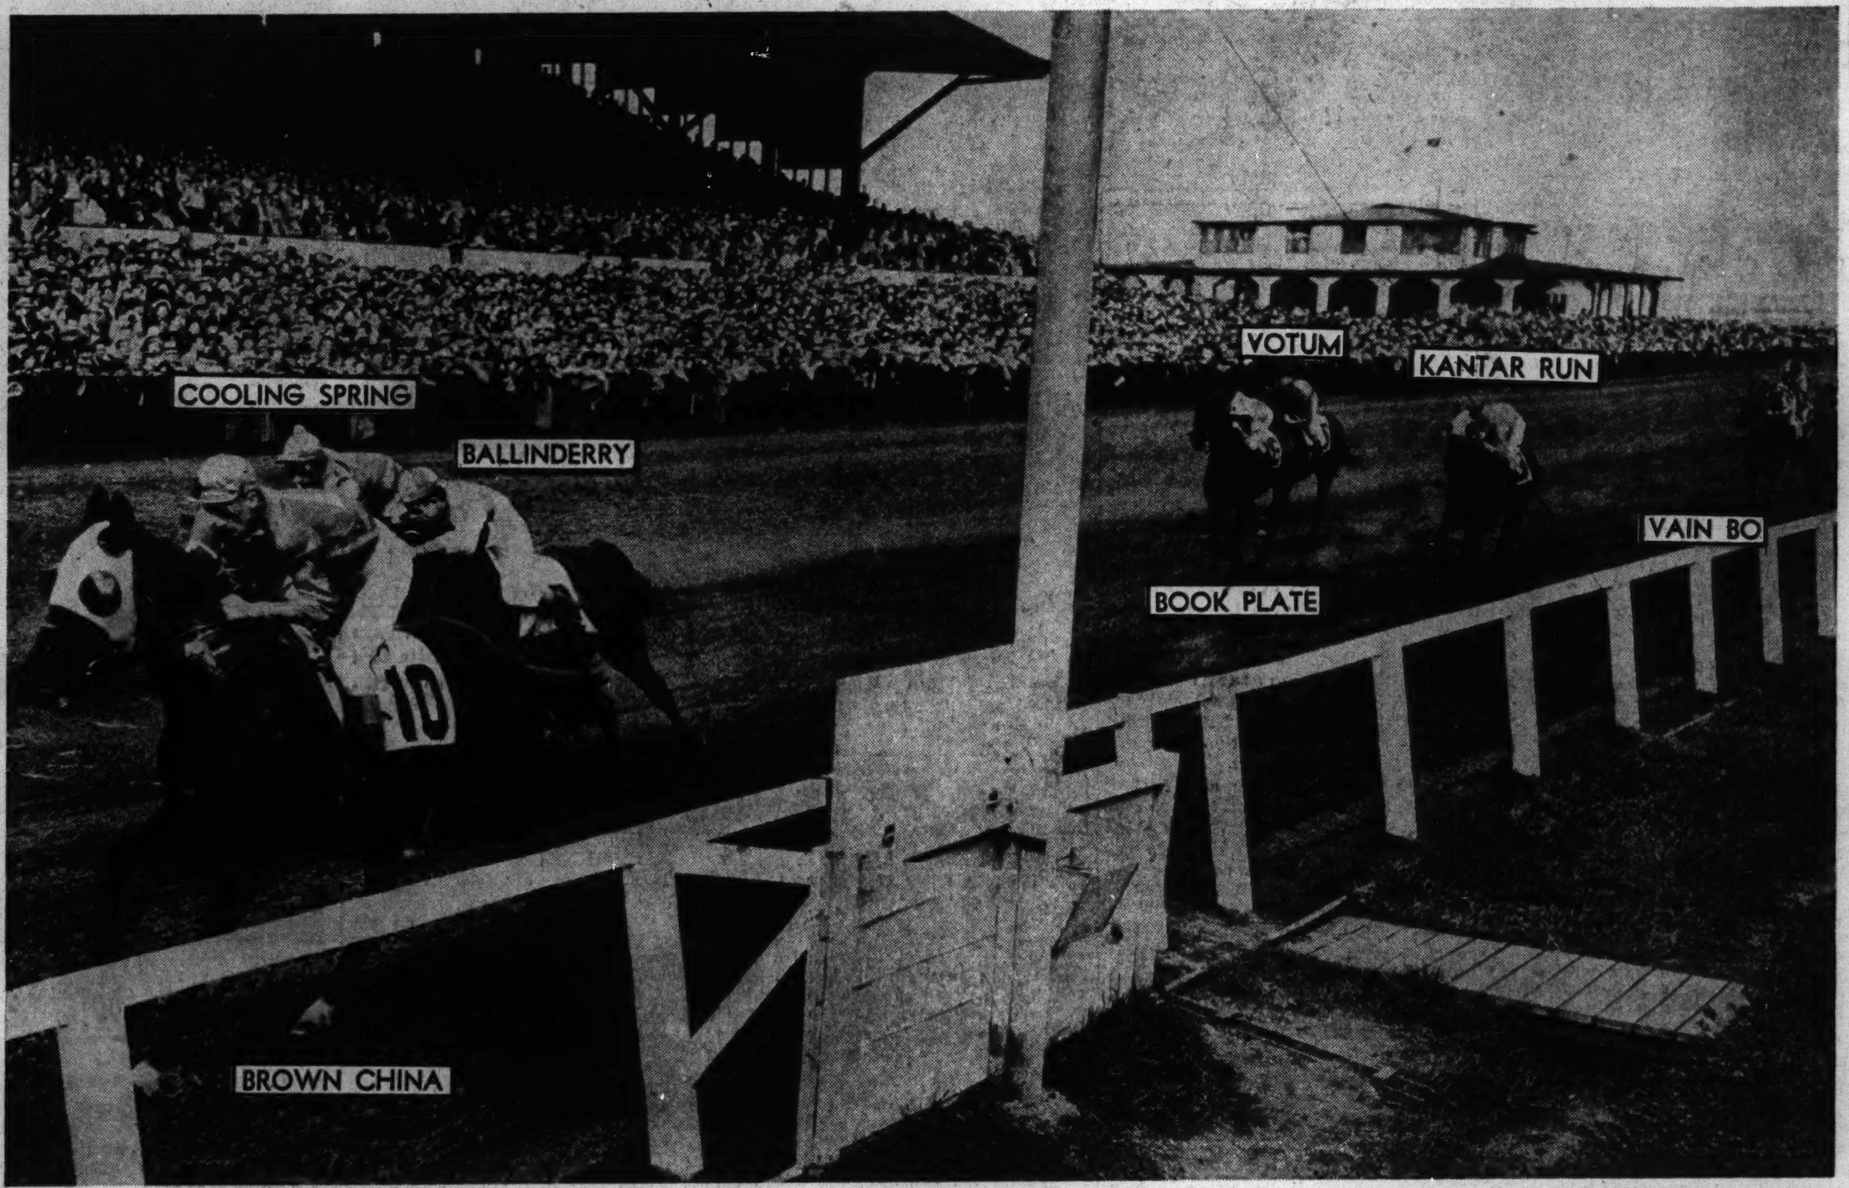
Chubby Dean, winning pitcher, who replaced Milnar at the start of the sixth, yielded one hit. It was Kennedy's second double at the start of the seventh. Turner moved Bob to third with a neat sacrifice.

Strategy signs were flashed by the Sox think department, but apparently only the Indians saw the semaphores. Manager Boudreau, Catcher Denning, and Pitcher Dean huddled on the mound and discussed the sign, which called for a squeeze play. They were laughing when they resumed their places and Ross stepped to the plate.

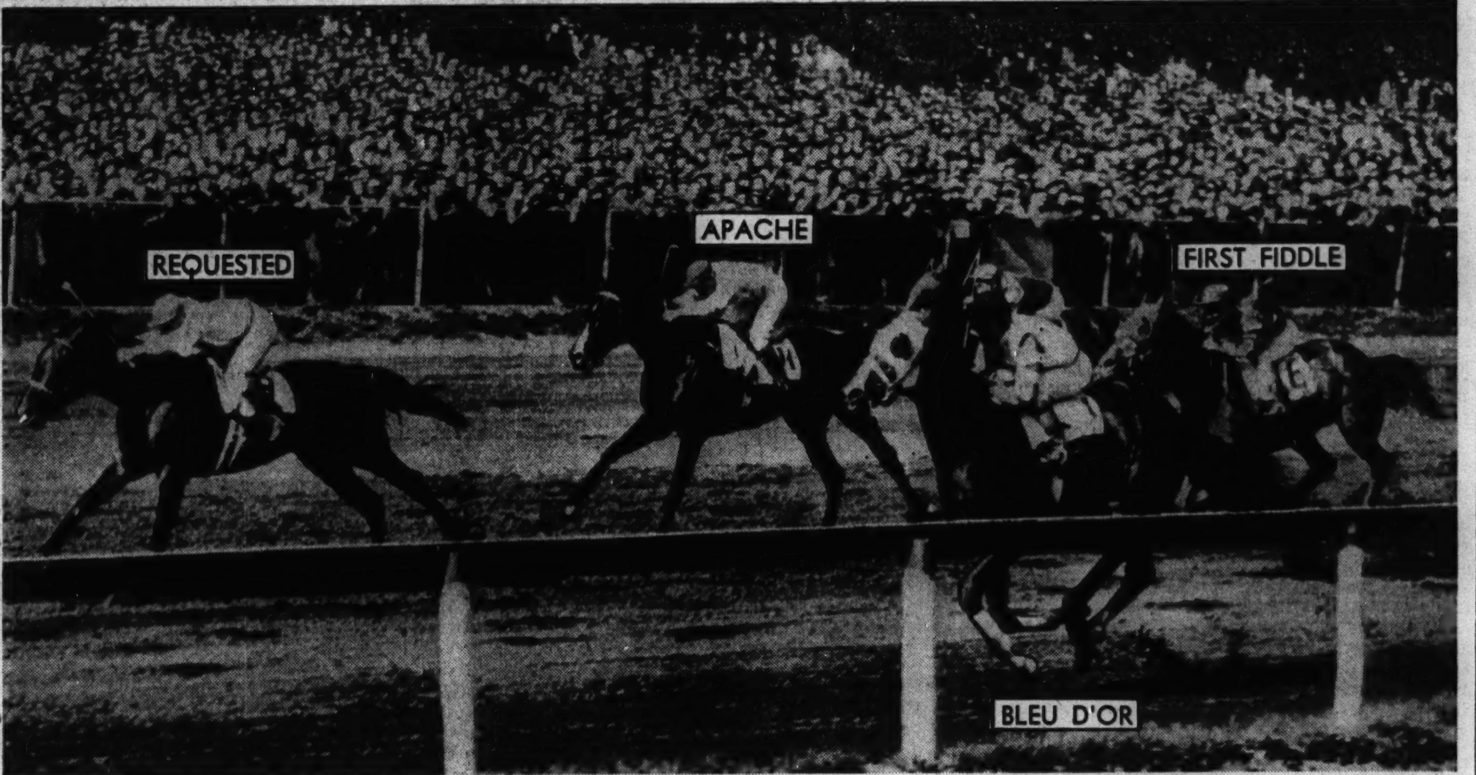
Dean's first pitch was a high one right over the middle of the plate. Instead of bunting, or trying to at least foul off the high pitch, poor Buck, obviously oblivious to the scheming that was going on all over the place, took a lusty swing, missing the ball by a foot or so. And here came Kennedy in the squeezeless squeeze. He was out by 25 feet. Ross, thoroly startled by the activity, then struck out.

Both sides went out in order in the eighth, but in the ninth Heath knocked a double and scored the winning run on Fleming's single, which was his fourth straight and the 13th for the Indians.

AT SPORTSMAN'S IT'S BROWN CHINA—REQUESTED TAKES WOOD



Brown China, owned by Butsy Hernandez, rushes to a length victory in first section of the Inaugural purse before crowd of 20,204 as Sportsman's Park opened the Chicago racing season yesterday. Brown China was followed across the wire by Cooling Spring and Ballinderry. Part of the crowd, which get a Sportsman's Park record total of $492,207 on the day's races, is seen in the background. The previous high mutuel handle at Sportsman's was $459,977 waged last May 17. [TRIBUNE Photo.]



Ben Whitaker's Requested, a Kentcky Derby entry, leads Blue D'Or as the field nears finish in yesterday's Wood Memorial at Jamaica. Requested went on to win by a nose over Blue D'Or, with Apache third and First Fiddle fourth. A crowd of 36,785 saw this annual pre-Derby test, run at a mile and a sixteenth. Jamaica racegoers set a new American mutuels' mark for a seven race card, pouring $1,822,932 thru the machines. Requested ran the distance in 1:45⅕, a new record for the stake. REQUESTED WINS WOOD MEMORIAL; APACHE IS THIRD

New York, April 25 (AP).—Out of a wild stretch scramble which saw an almost forgotten outsider nearly score an upset, Ben Whitaker's Requested won the Wood Memorial stakes today to make next week's Kentucky Derby picture more confusing than ever.

For not only did the little Texas owned son of Questionnaire hold his lead all the way around to climb right up front and center again for the Derby, but the highly regarded Apache, which was touted as a good thing to give Owner William Woodward and Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons their fourth Derby winner, faded on the way home and staggered in third, three lengths off the pace.

Just as astonishing to a crowd of 36,785 cash customers, who poured $1,822,832 into Jamaico's mutuel machines for a new American record for a seven race card, was the finish put on by Bleu d'Or, a sleek colt from the barn of Walter P. Chrysler Jr. Given a crack ride by Don Meade, this 22 to 1 shot came like a bullet along the rail in the stretch to just miss catching Requested and stealing the whole winner's pot of $22,900.

At the same time, R. Sterling Clark's Colchis, the non-Derby eligible which won the Chesapeake last week from Alsab and Requested and took a crack at today's affair as a warmup of sorts for the Preakness on May 9, left his running shoes home. After pulling up third at the head of the stretch, he slumped badly and came home eighth in the field of 15.

Bleu d'Or pulled up lame, but Jim Healy, his trainer, said he'd ship the son of Blue Larkspur to the Derby

With Regards Thrills Fans at Churchill

BY HOWARD BARRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 25.—With Regards, the rheumatic Kentucky Derby candidate, gave further explanation today of why Kentuckians have been calling him the "Gol darndest horse we ever saw."

After flexing the chronic lameness out of his bones by prancing over from the barns to the paddock, With Regards went to the post at 2 to 5 odds in the Idle Hour Farm purse as the Churchill Downs meeting opened this afternoon. Then he led thruout the six furlongs to win by three and a half lengths in 1:11 1-5. As he went over the finish line, Johnny Longden smacked him once with the whip to let him know he wasn't thru yet. The jockey sent him on to work out the mile in 1:39 2-5.

The victory of With Regards in the Idle Hour Farm purse, in which Valdina Alpha finished second and First of All third, was noteworthy as a performance for a horse which had been handicapped with numerous ailments. But it failed to add much to his prestige as a candidate for the Kentucky Derby, which will be run next Saturday. With Regards had his ears laid back and he was showing an inclination to sulk as he approached the finish. He didn't put

ATTENDANCE AND BETTING RECORDS FALL AT OPENING OF SPORTSMAN'S

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Chicago has scheduled 162 days of horse racing for this 1942 wartime season. Whether the other 161 will meet with the same enthusiasm which bettors greeted the opening of the campaign yesterday afternoon at little Sportsman's Park, remains to be seen. But, for the record, that charge upon the mutuel windows at the half mile track will stand as amazing evidence of what may be anticipated as the most interesting season in local racing history.

Sportsman's park officials announced the official turnstile count for the day was 20,204, exceeding the 20,167 with which the half miler inaugurated its unusually successful 1941 season. And those present yesterday were not lax in showering down their shillings to back their guesses, judging by the total handle. That reached $492,207, outdoing Sportsman's record total of $459,977 set last May 17. The betting on the fifth race yesterday—$67,748—and on the sixth—$68,718—both exceeded the previous single race total of $64,918, which was laid on the mutuel line for the sixth race of that same May 17th last year.

Facilities Taxed.

Last year's opening handle for eight races was $393,804, and Sportsman's officials were right proud as they examined it and the crowd that produced it. Yesterday they barely had time to count either, for their service facilities were taxed to the limit.

And before you, too, become enmeshed in these interesting skeins of arithmetic, it might be well to remember that there were eight pieces of horse racing conducted at Sportsman's Park yesterday. Not the least of these was the fourth, which saw 3 year old James Quest, whose pa, High Quest, was quite a person on a horse lot, arrange that rare turf decision, a dead heat. Jim had the collaboration of Jockey Harry Schuling, who just brought Jim along back there in the No. 3 spot, trailing Madame High and Grand Appeal until they went into the stretch. The Madame and Grand Appeal were one-two all the way until Harry and James Quest said, "Hey, what is this?" and whupped themselves past Grand Appeal and right smack up with Madame High's schnozzle just before they got to the wire. The result was that James Quest and Madame High shared the win pool, Jim paying his fans $8.60 and Madame High $5 less.

Inaugural in Two Sections.

The Inaugural purse, the high spot of the day, had enlisted so many entries that it was divided into two sections. The first of these brought

Dartmouth's 2 Mile Team Wins at Penn

Philadelphia, Pa., April 25 (AP).—The heralded duels between Indiana's Campbell Kane and New York university's Leslie MacMitchell failed to materialize today at the 48th annual Penn relays as Dartmouth, in the person of Don L. Burnham, gathered a share in the honors.

Dartmouth won the two mile college relay title with Burnham beating Kane to the tape in 7:47.7 to avenge a similar defeat by the Hoosiers in the 17:35.5 four mile effort.

In both cases New York university's supporting cast for MacMitchell was so weak the famed miler had no chance. In fact, he didn't even start his half mile jaunt in the two mile. But it was the prospects of a continuation of the Kane-MacMitchell rivalry that lured some 35,000 spectators to Franklin field.

New High Jump Mark Set.

They saw instead the creation of a new carnival record of 6 feet 7½ inches by Adam Berry of Southern university, Baton Rouge, La., in the high jump and the establishment of two one mile records in different classes of college competition.

Early arrivals cheered themselves hoarse over the efforts of Thomas McKenna, a Concord, Mass., high school boy, who stepped the 440

SAILOR TAKES 440 YD. HURDLE EVENT IN 52.2

Eight New Relay Marks Set.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., April 25.—Roy Cochran, who until this season set world records for Indiana university, wrote one in the books of the Drake Relay carnival this afternoon for the Great Lakes Naval Training station.

The recently enlisted sailor, racing in a special event in the 33d collegiate games in Drake's stadium, smashed the world record for the 440 yard hurdles by running the distance in the amazing time of 52 2-10 seconds. His perfectly coördinated effort of skill, speed, and endurance knocked akilter the 15 year old world mark and, of course, it also replaced the meet record.

Breaks Gibson's Mark.

Cochran's time shattered the mark of 52 6-10 seconds that John A. Gibson of Fordham university made in the National AAU games in Lincoln, Neb., in 1927. It was one second faster than the excellent performance by Jack Paterson, Rice's track captain, here four years ago for a Drake mark.

Roy's performance naturally was superior to the American collegiate record, but is not acceptable since he no longer is an undergraduate.

Cochran's exhibition highlighted the finals of the two day meet in which two other Drake marks were broken. The tabulation for the games thus is six new Drake marks, one American record, and one world record. Oklahoma ran to an American record yesterday in the university sprint medley; Prairie View bettered the Drake college sprint medley mark, and Coe set up a new Drake standard in the college one mile relay.

Ohio State Sets Record.

This afternoon, in addition to Cochran's performance, Ohio State erased the Drake university half mile relay record and Drake's freshman mile relay team set a new mark in the event limited to freshmen teams from the state of Iowa.

Ohio State was outstanding in the two day series of eight university relay events. Six men collaborated to win the 440 yard, 880 yard, and mile relays. Capt. Ralph Hammond, the Buckeyes' Negro sprinter, anchored the quarter and half mile teams and his excellent quarter mile while running the third lap in the climactic mile relay largely accounted for Ohio State's victory in this race. Hammond was the only Ohioan to run in all three relays.

Butler shared honors with Prairie View in the college relays. The Bulldogs won the college mile and two mile relays. Prairie View today took the mile relay for colleges permitting freshmen to compete in varsity athletics in addition to yesterday's sprint medley victory.

Michigan, Notre Dame Win.

Michigan, winner of the two mile relay; Notre Dame, victorious in the four mile, and Texas Aggies first in the 480 yard shuttle hurdle relay, completed the list of university champions in today's program.

Ten thousand watched the games that have been held annually since 1910 and which many of the coaches now believe may be abandoned for the duration.

The individual events were replete with upsets. Ohio State's Wright, Big Ten hurdle champion, failed to finish in the 120 yard high hurdles. Jim Delaney of Notre Dame, who won the Penn relays' shotput title, won the Penn relays' shot put title, old Hunt of Nebraska, normally a 14 foot pole vaulter, could not clear 13 feet. After Hunt had been eliminated at that height, Bill Williams of Wisconsin and Jack Defield of

YANKEE RALLY IN 9TH FALLS SHORT; RED SOX WIN, 4-2

Brown Quells Uprising Against Dobson.

Boston, Mass., April 25 (AP).—Boston's Red Sox snapped a four game Yankee winning streak today, 4 to 2, but they had to call on Mace Brown to choke off a ninth inning rally that produced both of the Yankee runs. The defeat enabled Cleveland to climb into a first place tie with New York.

Lefty Gomez, making his second unsuccessful start, lasted only five innings. Joe Dobson shut out the Yanks on four hits for seven innings, but weakened in the eighth and was knocked out in the ninth.

Second baseman Bobby Doerr, who figured in four double plays behind Dobson, handled 15 chances flawlessly, making eight assists and seven putouts to come within two of the modern record set by Jimmy Dykes in 1921. Score:

BROWNS LOSE 7TH IN ROW.

Detroit, Mich., April 25 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers received continued good performance from their rookies today when Pitcher Charley Fuchs and Shortstop Billy Hitchcock collaborated to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 2. The setback extended the Brownies' losing streak to seven games.

Altho he required help from Lefty Hal Newhouser, Fuchs pitched six hit ball for seven innings, batted home what proved to be the winning run, and was credited with his second American league victory. Hitchcock belted a two run double in Detroit's three run rally in the second off Bob Harris. Manager Luke Sewell benched George McQuinn and Harlond Clift.

Cubs, Passeau Defeat Reds in 11th, 5 to 4

homer over the left field wall to make it 3 to 0. The homer was followed by Walker's second single, but there were no untoward developments.

Passeau Wastes Double.

With one out in the sixth Passeau slammed a long, fly to right center and Craft overran the ball. He stopped quickly and made a grab behind his head but the ball dropped from his hands for a two base hit. Hack followed with a walk, but Merullo flied to Walker and Nicholson fanned for the second time. But in the seventh Dallessandro doubled to left and scored on Cavarretta's two bagger to right. After Stringer had been thrown out, Dahlgren singled to drive in the second run.

The Reds' half of the seventh opened with an out, but Derringer started things rolling by singling thru short. With two out, Frey doubled to right and Passeau filled the bases with an intentional pass to Goodman. But the Cub expert couldn't get the ball over for Haas and the latter walked, Derringer scoring to give the Reds a 4 to 2 lead for a few minutes.

Hack beat out a bunt to open the tying eighth and Merullo singled, only to be forced by Nicholson. This was where Dallessandro contributed his double to left center, sending Hack and Nicholson home. Then Cavarretta lined to Goodman and Stringer fanned.

Brown Bombers and Macon Play Double Header Today

Macon, Ga., April 25 [Special].—Bingo De Moss' Chicago Brown Bombers of the Negro Major League of America, now in the south for spring training, will appear here tomorrow afternoon at Luther Williams field, the Southeastern league park, in a double header against the Macon Redwings.

Mooty to Face Walters Today in Cincinnati

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 25.—Jake Mooty, the little Irishman, will be asked to test his pitching skill tomorrow when the Cubs meet the Reds in the second of the series. . . . The Reds will start Bucky Walters. . . . Despite Hiram Bithorn's unhappy experiences in his first big league start a few days ago in Pittsburgh, Manager Jim Wilson will give him another trial in the final here Monday. . . . All the Cubs' cripples, with the exception of Vern [Lefty] Olsen, who cracked a couple of fingers reaching for a White Sox drive during an exhibition game on March 22, were included in the current jaunt.

Deacon Bill McKechnie, the kindly boss of the Reds, is writing a book entitled "Riches to Rags," an appropriate contribution to baseball literature in view of recent happenings. . . . Bill won a pennant in 1939, another pennant as well as a world title in '40, and now his boys can't get a base hit without begging. . . . "Noodles" Hahn, who around the turn of the century was some shucks as a National league pitcher, now well past his 60th milestone, still works out daily with the Reds.

The Cubs explain that curve balls were responsible for blanking the Cards' rookie sensation, Stan Musial, eight times in a row in the two games in Chicago. . . . The Reds applied the same treatment when they played the Cards at St. Louis, but they made one mistake. . . . They threw Stan one fast ball, and he turned it into a homer. . . . Bobby Mattick, son of the one time White Sox player, is back with the Reds after undergoing a delicate eye operation to correct double vision caused by being beaned by a pitched ball while he was with the Los Angeles club several years ago.

The managers and players aren't paying much attention to President Ford Frick's edict against huddle practices which makes National league games painfully slow on most occasions. . . . The managers do just as they always have done and the umpires are inclined to wink at the transgressions. . . . Elmer Riddle, whom Charley Gilbert hit for the decisive run in the 11th today, was last season's league leader with 19 victories against 4 defeats and had an earned run average of 2.24. . . . But Paul Derringer, who went away with the possible winning run on base, was the official loser. . . . Paul's lifetime record against the Cubs now is 38 victories and 23 losses.

Bill Nicholson suffered another very tough day today. . . . He fanned with one on in the first, grounded into a double play with none out in the fourth, fanned with two on in the sixth, contributel a forceout between three hits by other associates in the tying eighth, but singled in the 10th with two gone and the bases vacant.

ALLEN YIELDS 3 HITS AS DODGERS BEAT PHILS, 4-1

Home Run by Ben Warren Spoils Shutout.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 25 (AP).—Johnny Allen and Dixie Walker combined their talents today to give the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers a 4 to 1 victory over the Philadelphia Phils. GIANTS DEFEAT BRAVES, 5-1.

New York, April 25 (AP).—Bob Carpenter held the Boston Braves to four hits today as the New York Giants ran their winning streak to four in a row with a 5 to 1 triumph.

Dick Bartell filled in at shortstop for Billy Jurges, who has a sore knee, and led the Giants' attack. His home run in the second inning was good for three runs and knocked out Starter Jim Hickey, a rookie from Hartford. He also chipped in with a pair of singles which figured in the other two New York scores.

Ernie Lombardi saved the Braves from a shutout with a home run in the second inning. Score:

NAVY OARSMEN SCORE AN UPSET OVER COLUMBIA

Annapolis, Md., April 25 (AP).—Navy's crew came thru its first test on home waters in fine style today, outstripping a favored Columbia shell by two and a half lengths over a choppy 1¾ mile Severn river course.

The Middies led all the way, maintaining a steady stroke from start to finish. At the mile they broke forward by three full lengths, and didn't vary the pace despite the Lions' brief challenge in the final half mile. Navy was clocked in 9:30.2 and Columbia in 9:41.

Navy's varsity victory gave the Middies two of the three races in today's regatta, the Plebes supplying a real surprise by drubbing Columbia's frosh by eight and a third lengths.

CAMP FORREST NOW BECOMING SPORTS MINDED

Plans Huge New Arena to Care for Program.

BY JOSEPH MORANG.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp Forrest, Tenn., April 25.—Under the direction of Capt. R. H. Ziehm, a graduate of Cornell and an army officer for 20 years, sports is coming into its own at Camp Forrest and men of the 33d division are looking forward to some of the athletic renown thus far monopolized by Great Lakes and other service camps.

There are few name stars of sport located here, tho Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears has been visiting friends on the post for the last week and there is a suggestion that this may be where the carburetor of the Bears' model T will enter the army.

But Forrest officials aren't too concerned about name stars. Coaches are willing to work with what they have and do the best they can with it, so long as the projects help along the cause of recreation for all men.

Building Large Sports Field.

Profits of movies shown nightly in the two camp theaters are being diverted into the construction of a tremendous area of sport. This field, located in the heart of the camp, measures 1,325 by 849 feet, and at present is little but red clay and rocks.

But claims have been staked by various sports, and work on the whole area is expected to begin soon. At the northeast corner one of those $77,000 sports arenas common to most other posts will be constructed. This building will offer facilities for all kinds of indoor sports.

Adjacent to the arena, plans have been drawn for the erection of a building to house 16 bowling alleys. Behind the two large buildings there will be 12 tennis courts, all of cement, four handball courts, and four volleyball courts. Then there will be an outdoor arena for boxing, a baseball diamond has been laid out, a football field will be built and space has been allotted for track.

Sports New to Camp.

This, impressive as it is, may not sound like any abundance of equipment, in view of the fact that 40,000 men will be waiting to make use of it—but, remember, sports is a comparative innovation at Camp Forrest.

Somewhat nebulous as yet but holding a definite place in the plans for the future is the construction of a nine hole golf course. Two good men have been detailed to working out preliminary plans. They are Sergt. Ed Dearie and Pvt. Bill Walsh, both golf professionals before the war. Dearie was attached to Ridgemoor and Walsh to Mid-City.

Softball will get a heavy play and baseball will be built around an inter-battalion series, with plans for a "varsity" team still somewhat in the background. Swimming, of course, will be an old reliable, as will fishing, which happens to be excellent down here.

Fencing Popular, Too.

But there will be other things, too, fencing, for instance, in which a class was started recently and which has grown to such proportions that instruction has now been divided into three periods. Pvt. Joe Regnier of 142 West 103d street, Chicago, conducts a class in weight lifting and in jiu jitsu, with an especially heavy play being given the latter sport.

The camp's boxing team includes some pretty good boys, such as Middleweight Stanley Stockins, Welterweight Jimmy Consolo, Lightweight Gregory Rondinone, and Bantamweight Mickey Kraus, all of Chicago, and John O'Shea of New York, heavyweight.

Finally, Camp Forrest offers movies at a price of 10 cents a man, recreation rooms which have stationery, pool and ping-pong tables, and good books and magazines—tho in this latter respect quality eclipses quantity and there is never enough to go around.

5,000 See First Show.

The camp's first sports carnival was held last night before 5,000 soldiers gathered in the arena to watch Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton present prizes to basketball winners, to see the awarding of the flags of Tennessee and Georgia by the respective governors, Prentice Cooper and Eugene Talmadge, and to cheer a lively program of team boxing.

Feature bout of the evening was the heavyweight battle between O'Shea and Gordon Campbell, Birmingham, Ala., heavyweight. This ended in the third round when O'Shea, who had built up a wide lead on points, suffered a broken hand. In the welterweight battle between James Summers of Montgomery, Ala., and Stanley Stockins of Chicago, the latter, who learned his fundamentals in Joe Heniff's south side gymnasium, sent Summers to the floor 14—count 'em, 14—times and was himself staggered several times before stowing the southerner away in the third.

In other bouts Gregory Rondinone knocked out William Gillam of Alabama in two rounds, Wallie Guerra of Milwaukee defeated Frank Kephart of Alabama in a close three rounder, and John Rodie of Chicago knocked out Mike Slater of Alabama in the second round.

Moon Mullins, a little Irishman from Montgomery, was the only invader who succeeded in beating a soldier. Mullins beat Mickey Krause of Chicago in a close fight, one official voting for Krause and the other two for Mullins.

Policeman, Former Pro Football Player, Dies

John P. Dalton, 60 years old, former tackle and captain of the Mohawk professional football team, died yesterday in his home at 1724 North Major avenue. He was a member of the police department for the last 32 years and was a familiar figure at Mills stadium. The widow, Louise, and two daughters survive. Services will be held Tuesday in St. Angelus church at 10 a. m. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

THEY'RE SPORTS MINDED AT CAMP FORREST, TOO

Out of the jeeps and onto the diamond. The 633d tank destroyer battalion baseball team, made up of boys from Chicago and vicinity, arrives on the field in its favorite army cars and swing into action without losing any time. The jeeps are used to convey the players to and from the ball field.

Illini Pitches No Hit Victory Over Chicago

Champaign, Ill., April 25 [Special].—Chuck Schiller, senior from Oak Park, pitched a no hit, no run game today as Illinois again defeated Chicago in a Western Conference baseball game. The score was 6 to 0.

Only three Maroons reached first, two who walked and one who was hit by the lanky right hander. Two men reached third. Schiller struck out three.

Yesterday Chuck Campbell held Chicago hitless until the eighth inning, finally giving up three singles.

Chicago played one of its better games, making only five errors. Liz Astroth paced the nine hit attack against Rodney Briggs with three singles. Schiller and his battery mate Bill Brewer, scored two runs apiece. Score:

Chicago ....000 000 000—0 0 5
Illinois ....101 002 02*—6 9 1

Bateries—Briggs and Miller; Schiller and Brewer.

OHIO STATE, 6; INDIANA, 1.

Columbus, O., April 25 (AP).—Ohio State's baseball team won its second Big Ten game today, downing Indiana, 6 to 1. Indiant took a one run lead in the second on two hits and an error, but Ohio State went ahead in the fourth on a single, a walk, a sacrifice and a double. Score:

Indiana ....010 000 000—1 7 2
Ohio State ....000 211 20*—6 10 2

Batteries—Boehm, Logan and Weilman; Lohrey and Wahl.

MICHIGAN, 5; PURDUE, 3.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 25 [Special].—Michigan's baseball team swept its two game series with Purdue and kept its Big Ten slate clean by winning today, 5 to 3. But the Wolverines pushed four runs across in the last of eighth to assume the lead for the first time and make Sophomore Pitcher Bill Cain's first conference start a success.

Tony Ferrara Next Foe of Willie Joyce

Tony Ferrara, welterweight of Mount Vernon, N. Y., will make his Chicago debut in a 10 round bout against Willie Joyce in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Ferrara, substitute against Joyce for Carman Notch, is a rugged, aggressive fighter and expected to extend his Gary, Ind., opponent, who is a lightweight.

Yes, Willie weighs only 136 pounds, but in a rematch Joyce scored an has to go out of his weight class in onsburg, Pa., battler.

Ferrara will be his fifth 147 pound opponent since last August. On that occasion he conquered the hard hitting Leonard Bennett despite a 7 pound weight disparity.

Joyce's success was so encouraging he tried his luck against a welterweight once again 4 months later after following up that Bennett achievement with victories over Babe Breeze and Ted Christie. Sammy Secreet was the second welter foe of the 1937 Golden Gloves champion. Sammy was awarded a split decision, but in a remtatch Joyce scored an impressive triumph over the Canonsburgh, Pa., battler.

Supporting matches tomorrow:

George Feltes, Great Lakes, vs. Jerry Jackson, south side [4], 160.

Jim Sullivan, Youngstown, O., vs. Harold Lang, Seward park [4], heavyweights.

SEEKS TO MATCH COLAN, MAXIN IN MAY 15 BOUT

Coliseum Would Be Site of Proposed Bout.

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Johnny Colan, New York light heavyweight challenger, who scored his seventh straight Chicago victory by beating Altus Allen in the Coliseum on Friday, may make his next start in the same arena May 15 against Joe Maxin of Cleveland. Promoter Ross Miller has opened negotiations for the match, which appears to be more attractive than the Allen-Colan fight.

This is a broad statement in view of the fact the Coliseum attracted a crowd of 5,677, which contributed to a gross gate of $11,294. The net receipts amounted to $9,412, which gave the promoter a profit of several hundred dollars.

Colan Collects $2,303.

Colan collected 25 per cent of the net, or $2,303, while Allen received an $800 guarantee and a $250 bonus. Supporting matches cost a total of $1,825 and ring expenses amounted to $200.

The conquest of Allen was Colan's 34th in 40 matches, but it probably was one of the hardest fights he has had in his three year campaign. Confident of scoring a knockout, Colan came close to realizing his ambition in the third round when he dropped Allen for an eight count with a whistling left hook to the chin.

The knockdown gave Colan his first advantage because he was held on even terms in the first and second rounds. He added to his margin in the next period when a series of left hooks opened a cut on Allen's right eye. Colan met stubborn opposition in the fifth and sixth rounds, but did enough scoring to take them, the sixth being the last he was to win.

Allen Connects in Seventh.

Allen landed a swift left hook, followed almost immediately by a right to the chin which made Colan hold on for the first time in the seventh. In the eighth the former International Golden Gloves heavyweight title holder set Colan back on his heels with a well timed left to the stomach and right to the head.

SLOVAKS MEET MORGANS TODAY IN SOCCER FINAL

Spartas Go to Gallatin, Pa., for Title Game.

BY OFFSIDE.

Two of Chicago's soccer teams take part today in the finals of both the amateur and Western Open championships.

The Slovaks meet the Morgan Usco Sport club of Morgan, Pa., in the amateur final in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, while the Sparta Ogden Dairy team travels to Gallatin, Pa., to clash with the Gallatin Sport club in the Western Open competition. This will be a two game series, total goals to count. The second game will be played next Sunday in the Sparta stadium.

The Swedish-Americans were the last Chicago team to reach the finals in the amateur competition, losing to the Fleisher Yarn team of Philadelphia, Pa., in 1924.

Slovaks Have Noted Star.

The Slovaks, one of the youngest and fastest teams in the middle west, are considered a good bet to bring the national title to Chicago. Pete Matevich, at inside left half for the Slovaks, is considered the best man in the country at that position. He is teamed on the front line with Smitty Tomecek and Marty Mizialko.

The Morgans also have a young and fast team that has given a good account of itself. Their goal tender, Eddie Zupancic, has allowed only 10 shots to get past him in 25 games, while Frank Dupilka, Morgan center, has scored 30 goals in the team's 25 games. Armando Innerrilli, Morgan's outside right, is the youngest player on the visiting team, and also the fastest.

Referee Fred Linstow has been instructed to play extra periods, if necessary, until a decision is reached. The game starts at 2:30 p. m. The Slovak reserves and the Sparta seconds will meet in a preliminary game at 12:30. Lineup:

C. of Baltimore, Md.

BROWN CHINA, outrun for the first quarter mile, raced up on the outside entering the backstretch the second time around, drew away rounding the final bend, had to be shaken up near the end to hold his advantage. COOLING SPRING, in a contending position early, was forced to take up going to the first turn when in close quarters, came to the outside entering the far turn and, under a full drive all thru the home stretch, got up to get the place narrowly. BALLINDERRY, having speed from the start, took command in the first few yards, set the pace for the first half, dropped back when the winner challenged, held on with good courage in the final drive.

THREE CLOVERS, slow to settle into stride, rushed up on the outside rounding the far turn and under a hand ride thru the last furlong, came on to win going away. VINUM, well up in the early stages, closed steadily while racing on the inside rounding the final bend, was going strongly at the end. EQUISTAR rushed into a long lead in the first quarter mile, set the pace to midway of the backstretch, then tired, but held on to save the show.

MR. WOODEN INDIAN, a forward factor in the early stages, took command entering the homestretch and the first time around, set the pace to the final furlong then weakened slightly. VALDINA CHIEF raced in spots, saved ground thruout, was never able to menace the leaders.

any too much zip into the quarter mile which he worked beyond the finish.

It's Seventh in Row.

It was the seventh consecutive victory for With Regards, his most recent previous start having been in the Arkansas Derby, which he won on March 28 at Oaklawn. None of his successes has been scored in distinguished company.

The horse is a marvel because nearly every time he goes on to the track they have to limber him up to get the lameness out of him. Then he blazes thru workouts of five furlongs in :59 as tho he were thoroly sound. Electric heating pads are a regular part of his equipment. In addition to his chronic trouble, which affects his hind legs, he incurred a knee injury, accompanied by swelling, several days ago. This ailment seemed to have cleared up entirely this afternoon.

With Regards is owned by T. D. Grimes, a Colorado rancher, who bought him as a yearling from Phil Chinn. The colt, a son of Jack High, was raised on Chinn's farm near Versailles, Ky.

Whirlaway Wins Handicap.

Calumet farm's Whirlaway won the $2,500 Clark handicap, which for many years has been the feature of opening days at Matt J. Winn's track. After going to the post at 1 to 9 odds, Whirlaway made his backers shiver by letting Fairmond and Aonbarr get approximately 10 lengths ahead of him during the first half mile of this mile and a sixteenth run.

Wendell Eads then began bringing Whirlaway up gradually, but he still was five lengths off the leaders as they headed into the stretch. Here Fairmond gave up, but Aonbarr continued stoutly. For a time it seemed unlikely that Whirlaway would get up in time. He did it, however, in the closing strides to win by a nose. The time of 1:44 4-5 was 4-5 of a second slower than the track record.

Two More Candidates Arrive.

The Greentree stable's candidates, Devil Diver and Shut Out, both were shipped over from Lexington today. Devil Diver has recovered from the leg injury which he had incurred in his stall and which had forced his withdrawal from the Blue Grass stakes.

Three Derby candidates were on the track for workouts this morning, and one made a very ambitious move. Trainer Roy Waldron sent Mrs. Ethel V. Mar's Dogpatch a mile and an eighth in 1:55, the mile being covered in 1:42 3-5.

CHALLEDON BACK IN FORM; BEATS MIOLAND BY NOSE

Takes Closing Handicap at Havre de Grace.

Baltimore, Md., April 25 (AP).—Challedon came thru for the home folks at Havre de Grace today.

W. L. Brann's big Maryland-bred racer, apparently well on the way to regaining his old championship form, turned on the heat in the stretch to beat C. S. Howard's Mioland by a nose in the Philadelphia handicap before a closing day crowd of 20,000. G. C. Greer Jr.'s Cape Cod was third.

Altho he was only third choice in the wagering, Challedon received a rousing ovation as he returned to the winner's circle after registering his first stakes triumph since he won the Pimlico Special in 1940.

Earns $7,925 for Owner.

The rugged bay son of Challenger II and Laura Gal, shelved by an injury in 1941 after winning horse of the year honors in 1939 and 1940, picked up a purse of $7,925 for owner Brann. This ran his lifetime earnings to $332,860 and jumped him over Gallant Fox into fifth place among the world's all-time high money winners.

George Woolf, who piloted Challedon to most of his major victories when he was kingpin of the racing world, booted him home today in 1.45 2-5, comparatively slow time for the mile and one-sixteenth.

Woolf bided his time and let Challedon drift back in last place while Cape Cod and John I. Sullivan's Air Master set the pace, with Al Shelhamer holding Mioland well back in the pack.

Mioland Makes His Move.

Mioland made his move rounding the far turn and took over the lead from Cape Cod entering the stretch. Challedon, moving up gradually coming out of the back stretch, really began to run when he hit the lane for home. Woolf brought him up on Mioland's outside with a powerful rush and he got the nod in a photo-finish.

Trailing the leaders in order were Gramps, Air Master, Warlock, and Staretor. Mioland was the favorite and Staretor the second choice.

Challedon paid $8.40, $4.10, and $3 across the board. Mioland paid $3.30 and $2.50, and Cape Cod, $3.50.

Doublrab Wins by Neck.

Pawtucket, R. I., April 25 (AP).—Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Doublrab ran the fastest six furlongs of the meeting today to win the $5,000 added Bristol handicap before a crowd of nearly 30,000 at Narragansett Park. The 4 year old son of Sherab was clocked in 1:11 flat as he held a neck advantage at the wire over A. B. Christopher's Daily Delivery. Beezley and Cohen's Samborombon finished third.

Doublrab paid $7, $4, and $2.70 across the board. Daily delivery returned $5.40 and $3.60 while the show price on Samborombon was $3.80.

out, among others, Brown China, a 4 year old lad which had just been selected from the claiming counter by Butsy Hernandez. The China boy allowed several other citizens to annoy him for the seven furlong distance and then gave the move over order, winning by a length.

The second section of the Inaugural was presumed to be such a romp for the rapid Equistar, owned by Mrs. A. K. Weast and sired by the famed Equipoise, that the 5 year old son of the late mile record holder was made an even money favorite. He vindicated that confidence by jumping into a two length lead, but at the finish he was third, back of Three Clovers, the winner, and Vinum, which took second.

The 162 day Chicago district season was preceded by ceremonies including a parade of the Board of Trade post of the American Legion and the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by Richard Gordon of the Metropolitan Opera company.

Highscope, the 6 year old son of Jack High, won the opening race at five furlongs. Hasty Star was away first, but Highscope overhauled him at the far turn and was never headed, finishing with a three-quarter length advantage over King Cotton which took the place by a nose over Last Rose and Jimmie Tom, all three being involved in a photo finish. Highscope paid $5.40 to win in the $2 mutuels.

Don MacAndrew, one of last year's riding stars at the half mile, announced himself by completing the daily double with a second race victory on Border's Boy, which paid $9.40 in winning by a head from Tea Ring. Hallie, ninth in the 10 horse field going into the last turn, made up the most ground and came home third. The MacAndrew double returned $22.60. The total double wagering yesterday was $20,919, against last year's $16,720.

The price collectors scored a sweep in the third race when Yesteryear, four year old filly trained and owned by Harry Golden, finished a half length in front in the seven furlong test, rewarding her backers with $10.80. New Englander was at $8.80 to place, and Panorascope paid $15.80 to show.

Two dollar mutuels paid: Requested, $11.40 straight, $6.70 place, $4.10 show; Bleu d'Or, $16.40 place, $7.60 show; Apache, $2.90 show.

REQUESTED ran a real good race. He was rushed into lead going into paddock turn. He was rated along in front under a perfect ride. In the final furlong he began to swerve out and finished in the middle of the track. He just lasted to win. BLEU D'OR, under a smart ride and saving ground all the way, closed with a rush and would have won in another stride. APACHE, away well, was kept in a contending position to stretch, where he flattened out and was a very tired horse at finish. FIRST FIDDLE was a stout factor from the start. FAIR CALL closed a good gap. OPENING BID came from far back under weak handling. INCOMING suffered early interference, closed fast when clear.

Requested Is Wood Victor; Apache Third

if he cooled out all right by Monday, the day Apache and Requested leave for Louisville. Ed Mulrenan, owner-trainer of First Fiddle, which closed gamely for fourth place, said he also might send his horse, but wouldn't decide definitely until he talked it over with Jockey Conn McCreary.

Victory Is Unexpected.

Altho third choice in the betting, Requested's triumph was all the more unlooked for since he tired and fell back to third place in the Chesapeake a week ago, but today he lit out of the barrier with a pack of leaders, fought them off going to the first turn, and then stayed out in front as, first, Robert Kleberg Jr., Salto, then Apache and Colchis, pushed him to dash the mile in the snappy time of 1:38 1-5.

As they hit the far turn, Apache turned in his usual move to look Requested in the eye. They tore around the bend that way, but after getting up to be even, Apache tired, and dropped back from the sixteenth pole on in.

Wayne Wright, part of the 120 pound load on Requested, was so interested in the duel with Apache he almost overlooked Meade and Bleu D'Or gliding along the rail. As a result, Requested just bobbed his head at the right time to hang his nose on the wire in 1:45 1-5, a new record for the stake.

Requested Pays $11.40.

Requested, winner of Hialeah's Flamingo stakes earlier this winter, returned his supporters $11.40 for each $2 win ticket. Blue D'Or was $16.40 for place, and Apache, knocked down to $1.75 to $1 to win, paid only $2.90 for show.

There were seven other Derby horses in the field, but their handlers saw little possibility for any of them getting the ride to Churchill Downs. Mrs. Barclay Douglas' Fair Call was fifth, but Trainer A. Fletcher said he was inclined to rest the colt until the Preakness. Mrs. Alice Sherman's American Wolf was ninth; Mrs. Payne Whitney's Buckskin, tenth; Chrysler's Ramillies, 12th; Louis Mayer's Domingo, 13th and Salto, 15th.

AURORA TRACK BRINGS $125,000 AT FORCED SALE

The old Central State fair and exposition at North Aurora, home of one of Illinois' early race tracks, was sold at foreclosure yesterday to Edward J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., sportsman and owner of the famous trotter, Greyhound.

The 25 acre property, once valued at five million dollars, was bid in for $125,000 at a master in chancery sale at the Kane county court house in Geneva. Merritt J. Little, master in chancery, said first mortgage bonds had been in default since 1929.

The grounds have been suggested as a site for the Illinois State fair, which has turned its Springfield grounds over to the army. State officials have inspected the North Aurora site.

The North Aurora exposition, which for years was a successful annual event, opened in 1922 and continued for about 10 years.

Lake Forest Nine Wins from North Central, 13-3

The Lake Forest college baseball team had an easy time with North Central yesterday, handing the latter its fourth straight defeat, 13 to 3, in Naperville. Borgenson, pitching for Lake Forest, struck out 12 and made four hits in six times at bat.

BERTELLI'S AIM GOOD IN FIRST IRISH TEST GAME

Notre Dame, Ind, April 25 [Special].—The strong right arm of Angelo Bertelli, on which Notre Dame rode to an undefeated season in 1941, was still effective today as the Blues defeated the Greens, 40 to 0, in the first regulation game of spring training.

Bertelli threw two touchdown passes and heaved a long lateral which set up another. In his quarterback post in the T formation, he handled the ball on every play, making a number of short laterals to other backs.

Bill Earley Scores.

With Bertelli passing for all of his scores and Jerry Cowhig, freshman full back, adding another, the Blues jumped off to a 27 to 0 lead in the first quarter. Bill Earley, sturdy little right half, caught the first touchdown toss for twenty-five yards. Cowhig concluded a fifty yard march with his seven yard plunge.

Bertelli then hit Capt. George Murphy, right end, with a fifteen yard toss for six points. A few moments later he slipped a long lateral to Tom Miller, left half, who reversed his field and went forty yards to score.

Cowhig Takes Honors.

Cowhig took scoring honors with his second touchdown, which came on a ten yard thrust late in the third quarter. Jim Mello, another freshman full back, made the final score on a short plunge in the closing minutes, climaxing a drive of eighty-two yards in which Earley made thirty-two and Quarterback Russ Ashbaugh picked up twenty. Bertelli made four of his six attempted extra points.

The game was a warm-up for next Saturday's old timer varsity contest in the stadium in which the 1942 squad will face graduating stars of 1941, and several post graduate aces in a regulation game, open to the public. Proceeds will go into a fund toward the education of the three children left by the late Tommy Yarr, 1931 Notre Dame captain and All-American center. Tickets are on sale at the Notre Dame athletic association. The summary:

Here Is the Way to Get the Job You Want

Chicago's employment market is a large one, and you might easily overlook the job you want if you have no practical way to keep informed of the offerings every day.

The one method which today, as for many years, has served Chicagoans best is reading the Help Wanted columns in the Chicago Tribune.

You are not likely to overlook any worthwhile opening if you read the Help Wanted ads in the Tribune every day because the Tribune prints more than twice as much Help Wanted advertising as all other Chicago newspapers combined.

The job you really want may be among those offered in the Tribune today. Turn to the want ad section now for a review of jobs listed.

ANGLERS START SPORTIEST FISH ARGUMENT AGAIN

BY BOB BECKER.

Is the rainbow trout a gamier species than the brook trout and where does the brown trout or black bass come in in a discussion of which fresh water species deserves the crown of the sportiest fish on the line?

This is the type of debating topic that becomes popular this week-end with the opening of the 1942 trout season in Michigan. The Michigan regulations gave the trout fans permission to catch brooks, rainbows, and browns starting yesterday and tens of thousands of opening day anglers are on their favorite streams this week-end.

Bag Limit Changed.

This year Michigan has a new law on the bag limit. It supplements the old 15 fish per day law. This year a fisherman may take 15 trout a day but with the law reading 10 pounds and one fish it means that 14 of the 15 fish can't weight more than 10 pounds, total weight. This law is bound to cause fishermen to buy and carry small pocket scales just to play safe. However, on most streams and most days a fisherman is not likely to creel 14 fish that weigh more than 10 pounds, according to the statement of the Michigan conservation commission.

Except on a few streams like the Platte, Boyne, Manistee, Sturgeon, and Pere Marquette in which big rainbows are rather abundant, and excepting also the rare occasions when the fly hatch is on and the large brown trout hit like a ton of bricks, the fishermen are apt to connect with trout that won't crowd their creel.

Have to Figure at Times.

On the other hand the lucky rainbow fishermen may find it mighty helpful to have a pocket scales with them, especially if the old lunkers weighing 5 pounds and better can be interested in a proposition involving a hook concealed in some alluring fooler. We can recall the usefulness of a scales when we fished the Nipigon river when the 10 pound limit was prevailing. Our first brook trout weighed exactly 5¼ pounds which meant that after picking up a 3½ pounder we hoped a small one would take hold so we would come out close [at least] to the 10 pound limit.

After yesterday's opening in Michigan, Wisconsin's counties in the northwest part of the state tilt the trout season on May 1. Then comes the regular May 15 opening on trout and wall-eyes in the rest of the state.

White Bass Attract.

The white bass season in the Wolf river country around Oshkosh, Winneconne, Fremont, and other localities along the Wolf gets under way in May. This is one fishing season that always draws a crowd in that part of Wisconsin. Reports from many parts of the country tell a story of fly fishing again showing gains as a sport for more fun and, under certain conditions, more fish. Already thousands of anglers get out early in the spring to catch bluegills and crappies with fly rods, yet a few years ago this sport was practiced by comparatively few. For years we have urged bass fishermen to try their hand at fooling the bronze backs with a fly rod. An outfit costs so little and fooling fish with a wet or dry fly, or a real bass bug, is so much more fun that once a man gets involved in the game he wants to use a fly rod most of the time.

MIDGET RACERS DECIDE MIDWEST TITLES TONIGHT

Topline drivers from five states will compete in the semi-finals and finals tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the International amphitheater, for the midwest indoor title. There are 165 laps of racing on the program, the last of the season in the stockyards' arena.

Winners of four 100 lap races in recent months will be among the 16 drivers eligible to qualify for starting positions in two semi-finals at 20 laps each. They are Myron Fohr of Milwaukee, Ray Richards of Highland Park, Ted Duncan of Chicago, and Pete Nielsen of Los Angeles. Fohr and Richards, who are one-two in the point standing, have achieved additional distinction. Fohr won the 200 lap race for the Detroit title this month. Richards finished the outdoor season by annexing the 100 mile national championship at Toledo, O.

Approves Idea

Elmhurst Country club yesterday inaugurated a USO trap fund with appropriate ceremonies. Players on the golf course whose drives are deposited in any of the three traps surrounding the 18th hole are being asked to make a deposit—25 cents by the men and 10 cents by the women. At the end of each month the contents of the USO box will be sent to that organization, which buys athletic equipment for the soldiers and sailors. The USO has officially sanctioned the suggestion, which was made by Fred B. Snite, president of Elmhurst Country club.

In a city as large as Chicago, with its thousands of industries and commercial enterprises, you can easily overlook opportunities to get the job you want.

The one way to make certain that no worthwhile opening escapes your eye is to follow the Help Wanted ads in the Chicago Tribune.

Because employers and employment agencies get better results, they place more than twice as much Help Wanted advertising in the Tribune as they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE WANT AD SECTION

JIMMY WILSON GIVEN JOLT BY SOME FIGURES

Should Change Pitchers Oftener, He Learns.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., April 25. — Do you want to know what to do with a pitcher if, with the score tied or you are leading by one or two runs in the ninth or final inning, the first enemy batter reaches base? Ask Jim Wilson, who has the answers as the result of figures fashioned by the Cubs' department of baseball mathematics.

The answer when pitchers get into jams such as mentioned is to give them the bounce without ceremony. It doesn't sound orthodox, and practically every manager, if asked for an offhand opinion of what to do, would declare in favor of not being too hasty.

Wilson, with his figures, can prove they're wrong. He found that he himself guessed wrong many times last season and, curious as to whether it was just a series of freak happenings or that his own judgment might have been faulty, he asked the department of mathematics if more similar evidence was available. The department came up with dope showing that the same thing happened to Cub pitchers in 1939 and 1940.

Then the Fireworks.

First off we'll take up the 1941 season because it isn't as far gone as the others. The figure men turned up 11 games in which the Cubs either were leading by one or two runs or were tied in the last inning and the first enemy batter reached base. In eight of these games the pitcher was not relieved as soon as the first batter reached base. Six of these eight were lost.

In the three others of the 11 the pitchers were changed after several more men had followed the first batter to base. These three also were lost. Briefly, only two of the 11 were won after the first batter had survived in the last round and the pitcher was not yanked pronto.

Just to quiet those who might attempt to laugh off the facts with the explanation that maybe the Cub pitchers weren't as hardy as the enemy workers, here are figures showing the latter were no different. There were 10 games in which the Cubs went into the ninth, or what proved the final of an extra inning affair, either tied or one or two runs behind and got a man to base with none out. Four of the pitchers were not relieved, and the Cubs won three of the games. In the six others the change of pitchers came later and the Cubs won all six.

Cubs Lost Anyhow.

During the 1939 season there were eight games conforming with the conditions governing this particular brand of research. In six of these the pitcher, after letting the first man get to base in the last inning, was quickly relieved. Five of the games were lost. In the two others the change was made later, but one of these decisions was salvaged.

The 1940 records show it was a tough year for Cub moundmen. There were no fewer than 25 games in which the enemy got a man to base with none out and the pitcher got removed promptly. Thirteen of the 25 were lost. Of the 12 won three were by the narrow margin of one run, and in one the tying run was cut off at the plate for the final out.

The combined Cub and opposition records for the three years show that a pitcher, in a tie game, if not relieved after putting the first batter aboard in the final inning, is a 15 to 1 shot to lose. And even if the change is made immediately the odds are 5 to 1 against the rescuing pitcher.

WINKLER MOTOR NINE TO HOLD 2D WORKOUT TODAY

The Chicago Winkler Motors, formerly the Spencer Coals and last of this city's major semipro baseball clubs, will hold their second practice of the season this afternoon at Rockola stadium, 4200 North Central avenue, the former Spencer field.

New applicants are invited for tryouts. More than 100 turned out for the first session last Sunday, including most of last year's Spencer Coal team. Others who appeared were Bob Weiland, the former major league southpaw pitching star; Joe Dooley, outfielder with Waterloo last season, and Joe Goddard, who was an outstanding southpaw pitcher last year with Saginaw in the Michigan State league. All three are now employed in Chicago.

Nate Shyer, business manager of the club since its inception 18 years ago, announces that the home opener at Rockola stadium will be on Sunday, May 17, against the Chanute Field Planesmen from Rantoul, Ill.

EDDLEMAN SETS A 6 FOOT 6 INCH HIGH JUMP MARK

Urbana, Ill., April 25 (AP).—Dwight [Dyke] Eddleman of Centralia, a basketball celebrity because he's the highest scorer in Illinios prep history, made the highest jump ever recorded in the Urbana relays last night when he crossed the bar at 6 feet 6 inches. Eddleman's jump surpassed the 6 foot 3 inch jump made by Robert Hornecker of La Salle-Peru in 1939.

MIGHTY INDIANS

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Indians Proudly Present Rookies Fleming and Hockett

Lou Boudreau's pepped up and skilful Indians, in town just now, have two rookie regulars this year, Oris Hockett and Leslie Fleming. Oris and Les are rookies because they are fresh up from Nashville, not because they are callow youths. Each is old enough to ride in the smoker with the men.

Right Fielder Hockett, who batted .500 against the Sox yesterday, has been leading the Indians in hitting with a mark approximating the .359 with which he finished in the Southern association last year. He was born in Bluffton, Ind., 29 years ago. First Baseman Fleming, who made four hits against the Sox yesterday, and drove in three runs, including the winning one, did some long range hitting for the Indians, but is somewhat under his Southern association .414. He was born in Singleton, Tex., in 1916.

He Isn't Much Like Hal.

Fleming presents a figure somewhat different than that of his predecessor, Hal Trosky. Les, left handed, is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 185 pounds. Hal, right handed, is 6 feet 2 inches tall and his playing weight was 205. Their fielding skill is pretty much of a standoff, however. Fleming once was the property of the Detroit Tigers, who have been pretty well fixed at first base in recent years.

The Tigers released him to Buffalo and the Bisons sold him to Nashville. With Trosky's retirement because of illness, the Indians needed a first baseman and no fooling around, so they bought Fleming. Everybody on the Indians, including Fleming, is well pleased with the outcome of the emergency move.

He's Short but Can Travel.

Hockett, tho speedy, is on the dumpy side. He is only 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighs 180. This season Hockett, a slashing line drive hitter, has made 17 hits in 46 times at bat for an average of .370.

Johnny Rigney will go after his second 1942 victory this afternoon in the windup of the two game Chicago-Cleveland series. He will be opposed by Lefty Al Smith.

The White Sox have recalled Murrell Jones from Shreveport. Jones finished the season with the Sox last year and played first this spring in many of the exhibition games. He returned to Chicago on the exhibition tour but never got on the pay roll, having been sent to the Texas league on 24 hour recall option. Manager Jim Dykes said that Jones will play first base today if he can reach Chicago in time.

POOR SHOWING IN SPRING FAILS TO AROUSE SOX

South Siders Want to Win Only in Fall.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

There was no great chagrin among the White Sox when they found themselves, after the first five games of the 1942 season, in last place with a record of one victory, that by 1 to 0; and four losses, two of them shutouts.

The Sox, this year as in all the recent years when they've had good pitching, are strictly a "everything-is-going-to-be-all-right" aggregation. From the first day of spring practice it is impressed on them that victory in the exhibition and early American league games isn't essential.

The Sox most years get off to a bad start, because they don't believe that the early games aren't each 1/154 of a season just as much as the last games. A five minute talk with Manager Jim Dykes and most of his chattels would drive almost any earnest mathematician crazy.

Very Lethargic in Spring.

The Sox seem to think that if they were to win the early games they couldn't possibly win the later ones, when the fans holler a little louder in applauding victory. No one has been able to point out that it is more fatiguing to battle up from the ruck than it would be to retain an advantage gained early in the season. The Sox have a horror of wearing themselves out with spring winning.

It is difficult to explain how deep-seated is this early season boredom of the White Sox, a boredom certainly encouraged by Sox executives.

Fans Demand Hustling.

Of course, we do not contend the Sox could get under way better if they gritted their teeth and showed other evidences of April-May determination. It perhaps would take more than that to make hitters out of the Sox. But most baseball folks contend that there should be no closed season on hustling.

If the Sox were slow starters who had a way of gathering momentum sufficient to carry them to a dramatic windup, their attitude toward early success would be understandable. But the Sox have not finished as high as second in 22 years. So maybe the everything-is-going-to-be-all-right philosophy is suceptible to readjustment some of these years. The fact that the attendance at the '42 season opener in Chicago was the smallest in either league, one fourth of that in each of several cities, tho played under midsummer weather conditions, should be a tip off that the fans are willing to wait until later when the Sox [other than the pitchers, who don't subscribe to the indifference of the rest of the organization] are willing to start hustling.

We have just had our pencil out again. And every way we figure it, the game played on April 14 is just as big a fractional part of the season as the game scheduled for Aug. 1 or Sept. 27, the final contest of the season, played usually after the pennant race is all over.

HARVARD CREW RALLIES; WINS ROWE MEMORIAL

Boston, Mass., April 25 (AP).—Harvard's crew rallied in the last quarter mile to wipe out a three-quarter length deficit and nose out Cornell in the varsity race of the Rowe memorial regatta today on Charles river basin.

Syracuse, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Boston university shells followed in that order. Harvard covered the mile and five-sixteenths course in 6 minutes 55 seconds and had only a four-fifths of a second advantage over Cornell at the finish.

Cornell took the Jayvee race by three-quarters of a length to prevent Harvard from sweeping the regatta, for the Crimson 150 pound varsity and freshman crews were victorious in their preliminary events.

WAR PROBLEMS TO BE TOPIC OF BUSINESS GROUP

Trade Chamber Convenes in City Tomorrow.

America's war drive will dominate the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce which will open in the Stevens hotel tomorrow morning and extend thru Thursday. About 3,000 of the nation's business leaders are expected to attend.

The chamber usually holds its annual meetings in Washington, but the war congestion in the capital caused it to move this year to Chicago. This is the city's second war meeting of the organization, the first having been held here in 1918.

War Output Cheers Vanguard.

Spokesmen report that every speech will be related to the war effort. As the advance guard began assembling yesterday, it was encouraged by a statement from the chamber that the "most sanguine of unofficial estimates on the nation's war production will fall short of the actual amazing figures on output of war machines and materials." The chamber based its statement on advance reports from top executives representing 10 major war industries.

A report from this group on the war work will be one of the highlights of the meetings. It is to be made Wednesday morning. W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system will broadcast one of the most interesting parts—a panel discussion in which a number of the war production leaders will take part. Among those who will participate are Col. John J. Jouett, president, Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce; H. Garrish Smith, president, National Council of Shipbuilders; J. L. Beven, president of the Illinois Central, representing the Association of American Railroads; George Romney, managing director, Automotive Council for War Production, and George H. Johnson, president, American Petroleum Institute.

Other Broadcasts Slated.

Other broadcasts to be made over W-G-N and Mutual follow: 11:30 p. m. to 12 midnight tomorrow, talk by Barclay Acheson, roving editor of Reader's Digest, on South America; 1:45 p. m. to 2 p. m. Tuesday, talk by Maj. Benjamin H. Namm, chairman of the national retail advisory committee to the United States treasury, on "Supply the Home Front"; 10 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. Tuesday, talk by Eddie Rickenbacker, world war ace and head of Eastern Air Lines, on "How to Win the War."

The first day of the general session will be "organization day." Reports will be read from business associations in the following fields: war construction and housing, transportation, manufacture, critical materials, vocational training and civilian defense. Nineteen directors will be nominated for election on Thursday.

Tomorrow night the International Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual dinner at which the general subject will be "The World of the Future."

Chicago Steel Production Rate Holds at Peak Level

The Chicago district's ingot steel production rate will remain unchanged tomorrow from last Monday at the record high level of 104.8 per cent of theoretical capacity, mill schedules revealed yesterday.

INVENTORIES AND TAXES.

Investors who have been accustomed to scanning corporation annual reports merely to get the "net income" result are overlooking important information which throws additional light on the influence of federal tax laws upon corporate earnings.

This year the annual reports have revealed a trend by companies to adopt a new inventory accounting method permitted by the revenue act of 1939. This method is known as the "last in, first out" way of inventory valuation.

Companies are adopting it because it minimizes the effects of price changes and eliminates paper profits resulting from inventory appreciation in periods of rising prices. The "last in, first out" method assumes that the last goods bought are the first sold. Thus, in computing the profit from the sale of goods, the price of the goods last acquired is subtracted from the sale's proceeds.

Under the older "first in, first out" method, paper profits were realized if prices rose between the time the merchandise was bought and sold. Under the new method, there is less likelihood of a wide margin between the prices at which goods are bought and the resale price.

The "last in, first out" method involves the freezing of stocks at the average cost price of the inventory at the start of the fiscal year in which it is adopted. The inventory, therefore, is regarded as similar to fixed assets.

The effect of this method is illustrated in the 1941 annual report of Swift & Co. In a note to the consolidated income statement, the company said it had adopted the method in valuing certain raw materials, goods in process and finished goods, including pork and pork products, fats and oils, hides, wool, dairy, and dairy products.

As a result of this application, the inventory valuation was reduced $20,650,347 below what it would have been under the previous method, and net income after taxes was cut by about 7 million dollars.

Similar reductions in inventory values and profits have been reported by other companies using the new method. Investors should study footnotes and auditor's comments in annual statements to determine the effects of the new inventory valuation method.

LATE RECOVERY HALTS SLIDE IN STOCK MARKET

A. T. & T. Shares Touch Four Year Low.

New York, April 25 (AP).—The stock market today put the brakes on the week's sharp decline thru a moderate lift in prices just before the close.

Prior to the turn many of the leaders had moved sluggishly to fractionally lower levels. American Telephone sold off a point to a new four year low but shaded its loss at the end.

Persistent heaviness in a few of the pivotal industrials was an offset to the recovery trends elsewhere and the Associated Press 60 stock composite was unchanged at 32.3, the lowest level reached since April, 1933. Transactions were 156,400 shares compared with 184,660 in the short session a week ago.

Await Roosevelt Message.

Short covering accounted for a considerable part of the demand and it might have helped the market's tone still more had it not been for a further small flow of selling from speculative holders seeking to trim sail for the Monday message of President Roosevelt on price control measures.

On the week the stock market yielded substantial ground after struggling for a recovery footing Monday and Tuesday. The 60 stock composite dropped 0.8 of a point, chiefly on losses registered Thursday and Friday.

Much of the selling in these sessions was attributed by brokers to discouragement over the profits prospects for industry in the light of expected heavy tax boosts and application of new economic controls.

CHICAGO LIST DRIES UP.

Trading on the Chicago Stock exchange dropped yesterday to 5,000 shares, the smallest volume since last July 5, as prices continued their downward trend. Of 50 issues traded, only nine advanced, while 20 declined and 21 closed unchanged. The volume leader, Electric Household, advanced ⅛ point to 3¼. Armour & Co. declined ⅛ and Indianapolis Power and Light advanced ⅛ in the half hour following the New York close.

Commodities

Cotton futures closed with losses of 10 to 45 cents a bale yesterday after moving irregularly during most of the session. Uncertainty as to the content of President Roosevelt's forthcoming anti-inflation message tended to unsettle the market, traders said. Closing prices were moderately below the levels of a week ago. Buying by spot houses lifted wool top futures 0.3 to 0.4 cent a pound. Grease wool was 0.1 to 0.3 cent lower. Coffee, cocoa, and cottonseed oil remained at ceiling prices.

WLB UPHOLDS UNION CLAUSE IN SHIPYARD CASE

Orders Membership Demand Granted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—By a vote of 8 to 4 the War Labor board today ordered the inclusion of a maintenance of membership clause in the Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock company's contract with the CIO. Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding workers. All employer members dissented.

Under the decision the nonunion members will not be required to join the union. Nor does the order require the discharge from employment of any workers.

Controversy over the maintenance of membership clause resulted in federal seizure of the plant by the government last August. In January the plant was returned to its owners without requiring them to accept a National Defense Mediation board decision under which the company would have given the union the maintenance of membership clause.

Two Loopholes Provided.

Altho today's decision forced the clause on the company, two loopholes were provided for employés to leave the union if they wished. Employés may sever their connection with the union before a new contract between the company and the union is signed without losing their jobs and without paying dues. They may also leave the union at any time during the life of the company-union contract. However, in this event the company will continue to deduct the employé's union dues and pay them to the union. The effect of this provision will be to guarantee the CIO union the members it now has in the company or at least the income from these members serving the life of the contract.

The contract has about one year to run.

There are now approximately 20,000 persons employed at the company's plant at Kearny, N. J. Only about half of these, or between 11,000 and 12,000 are affected by the decision as members of the union.

Unusual Clause Explained.

The WLB's majority opinion was written by Dr. Frank P. Graham, president of the University of North Carolina and a public member of the board. Explaining the unusual maintenance of membership clause, he said:

"A member of the union may withdraw from the union by not maintaining his membership in good standing. In such case, he must, as a condition of employment, continue to pay his financial obligations to the union for the duration of the contract. A member of a club has no more freedom and no lighter obligation. No member of the union need ever be discharged under this provision, except by his own choice."

In a dissenting opinion Roger D. Lapham, employer member of the board, said he and his three colleagues could not "subscribe to any national labor policy which compels an unwilling employer to force an unwilling employé either to join or remain a member of a labor union in order to play his part in winning the war."

Disturbing Issue Assailed.

He said the issue had been disturbing manager-employer relations at the plant for a year and it was time that an end was put to it.

The yard was commandeered by the navy on Aug. 23 at the order of President Roosevelt because it would not obey the recommendation of the mediation board calling for the union maintenance clause and the refusal had resulted in a strike Aug. 7. The strike tied up 493 million dollars' worth of naval construction. At that time the plant had 16,000 workers.

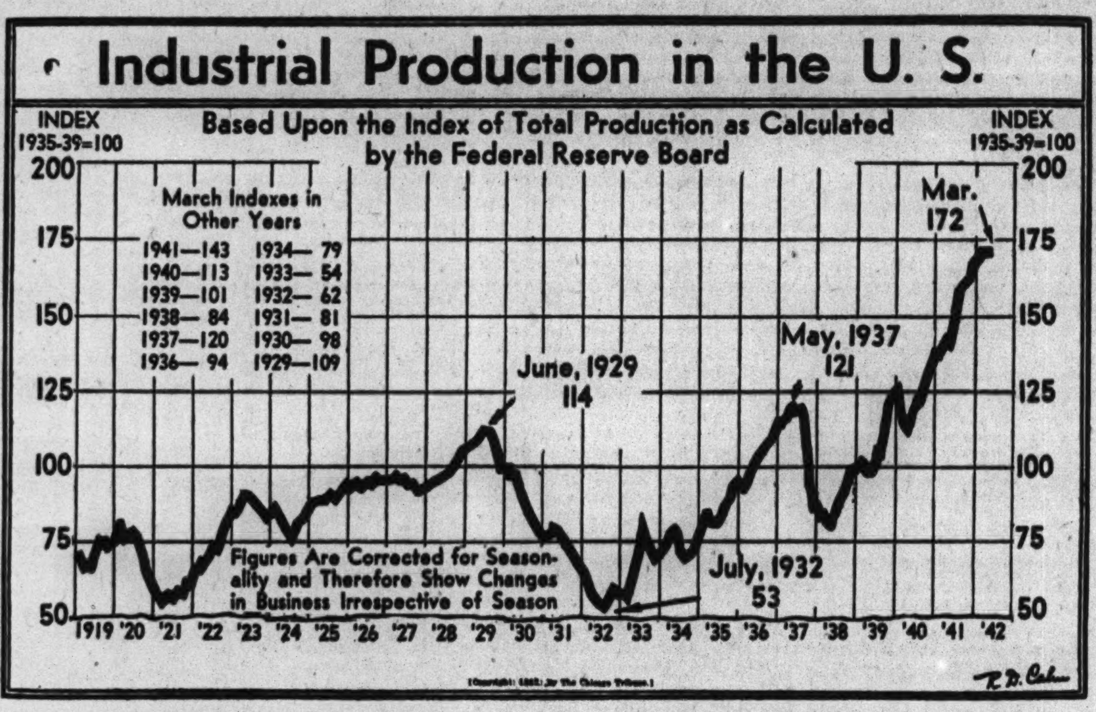
On Jan. 7, reversing the prewar federal labor policy, the President turned back the plant to its private owners.

The company and the union again failed to agree and the case was referred to the newly created War Labor board.

While the navy was operating the plant 19 ships were launched, including 2 cruisers and 4 destroyers, and the keels of 12 more vessels were laid. The number of workers in the plant was increased to 20,000.

Building Permits in Nation Show Decline for March

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—March building permit valuations were 1 per cent lower than those of March, 1941, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins reported today. As compared with February of this year, March permit valuations showed a contraseasonal decline of 20 per cent, her report said.



GADGET PATENT DELAYS PLANES, SENATORS TOLD

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—A senate committee was told today that a patent on a small screw or fastener—about the size of a man's little finger—had seriously impeded the production of military aircraft in the United States.

Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, said that because of the patent, "at one plant 80 airplanes were delayed in their production; at another plant the same thing happened to 20 flying fortresses, and at still another plant the entire assembly line was shut down for lack of the single item."

Arnold told the senate patents committee that the patent was held by William Dzus, head of the Dzus Fastener company, and that Dzus was a small business man who was merely trying to exercise what he regarded as his legitimate patent rights.

Pleads Inventor's Cause.

The government's trust prosecutor urged the committee not to be "too hard" in their judgment of the inventor, saying "he hasn't money to buy full page newspaper advertisments" and he had not protested government investigation.

The plant is located at Babylon, N. Y., near New York City.

Arnold said his testimony resulted from recent findings by two of his men at war aircraft production centers in New York and California.

"These documents indicate that because of the patent on a single screw, our military aircraft program has been and is at this very moment being seriously impeded," the justice department official said.

He explained that production had been impeded because Dzus had refused to grant a license on his patent to other firms and had not been able to meet production requests.

Denied by Plane Maker.

In Inglewood, Cal., President J. H. Kindelberger of North American Aviation, Inc., said in a statement: "Contrary to Mr. Arnold's statement in Washington, North American Aviation has not been and will not be delayed in its production lines because of shortage of Dzus fasteners. We requested and obtained permission from the Dzus Fastener company to manufacture our own Dzus fasteners without paying any royalty whatsoever, and we have been manufacturing them in our California and Texas plants in sufficient quantities to meet our production requirements since the date when Dzus capacity became inadequate to meet our needs."

SHEFFIELD STEEL OPENS 17 MILLION PLANT IN TEXAS

Houston, Tex., April 25 (AP).—The Sheffield Steel corporation announced today that its $17,000,000 plant on the Houston ship channel began production last midnight.

The announcement said 100 tons of "boiling, liquid steel surged into the huge waiting ladle, ushering in the first large scale steel production in the gulf coast states west of the Mississippi river."

45 Chicago Area Firms Get War Orders During Week

War contracts were awarded in the week ended Friday to 45 Chicago area companies, including 12 which had not received direct war contracts before, the Chicago Association of Commerce reported yesterday. The association said nearly 1⅓ billion dollars of direct contracts and a similar amount of indirect orders have been awarded Chicago area companies under the arms program.

Industry Steps Up Offensive in Tune with Moves of War

American industry recovered last week from the slower pace of the week before and pushed ahead with increased vigor as tho taking its cue from the united nations' offensive moves against the axis.

Steel mills raised production to a national average of 97.6 per cent of rated capacity from 97.2 per cent. Engineering construction contract awards were 44 per cent higher than in the preceding week—more than offsetting the 40 per cent drop recorded in that period. Railroad freight loadings turned in a similar performance and showed a more than seasonal gain.

Electric Power Output Shrinks.

On the other hand, electric power output shrank 0.4 per cent to the smallest week's total since January at a time when a seasonal gain was expected. Retail trade was larger, but after allowing for price increases, barely held its own.

The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity reflected the higher trend as follows [1929-'30 levels equal 100]:

	Latest week.	Preceding week.	Yr. ago.
Steel mill activity	141.1	140.5	132.3
Elec. power output	155.6	156.4	137.7
Total carloadings	91.1	90.2	76.2
Composite Index	146.4	146.1	120.8

Heartening reports of American industry in wartime were made to the stockholders of several large corporations at annual meetings last week. The General Electric company forecast a billion dollar output of diversified war materiels in 1942. War orders, excluding munitions, received by the United States Rubber company in the first quarter this year exceeded the total for 1941 and were almost 10 times those in the first quarter last year. Chrysler corporation announced it is working on some phase of 24 war production projects in which its 19 automobile plants will be engaged.

Ford Aero Motor Speeded.

The Ford Motor company disclosed last week that the new high powered aircraft motor it has been developing for the last two years is going into mass production soon. Tooling for large scale output has made considerable progress, officials said.

Earnings reports of large companies all showed soaring tax bills. Some were able to announce increased profits compared with a year ago, but the net of others declined. Profit of Curtiss-Wright corporation, warplane maker, rose in 1941 nearly two-thirds higher than the former peak in 1940 while sales climbed 169 per cent. The company reported rapidly rising production and declared that "incredible strides" have been made toward President Roosevelt's goal of 185,000 military airplanes within the next two years.

WPB ORDERS BOOST IN BUNA S RUBBER PRODUCING CAPACITY

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—The War Production board announced today that it had authorized the Reconstruction Finance corporation to increase the program for production of Buna S synthetic rubber by 100,000 tons annually, to reach a total of 700,000 tons productive capacity by the end of next year.

The Buna S program is in addition to the planned capacity of 100,000 tons of Butyl synthetic rubber and neoprene.

WPB said the Buna S program would be given all priority and allocation assistance necessary to assure production of not less than 350,000 tons during the calendar year of 1943. Buna S rubber is a type suitable for making auto tires, but officials said the output will be devoted entirely to military uses.

Alan H. Williamson, Canadian controler of supplies and rubber chief of the dominion, conferred this morning with the rubber allocations subcommittee of the WPB requirements committee. Williamson told reporters he had discussed restrictions placed on rubber uses by his government as well as the joint requirements of the United States and Canada.

Sales of 5 Cent Cigars Set Record for March

The Cigar Institute of America reported yesterday that sales of cigars retailing for 5 cents or less set an all-time record for March at 439,244,105, which was 14.36 per cent more than were sold in March, 1941. Total sales of all classes of American made cigars to distributors last month were 489,726,665, a gain of 13.8 per cent compared with a year earlier and the highest figure for March in 13 years.

U. S. SHIPBUILDERS AND LABOR MEET HERE TOMORROW

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—The War Production board shipbuilding stabilization committee announced today that a national conference of labor and management in the shipbuilding industry would be held Monday in Chicago to consider wage problems.

Representatives from the navy department and maritime commission will attend, together with all war shipbuilders and representatives of the AFL and CIO unions in the industry. Among problems to be considered are those arising in connection with wage adjustments under stabilization agreements made last year, providing for increases or decreases proportionate to changes in the cost of living.

These adjustments were to be negotiated after the stabilization agreements had been in effect for one year. The first year expired April 1 on the Pacific coast and will end June 15 in the other three shipbuilding zones.

NORTH WESTERN RAILWAY NET FOR MARCH RISES 67%

The Chicago and North Western railway yesterday reported March net operating income of $1,859,224, an increase of 67.7 per cent over March, 1941. Net operating income for the first three months of the current year was $3,243,635, against $2,394,681 for the corresponding period of last year, a 35.5 per cent increase. Total operating expenses, taxes, and rents for the first quarter of 1942 were 26.3 per cent larger.

The New York Central railroad reported net income for March of $2,933,507 against $2,959,110 in March a year ago. Net income for the first three months was $4,367,883 compared with $6,383,656 in the first quarter of 1941.

TRADE BARRIER PARLEY CALLED BY ROOSEVELT

Asks States Speed War Effort.

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—President Roosevelt, thru Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce, has called a federal-state conference to be held here May 5, 6, and 7, to consider the elimination of shipping restrictions encountered at state lines and other trade barriers "which hamper the war effort."

In making this announcement today, the White House said Jones had sent a telegram to all governors under the President's signature suggesting the meeting.

Agency Heads to Aid Move.

The President asked the governors and their representatives to "give specific attention to the fullest possible utilization of labor, transportation facilities, construction capacity, and agricultural products."

He explained that heads of various war agencies would be on hand to discuss particular state and local restrictions hampering war activity.

A statement from the commerce department said that some of the problems to be considered were legal bars against night work for women, Sunday work, anti-migratory and settlement laws, lack of uniformity in regulations covering motor trucks, and limitations on practices in certain professions, such as medicine, dentistry, nursing, and engineering.

Trucking Is "Bottleneck."

The department said that the motor truck regulations were "widely recognized as one of the chief bottlenecks which delay the movement of war materiels."

Citing other examples of problems to be considered, it said that employment of women on production lines would encounter difficulties because of present prohibitions on night and Sunday work, and thru the lack of children's nurseries for women with families.

ARMY MAY SEIZE FACTORY TO END EASTERN TIEUP

South Plainfield, N. J., April 25 (AP).—A government spokesman warned today that the army may take over the Cornell-Dubilier corporation plant here unless the 2,200 workers, on strike since Thursday, return to work Monday.

Alexander Smalley of the War Production board's labor division, who came here when Washington learned of the sudden walkout, said:

"The WPB'S objective in this matter is solely to get production moving once more. I have reason to believe that if production is not proceeding normally by Monday, the army will move in."

Officials of AFL and CIO unions, which have been battling at the plant for two years, said they were making efforts to get their members back to work Monday. The plant manufactures vital communications equipment. The workers struck when negotiations for wage increases over the present minimum of 38½ cents an hour broke down.

DEVELOPS CHEMICAL TO SUPPLANT TIN IN CONTAINER LININGS

St. Louis, Mo., April 25 (AP).—Monsanto Chemical company announced today an estimated 100,000 pounds of tin could be saved annually thru use of a new organic chemical, known as D. P. Solution, to coat the insides of plain steel drums for the shipment of lacquers, shellacs, and nittrocellulose solutions.

Formerly these products had to be handled in tin lined containers because of their corrosive action on ordinary steel. The new chemical forms a protective film on the metal.

Bell Telephone company recently told of development of a cable splicing technique, appropriately called the "Victory joint," which each year will save solder containing 600,000 pounds of tin.

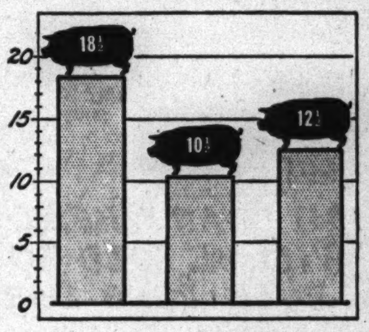
Disclose Goal on Lend-Lease Pork Exports

Lend-lease authorities will not be satisfied with the efficiency of the "larder" for the united nations until this country provides products equivalent to the weight of 10½ hogs for shipment to Europe for every 12½ hogs consumed in the United States, it was disclosed at the Chicago stockyards yesterday. At present consumers of this country are getting about 18½ hogs for every 10½ which lend-lease buyers obtain for England and Russia.

Progress has been made toward the volume goal set by the government, however. During last December the product from five hogs was exported for every 12½ consumed in the United States, while during the summer of 1941 only 1⅓ hogs went abroad for every 12½ that this country's consumers got.

Expect Consumption Drop.

Altho pork and lard production in this country is expected to set records for the summer season, a reduction of approximately 30 per cent is expected in domestic consumption during the next five or six months, compared with the corresponding period last year as the drain becomes heavier from abroad. Exports are expected to run more than 500 per cent greater this summer.



The drawing indicates the ratio of domestic hog supplies (left) with the lend-lease goal (center) and what the home ratio will be if the goal is attained.

As a result of the brisk competition for hogs caused by the government's insistent demands that packers deliver larger quantities of pork and lard, hog buyers have been unable to hold live costs down in line with the OPA ceilings on domestic sales or in line with the prices lend-lease buyers will give for the product. Hog markets fluctuated widely last week. Prices fell sharply for a few days after the government announced the new set of ceilings that became effective last Monday.

Market Swings Widely.

The market rebounded later, however, and in midweek advanced to a parity with the 22 year April peaks of 11 days ago. The daily average Thursday advanced to $14.50.

4 Others on Ways

Another major addition was made to the fleet of Great Lakes ore vessels yesterday with the launching of the Benjamin F. Fairless at the Lorain, O., yards of the American Shipbuilding company. The vessel is one of five under construction for the Pittsburgh Steamship company, United States Steel corporation subsidiary. The identical ships are the largest ever built on the Great Lakes.

The Fairless, first to be launched, is named for the president of United States Steel. It is 639 feet long and 67 feet in beam. Each of the sister ships will be able to carry 18,600 long tons of ore—sufficient to make steel for eight destroyers, it was said.

Another of the sister ships is on the ways at Lorain and three are at the River Rouge, Mich., yards of the Great Lakes Engineering Works.

CANADIAN RAPS OFFICE WASTE AS WAR OBSTACLE

"Terrific waste" of materials and effort in business offices is proving a serious handicap to the war effort, C. U. Stapleton, head of the office management department of Canadian National Railways, Montreal, said yesterday.

Speaking before the annual seminar of the Office Management Association of Chicago at Northwestern university, Stapleton declared the situation "indicates a lamentable lack of thought in postemployment education of clerical workers as well as definitely incompetent supervision."

Another speaker, E. Barrett Rogers of the Purdue university industrial engineering department, told the 600 midwestern office managers and educators the average American still is "sufficiently individualistic" to put forth extra effort if his earnings increase proportionately. He said incentive payments are beneficial both to management and workers.

RARE CHEMICAL REGISTRY TO LIST SUPPLIES IN U. S.

The establishment of a national registry of rare chemicals was announced yesterday by Harold Vagtborg, director of the Armour Research Foundation. The registry, which is located at and affiliated with the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago, will act as a clearing house for information on chemicals too rare to be listed in catalogs of regular chemical supply houses. The information will be filed and indexed according to location and amount available. Dr. Martin H. Heeren, chairman of chemical engineering research of the Armour Research Foundation, will be in charge of this work and has been named director of the registry.

SHOWDOWN NEAR IN CLASHES OVER POWER SUPPLY

Expect War's Needs to Be Known Soon.

Leland Olds.

New York, April 25 (AP).—An important clew to the ability of the electric industry to supply the growing war needs of the country should come to light shortly, possibly by midweek, experts said today.

Now, or soon, the country's output of energy should begin the long climb which with minor interruptions carries it to the usual sensational peak in the week before Christmas. But power figures so far this year have been behaving far from normally, and this has served to highlight a dispute between production experts in the industry and the federal power commission.

Olds and Kellogg Clash.

Leland Olds, chairman of the federal power commission, charged recently that estimates of the industry's ability to meet the war load made by Charles W. Kellogg, president of the Edison Electric institute, if accepted as a basis for planning power supply "would spell disaster."

Kellogg and other power men, however, have leaned heavily, it is learned, on power production figures for the last several months.

These have shown a distinct downtrend since the start of this year, altho normally the output is nearly steady until it takes a dip just before the turn comes in late April.

A usually well informed trade source revealed today that there had been a net loss of some 42,000 commercial and industrial customers by the country's power companies in the first quarter of this year and said the trend had been accelerating recently.

Business Casualties a Factor.

This economist believed the fact that power use had been slipping since the turn of the year, despite growing war manufacture, indicated these lost customers to a large extent were casualties among small plants and businesses without the machinery, the labor or the management skills to get into war-work.

The power men use these two sets of figures to make their point:

1. This year, with production of war materials growing by leaps and bounds, the power output of the country in the second week in April was 4.76 per cent less than in the first full week of January. Last year, after a considerable steady period, the drop on balance in the comparable period was 3.5 per cent, but at that time war production was much less than at present.

2. Now the potential output of power [end of March] is 44.5 million kilowatts, or 6.2 per cent more than at the same date last year.

BATTLE PLANES WHIZ DOWN LINE AT BIG PLANTS

Pilots Kept Busy Testing New Fighting Ships.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Burbank, Cal., April 25.—Any one doubting America's capacity to produce military airplanes should take a stroll down MacArthur boulevard.

MacArthur boulevard isn't a street in the ordinary sense of the word. It is a production line, with thousands of workers—men and women—hard at work. The vehicles which travel along its length are two-motor interceptor fighters—the world's fastest military airplanes.

MasArthur boulevard is just one of many production lines in the sprawling plant of the Lockheed Aircraft corporation here. Others are named Bataan avenue and Victory street. Huge arrows, like directional signposts, speed the planes on their way along "the road to Rome" and "Tokio next."

One Worker in 20 Is Woman.

Many acres of ground are covered by the buildings of the Lockheed plant and its subsidiary, Vega. Of the thousands of workers, one in 20 is a woman.

Finished planes are leaving the production lines so rapidly that many pilots are busy testing them. Each plane gets about three hours of flight before it is turned over to the army, and the air above the plant resembles a flying circus in continuous performance. Soldiers are on guard outside.

Over at Vega flying fortresses are now being built. Vega continues turning out medium attack bombers of a type called the Ventura, and production of this type of plane proceeds without interruption side by side with the fortresses.

Lockheed already has delivered numbers of Hudson bombers to England. They have made such excellent records that the British call them Boomerangs—they always come back.

Double Deck Work Tables.

Production lines here have double deck work tables, enabling two crews to work simultaneously. One group will work on bomb racks and undergear while another will work in cockpit and cabin. Toward the end of the assembly line the work tables are stationary and the planes are moved from one table to another by overhead derrick.

Some idea of the production speed may be gained from the handling of the bomb bay door. This door is a sheet of metal about 12 feet long and 2 feet wide, yet eight persons work on it simultaneously.

Girls here get the same pay as men for the same work, and have been found especially valuable in jobs tedious to men. Another effective use of girl workers is as "morale boosters." Company officials have found that sending a girl to replace a man and work with other men on a work table where production has slowed invariably will result in immediate improvement.

FARM MACHINE NEEDS WILL BE TOPIC OF CLINIC

An intensive one day clinic to analyze farmers' equipment needs under the war program will be held Tuesday in the Hotel Sherman by several hundred members of the National Retail Farm Equipment association.

In the face of a 25 per cent loss of farm labor and an increasing shortage of farm equipment, dealers will try to learn how they may assist agriculture in meeting increased production goals, according to Paul M. Mulliken of St. Louis, executive secretary.

Speakers at the clinic will include officials of the War Production board, who will detail the nation's material needs as related to the farm program; spokesmen of the United States department of agriculture, who will discuss needs for increased production, and farm leaders who will present facts concerning the labor shortage.

EGG CONTRACTS SHOW SHARPEST LOSS IN 6 WEEKS

Egg futures registered their sharpest losses in six weeks on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. The setback followed announcement that lend-lease buyers want no more offerings of powdered eggs for December delivery until further notice, and that the paying price this week for deliveries thru November would remain unchanged despite recent advances in shell egg quotations. October refrigerator eggs closed 0.35 cent a dozen lower at 33.90 cents, after early setbacks of as much as ½ cent a dozen.

Butter futures closed unchanged after profit taking had cut into early gains which established new 12-year peaks. At the close of the session, the department of agriculture announced that it had purchased 825,040 pounds of salted butter Friday.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS DROP TO 390 MILLIONS

Bank clearings in Chicago last week declined to $390,900,000 from 430 million dollars in the preceding week, but exceeded the $350,700,000 in the corresponding 1941 period, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The total of the week before was influenced by midmonth payments. The association's report follows:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 57,600,000	$ 4,800,000
Tuesday	65,900,000	9,000,000

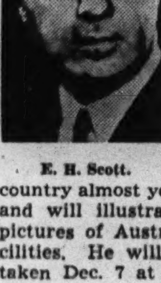
People and Events



E. H. Scott.

E. H. Scott, president of the Scott Radio Laboratories, will discuss the war in the south Pacific Tuesday noon before aviation post 651 of the American Legion in the Hotel Sherman. Scott is a native of Australia and served with the Australian army in France during the first World war. He has visited his home country almost yearly since that time, and will illustrate his lecture with pictures of Australian production facilities. He will also show pictures taken Dec. 7 at Pearl Harbor. The meeting is open to the public.

The first wartime mid-continent sales and advertising conference, sponsored by the Chicago Federated Advertising club, will be held Friday and Saturday in the Hotel Sherman. The conference will include a series of clinics dealing with various phases of advertising, and lectures by the supervisors of the clinics, summarizing the work done in each.

Norman Baughn has joined the American-Marietta company as technical specialist in army and navy plants. He has been with the Cook Paint and Varnish company for the last 12 years.

The place of American business in the current war effort will highlight discussion at the semi-annual meeting of the American Trade Association Executives tomorrow at the Blackstone hotel. W. J. Donald, president of the association and managing director of the National Electrical Manufacturers association, New York, will preside.

GRAIN MARKETS STEADY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Prices Held Within Narrow Range.

Uncertainty over the possible effect on the grain markets of the proposed anti-inflation and price ceiling measures which will be given to the nation early this week resulted in limiting speculative and other operations yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat and corn futures held within a range of about ¾ cents, and while there was a small dip in prices early, mills became fairly good buyers of wheat futures and turned the markets upward. Closing sales were about the top. Wheat finished unchanged to ¼ cent higher and corn was unchanged. Oats showed independent strength and gained ⅜ to ½ cent, while rye was ⅛ to ⅜ cent higher. Soy beans lost ⅛ cent.

Buy May and Sell July.

Part of the business in the grain pits consisted of buying of May against sales of July by elevator interests who were said to be changing over hedges on the cash grain into the deferred delivery period.

With government officials reported to be showing growing concern over the rapidly mounting supplies of wheat in this country, traders are again taking stock of the world situation.

Reports from the United States, Canada, Argentina, and Australia indicate that there will be a net exportable surplus of wheat available on July 1 of about 1 billion 65 million bushels, by far the largest on record. It compares with 847 million bushels available on July 1, 1942. These figures are exclusive of the amounts that are normally on hand at the end of a crop year, experts said.

Europe Unable to Purchase.

Another picture is being painted in regard to the supply of the leading bread grain in Europe, where inability to purchase from surplus producing countries has reduced stocks to the vanishing point. Reports from France say that it may be necessary to eliminate bread from the ration scheme for the period of one month unless conditions improve.

There is an ample supply of soil moisture to give the American crops a good start this spring, the North Western railroad reported. Plowing is progressing rapidly and a few days of warm weather will put pastures in condition for grazing, the railroad said.

SUSPEND ALLOY TRUST ACTION TILL WAR ENDS

Army, Navy Request Move; Biddle Complies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—Attorney General Francis Biddle today announced the department of justice had postponed for the duration of the war the anti-trust indictment brought against General Electric company and the Krupp interests of Germany charging a monopoly in the production of carboloy.

Carboloy is a trade name for an alloy of tungsten and carbide, which is second in hardness to diamonds. It is of vital importance in the war effort because of its use on the edges of cutting tools and in wear resistant dies.

The postponement was requested by the army and navy under the recent agreement announced by the White House that all anti-trust actions, whose prosecution might hamper the war effort, would be held in abeyance during the war.

Trial Slated for June 15.

The trial of the indictment was scheduled to begin in the federal court in New York June 15. The indictment named, in addition to General Electric and Krupp, the International General Electric company, Carboloy, Inc., and three men. These are Walter M. Stearns, manager of special contracts for the General Electric company; Dr. Zay Jefferies, chairman of the board of directors of Carboloy, and Walter G. Robbins, president of Carboloy.

The alloy was invented in Germany in the research laboratories of the Krupp organization almost 20 years ago. It was developed in the United States. The government was prepared to present a case against the corporations and men on the ground that an agreement had been entered into in restraint of trade.

Defense Cites Long Efforts.

The government charged that General Electric and Krupp had a monopoly on the important alloy and were holding it from competitors. The defense was prepared to argue that years had been spent in developing the alloy at considerable cost and that every effort was made to get as wide a distribution of the alloy as possible.

In a letter to the attorney general, asking that the action be delayed, Secretary of War Henry Stimson said it was "preponderantly clear" to him that "the progress of the war effort is being, or will be, impeded by consuming the time of the defendants and other executives of the defendant corporations" in preparing for trial at this time.

1941 LOAN WHEAT WILL BE SOLD TO PUSH FEED USE

Washington, D. C., April 25 (AP).—In a move to encourage larger use of surplus wheat for live stock feed and industrial purposes, the agriculture department announced today it would offer for sale 1941 wheat which has been turned over to the government by borrowing farmers in settlement of crop loans. Purchase offers will be considered on May 5.

Officials said they did not know how much gain would be for sale by that date. On April 18 about 14 million bushels had been delivered to the government in settlement of loans. In addition the government has loaned money on approximately 300 million bushels.

Because of prospects of an acute storage problem. The department is anxious to move quantities of old grain from warehouses in the wheat belt before this year's crop starts moving to market.

The department said no bid would be accepted for less than the 1941 loan value of the wheat, plus interest and charges as determined by the Commodity Credit corporation. The basic 1941 wheat rate was 98 cents a bushel.

QUARTER PROFIT FOR HOUSEHOLD FINANCE DROPS

Results Reflect Rising Federal Taxes.

B. E. Henderson.

Larger provision for federal taxes cut March quarter net income of Household Finance corporation, Chicago, below the level of the corresponding 1941 period, B. E. Henderson, president, informed stockholders yesterday in an interim report.

The company's net profit in the first quarter, he said, was $1,225,186, equal to $1.37 a share, compared with $1,665,067, or $1.95 a share, in the corresponding period last year.

Tax Bills Compared.

Provision for federal and Canadian income and excess profits taxes, on the basis of 49½ per cent of taxable income, was $1,306,639, against $829,381 in the 1941 quarter, when the taxes were deducted at a rate of 30 per cent.

International Business Machines corporation, New York, announced its March quarter earnings were $2,806,897, equal to $2.83 a common share, compared with $2,409,123, or $2.55 a share, a year before. The provision for federal and Canadian taxes was at present tax rates.

Cutler-Hammer, Inc., Milwaukee manufacturer of electrical control devices, reported first quarter earnings of $406,674, equal to 61 cents a share, against $427,101, or 65 cents a share, in the March quarter last year. The company set aside a reserve of $150,000 for inventory and postwar adjustments.

PUBLIC AUCTION

ON THE PREMISES

BY COL. BOWDEN

Nationally Known Land Auctioneer of Oak Park, Ill.

LOCATED 3 mi. Northeast of Prophetstown, Ill., Whiteside Co. It is the estate of the late Albert Field, deceased. Mr. Field was known near and far as a man of superior character and integrity. President of the local Bank for years. Active in everything pertaining to the advancement of the splendid town of Prophetstown and community where he died a few months past at the age of nearly 90 years. Owning this great farm for many years, it was the pride of his active life. Hundreds of attractive features are connected with the purchase of this property. The soil has always been well farmed; it's nearly as level as a floor; all brown silt loam, with perfect drainage; enriched by a thousand tons of the best manure spread upon the fields yearly. Farmed by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Castelin for many years. They are considered as the best farmers in any State; they are available to continue farming this good soil.

Upon the farm now are more than 100 head of handsome Black Angus cattle; some of the finest brood sows in the State; The personal property would amount to over $25,000, which does not go with the sale of the farm. The average corn crop this year was around 80 bu. per acre; one field over 100 bu. per acre. Farm contains 395 acres, more or less. 253 acres tillable, balance in pasture, clover, and blue grass; 110 acres in blue grass which is well shaded with large hard maple trees; nothing could be more desirable in raising of cattle. Never failing stream of water.

GREAT BUILDINGS WONDERFULLY CONSTRUCTED. Modern 10 room house, hot water heat; large feeder barn, another large barn; cattle shed, 110 feet long; machinery shed, 80 ft. long; large poultry house; large hog house. Each building in wonderful condition. All hog and cattle yards have cement bottom costing several thousand dollars. Good fences.

Day by Day on the Farm

By Bob Becker

Spring in Command.

April 25, 1942.

SPRING weather assumed full command of the farm this week. The warm sun brought out the first dogtooth violets and carpeted the east woods with faint pink spring beauties. Three petaled trillium leaves came up thru the oak leaves. More purple martins arrived to take over the nesting compartments in their elevated homes. A pair of Canada geese started to build their nest. Even the stolid oak trees opened their buds as the final signal of spring's dominance of the countryside.

Crow Annoys Geese.

The flockmaster reported that while riding around the Half Moon pond yesterday he spotted a pair of geese building a nest despite the interference of a troublesome crow. For some reason the crow seemed to object to a nest being built in that particular spot, so he dove at the larger birds. The gander put a stop to the nuisance by running toward the crow as it came down low and honking enough to scare the black bird away from that area for some time. The men are thinking of putting up a scarecrow to keep these birds away from the area in which the honkers are nesting.

About a month ago we saw a pair of wood ducks on the largest of the farm ponds. The flockmaster believes that these birds are going to nest near the pond. He said yesterday that he saw them near the swans' winter quarters. Wood ducks nest in holes in trees or stumps, but since the men rarely disturb the sanctity of the waterfowl nesting area while the birds are building and using their nests it's doubtful that any one will find their obscure nest.

Dogtooth Violets Thriving.

When we walked thru the center woodlot of the farm the other day we found that the dogtooth violets seem to be having an ideal growing season. On no hiking trip thru the farm woodlots have we ever seen such large patches of these delicate little wildflowers, which really are members of the lily family instead of violets. One patch, just east of the gravel lane in the center woods, is at least 15 feet wide and 40 feet long. A tiny creek separates this area of dogtooths from another almost as large. And in less than an acre there are six or eight patches of these attractive flowers.

GAS RATIONING NOT TO INCLUDE MIDWEST AREA

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 25.—The rationing of gasoline, which becomes effective in 17 Atlantic seaboard states and the District of Columbia on May 15, isn't likely to be extended to the midwest. No reason for such a spread can be seen here now.

The rationing has become necessary to distribute equitably among motor vehicles a supply of gasoline limited on the coast by the crippling of sea transportation. There is adequate petroleum production capacity and adequate refining capacity in the country to meet civilian needs and military needs. But tankers have been torpedoed and others transferred to new services in numbers that are shrinking supplies of petroleum products in the states of Oregon and Washington as well as in the eastern states.

May Production Cut.

Sections that are not dependent upon tankers for petroleum deliveries have more than they can use. Petroleum Coördinator Harold Ickes this week cut May production schedules at the wells.

Chicagoland is independent of the tankers. Furthermore, Illinois is the third or fourth largest oil producing state in the union. And the metropolitan area includes some of the largest refineries in the world, supplied by pipelines from Texas.

An advisory committee representing the petroleum industry nationally has recommended to Ickes that everything possible be done to distribute geographically the burden caused by the enemy submarines off our coasts. In so far as can be learned, everything possible is being done in compliance with this request, but it doesn't make much difference. The coastal areas are still short of petroleum and the production areas still have a surplus.

Tank Cars Transferred.

Railroad tank cars that normally operated in the midwest have been transferred to service between the oil fields and the Atlantic coast. The carriers have performed in a way that has been praised by Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of defense transportation, but their best efforts haven't been able to supplant the tanker service.

Ickes reported that last week deliveries of petroleum to the seaboard states by rail reached a record high of 500,000 barrels a day. He said he was not sure that this rate could be maintained due to shortages of rolling stock and of locomotives.

The explanation of the railroads' comparative feebleness is simple. The 17 eastern states and the District of Columbia normally used 1,500,000 barrels of petroleum and petroleum products daily with 1,350,000 barrels arriving by tank ship. With fewer tankers and with the ships still in service delayed by submarine threats, the best the railroads can do isn't so much.

It Could Affect Midwest.

From what is known here, the only likelihood of extending the rationing system to the midwest would be if curtailment of motor fuel should be adopted as a measure to conserve rubber. The government officials are not satisfied with the results of voluntary tire conservation.

Appeals have been frequent and vigorous but the owner of the average family car is still driving more miles than the government would like to see. The federal authorities look upon the rubber on the wheels of the 30 million motor vehicles in America as part of the national stock pile and they would like to see this stock pile used sparingly. The tires represent potential transportation, and America's internal transportation is one of the problems that must be overcome to win the war.

VOICE OF TRAFFIC

DRUNKEN DRIVER.

Chicago, April 15.—While driving to work in Washington boulevard, just west of Pulaski road, I came across a traffic menace which should arouse every citizen of Illinois. I noticed the driver in the car next to me was flushed of face. He could barely control his car and rested his head on his wheel whenever he stopped.

This drunken menace was driving in a public street in rush hours on a rainy morning. The car was a sport model with a black canvas top, tan leather seats and a light blue body. I hope he will be picked up soon and deprived of his license without some one being an innocent victim of his drunkenness. C. H. M.

GLASS ON STREETS.

Chicago, April 19.—It's too bad we can't use old broken glass in the army, because you could gather up 10 tons on the streets of Chicago. Out of 10 states I traveled thru recently I never saw a city as bad as Chicago for having glass on the streets. A RESIDENT.

Best Routes to Derby

Using U. S. 41, U. S. 52 thru Indianapolis on U. S. 31 into Louisville, 307 miles. Using U. S. 41 and Indiana 43 thru Crawfordsville, Indiana 46, Indiana 37, and U. S. 150 into Louisville, 323 miles. Motor club touring counselors say that almost all accommodations in the vicinity of the track have already been spoken for. Those who want to attend should make immediate reservations at hotels, motor courts, or tourist homes in nearby cities.

Increased Volume of Traffic Is Blamed for Some Crashes

A collision between two automobiles on April 9, at 1:45 p. m., both on unprotected streets at an intersection without any apparent vision obstructions or other defects, resulted in the death of Martha Tenbruin of 2044 North Hamlin avenue.

Chicago Motor club engineers, investigating the accident as a part of their program to teach others from the experiences of tragic accidents of the recent past, point out several factors that might have been the cause. The accident occurred at the intersection of Wrightwood and Lawndale avenues on Chicago's northwest side. A new subway built for Wrightwood avenue traffic over the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad has opened this street from Logan boulevard west, and has attracted a considerable volume of additional traffic.

Motorists Felt Secure.

Because of the volume of traffic on this street, as on many other streets in the city, motorists are often lulled into a false sense of security. Because there are a considerable number of cars traveling both ways on a particular street does not mean that those cars have any additional preference over intersecting traffic than they might have on any ordinary residential street.

Many office and shop workers, particularly on the border of industrial areas, are prone to avoid the ordinary channels where traffic is protected because of delays that might be incurred. They often use side streets to avoid traffic signals or interference by public transportation systems.

This procedure is all right if the drivers will remember that when they turn off of thru streets or boulevards they should reduce speed on residential streets and that when they approach intersections they must reduce the speed of their car even more because of the high possibility of collision.

Law Gives Right of Way.

These collisions occurring on side streets also bring to attention the rule of the right of way. Illinois law specifically states motor vehicles traveling upon public highways shall give the right of way to vehicles approaching along intersecting highways from the right and shall have the right of way over those approaching from the left.

There are obvious exceptions to these rules, according to the motor club engineers and many that have been brought out in the ruling of the higher courts.

In addition, the law always imposes the exercise of due care upon the owner of the car that is approaching the intersection from the right. The courts have generally held that the question of who was entitled to the right of way at an intersection is a question of fact to be decided by the jury under the circumstances surrounding the particular accident.

NEWS AND VIEWS

It takes a good driver to pilot an army jeep, supply car, or truck—an ordinary driver just can't get by. That information is given by Maj. H. P. Whitney, QMC, who recently was appointed automotive officer for the 6th corps area. He added that even if the prospective army driver has never had an accident, he will have to start all over again if he wants to operate an army vehicle.

"Both the driver of little experience and the veteran trucker must start from scratch," Maj. Whitcamp said. "It is necessary to train men for driving in the theater of war operations where more often than not they won't have their wheels on the nice smooth surfaces to which they are accustomed.

"In piloting a truck with vital supplies the army driver must go where the troops go. That means he must learn to fight ditches and rough terrain, plow thru mud and go by steep inclines—hazards he could bypass while driving a civilian vehicle."

Maj. Whitney said the army is not having an easy job finding the men who can measure up to the stiff requirements. He said that in an aptitude test recently given a large group of young soldiers, all experienced in civilian driving, 75 per cent received unsatisfactory ratings. In one unit only 57 out of 167 men were given satisfactory ratings and in another only 30 per cent qualified.

He said that there are two important requirements. One is good mental and nervous stability; in other words, freedom from excitement in an emergency. The other is reaction time, muscular reaction in emergencies.

* * *

Maj. Whitcamp said the army simply must have rigid requirements. For instance, in a motor convoy the army must go on the assumption that the manner in which a driver performs his duties determines the mobility and dependability of the entire fleet. With a single convoy carrying perhaps several hundred men, and an important juncture to be effected, it can be readily understood that too much is at stake to permit a misfit or an untrained man to take part.

However, there are many men who have qualified and they have done a splendid job, he continued. He stated that during the maneuvers in the fall last year, motor transports operated in blackouts and other conditions approximating the realities of war. About 35,000 trucks and cars took part with less than 1 per cent put out of service because of accidents or mechanical breakdowns. He stated that only the most careful selection and training of drivers made such a record possible.

BABY, TAKE a BOW!

The Miracle of Life

By IRVING S. CUTTER, M. D.

OUR NATION is composed of homes. The men turn the wheels of industry while the women, as helpmeets and mothers, soften the buffets of the world. Children supply the poetry of life. The prattle of our little ones—in the humblest cottage or the most stately mansion—brings happiness. What goes on within each dwelling is blest in proportion to the affection that is poured forth.

It has been well said that the greatest distinction in the world is motherhood. There is something marvelous—yes, miraculous—in the birth of a baby. The wee one is so completely dependent that our sympathy and compassion are aroused. With the passing of the days our heartstrings become entwined with love and adoration.

During this period the marvels of nature are revealed. The tot grunts and grubs for his food, absorbing it with perfect ease, utilizing every atom for the building of a stalwart frame. Within a few short weeks personality begins to emerge and the infant is no longer "it," but a human being. Voices are identified, objects grasped, and the eyes light up with recognition.

• • •

Almost from the outset the new arrival is placed on a schedule as rigid as the laws of the Medes and the Persians. There is a time for waking, for bathing, for dressing, for feeding, and so on thruout the entire 24 hours.

Then comes the struggle for supremacy, with the little one insisting upon having his own way. Thus it is that he meets his initial conflict. Gently but firmly he is made to understand that the rules and regulations adopted are for his own good.

During the first month 80 per cent of the 24 hours will be spent in sleep. This drops gradually to 60 per cent between 1 and 3 months. The year-old babe will devote but one-half his time to slumber.

It is in the dawning of intelligence that parents receive their greatest thrill. The child will soon make an attempt to (Continued on page nine.)

Woman's Strange Role in the Life of Japan!

A geisha party for foreign visitors.

Geishas on sitdown strike against syndicate.

Geishas go to school.

By LLOYD WENDT

THE BRUTAL and lustful conduct of Japanese soldiers toward civilians of conquered countries has been attributed by some students of Japan to the historic repression of women in the empire. The average Japanese woman is a mere slave, whether she is in the home, in the factory or field, or is one of the estimated 4 million chattels owned by the great brothel syndicates.

The brothel is one of the most powerful social and business institutions in the empire. It exists because the Japanese male looks upon his wife as a house servant: For entertainment and social relaxation he visits the harlot or the geisha. It is not unusual for him to bring a favored prostitute into his home, in which case his wife must treat the woman as an honored guest.

Such is the demand for professional women that the big vice syndicates, which are licensed by the government, constantly scour the country for new recruits. Many of the girls while they are very young are purchased from their parents by baby brokers, and then schooled for service in the tea houses. Others are kidnaped from the streets. Still others are brought into Japan from Formosa and Corea, Nippon's conquered provinces.

Japan is a warrior nation in almost a tribal sense and the position of women in the country has never risen far beyond that of a primitive tribal society. As a child, the Japanese girl strictly obeys her father; as a woman, she obeys her husband; in old age, she bows to the will of her sons. She is humble and kindly, and often an intelligent person, considerably more civilized than her husband, according to occidental views, but she has no voice and slight influence in the development of Japan.

The degradation of woman early evolved in Japan an elaborate brothel system still characteristic of the country. Back in the 16th century, when Yedo, now Tokio, had just grown up from a village in a swamp, the vice district, called Yoshiwara, housed thousands of women and was the model for like establishments in the cities and villages thruout the country.

In time such districts, which in Yedo eventually became known as Fuyajo, or the Nightless City, developed as distinct towns, with their own customs, their own standards of behavior, and even their own language. In these areas, curiously, women were treated with respect, and the processions of bedizened courtesans thru the streets were followed by throngs of the cheering populace. In Kyoto, the district was known as Shimabara; in Osaka, as Shinmachi. In these nightless cities the rich men squandered their wealth on lavish entertainments, and they were the centers of social activity for the intelligentsia and the politically powerful. The rakes and prostitutes of the districts were the heroes and heroines of the Japanese literature of the time, and the general public followed their activities avidly. Little was written, of course, concerning the fouler districts, where daughters of miserable farmers were hired to the poor for a few cents a day.

In modern Japan, prostitution has been expanded like every other industry. There are joroya, brothels, in every neighborhood and village except the very poorest districts which chiefly supply the women for the trade. On the street cars it is not unusual for a man to ask for a ticket to the nearest joroya. The more expensive houses in the wealthy areas are called machiyai and are known to foreigners as tea houses.

In the tea houses reigns the geisha, the entertaining girl who usually is not a prostitute, but often has a lover or two among the men of the higher classes. She ranks far above the harlot, who may also be found in most tea houses. The geisha, in fact, is the most respected and most fortunate of Japanese women. Even she, however, is a slave, for she is sold to her master early in childhood, she must accept men if ordered to do so, and she may be relieved of duty only if some one will buy her contract.

The licensed brothels provide the government with considerable revenue. It is said that the mikado's income from such sources is only 1 million yen less than his annual revenues from the Japanese customs. The syndicates operating the brothels are frequently controled by men of high position. Before the outbreak of the war these syndicates functioned widely outside Japan. When Great Britain was unable to stop the traffic in women at Singapore, she finally protested to the Japanese government itself, as the party ultimately responsible. Japan was in an appeasing mood at the time, and the traffic was reduced.

To maintain the Japanese brothel business, buyers of children go into the country, among the wretchedly poor farmers, and arrange to take their girls for a small fee paid to the family. Usually the girls are glad to get away, and if they are not, they must obey their parents. Even a wife will enter the joroya to help her husband pay off his debts, and this form of cuckoldry is accepted in the country as a kind of virtue.

Once a child is purchased, she is indentured to the brothel keeper for 10 years. At the end of that period she is supposed to have paid off the purchase money given to her family. But during that time she has been clothed by the brothel owner, and she must pay him outrageous prices for her garments. In practice she is never free until she is too old to entertain men. Then she is discarded, to slave in the factories if able, or to tender her body to the river police, who endlessly fish up corpses.

The licensed government houses are somewhat regulated. They give their women enough to eat and send them to hospitals when they become infected with venereal disease. Many of the houses exist illegally, however, in order to escape the heavy government tax. These are filthy hovels, reeking with disease, where girls are beaten if they are unable to attract a certain number of men daily. Even the Japanese newspapers have protested against the cruelties of the men who operate such houses, and they are harried by the police until they attain so-called respectability by paying their license fees.

There is no chance for a girl to escape from brothel life. There is a law in Japan against the sale of humans, but the courts recognize the brothel keeper's contract. If the girl flees, and the police do not return her, the keeper will go to her family and demand his money back. If some kindly man of wealth buys a girl from such slavery, it simply means that another replaces her. The instances of such purchase are rare.

The geishas are the fashionable and witty girls, and a few of them rise to considerable power as the favorite of a leading politician. Some are permitted to keep 10 per cent of their fees. When a Japanese entertains guests, he usually does not bring them into his home, but takes them to a geishaya, where the girls dance, sing, and divert the customers with bright repartee, while warming and serving sake, rice wine, the Japanese national drink. They are expected to be respectful and witty, and if they find favor in the eyes of a rich man, one of them may become his mistress.

A Japanese carefully refrains from displaying any affection for his wife, a not very difficult accomplishment. When a woman marries, she wears white, the color signifying death in Japan. She is dead to every one save her husband, and it is her duty to make herself as unattractive as possible to other men. A man is expected to have outside affairs, and, if he can afford it he may have one or several concubines. If a man wishes to divorce his wife, he may merely tell her so, or give her written notice. For her there is no greater disgrace.

Divorce is increasing in Japan, but still is comparatively rare. There is no point in discharging a servant who responds to the slightest clap of hands, who works for mere sustenance, who humbly obeys every whim of the master. For the woman, her chief satisfaction in marriage is the knowledge that she is helping to prepetuate the god race, bringing forth sons, perhaps, who are fit to die for the emperor.

Thru long centuries of training, the Japanese women have learned perfectly the submissiveness necessary to their position. They are as patriotic as their husbands, and are utterly loyal to the lords they serve. Says Prof. Taid O'Conroy, a teacher at Keio university, Tokio, for a number of years, in his book, "The Menace of Japan":

"There are probably nowhere else in the world women capable of offering so much love and affection as the Japanese. After marriage it needs but a tiny seedling in the rich soil of a woman's heart to produce a lasting and complete devotion to the Japanese husband. Neither poverty, sickness, nor separation will ever quench this love. She is capable of tenderness that is unbelievable in western eyes, but the Japanese husband seldom seeks to inspire this ardor. His wife is an unpaid housekeeper and producer of children. His pleasures are taken without her company; his love, in the strictest Japanese sense, in the per-

MOVIE STARS IN COLOR

Color portraits of these movie stars are reproduced in today's Picture Section.

● TYRONE POWER, son and namesake of a great actor, was born in Cincinnati, O., May 5, 1914. During school years he took an active part in dramatics, studied the speech arts under his mother's supervision, and played the lead in the senior class play. After high school he took a practical course in Shakespearean rôles and appeared in Shakespearean répertoire in the Chicago Civic auditorium. In 1931 his father died, and young Tyrone, after vain attempts to crack Hollywood, headed for New York to try the legitimate stage. En route he stopped off in Chicago with the Circuit Theater Productions at the Century of Progress exposition. Later he appeared on radio programs with Don Ameche and finally landed in New York. While appearing with Katharine Cornell in "St. Joan" he was tested by Twentieth Century-Fox and signed to appear in "Girls' Dormitory." Power is 6 feet tall, weighs 155 pounds. He's married to Annabella, stage and screen actress.

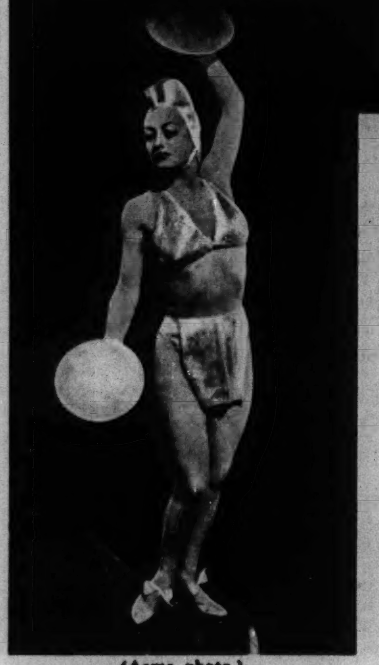
● BONITA GRANVILLE, born Feb. 2, 1923, in New York City, is the daughter of Rosina Timponi Granville and the late Bernard Granville, both of the stage. At the age of 3 she joined her parents' vaudeville act, but it was her resemblance to Ann Harding that won her first film part, as Miss Harding's daughter in "Westward Passage." There were other small parts that followed, but she really shot to the top when she played the brat in "These Three." Rôles in "The Plough and the Stars," "Maid of Salem," "Quality Street," and "White Banners" quickly followed. Then came stardom in the "Nancy Drew, Detective" series. And soon you'll be seeing her "Syncopation," in which Jackie Cooper and Adolphe Menjou play supporting rôles. Bonita is about an inch over 5 feet and tips the scales at 100 pounds.

● GENE RAYMOND, whose real name is Raymond Guion, actually started his career early. When he reached the fourth grade he quit public school and enrolled at the Professional Children's school in New York City. He remained in this school until he made his debut in 1924 in "The Potters." In later years he appeared in such stage successes as "Cradle Snatchers," "Young Sinners," and "Take My Advice." In 1931 he made his debut in motion pictures. He's married to Jeanette MacDonald, with whom he's costarred in the current version of "Smilin' Through." Mr. Raymond was born in New York City, Aug. 13, 1908. He's 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 165 pounds.

● PATRICIA MORISON went to Hollywood from the New York stage, where she was a success in "The Two Bouquets." Her pictures include "Persons in Hiding," "The Magnificent Fraud," "Untamed," and, most recently, "One Night in Lisbon." She will be seen soon as the siren in "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat." Miss Morison was born in New York City in 1919, the daughter of William R. Morison, English writer and artist. She studied drama, poise, and diction under Marta Oatman in New York. She's 5 feet 5 inches tall, weighs 118 pounds.

GO INTO YOUR DANCE!

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD WITH JOHN CHAPMAN



(Acme photo.)

(Acme photo.)
Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire in "Shall We Dance?"

Hollywood.

THE OLD taunt of a vanished part of show business was "Go into your dance!" It meant that an actor's patter was terrible and he'd better shut his unfunny mouth and start hoofing.

Well, dancers have gone a long way on the stage and in the movies—a long way beyond dancing. Gertrude Lawrence, for instance, is one of the finest comediennes of the modern theater; and Ginger Rogers, who began her career by winning a Charleston contest, is of obvious importance on the screen.

Recently in Hollywood a number of ex-dancers, who have graduated to nonmusical stardom, have gone into their dance again, and not because they are being taunted, either. The legs of many a glamor gal are reappearing.

Joan Crawford's, for example. Joan, who began her stage career as a dancer in a Chicago revue in 1925, is hoofing again in Columbia's "He Kissed the Bride." It is the first screen dancing she has done since "Dancing Lady" in 1933. (If you remember that film, it was the one in which M-G-M gave a small part as a sort of tryout to a fellow from Broadway, name of Fred Astaire. Most of Astaire was dropped on the cutting room floor, and it remained for RKO to put him in "Flying Down to Rio" and start him going.)

In "He Kissed the Bride" Miss Crawford has had to learn how to jitterbug superlatively well in order to burlesque the dance on the screen. That's one thing about any kind of takeoff—you must be able to do a thing well before you can pretend to do it badly and make it look funny. Joan learned her stuff from Dell Collins and Jewel Gowan, "Jitterbug Aerial Champions of the Southwest." Thanks to long workouts at badminton, swimming, and ballroom dancing—the latter is her main hobby—Joan was in condition for the ordeal. Her legs were O.K. both as to strength and contour.

There are many other dancers who, having become straight players, have recently reverted to their first work. Ginger Rogers did a little hoofing in "Roxie Hart." Ann Sothern, who as Harriet Lake was a Broadway musical comedy heroine, mixes a few steps with song in "Panama Hattie" and in "Get Rich Quick Maisie."

• • •

George Raft was a night club dancer and reputedly the fastest Charleston exponent of 'em all; but in films he clicked as a slicker and a gangster. He has made only two dancing films, both with the late Carole Lombard, "Bolero" and "Rhumba." Today he is hoofing again in "Broadway."

His dancing in "Broadway" comes naturally, for as the picture begins he is playing himself, and he's on a vacation in New York. He visits the site of the night club where he used to work, and the watchman lets him in, and he remembers when he used to work in the now closed joint. Flashback—and Raft is back in the old days. In the film he does three dance numbers—the old strut, the Charleston, and a French tango. Raft's tango partner is a very young and very pretty ex-hoofer, Janet Blair, who came out to Hollywood to become a straight actress.

James Cagney, who wanted to become a pen-and-ink artist but who earned some of his first money playing semipro baseball, had no notion whatever of becoming a dancer or an actor. He even worked as a bellboy at the Friars club without ever wanting to go on the stage. His elder brother, Harry, got him interested in the Lenox Hill Players. He made his debut in a Chinese pantomime.

Cagney was earning $15 a week wrapping packages in a department store, and a pal of his at the store told him about a vaudeville dancing job that paid $25. Jim couldn't dance but wanted the job. His friend taught him a few steps, and he landed. He thought he was hired to be a chorus boy, but it was a female impersonation troupe, and two-fisted Jim became a chorus girl. After that episode he became a chorus boy in a musical titled "Pitter Patter," and his career had begun. Even after he had become established as a "legit" actor Cagney picked up side money by teaching in a tap dancing school.

Well, Cagney is hoofing again—as George M. Cohan in the story of Cohan's life, "Yankee Doodle Dandy." I think it is only the second film in which Jim has danced, the other being "Something to Sing About," which he made at Grand National in 1936, the time he was mad at Warners'.

Another pretty youngster—I was thinking of Janet Blair and not of Cagney—who has a dancing background and is now dancing for the screen is Joan Leslie. Joan is in a backstage story, "The Hard Way," at Warners'—and she has a big production number with 20 chorus boys.

For a long time two studios, Paramount and RKO, have been trying to get Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire back together again for another of their song and dance films. Twice recently it has almost come about, but twice it has failed. There have been reports that Ginger has refused to go back to the old stuff, but I think they are nonsense; she once told me she'd do a musical any time if the story looked right.

• • •

Of all of those who came to Hollywood as dancers few have remained such. Fred Astaire heads this list—and at the same time has established himself as a first-rate comedian. Rita Hayworth, ex-dancer, does some steps once in a while, but not always. She was Astaire's partner in "You'll Never Get Rich," and in the forthcoming "My Gal Sal" she has several numbers.

Once in a while the public keeps yelling for somebody to go into his dance—yelling in a complimentary way—until the studios are forced to take heed. George Murphy, for instance, was an able musical comedy man on Broadway and is now an able movie actor—but rarely has he been permitted anything but a straight part. He and his admiring public both get a break in the forthcoming Metro musical, "Me and My Gal," for he will do two song and dance routines with Judy Garland.

There are two ex-dancers who have become Hollywood stars but who have not yet done any turns for the films to speak of. They are Mary Martin and Myrna Loy. Maybe there's still a chance.

It is my hunch that Mary Martin would be a wow as a dancing star—as a new partner, say, for Fred Astaire. Mary started as a dancer—or rather as a teacher—in Texas and in Hollywood. But she never could crash the movies. When she did click she clicked as a singer in the Broadway show "Let's Face It," and Hollywood promptly brought her out here as a singer and comedienne.

YOUTH ON THE CAMPUS

By ELEANOR NANGLE

WHEN SPRING comes to Wellesley college the proximity to Boston and the breath-taking beauty of the hilly campus are formidable distractions. Harvard boys drift over in droves each week-end. Lake Waban and its green shores take on inviting loveliness, and there is an undercurrent of excitement about crew, float night, tree day, and the climax of commencement.

The exigencies of war have made this spring unlike all others in the memory of Wellesley women. Because of the tire shortage there is more bicycling than ever before along the winding paths that link the buildings fitted in so mellowly to the rolling contours of the campus. Air raid drill and blackout curtains are a matter of course. Boys come six to a car rather than singly, many of them in uniform, and partings for the duration are accepted with the stoicism that befits college girls who can claim Mme. Chiang Kai-shek as a sister in the Wellesley fold.

The girls, like the campus itself, change their aspect, too, when spring comes. The dungarees and rumpled trench coat that are the costume curse of girls' schools disappear and cotton dress or dirndl is substituted for the eternal skirt and sweater. The freshmen sport their newly won blue dinks as they pedal up the hill from their houses in the village.

A Milwaukee girl, Alathena Smith, will be mistress of tree day on May 17, a coveted honor won by popular vote of the senior class. Virginia Roberson of Gary, a junior, will be in the dance group. At Wellesley, as at other eastern schools, midwest girls are often outstanding for ability and popularity. Mimi Donovan of Chicago, now a senior, is distinguished on the campus as the chairman of the house presidents' council, one of the most important offices. Mimi is also a member of the Shakespeare society.

There are no sororities at Wellesley, only societies keyed to special interests such as modern literature, current events, music and art, or drama. These societies have lodges used only for social, recreational, or study purposes, not for living quarters.

One of the pleasantest buildings on the campus is the spanking new Simpson infirmary, modern as tomorrow and undoubtedly twice as pleasant as the prospect of that! There is a luxurious sun lounge on each of its four floors, sickrooms that are ultramodern in fixture and charm, and blackout curtains of such gay chintz they look frivolous. The Chicago Wellesley club furnished a room in the building.

In the library, incidentally, a prize collection is that of old cookbooks presented to Wellesley by Jane Eddington, who for many years was cooking editor of The Tribune and who willed her valuable assortments of cookbooks to her alma mater when she died a few years ago.

• • •

Wellesley will soon have its own radio station, as yet unnamed, with only campus-to-campus coverage, but pretty exciting for all that. Marian Prentiss of Columbus will be chief announcer. Operation of it will tie in nicely with some of the defense courses, many of them extracurricular, which almost every girl at Wellesley is taking. The average Wellesley girl has no illusions about the seriousness of this war or about the rôle she may play in it. Without affectation she is preparing for a useful future somewhere in the picture. She may, if she does not graduate this year, even find herself with two months free time to devote to war work this winter. Because Wellesley's heating plant operates on oil, there is a strong possibility that this year and for as long as the oil shortage exists the school may open early, close late, and shut down for two months in midwinter to save fuel.

No other leading dentifrice gives such Beauty to Teeth with such amazing Safety!

Wonderful new liquid dentifrice, Teel, cleans and beautifies your teeth in the safest way—without scouring ingredients!

You want your teeth to be sparkling, naturally bright. But you don't want temporary beauty at the expense of some lasting injury that will mar their loveliness. So read this carefully.

Recently, a leading dental journal published some important facts for dentists. This report shows that most leading dentifrices contain scouring materials. Tests reveal that these scouring ingredients can gradually cut grooves or cavities in the soft part of teeth along the gum line . . . when this part is exposed by receding gums, as so often happens. Then, all too often, teeth lose their beauty, may grow painful, require fillings.

Why Teel Avoids This Injury

Teel, the wonderful new liquid dentifrice, is completely different from all leading tooth pastes and powders. Not only because it is a liquid, but also because it contains no scouring ingredients. That's why, of all leading dentifrices today, Teel alone cannot cut ugly gum-line cavities in the exposed, soft part of your teeth.

Yet, Teel helps clean and brighten teeth thrillingly! Instead of scouring ingredients, liquid Teel uses a new-type, super-cleansing ingredient. Thus, Teel is safe as water on teeth. So for a naturally bright smile—and complete safety—switch to Teel. To further protect the beauty of your teeth, visit your dentist regularly.

Use this Teel method for removing stains!

Most people find Teel easily removes ordinary surface stains. Due to unusual mouth conditions, however, some find it difficult to remove these discolorations. Then occasional scouring may be needed.

For these people, we recommend: (1) Use Teel twice each day. (2) Use salt and soda or any ordinary dentifrice not more than once or twice a week. Remember—regular use of anything that scours may be dangerous to exposed, soft parts of teeth and cause serious trouble.

THIS SIMPLE TEST WILL TELL YOU WHETHER YOUR TEETH ARE IN DANGER!

Starting from the gums, run your fingernail up and down several teeth. If your nail catches on a groove near the gum, then you know the soft part is in danger. So choose your dentifrice carefully! Play safe! Start now to use Teel—new liquid dentifrice guaranteed to contain no scouring material.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS

ZACHARY TAYLOR, famous military leader and 12th President of the United States, was born in Orange county, Virginia, Sept. 24, 1784, the son of Richard Taylor, an officer of the Revolutionary war.

While Zachary still was an infant his family moved to Kentucky, where his father eventually was appointed by President Washington to the collectorship of the port of Louisville. Zachary grew up in Kentucky and in 1806 saw service as a volunteer soldier in a frontier force recruited to oppose Aaron Burr's militaristic schemes against the southwest.

Two years later President Jefferson gave Taylor a commission as a first lieutenant in the 7th infantry. He served in General Harrison's Indian campaign, and for his gallantry at the battle of Tippecanoe, May 7, 1811, he was promoted to captain. His further meritorious service against the Indians won for him a major's commission. At the close of the War of 1812, in which he saw service, he left the army, but in 1816 he reëntered it and was reappointed to his old rank.

For 20 years thereafter he was restricted to the monotony of garrison life at various posts except for a short period of action during the Black Hawk war in 1832. He entered the Seminole war in 1837, fought in the Everglades campaign, and emerged a brigadier general. In 1840 he was transferred to the command of the Louisiana department. He purchased a plantation at Baton Rouge and established a home.

When Texas became a state in 1845 he was sent to protect its southern border, and in the spring of 1846 he arrived at the mouth of the Rio Grande with a force of 3,000 men and established Fort Brown. Soon after the outbreak of the Mexican war on April 24 of the last-named year Taylor defeated a Mexican army at Palo Alto and at Resaca de la Palma and became a national hero.

President Polk put him in command of an army of invasion and elevated him to major general. When his troops captured the town of Monterey by bayonet assault he gained still more fame. His nickname, "Old Rough and Ready," was on every one's lips. He occupied Saltillo on Nov. 16, only to be notified that many of his soldiers were to be withdrawn from his force to take part in an invasion of Mexico led by Gen. Winfield Scott.

With the force that was left to him Taylor fell back to Monterey. Instead of remaining there, however, he advanced again when he received word that the Mexican general Santa Anna, with an army of 20,000, was approaching. On Feb. 22, 1847, Taylor, with a force only about one-fourth as strong as that of the enemy, met the Mexicans at Buena Vista and defeated them. This brought to an end Taylor's military career, but his fame as a warrior now projected him into the political arena.

Altho a slaveholder, he was a Whig in sympathy. At the Whig convention in 1848 he won the Presidential nomination over Clay, Webster, and Scott. As a result of a split in the Democratic party he was elected.

Being without experience in politics and lacking training as a civilian executive, Taylor was faced with perplexing problems in connection with the status of the territory acquired from Mexico as a result of the war. He urged the admission of California to statehood, but protested against the injection of the slavery issue into the situation. Southern leaders who had had visions of California as a slave state were aroused by the President's attitude. This caused Taylor to declare himself willing to accept any state admission law that congress chose to pass.

As a result of charges of irregularities in three government departments Taylor determined to reorganize his cabinet. Before he could carry out his plan completely, however, he was fatally stricken on July 4, 1850. He died five days later.

GOOD, NOT GOOEY

By MARY MEADE

THE RICH, sweet cakes which have spoiled our American appetites for too long a time are out now. When we want cake we'll take a simpler kind, a thin slice of old-fashioned pound cake with none of that gooey frosting on it, absolutely none!

If we are honest with ourselves we'll admit that we've overindulged in sweets for a long time and would be much healthier were we to acquire a sense of balance in our eating. Not that sweets should be eliminated — they shouldn't be — but they should be kept in their proper place, and of a sensible degree of sweetness. Honey pound cake is sensible, but it is delectable, too. It has a fine texture, a rich aroma, and, best of all, it keeps well. Frosting it would surely be gilding the lily. Pound cake never was meant to hide its light under a bushel of frosting.

HONEY POUND CAKE

(9x4-inch loaf, or medium tube pan)

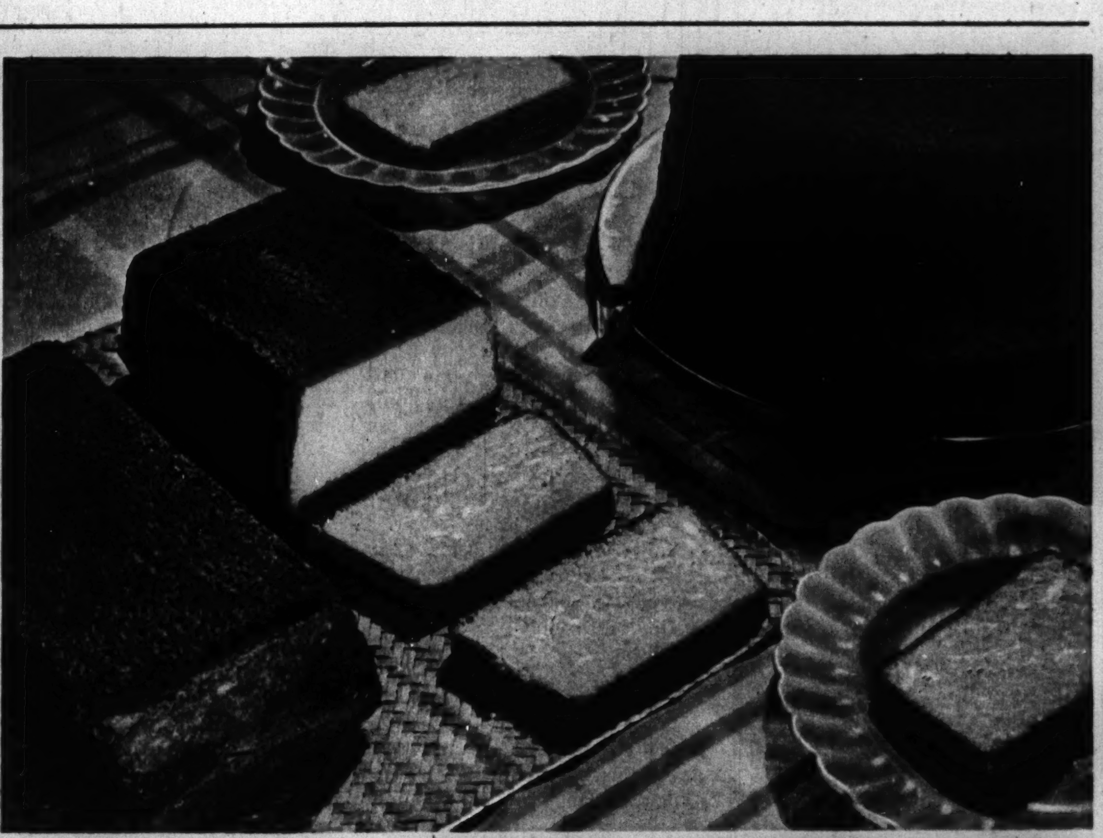
1 cup butter or margarine
½ cup honey
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
4 eggs (5 if small)
2¼ cups sifted cake flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ cup water

Cream the butter or margarine until it is soft and plastic. Add the sugar two tablespoons at a time, creaming thoroly after each addition. Add honey gradually, creaming thoroly after each portion. Add vanilla and lemon rind. Add unbeaten egg yolks one at a time and beat batter vigorously after each. Sift flour, baking powder, and salt together four times. Add flour mixture and water alternately to batter, beginning and ending with flour. Blend thoroly. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold in. Pour batter into greased, wax paper lined pan. Bake in a slow oven, 300-325 degrees, for 1¼ to 1½ hours. Cool on a rack about 15 minutes before removing cake from pan. Remove paper. Cool cake thoroly on rack before storing.

• • •

A cup of sugar may be used in place of the honey and sugar. If a pure fat such as lard or vegetable shortening is used to replace butter or margarine, use only ¾ cup.

If you are a cook who has crust-soaking problems with canned fruit pies, try this modified method with your next berry pie and I think you'll have better luck: Drain the juice from the fruit and add as much sugar as necessary to sweeten it, combined with as much cornstarch as necessary for thickening (¼ cup sugar may be sufficient if the fruit is in sirup; a tablespoon and a half of cornstarch for ¾ cup of juice is a good thickener) and cook in the top of a double boiler, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cool slightly, then mix with fruit, fill pie shell, top with upper crust, and bake as usual.



Honey pound cake is an old-fashioned teatime favorite.

THE CHARGE OF THE LIGHT BRIGADE

By ALFRED TENNYSON

Half a league, half a league,
Half a league onward,
All in the valley of Death
  Rode the six hundred.
"Forward the Light Brigade!
Charge for the guns!" he said.
Into the valley of Death
  Rode the six hundred.

"Forward the Light Brigade!"
Was there a man dismay'd?
Not tho' the soldier knew
  Some one had blunder'd.
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die.
Into the valley of Death
  Rode the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon in front of them
  Volley'd and thunder'd;
Storm'd at with shot and shell,
Boldly they rode and well,
Into the jaws of Death,
Into the mouth of hell
  Rode the six hundred.

Flash'd all their sabers bare,
Flash'd as they turn'd in air,
Sab'ring the gunners there,
Charging an army, while
  All the world wonder'd.
Plunged in the battery smoke,
Right thro' the line they broke;
Cossack and Russian
Reel'd from the saber stroke
  Shatter'd and sunder'd.
Then they rode back, but not,
  Not the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon behind them
Volley'd and thunder'd;
Storm'd at with shot and shell,
While horse and hero fell.
They that had fought so well
Came thro' the jaws of Death,
Back from the mouth of hell,
All that was left of them,

When can their glory fade?
O, the wild charge they made!
  All the world wonder'd.
Honor the charge they made!
Honor the Light Brigade,
  Noble six hundred!

WOMAN'S STRANGE ROLE IN JAPAN!

son of his concubine or with a prostitute."

The Japanese attitude toward woman is not limited to uneducated, backward classes. On the contrary, among the very poor the woman is almost an equal of her husband, privileged to work with him in the field or in the factory. It is among the wealthy that the caste system is most rigid. In 1927 the bureau of the imperial household made a survey of the 934 peerage families. It found that 60 per cent of the children had been born to concubines, and then were legitimized by adoption into the noble families.

In 1938, 56.78 per cent of all male births, 54.66 per cent of all female births in Japan were illegitimate. The Japanese year book glibly explains this high rate by saying that the children doubtless were born to couples who had merely neglected to register their marriage.

• • •

The Japanese auction of virgins, held at certain times of the year in some of the principal cities, the defloration ceremonies performed in the spring cherry festival under the supervision of Shinto priests, the whole brothel institution, with its payments to the government, the religious concept of the inferiority of women, all have contributed to the Japanese soldier's bestial attitude toward women that has found terrible expression in conquered Formosa, Corea, and China.

Japanese society has never attempted to enforce a sex discipline on men (with a few exceptions back in the 1600s) so long as they could pay for their excesses. Such licentiousness has been for years blatantly displayed even to tourists in the famous Kobe sex store and chains of similar establishments about the country. The catalogs of these houses, prized by the collectors of the lascivious and erotic, evidence a depraved ingenuity unknown to occidental civilization.

Not all of the enslaved Japanese women are in the homes and brothels. The weaving of cloth and allied pursuits have always been held beneath the dignity of the Japanese male, and the textile and related industries are largely staffed by women. Most of them work a few months in the factory, then marry and continue this outside work in their homes or in the small neighborhood factories popular in Japan.

In Tokio, where working conditions and pay are best, the women work 8½ to 10 hours for from 27 to 36 cents a day. There is no such thing as a five or six day week in Japan. Even before the outbreak of war with China in 1937, workers were given only one day off in each 14. Some of the better regulated factories, few in number, gave skilled women bonuses that doubled their pay, provided they could remain on the job long enough to obtain them.

Generally in Japan there is no pay scale. Workers engaged side by side in the same activity and with similar efficiency may receive vastly different payment. Outside Tokio, most factory girls work 10 hours a day and receive as little as 18 to 20 cents in wages.

On the farms, girls not sold to brothels must work or starve. Usually the Japanese farmer cannot earn enough to support himself and pay his taxes, so the work of women is directed toward increasing the cash income. This is accomplished by manufactures in the home. An average farm family, it is estimated, can earn about $56 a year in this manner. Some home factory workers do much better, by working 15 and 16 hours a day.

The heaviest, dirtiest, and lowest paid jobs in Japan are reserved for the Coreans, whose women inhabit the cheapest brothels. Japan has been steadily importing Coreans as semislave labor, and there are now about 500,000 in the country. The women are legitimate prey for the brothel owners, and the police make little or no effort to protect them from kidnaping. If the woman is not taken into a house of shame she can do servant work for the Japanese. Her pay is about $9 to $10 a month.

Living standards, of course, are very low in Japan. According to the Japanese year book of 1940, 36 per cent of all families, most of them numbering five persons, live in one or two rooms. (There is one category, numbering several thousand families, who are said to live in "one room or less.") These rooms are almost devoid of furniture or other comforts Japan might have had were it not necessary to supply the military caste with guns.

In recent years Japan has been worrying about its women. The government fears that long hours and malnutrition will render them incapable of producing healthy children. At one time there were even faint signs of women's movements pointed toward female emancipation. Like all other hints of liberalism in Japan, these were quickly crushed when war began with China.

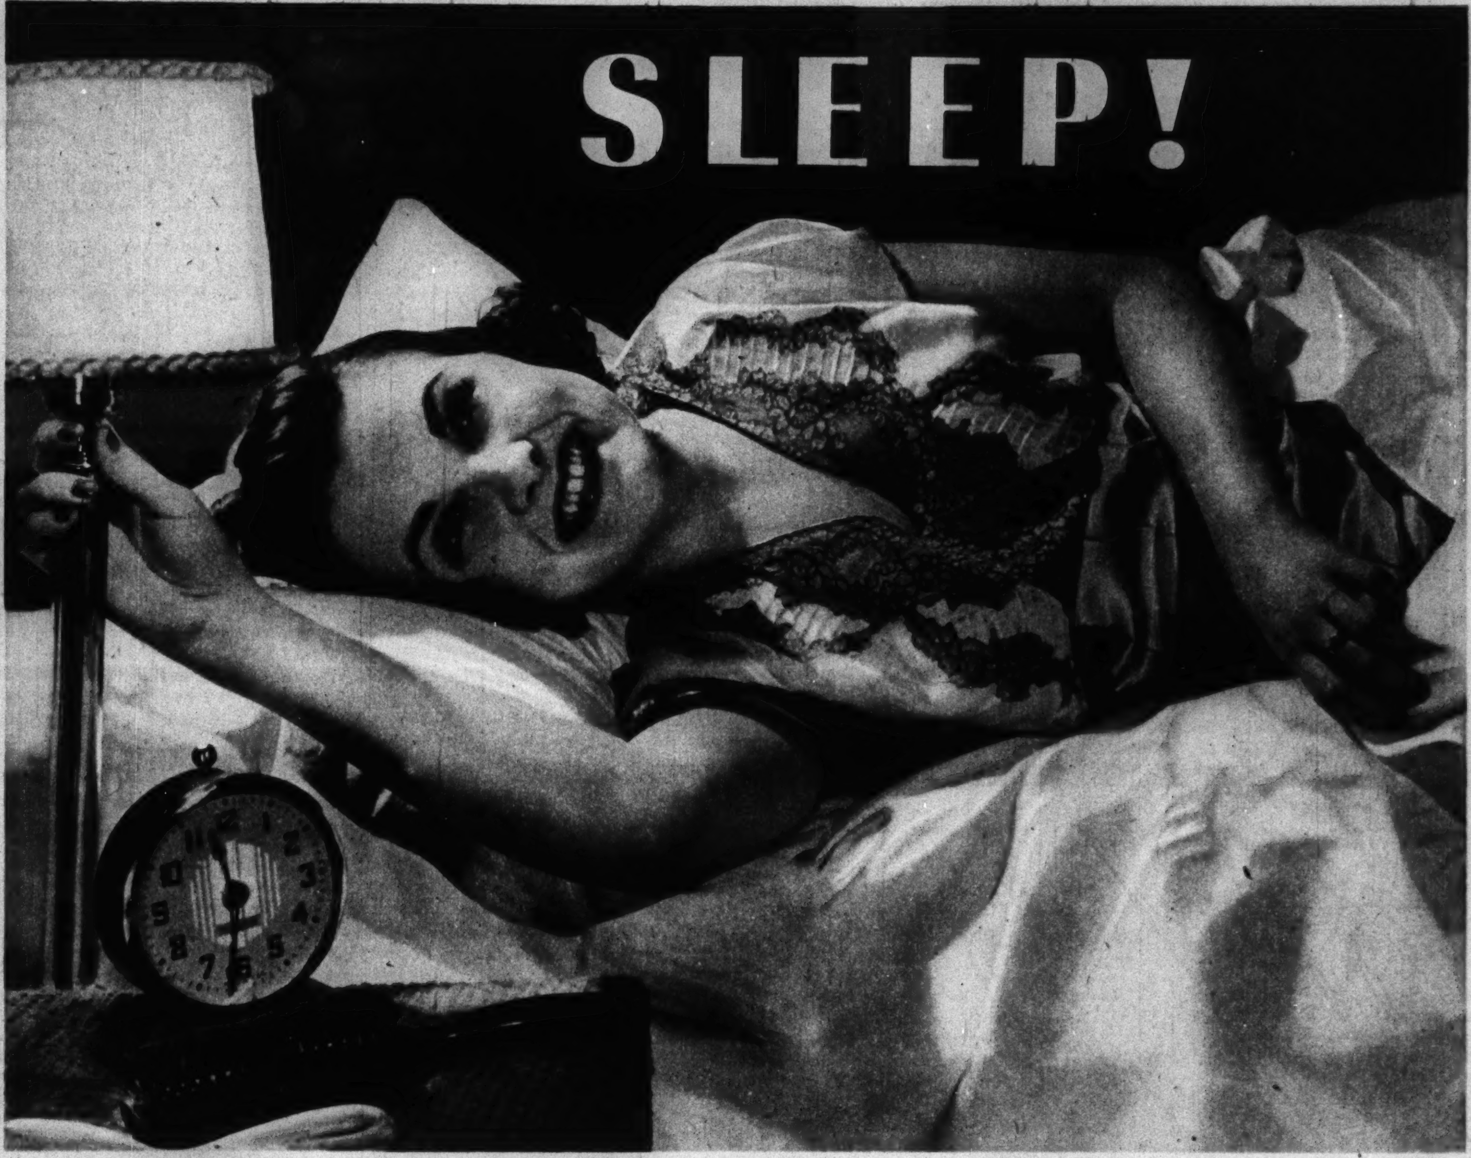
SLEEP!



(Tribune Studio photo.)
Adequate and regular hours of sleep are necessary for beauty. If you want to be bright-eyed and full of pep, plan your time to include enough hours for sleep.

By LOUISE DOOLEY

SLEEP is a beauty requisite which we believe does not get the attention it deserves. All the superficial beauty aids in the world are of no avail if adequate sleep and rest are not part of the daily program. Without proper sleep the complexion becomes gray and muddy looking, the body slumps, eyes are dull, and even the hair seems to appear limp and lifeless.

The amount of sleep needed to maintain good physical tone is best determined by the individual. We know of some human dynamos who can be bright-eyed with just six hours of sleep nightly. Eight hours, however, seems to be the average person's requirement, and 10 hours is necessary to keep others from falling asleep on their feet during the day.

It seems that the greatest difficulty in getting the proper amount of sleep is finding the time for it. We get so wound up in social engagements, interesting reading, or radio programs that we hate to call it a day and get off to bed; or maybe we're just afraid we might miss something. The only way to get the proper amount of sleep is to plan for it. It may mean foregoing some of our little pleasures, but it soon will be discovered that they were rather superfluous and that the pleasure of feeling wide-awake and fit more than compensates for them.

Lots of people complain that there is no sense in going to bed early, because they just lie awake and become restless. If sleep persistently evades us a doctor should be consulted, but most of the time it is just habit that keeps us awake. We get into bed and immediately begin to think over all the unpleasant or exciting things that have happened during the day, and naturally any inclination to sleep leaves us. Relaxation can be cultivated, sometimes by just thinking of relaxing and letting the body go limp, or maybe you'll have to baby yourself and mentally sing yourself a lullaby. It may sound silly, but it really works.

We're all conscious of a little more tension these days, and the need for soothing, renewing sleep is increased. We're called upon to assume more responsibility and duties and are expected to be alert and on our toes at all times. If we try to go on nervous energy alone we'll soon become a little frayed around the edges. To meet our new state and to maintain physical poise and beauty we'll have to be more careful than ever to get enough sleep every night of the week if possible, or at least five nights out of seven.

2 Mike insists the home is to be run his way, so of course Julie runs it her way. One night Mike comes home to find a party going on in celebration of the coming wedding of Larky (Ernest Truex) and Lydia (Una Merkel).

3 Among the guests is Nicolai Cherupin (Mischa Auer). Mike suspects an intrigue when he finds Nicolai and Julie together, and Nicolai's wife, Sonya (Glenda Farrell), clinches it by saying, "O, yes, Nikky is SUCH a Don Juan!"

4 Discovering that Nicolai and Sonya live in the same apartment building, Mike insists on moving. Julie gives in, but to punish Mike for playing the baby she installs twin beds and the argument continues.

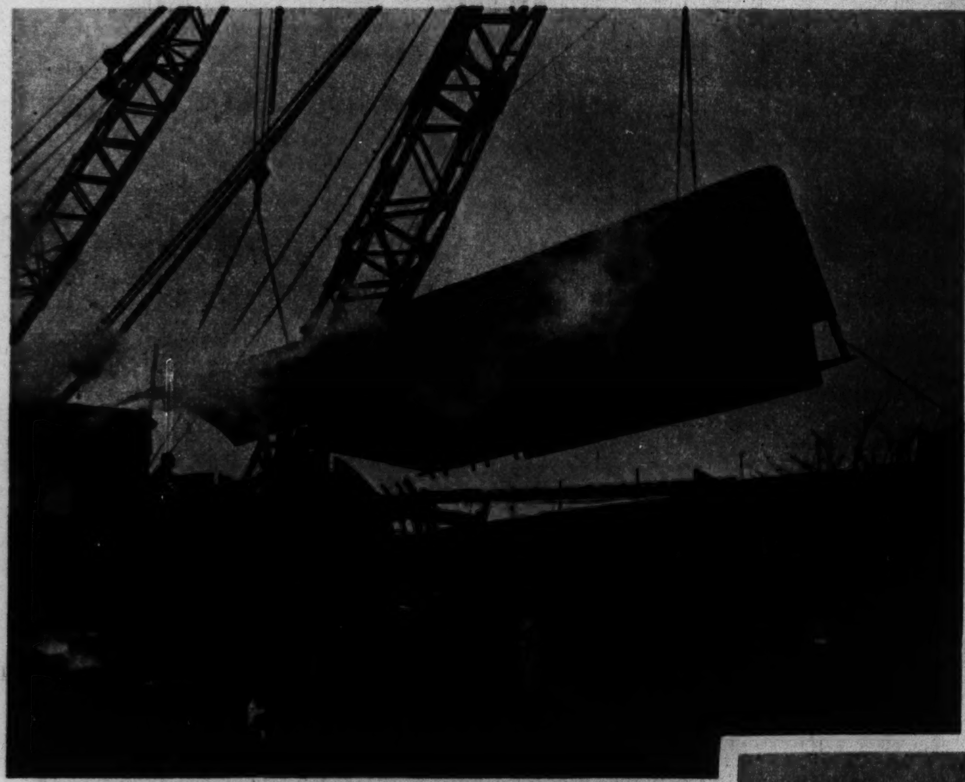
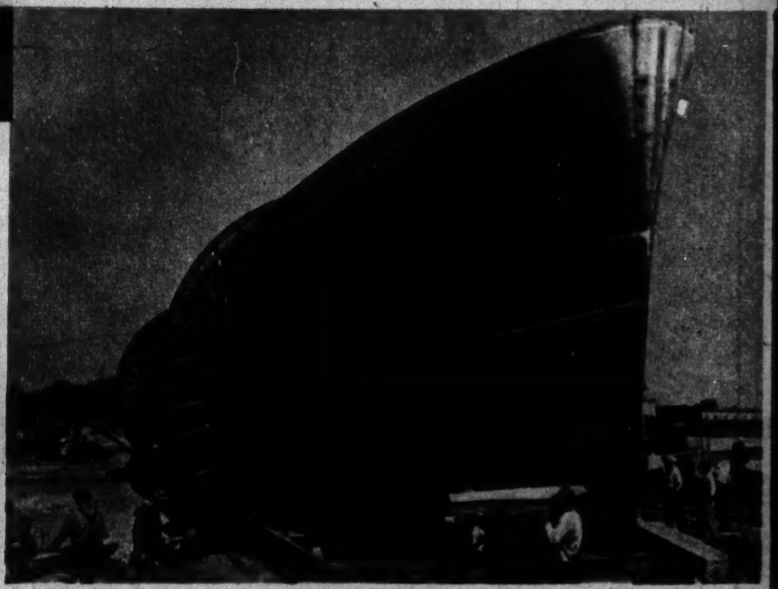
Upside-Down Ships



1 In the yards of the Defoe Shipbuilding company, Bay City, Mich., submarine chasers are being turned out at the rate of one a week. One factor in this speed is the unorthodox method of building the hulls upside down. Here a crane swings the prow section into position.

2 Upside-down construction permits "down hand welding," speedier than the overhead type necessary in orthodox hull construction. Here the finished hull is ready in huge rockers to be turned over.



3 At right above: Over in normal position, the hull now is ready for the superstructure.

4 At left: With assembly line efficiency the already fabricated superstructure is lifted into position by cranes.

5 Completed, the sub chaser is lowered into the water on a special launching table. Engineers claim the upside-down construction saves five weeks of time.

Canned Blueberry Pie

1½ cups canned blueberry juice
2½ cups canned blueberries
1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca or flour
Drain juice from blueberries
Boil juice down to ½ cup
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 recipe Spry Piecrust
2 tablespoons butter

Combine blueberries, juice, tapioca, lemon juice and salt and let stand while rolling pastry. Roll ½ of dough and line 9-inch pie plate. Fill pie shell with fruit. Dot with butter. Moisten edge with water. Roll remaining dough for top crust and cut a few slits to permit steam to escape. Fit top crust over fruit and seal edge of pie. Bake in hot oven (425° F.) 50 to 60 minutes.

Spry Piecrust

Mix 2¼ cups sifted ALL-PURPOSE FLOUR and 1 teaspoon SALT. Measure out ¾ cup SPRY and divide into two equal parts.

STEP 1 for tenderness—cut in first half of Spry until as fine as meal.

STEP 2 for flakiness—cut in remaining Spry until particles are size of large peas.

Add 5 tablespoons cold WATER (no more, no less), mixing thoroughly into a dough. Makes enough pastry for one 9-inch 2-crust pie.

But I think we'd better move to another apartment." "O, you do, do you?" Julie explodes. "If we move the twin beds go with us." And life is normally upset again. (THE END.)

Explosives Used in Modern War: Aerial Bombs

This is the final of four articles dealing with the types of explosives used in war. Earlier articles discussed propellants, primers, and detonators.

By CHARLES LEAVELLE

AMERICA'S longest range gun can drop a high explosive shell upon a target more than 20 miles away with commendable accuracy. America's mightiest bombing plane can drop a bomb of infinitely greater destructive force upon a target 1,500 miles away—with deadly accuracy.

In brief, the modern bombing plane is a new artillery piece that shoots half way across the continental United States; a gun whose crew directs its shots while within sight of the target rather than from beyond the horizon. The greater effectiveness of the bomber has become obvious even to the most casual of newspaper readers.

The correspondents and commentators, however, have largely neglected the great advance in the science of destruction that has attended the perfection of the airplane in war. This is the evolution in deadliness of the projectiles themselves.

A 2,000-pound bomb, for example, can carry more than twice the weight of high explosive contained in a 2,000-pound shell. This is a matter of necessity. The shell's steel case must be ponderous and of great strength to withstand the impact when the propelling charge explodes in the gun.

This impact is terrific. It has to be to drive a 2,000-pound projectile over a stretch of more than 20 miles in defiance of gravity. The bomb, on the other hand, harnesses gravity as its propelling force. When the trigger is released the bomb drops smoothly away toward the target.

The bomb case need be only heavy enough to effectively confine the charge for maximum explosive force and to prevent the projectile from going to pieces the instant it strikes. The exception is the armor-piercing bomb, whose case must be heavy enough to bite thru the target's tough protective covering without breaking up.

• • •

Thus it is seen that the growth of aerial warfare presents a vast field of opportunity to the science of explosives and projectiles. One of the most spectacular and devastating developments is the incendiary bomb which fell in thousands like fiery rain upon London and which in 1940 left great sections of the city in ashes.

Fire bombs are regarded as new, but they were conceived and manufactured in Germany in the last months of the World war, tho they were never put to use. Stores of them were found in Germany after the armistice. The incendiary as developed for this war is of light construction and small so that it can be carried in great numbers even in medium bombers.

It ranges in length from 18 inches to two feet and is about two inches in diameter. Total weight is approximately two pounds.

Half of this is thermite—a mixture of powdered aluminum and iron oxide (rust), which when ignited burns with a fierce flame almost impossible to extinguish. Molten iron is released in streams. The first incendiaries had aluminum cases with apertures thru which the flames flared.

Modern ones, however, have magnesium cases which burn with a blinding white light and add to the general effectiveness of the bomb. Hundreds of these fire starters can be carried in a single bombing plane. In one night in 1940 more than 20,000 fell on London. This number, evenly distributed over metropolitan Chicago, would place three incendiaries in most blocks and four in some.

Another development of the new air warfare is the dread delayed-action bomb, which can keep a city virtually in a state of siege for days. This is accomplished thru a time fuse that may be set to detonate the bomb many hours after it has been dropped. The strategy operates thus:

Wave after wave of bombing planes flash across the city, sowing time-fused explosives of all sizes. Each wave of planes is gone in three minutes or so—out of reach of anti-aircraft fire and fighter ships—leaving their deadly cargo scattered in alleys, streets, and yards.

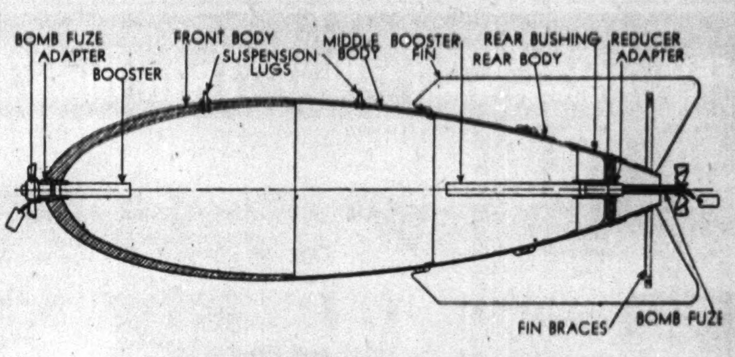
Then the explosions begin in all parts of the city. A series of detonations—then silence. An earth-shaking roar as a 2,000-pounder explodes; the crash of collapsing buildings—then silence. Areas into which the bigger bombs have struck must be evacuated except in the few instances when removal can be effected. And this endangers all neighborhoods thru which the big crumps must pass—as well as the removal crews.

In the last war only a hand wrench was needed to render the bombs harmless by unscrewing the nose fuses. Now, however, fuses are deep inside the projectiles and cannot be reached. In one type fuse a thin sheet of metal protects the detonator from a quantity of acid. When the acid eats thru the plate the bomb explodes. The thickness of the plate determines the time the explosion will be delayed.

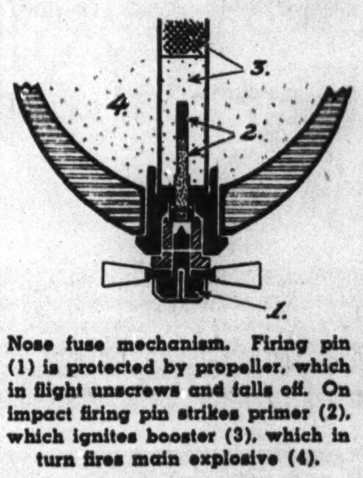
The deadly parachute land mine sometimes is equipped with as many as three fuses—instantaneous, delayed-action, and magnetic or sonic (which reacts to sound). The bombing crew can actuate any one of these before releasing the mine, and it generally is the instantaneous.

• • •

One of the few persons who has seen a land mine come to rest near him and has lived to tell about it is Capt. Maxwell M. Corpening of The Tribune's foreign staff. With other correspondents during the London bombings of 1940 he was watching an anti-aircraft battery blast at Nazi bombers overhead.



Construction of 600-pound demolition bomb.



Nose fuse mechanism. Firing pin (1) is protected by propeller, which in flight unscrews and falls off. On impact firing pin strikes primer (2), which ignites booster (3), which in turn fires main explosive (4).

Suddenly in the dim light of a quarter moon they saw the swiftly dropping parachute. A corporal's guard was ordered forward to capture the chutist. There was a thud 100 feet away and the chute collapsed.

"There it lay—a land mine—gleaming dully against the earth," Corpening said. "It was 18 or 20 inches in diameter and about eight feet long, weighing 1,500 or 2,000 pounds. It was slightly rounded at the ends and looked for all the world like the tank of a bathroom water heater. One of the British officers remarked, 'That one would be good for a city block.'"

The purpose of the parachute is twofold. It retards the rate of descent and prevents the mine from burying itself in the earth. Thus the explosion's shattering force flashes out horizontally, destroying objects and personnel within its range. In addition the soft landing prevents the bomb case from breaking upon impact.

The case is extremely thin and light in order that more than 90 per cent of the mine's weight may be in high explosive. A 2,000-pound land mine contains more than 1,800 pounds of TNT or amatol.

And there have been great advances in bomb fuses since the World war. All the larger bombs are fused with both nose and tail detonators. Upon impact the forward firing pin is driven back into the primer, which generally is mercury fulminate. This explodes, detonating the booster charge of highly sensitive tetryl or lead azide, which in turn sets off the more stable TNT or amatol of the main charge.

All this happens in a flash, of course. In the tail fuse the

MOSTLY ABOUT DOGS BY BOB BECKER

ALTHO forecasting which breeds dog owners will like or dislike at any particular time is a risky business, there are reasons for believing that this world-wide war may again put the spotlight on the shepherd, a sagacious, strong breed which the first World war lifted into tremendous popularity. Right now there is a demand for trained dogs for defense work. Among those called into action will be a goodly number of shepherds.

The quartermaster general of the army has notified American dog owners that he can use 200 well trained dogs for the work of "guarding the supplies gathered at depots all over the country." A special organization, Dogs for Defense, Inc., has been organized to obtain trained dogs for war service. Harry A. Caesar of New York, a director of the American Kennel club, has been chosen president.

Started several months ago, Dogs for Defense has speeded up its operations ever since Maj. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, the quartermaster general, commissioned the organization to supply the dogs for his command. The training committee has drafted instructions under which dogs can be trained for the army, and already volunteers have begun to school their canine pupils.

Sentry dogs will be required to heel, sit, stay, come when called, and give warning of strangers. They will be tested on their work under all kinds of distractions. A substantial portion of the training will be done at night, since it is at night that the services of sentry dogs are most needed. One of these trained dogs can extend the sentry's effectiveness by hundreds of feet because of its ability to see, hear, and smell what a human can't. Any dog owner who wants detailed information about this very worth-while movement to train dogs for war work should write Harry Caesar, Dogs for Defense, Inc., 590 Madison avenue, New York City.

Altho Dogs for Defense, Inc., has made no public announcement that it will take only certain breeds, it's significant that among the first dogs that will see duty as sentries in the east will be Afghans, shepherds, and Dobermans. Definite word on the use of these breeds has been received. These are pretty good-sized animals. They're fast, intelligent, and able to take care of themselves. Both the shepherd and the Doberman have been used for years for guard purposes, so it's no surprise that they are going to go into service. For sentry work alone some of the smaller breeds should be able to do a good job, because they can be taught obedience and they have the ears and the noses to help a sentry watch over his post.

In recent years the shepherd has been very much in the spotlight because many are used as companions and guides for the blind. Both the Seeing Eye, Morristown, N. J., and Julius Sinykin's Master Eye kennel at St. Paul have been training shepherds for this special service. Muscular, firmly knit, and of medium weight, the shepherd has been developed to a point of almost ideal fitness for guide work and also for sentry and guard duty. Loyal, courageous, and possessing the ability to absorb training for special services, this breed is bound to see much service in the months to come. That the shepherd has outstanding qualities no one can deny after investigating what a guide dog must do. He must and does exhibit a high order of intelligence involving the qualities of observation, patience, and even the exercise of judgment.

An unusual photo of Lhasa terrier puppies owned by Miss Lee Stillwagon, Evanston, Ill. The sire of this litter was imported from its native Tibet, having been owned by a high lama.

A common error is that of calling the German shepherd a police dog. The breed's official name is German shepherd, altho it commonly is referred to in this country as a shepherd and in England as an Alsatian. The term police dog should be reserved for dogs, regardless of breed, which are trained to aid the police.

The German shepherd today is a triumph in selective breeding. Even the naturally easy trot of this dog has been brought to a high degree of nearly effortless motion. The conformation of the animal has been modified so as to increase the power and elasticity of its gait. Another excellent point about this smart breed is its double coat to protect it in all weathers.

BABY, TAKE A BOW!

express thoughts and ideas, because the brain is growing. The emotions must be guided wisely so that fear shall be banished and natural, spontaneous impulses abound.

As a rule wailing means something. More often than not it implies discomfort or hunger. There must be ample nutriment for growth, for the energy needed for movements, and for the lengthening of the bones and their firm character.

However, altho the quantity of edibles may be adequate, some important element may be lacking. If we neglect a single essential, such as vitamin D, we may handicap our offspring with a crooked skeleton and fragile teeth. The existence of rickets means that the child has secured a poor start. It has been estimated that even with our vaunted knowledge one-half of the children born within the temperate zone suffer from this disorder—at least to some extent—during the first two years of life.

Unfortunately, the ravages of this malady do not confine themselves to bones alone. The nervous system, the muscles, and the blood-making organs may suffer because the tissues cannot handle calcium and phosphorus—two vital building stones to good health. Luckily, we have milk enriched with vitamin D, cod liver oil, and sunlight immediately at hand.

No, there is no excuse for deficiency ailments. The required foods are so plentiful and so cheap that about all a mother needs to do is to keep away from fads, shun the counsel of "all-wise" neighbors, and adhere to the program prescribed by the family physician.

No longer do we need to fear the widespread contagious maladies of a generation ago. We vaccinate against scarlet fever, diphtheria, smallpox, whooping cough, and lockjaw. The protective procedures may begin at the age of 6 months. This plan will save many a bout with dangerous diseases. Clean foods have decreased the number of cases of "summer diarrhea," while the avoidance of infections has made life safer. Best of all, complications—such as ear, heart, and kidney involvements—are far less frequent.

Within recent years much has been done to ward off behavior problems. There will be none if parents are normally interested and are willing to give a generous amount of time to training. If every girl were obliged to "jes' grow"—like Topsy—we would produce all too many bizarre personalities. But youngsters are reasonable and responsive. Above all, they will follow a good example. While overmothering should be avoided, let us hope that embarrassment will never preclude those intimate conferences so necessary to the building of character. If mother is wise and understanding the child will go forth stronger for her counsel.

But what question boxes these prattlers are! Reply brusquely and they will close up like clams and become more and more introspective. Answer intelligently and they will become thinking individuals, able to take their share of the world's rebuffs when that time arrives.

• • •

Shall we not give to our youngsters the same freedom to frolic and play, the same opportunities for happiness, the same contacts with sunshine and fresh air that we offer animals on the farm?

But let's not boo or coo at Lucille to make her smile just because we want to make an impression on Uncle George, who is rich, and Aunt Gwendolyn, who owns a string of matchless pearls. Parents are not keepers of a zoo.

SCIENCE

Photographs of modern bombs, showing what appear to be tiny propellers at either end, have given rise among laymen to some fairly fanciful speculations. Actually these are not propellers but wind vanes whose hubs are metallic caps that protect the firing pins. When a bomb starts downward the air resistance spins the wind vane and unscrews the cap, which falls away, leaving the firing pin exposed.

The vanes are locked by loops of wire until shortly before they are to be released. This is a precaution against the possibility that an emergency might necessitate dropping the bomb load on friendly territory.

The heavy armor-piercing bomb is the only one actuated solely by a tail fuse. This is to avoid shattering of a nose fuse assembly by the terrific impact with armor and to permit the nose to be forged into a single heavy, pointed tip.

In the armor-piercing bomb also it is the practice to block the primer train with pellets of slow-burning powder. This delays the explosion from a half to one second, giving the projectile time to crash thru the deck covering (in the case of a ship) and explode among fuel tanks or in a magazine. Armor-piercing shells are similarly built.

• • •

The 30-pound fragmentation bomb uses only a nose fuse. It is for use against living targets and so is designed to burst instantaneously and upon the surface. Besides the fragmentation, demolition, armor-piercing, and incendiary bombs there is only one other type—the chemical or gas bomb—and it has not figured in the war yet.

Some of the advances in destruction made possible by air warfare have been adapted to ordinary artillery shells. Some demolition shells, for example, now set fires about the scene of the explosion. Corresponding to the fragmentation bomb, there is the fragmentation shell.

But in one instance at least progress in destruction has been served by reviving a long-discarded weapon—cannister. Cannister at its best is a quantity of steel or leaden balls contained in a can which is fired at massed troops from an artillery piece. The can disintegrates shortly after leaving the gun and the balls scatter over a wide area with withering effect.

In emergency cannister may consist of anything at hand—nuts, bolts, rocks, nails, pieces of chain—anything. In the Philippines recently an American-made sewing machine screwdriver was taken from the wound of an American soldier. Apparently it had been sold as scrap to the Japs.

Thus the science of explosives and devastation grows on, nearly seven centuries after the time of the two humble monastic scientists—one German, the other English—who gave it birth A. D. 1264 and 1313.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

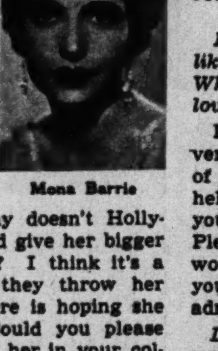
Mae Tinée: Will you please advise me thru your column how I may obtain a picture of Gene Tierney? Thank you. Very truly yours,

M. R. K.

Dear M. R. K.: I'll give you the formula for obtaining a photo. Whether it works depends on the conscientiousness of recipients of a request. Write to Twentieth Century-Fox studio, Beverly Hills, Cal., inclosing a quarter, for a photograph of Gene Tierney.

Dear Miss Tinée: Not so very long ago I saw the picture "Skylark." In parts it was a bit overdone, but in the picture my eyes kept casting at a beautiful vision. Her name is Mona Barrie. Now, there is an actress and truly beautiful woman, but she was thought of as only a part of the scenery. Why doesn't Hollywood wake up and give her bigger and better parts? I think it's a shame the way they throw her around. Well, here is hoping she gets a break. Could you please print a picture of her in your column? O, and tell me a little about her. Good luck to you and your column. I remain,

OLIVIA.



Mona Barrie

Dear Olivia: Between you and me, I don't believe Mona'd let anybody throw her around much! Yes, she's a fine actress. She was born in London, England, Dec. 18, 1909. Educated at a convent in Sydney, Australia. Appeared on the stage before entering motion pictures. Married. Thanks, and come again!

Dear Miss Tinée: The best movie fan is the guy who can't stand a steady flow of what Hollywood chooses to give him. The best movie fan wants his films with a wide variety. He will even go for foreign films for a while to get rid of the Hollywood taste now and then. And finally he is likely to change completely into that special kind of fan, the newsreel regular—an hour of real life on the reel. Yours truly,

CARL PETERSON.

Dear Mr. Peterson: It seems like you have said a mouthful. What especially has turned your love to hate?

Dear Miss Tinée: I would like very much to have a large picture of Glenn Ford. As you have helped me out before, I thought you might be able to help me now. Please let me know how much it would cost to get a photo. I thank you very much. Your friend and admirer,

MILDRED GOEBEL.

Dear Miss Goebel: You can write to Columbia studio, 1438 Gower street, Hollywood, Cal., for a photograph of Glenn Ford. The usual cost for pictures is 25 cents. (Sometimes, I regret to say, the studios do not respond—or return your money.)

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.

If you want to capture action you must use a relatively fast shutter. This forces you to open up the lens so that enough light is admitted to make a correct exposure; but the wide-open lens, in this case f:5.6, reduces the overall sharpness—the "depth of field"—of the picture.

Every detail in this picture is sharp because the lens diaphragm was stopped down to f:16. This would have called for a long exposure, but the photographer used a flash bulb which permitted shooting at 1/200 sec. even tho the lens was stopped down.

Secret of Proper Exposure

LACK OF SHARPNESS and wrong exposure are the two factors responsible for most poor snapshots made by amateur photographers. Recently we discussed the question of how to take sharp pictures and pointed out that in addition to careful focusing the proper use of the lens diaphragm can greatly aid in getting sharp pictures. Now let us look at the matter of exposure.

The term exposure means in photography to allow light to reach the film (or sensitized paper). When you take the picture you snap the shutter on the camera and allow light to pass thru the lens for a brief period of time and to reach the film. Even tho shutters are set and exposures are measured in seconds and fractions of seconds, it is always the amount of light actually reaching the film which determines the exposure.

It is good always to remember this, because a long exposure in weak light can give you exactly the same picture as a short exposure in strong light. Thus a long time exposure in moonlight gives the same effect as a short "instantaneous" exposure of the identical scene in bright daylight—provided there are no moving objects in the scene.

If you compare the shutter of your camera with a faucet and the light with running water, the length of time for which the faucet is open determines the amount of water passing thru it, and the shutter speed you use regulates the amount of light going thru the lens. But what counts is not only for how long a time the faucet is open but also how wide it has been opened. In the case of the camera this opening is determined by the lens diaphragm. A large opening will pass a lot of light, a small opening will cut down on the volume.

Few beginners realize that that their cameras have this double control for correct exposure. They try to time their exposure with the shutter only, while in reality it is always the combination of shutter speed and diaphragm opening which determines the exposure given to the film. The shutter speeds are marked in fractions of seconds, and it is easy to see how much more light one setting admits than the other. In the case of the diaphragm, starting with the largest opening, each successive stop admits half as much light as the preceding one.

• • •

From this it is obvious that you can pass the same amount of light thru your lens—and give a correct exposure—by using any one of many possible combinations of shutter speeds and diaphragm openings. Which combination should you use, and why was it necessary to equip your camera with such seemingly complicated sliding scales?

In some cases it makes little or no practical difference which of these possible combinations you use. In other instances it makes a world of difference.

If you photograph action you must choose fast shutter speeds, fast enough to stop the motion of your subject. But because a certain amount of light must pass thru your lens to give a well exposed picture, you must compensate for the fast shutter speed by using a larger lens diaphragm opening. Whenever you photograph moving objects your starting point will be the choice of the right shutter speed to stop the action.

If your main objective is to take a picture in which as much as possible of the subject and its surroundings appear in sharp focus, you will have to use a small diaphragm opening, because such small lens openings give you greater "depth of field." Your starting point in such cases will be to determine the diaphragm setting to use. When you have made your choice you will have to set the shutter for a relatively long exposure, because a long exposure will have to compensate for the reduced amount of light passing thru the small diaphragm opening.

UNCLE SAM WANTS WHO?

THIS IS ANOTHER IN A SERIES OF STORIES DRAMATIZING EVERYDAY PROBLEMS OF YOUNG AMERICA

By MAUREEN DALY

"Get that moon glow out of your eyes, Lynn. You're almost shedding sparks."

(Tribune Studio photos.)

"All I can say is that I am proud of him and I am glad he is going."

TOM WOODS pushed open the door of the drugstore, shoved hurriedly by the soda clerk, balancing three glasses on a tray, brushed past a tiered display of fancy-boxed bath powder to the tables where the senior class crowd from East Township High school were talking and laughing over their after-school cokes. "Hey, kids, have you heard?" he exclaimed, his voice jerky with excitement. "Hank Tully is quitting school to join the army!"

Dick was standing with Lynn Taylor beside the jukebox, and he stopped short, nickel in hand and his finger poised over "Blues in the Night." Every one was silent a moment before Dick echoed in amazement, "To join the army!" and dropped his nickel mechanically into the music machine.

The air was suddenly serious despite the cloud of cigaret smoke curling up like gray feathers and the incessant noise of the jukebox jive. The war had been big in the headlines and loud on the radio; an occasional elder brother or perhaps a next-door neighbor had been drafted, but this was the first time the war had touched one of the boys still in high school.

"It's just this," Jack went on in a worried voice. "Hank says we're in this war, and he's as much an American as any one, and he can't just sit around doing nothing when he feels his country needs him." There was a strained silence while the other broad-shouldered, crew-cut senior boys felt uneasy consciences pricking because they had been content to stay at home playing basketball, collecting swing records, and finishing school; willing to wait until they were 20.

Lynn Taylor ran her fingers thru the soft fluff of her lovely hair and said with petulant pride, "All I can say is that I am proud of him and I am glad he is going." Dick busied himself with a cigaret, pretending not to hear. "Even if I was going to ask him to the next sweater dance," Lynn muttered.

The music had played itself out, and some one suggested, "How about feeding that beat box?" but the remark went unnoticed.

"I think it's swell about his joining," one of the fellows who had played first string football with Hank spoke up, "but he isn't old enough, is he?"

"He got his mother's permission," Jack answered, taking a sip of Ginie's coke. "Ever since his father died she does anything Hank wants — and she doesn't want to stand in his way if it's what he really wants to do."

Lynn had been working up a dramatic red, white, and blue spirit and said heatedly: "That's what this country needs—more young fellows willing to fight and to make sacrifices. Why, if I had——"

"O.K., Betsy Ross," Dick interrupted, his voice edged with sarcasm, "but who's going to take over Hank's job at the grocery store when he's gone? He's been working after school and week-ends, you know, and except for what he makes his mother and young sister don't have much income to live on."

"Yeah, and who is going to be president of the Chemistry club when he's gone?" one of the girls added. "No one is as good at chemistry as Hank, and just when he was getting everything started, too."

The conversation tapered off into a gloomy silence, with puzzled, discontented thoughts going on in it. Most of the boys were contemplating the best way to broach the army subject to their dads that night, and Lynn Taylor was conjuring up a beautiful dream about herself and big Hank Tully, tanned and handsome in his uniform, when he came home on his first furlough.

Dick nudged her. "Get that moon glow out of your eyes, Lynn," he said. "You're almost shedding sparks!"

Hank's friend from the football team spoke up again. "How about the class getting up a party for Hank before he goes?" he asked. "That's the least we can do."

Jack nodded in agreement. "We can all plan something together. Hank says he won't be going till next week anyway. Ginie, you are class treasurer, so you can collect 15 cents from every one in the class and we'll do this thing up right."

"Hank and I both came to our senses."

The crowd was quiet again, mulling over thoughts that ranged from army uniforms to who would be the best date when Hank Tully was gone. Then Jack looked at his wrist watch. "Time for supper," he said. "I've got dad's car outside. Can I drop off any one going my way?"

They crowded out of the drugstore and packed two deep in the car, and Jack started the motor, pulling away from the curb so that the tires screeched against the cement. "Don't drive me hard, for when I'm old I can't re-tire!" some one quipped, but the others were so busy thinking about Hank and the army that no one even bothered to laugh.

• • •

The party was to be held in the school gym, and the volunteer committee of Ginie and her friends had spent the afternoon cutting strips of crêpe paper and tacking up red, white, and blue bunting. The school swing band was going to play, and besides the money collected for the cokes for refreshments there was $5 left over to present to Hank to buy himself a remembrance from the class.

After the last class that afternoon Hank said to Jack: "Come on down to the chemistry lab with me, will you? I want to get some of my books I left there, and I'd like to say good-by to Mr. Rodd. He was the best teacher I ever had."

The laboratory was quiet, and the late afternoon sunlight lay in ribbons on the floor where it crept in beneath the drawn window shades. The unlit Bunsen burners sat on the empty desks like wickless candles, and half-filled bottles of chemicals neatly lined the shelf. "I'm going to miss all this," Hank said softly.

Mr. Rodd was in his smaller laboratory off the classroom, carefully measuring out quantities of liquid into test tubes, his lips pursed intently, whistling softly as he worked. He took off his glasses and held out his hand when he saw the boys come in. "Glad you stopped to see me, Hank," he said. "Was afraid you might slip off without stopping in to see how these experiments were coming along."

He turned back to his test tubes. "You know," he said, almost to himself, "it's in the workshops and the laboratories that this war is going to be won." And he picked up a tube, holding it to the light.

"But this country needs men to fight, too," Hank said sharply, suddenly on the defensive.

"Of course, of course," said Mr. Rodd calmly. "It needs men for its tanks and for its guns; it needs men for its airplanes and its parachutes; and it also needs men in its factories and its chemistry laboratories. Some men have aptitudes for certain things. It should be thought out carefully." He set the test tube back in its rack and faced Hank squarely.

"I just corrected your last chemistry exam today," he said. "You did a good job, my boy."

• • •

Almost half an hour later Mr. Rodd and the boys were still talking, and the party in the gym was getting restless, waiting for its honor guest. "Maybe he scuttled himself," Lynn suggested, readjusting the bow in her hair.

"I'll go look," some one volunteered, and just at that moment Jack stuck his head in the door, signaling to Ginie. She stepped outside, and in a few moments she and Jack came in again. Ginie walked over to the orchestra microphone, and the drums rolled out a signal for silence.

For a moment she stood thoughtfully fingering the crêpe paper which decorated the mike. "Kids," she said, "I want to tell you something, and I hope you'll understand." A murmur ran thru the crowd. "Hank Tully is not going to leave! At least, not yet."

The room was breathlessly silent. Even Lynn Taylor could think of nothing to say. Jack pushed his way to the microphone beside Ginie. "It is all really very simple," he said quietly. "This is what brews: Mr. Rodd just explained it to Hank and me, and he and I both —and probably the rest of you fellows — came to our senses. This country needs men, but we're not really men yet. What this country needs most is people who will do the job they ought to do and do it well. Hank is a wiz at chemistry. That's his job, and he's going to see it thru."

No one moved or said a word till Ginie, laughing, broke the tension and said in her soft voice: "What are we all standing round for? Get the music started before Hank comes in. And those bottles must be ice cold by now. We really have something big to celebrate—we all came to our senses!

"And one thing more," she added. "Jack gave Hank the $5 we collected for him anyhow. He says he's going to buy something for the whole class to remember. He's going to turn it into defense stamps right away!"

The band broke into "Miss You," and Jack and Ginie began to dance. Others joined them, and the red, white, and blue crêpe paper decorations swayed in the breeze from the movement. Lynn Taylor fluffed out her hair with her fingers and said to the girl who happened to be standing next to her, "He certainly would have looked good in a uniform, but I guess I'll ask Hank Tully to that sweater dance after all!"

Don't Be Fat!

HERE'S THE MOST AMAZING WAY TO LOSE WEIGHT YOU'VE EVER READ ABOUT

No Strict Diet Lists; No Strenuous Exercises; No Distasteful Drugs In every section of the country today, women have marveled at the wonders of a safe, easy reducing method—which requires no strict diet lists; no strenuous exercises; no drugs. Increases energy as weight goes down. It's the identical method Dr. Damrau of New York used in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, and was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month.

Unbelievably Easy To Follow

All you do is mix ¾ glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Then eat sensibly—which means you avoid overeating; thus reducing caloric intake considerably. Then this happens: First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire for fattening foods—but you needn't suffer a hungry moment. Second, the natural dextrose in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process not only aids nature in consuming excess fat but also increases your energy.

That is why weight is lost naturally; why you not only look better but actually feel better; have more energy.

Do This One Important Thing!

Be sure to use only genuine Welch's Grape Juice, selected by Dr. Damrau in his convincing test. Because Welch's is always full strength, it is delicious when diluted—very economical to use. Start this proved reducing method today and watch your energy go up as your weight goes down.

Sensational Facts About Amazing Welch Way To Reduce

Dr. Frederic Damrau of New York made a revealing test on a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed his instructions implicitly. THE GUMPS
THE PIRATES' TREASURE MAP!
GUS EDSON
COUSIN JUNIPER! DO YOU THINK IT'S A REAL TREASURE MAP?!
AYE, LAD - THAT I DO! LOOK - THERE'S THE SIGNATURE OF MORGAN, THE PIRATE!
GOSH! DO YOU THINK THE TREASURE IS WORTH AS MUCH AS A MILLION DOLLARS? THINK OF ALL THE ICE CREAM THAT COULD BUY!
LET'S NOT COUNT OUR FORTUNE BEFORE WE FIND IT, CHESTER!
READING THIS MAP IS NOT ESPECIALLY EASY - IT IS FULL OF ANCIENT SYMBOLS AND THE NAMES OF PLACES MENTIONED ARE NOT PROBABLY THE SAME AS THEY ARE KNOWN BY TODAY -
BUT, LOOK! THE LATITUDE AND LONGITUDE PARALLELS ARE DRAWN ALONG THE MARGINS - TRUE ENOUGH - BUT THE NUMBERS ARE SMUDGED, AND THE PIRATE FORGOT TO INDICATE THE SCALE OF MILES THE MAP IS DRAWN TO -
- AND YET, THIS RIVER CALLED "DEEPE RIVER" ON THE MAP LOOKS LIKE THIS RIVER NEARBY - "MUDDY RIVER"!
AND THAT ISLAND CALLED "BRAZOS" IS SHAPED JUST LIKE "MIDSTREAM" ISLAND, A MILE UP THE BEND!
BELAY ME, CHESTER - THAT'S RIGHT! THIS "X" MARKS THE SPOT WHERE THE TREASURE IS BURIED - AND IT'S LOCATED RIGHT IN THE MIDDLE OF THE RIVER - BETWEEN MIDSTREAM ISLAND AND THE RIGHT BANK!
GEE! THE RIVER IS ABOUT 50 FEET DEEP AT THAT POINT! WE'LL NEVER BE ABLE TO GET TO THE BOTTOM TO DIG FOR TREASURE!
THAT'S WHAT YOU THINK, LAD! COME! LET'S GET BACK HOME - I'VE GOT A BIG SURPRISE FOR YOU!
AYE, LAD! THE LONGER YOU KNOW YOUR OLD COUSIN JUNIPER, THE MORE YOU'LL RESPECT HIS ABILITIES!
SEVERAL HOURS LATER, CHESTER AND HIS COUSIN ARRIVE HOME AND GO IMMEDIATELY TO JUNIPER'S ROOM.....
AND NOW TO OPEN MY SEA CHEST!

- AND HERE IS MY DIVER'S HELMET! I'M KNOWN AS THE BEST PEARL-DIVER IN THE LESSER ANTILLES!
HOORAY! WE'LL START FIRST THING IN THE MORNING!

SPRING CLEANING

LEAVES had begun to appear on the rose bush under which the Teenie Weenie village stood. Tiny green shoots of grass covered the ground, and an occasional frog could be heard croaking from the creek nearby. The Dunce had been lazier than usual, and all the Teenie Weenies knew that Spring had come.

"We must start house cleaning soon," announced the Lady of Fashion one evening when several of the little people were sitting on their tiny front porch.

"Oh, shucks!" groaned the Dunce. "What do you want to clean house for? You're all the time cleaning house."

"Why, the place is filthy!" exclaimed the Lady of Fashion. "Everything has to be aired and cleaned, and this nice weather is just the time to do it."

"That's right," put in the General, "and the sooner we start it the better. Why not start it in the morning and get it over."

"I was hoping you would say that, General," said the Lady of Fashion. "I am ready to start tomorrow."

"Then tomorrow it is," agreed the General. "Every one will report to the Lady of Fashion right after breakfast."

After an early breakfast of frog ham and corn bread, the Teenie Weenies went into action the following morning. All the tiny rugs were taken outside, and Gogo, the Cowboy, and the Dunce beat them with stout wooden toothpicks until there wasn't a speck of dust left. The Teenie Weenie mattresses were taken off the beds, carried out and thoroughly sunned. Curtains and blankets were hung on a line to air. Every piece of Teenie Weenie furniture was washed and polished until it sparkled.

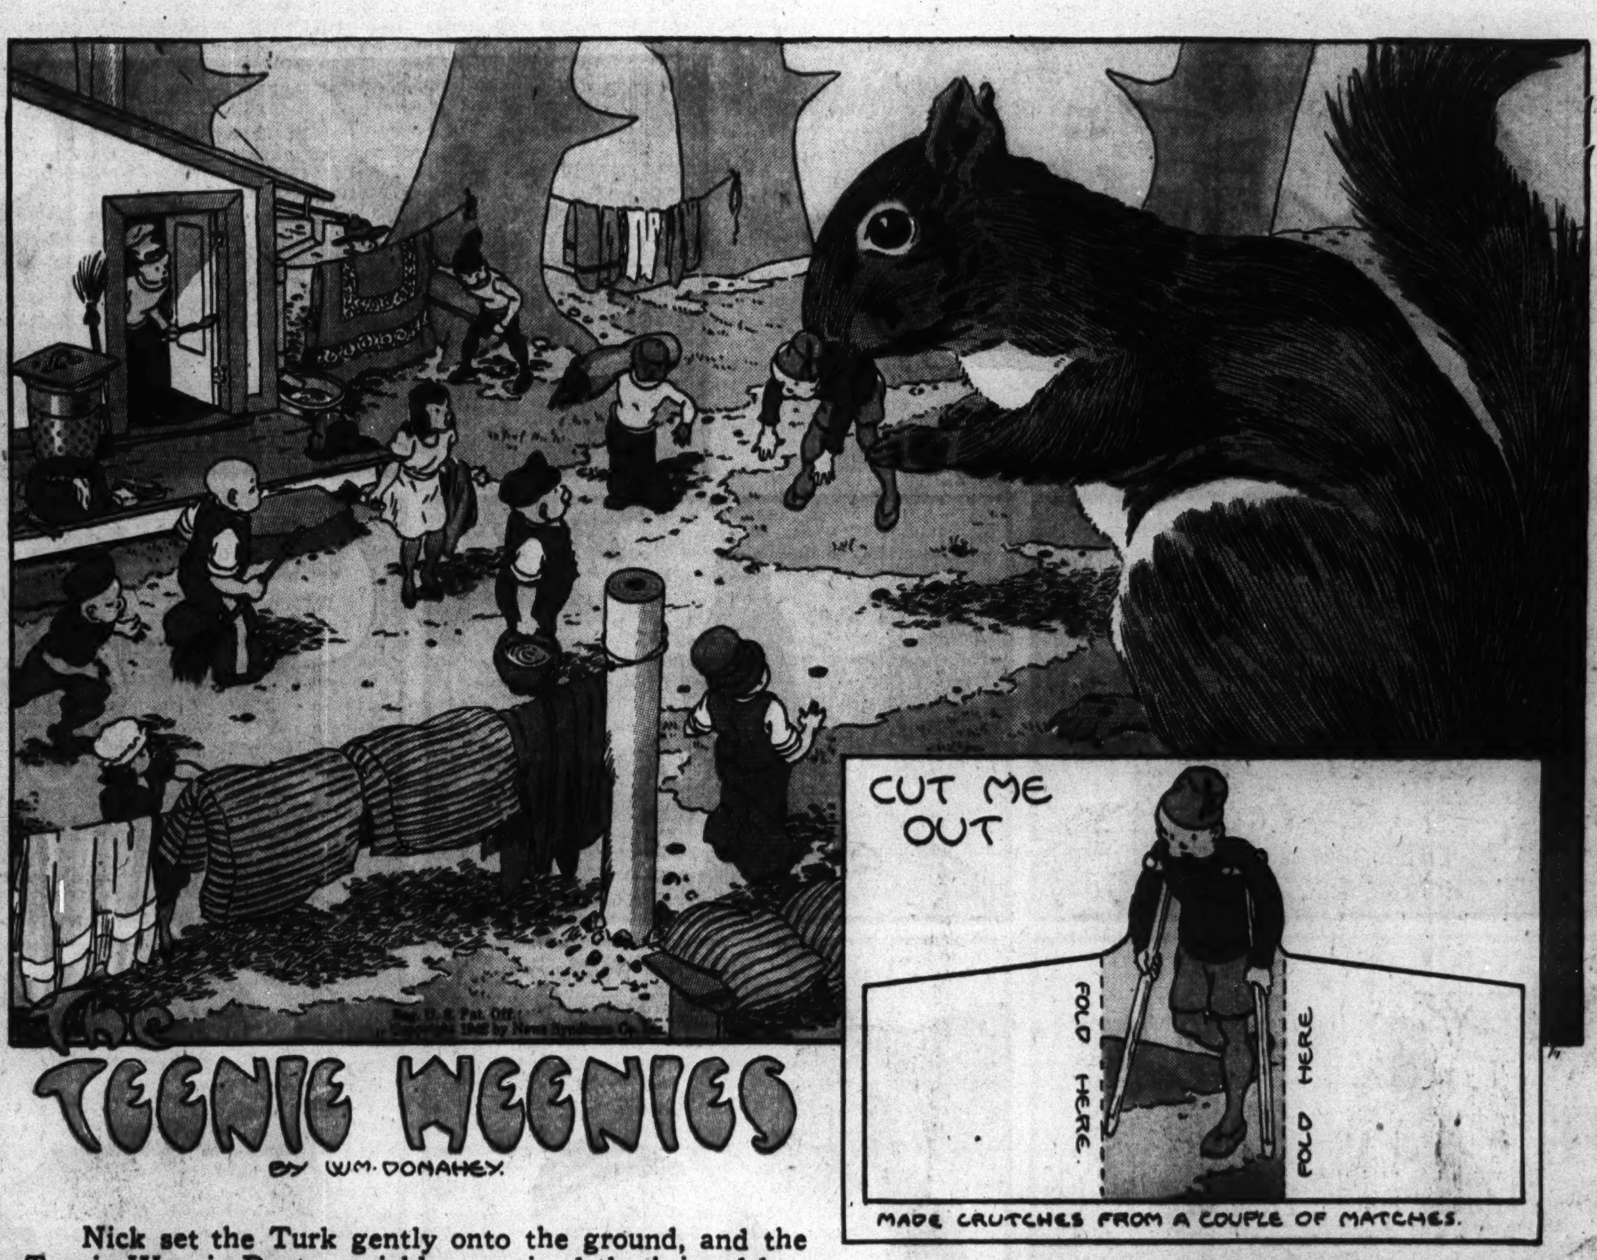
Each Teenie Weenie had his or her work to do. Even the General was put to work and he seemed to enjoy it for he sang this Teenie Weenie song as he swept the stairs carpet with a Teenie Weenie broom:

"It sure is a folly
"By golly, by golly.
"To never be happy and gay.
"So try to be jolly
"By golly, by golly,
"And hustle the grumpies away."

The General never finished the song, for he saw Nick the squirrel coming towards the house carrying the Turk.

"What's the trouble?" called the General.

"Oh, I was down at the creek getting some fine sand to scour the kitchen floor when I happened to step into an ant hole and broke my leg," answered the Turk. "Nick saw me and brought me home."



The

MADE CRUTCHES FROM A COUPLE OF MATCHES.

Nick set the Turk gently onto the ground, and the Teenie Weenie Doctor quickly examined the injured leg.

"It isn't broken," the Doctor told the Turk. "You have a badly sprained ankle."

Gogo and the Doctor helped the Turk into the house where the Doctor did everything he could to relieve the pain in the injured ankle.

The Policeman made some crutches from a couple of burned matches so that the Turk could hobble around without putting his injured foot to the ground.

In spite of the Turk's injury the house cleaning went right on, and that night the old shoe house was as clean as Teenie Weenie soap could make it.

The Turk, the Cowboy, Gogo, and the Dunce had planned to take a long walk over to a big house across the street to see some fluffy new chicks. But the other Teenie Weenies did not want to leave the Turk at home while they went on the trip.

"Turk, we'll get you a mouse to ride," said the Cowboy, who is a fine rider.

"No mouseback riding for me with this lame foot!" the Turk declared. "I might fall off and hurt my bad ankle."

"Then we'll wait till next week!" the Cowboy, Gogo and the Dunce chorused.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by MILTON CANIFF
NIP-NIP, WHEN YOU TOOK MRS. SANDHURST, MERRILY AND ME INTO YOUR VERY HOSPITABLE HIDING PLACE, WE DIDN'T SUSPECT THAT YOU WERE A TOP-SHELF CHINESE GUERILLA!
MR. RYAN IS TOO KIND!... YOU KNEW I WAS ONLY POSING AS A COUNTRY BOY... THE LITTLE ONE TOLD ME!... WHAT YOU DID NOT KNOW WAS THAT I WAS WORKING TO DISGUISE THIS CAPTURED POWER BOAT AS AN INNOCENT RIVER CRAFT... TO FOOL THE ENEMY!
OKAY... BUT YOU NEEDN'T HAVE WORRIED ABOUT US FEARING TO GO DOWN-RIVER WITH YOU... EVEN THOUGH YOU'RE CARRYING HIGH EXPLOSIVES!
WE'VE BEEN SITTING ON DYNAMITE FOR SO LONG — A LITTLE MORE BOOM DUST CAN'T BOTHER US!... I DON'T SUPPOSE IT'S CRICKET TO ASK WHERE WE'RE GOING...
THAT IS A PROBLEM... I CANNOT TAKE YOU TO MY DESTINATION — BUT THERE IS NO PLACE TO LEAVE YOU!
WE'LL TRY NOT TO EMBARRASS YOU, NIP-NIP! MEANWHILE, IF WE DON'T SLIP PAST THE JAP RIVER PATROLS, WE'LL ALL GO STRAIGHT TO A BLANK WALL — WITH A ONE WAY TICKET...
MY PLAN, AS YOU KNOW, IS VERY SIMPLE... WE HAVE A DEEP DRAFT MOTOR LAUNCH WHICH CONTAINS THE EXPLOSIVES... OVER THAT IS BUILT WHAT APPEARS TO BE A RIVER BOAT...
WE MOVE UNDER SAIL WITH THE CURRENT DURING DAYLIGHT ...LIKE ANY FARMER CARRYING PRODUCE... AT NIGHT WE START THE ENGINE AND RUN THE BLOCKADE! WHEN PATROLS APPEAR, MY THREE YANKEE FRIENDS MUST BURROW FOR SAFETY...
OKAY, NIP-NIP, NOTHING LIKE COZYING UP TO A FEW HUNKS OF DYNAMITE TO WARM THE BLOOD!
GHOSTS OF ALL THINGS ANCESTRAL! ... A PATROL APPROACHES AT THIS VERY MOMENT!
NORMANDIE AND MERRILY HAVE BEEN SLEEPING! I'LL GO BELOW AND TUCK THEM INTO OUR FOX HOLE! GOOD LUCK, NIP-NIP!
WHAT IS IT PAT?
JAP PATROL! NIP-NIP WILL COVER THE FALSE BOTTOM OF THE RIVER BOAT... WE'LL BE SAFE ENOUGH HERE UNLESS THE SOLDIERS ARE TOO THOROUGH!
...I SPEAK YOUR LANGUAGE, SON OF A TIMID TURTLE! WHAT DO YOU CARRY IN THE FILTHY HEAP OF ROTTING PLANKS?
OH, ILLUSTRIOUS ONE, I CARRY PRODUCE TO HELP FEED THE LIBERATORS OF MY UNWORTHY COUNTRY IN THE CITIES DOWN THE RIVER!
107
DO YOU HANDLE THE CLUMSY SCOW YOURSELF?... HAVE YOU NO PRETTY DAUGHTER TO HELP US WHILE AWAY THE TEDIUM OF THIS ACCURSED PATROL?
ALAS, MY HELPERS HAVE BEEN KILLED OFF... FOOLISHLY ATTEMPTING TO FIGHT AGAINST THE UNBEATABLE HOSTS OF NIPPON!... I MUST CARRY ON ALONE!
SHALL WE LOOT HIS CARGO?
NO! ALLOW THE FOOL TO PASS! THE HIGH COMMAND HAS GIVEN THESE BOATMEN QUOTAS OF SUPPLIES TO BRING IN... IF HE IS SHORT HE WILL REPORT US... THIS WAR IS NO LONGER AMUSING! CAST OFF!
AS THE PATROL BOAT PULLS AWAY, A SOLDIER FLIPS A CIGARETTE INTO THE FLIMSY CRATES ON DECK...

"I know the Ry-Krisp plan works — I've tried it," says Beatrice Blaxton, lovely Conover Model

"Instead of wondering how to hide bumps, try reducing the Ry-Krisp way," suggests slim, trim Beatrice Blaxton. Widely approved by doctors, this plan is a simple reducing method for the normally overweight. Ry-Krisp helps . . . has a high hunger-satisfying value, yields only 23 calories per wafer. TRIBUNE PRINTS DEFENSE COURSES

WRIGHT JUNIOR CLASSES TRAIN THEM FOR WAR

2,200 Students Take Rigorous Program.

BY RICHARD ORR.

The part Chicago schools are playing in training and preparing young men and women for their rôles in the war effort is seen in the types of educational programs the schools are now offering.

The program at Wright Junior college permits the 2,200 students to prepare themselves for duty in a branch of the service or for work in a defense industry. Young men who may go into the army, navy, or marines soon after leaving school are being toughened in a new accelerated "athletic conditioning" program recently instituted in the school.

"The army has asked us to make our men fit, and it will make soldiers of them," says Dr. Harry Fausel, athletic director at Wright, in explaining the new program. "Right now it takes about three months for the army to get a recruit physically fit so that he can be trained to fight. Our program is designed to cut down a good part of that physical training period a man has to go thru after he is in the army."

Recreational Sports Out.

Under the new athletic program purely recreational sports have been dropped and students now attend gym classes two hours each week instead of the usual one hour period. Tougher, heavier types of body conditioning are stressed. Students no longer spend a leisurely hour each week at badminton, pingpong, tennis, basketball, or baseball.

These and other sports are still available, of course, in after school hours, but are no longer offered as part of the regular class instruction. Instead—classes are devoted to acquiring strength, endurance, and the fighting spirit in tumbling, wrestling, endurance running, weight lifting, swimming, difficult calisthenics, apparatus work, and work with medicine balls.

The army, Dr. Fausel says, finds that a large percentage of its recruits are underdeveloped in the arms. This is a deficiency physical training must correct if the men are to be turned into good soldiers. Consequently, many of the various types of exercises the students are required to take under the new program are designed to correct this situation.

Stunts Cause Groans.

Two new stunts which Coach John Meany inaugurated into the new program lay particular stress upon this development. In his own terminology the stunts—which require the students to lie on the floor and propel themselves the length of the gym with only the use of their arms and hands—are known as the "seal crawl" and the "slide and glide." He thinks the results produced will come in handy where crawling thru trenches or under barbed wire obstructions is necessary. Rigor of these exercises is attested to by the groans his charges emit each time he calls upon them to execute the stunts.

Only those students physically able to endure these "toughening up" exercises are allowed to take them. Rigid physical examinations are given each student when he registers for the classes.

But physical training is only a part of the defense program at Wright Junior college. For those students who will enter defense industries special one year curricula have been set up. From these special courses come chemistry and physics technicians, communications technicians, and other technical students, trained secretarial workers and students trained in general business. Special classes in radio, explosives, photography, mathematics, and laboratory procedure also are offered. The special curricula have been so organized that only a year is necessary to graduate, whereas two years was the normal time.

Industry Asks for Aids.

"Several defense industries are asking us for trained personnel," stated Assistant Dean Jerome C. Isenbarger. "These special curricula enable students to step right into defense work."

In addition, a number of noncredit "defense courses" are offered at the college, open to students and outsiders alike, tuition free. These courses take in every aspect of community defense and range thru such subjects as Red Cross work, consumer service, home gardening, scientific instruments, body conditioning, camouflage, and airplane detection, aerial observation, ballistics, and chemical warfare.

Recently the college was selected by the government as one of the colleges thruout the country whose program qualified it to offer the new navy V-1 officer training program. A student enrolling in this course enlists in the naval reserve. Upon completion of two years of the course he is given a government examination to determine if he may transfer into V-5, a program in naval aviation, or V-7, a program of training for deck service. Each requires four years of college work and leads to a commission as naval ensign.

Sharing Lilacs Is Topic When Plant Guild Members Meet

Ardent enthusiasts of flowers are Mrs. Tony Ciccone (left) and Mrs. Alexis De Tarnowsky, who pause at the annual spring luncheon of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild to discuss some of the flowers that decorated their table. Members of the guild discussed plans for "Share Your Lilacs" which is sponsored each year by the guild and The Chicago Tribune. Mrs. Ciccone is a member of the Inverness Garden club and Mrs. De Tarnowsky is guild chairman of the Little Garden club of Barrington.

Mrs. Bertram Spinner, a new guild member of the Park Ridge Garden club, listens as Mrs. R. M. Whitcomb (right), chairman of the club's guild, tells her of the unit's plans for the coming Lilac day. Both women were present at the guild's luncheon Wednesday in the tea room of Carson Pirie Scott and company.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mrs. Max Menreth, chairman of the guild in the Edison Park Garden club, helps Mrs. E. H. Sommer, co-chairman of the Edison Home and Garden club into her coat after the luncheon.

Flower Guild Pledges Lilac Day Support

BY JUNE GESERICK.

The "Share Your Lilacs" campaign, sponsored each year by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was the chief topic of discussion Wednesday afternoon when northwest Chicago and suburban members of the guild attended the organization's annual spring luncheon in the Carson, Pirie, Scott tearoom.

Members of the guild, which will be headed for the next two years by Mrs. Warren S. Nelson of Glencoe, heard Miss Harriet Vittum of Northwestern university Settlement house, and Miss Florence H. Towne, head resident at Erie Neighborhood house, tell how appreciated the flowers are when received by needy children. Gen. McManus McCloskey, superintendent of Cook County hospital, said Lilac day and the days that follow are eagerly awaited by the shut-ins at his hospital.

Lilac day workers have been invited to a W-G-N broadcast of "America Loves a Melody," at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak on "The Battle of the Wilderness."

Fifth Generation Gardener.

Mrs. F. A. Record, a grandmother, who is district chairman of the Wisconsin West division of the guild, has been an ardent gardener since her childhood. Her first plot was a corner in her grandmother's garden. So anxious was she as a youngster to see her plants grow, that she would pull from the ground seeds she had planted the day before—to see if they were sprouting. Mrs. Record's chief desire is that her infant granddaughter, too, will be interested in gardening. She will be the fifth generation of flower lovers in the family.

Another guild member who is carrying on a traditional love of gardening is Mrs. J. W. Schippmann of the Itasca Garden club. Her mother was a member of a garden club, and when Mrs. Schippman had a home of her own, she immediately joined a unit. Joining the war gardeners, the Schippmanns have changed much of their garden, planting it chiefly in vegetables, the perishable ones of which will be kept in a locker which has been rented.

Busy Season Expected.

With spring well on the way, guild members are preparing for a busy season of cutting, gathering, and delivering flowers. The blooms, and later the fruit, is sent to shut-ins and needy persons in hospitals, settlement houses, and institutions thruout Chicagoland.

"It's lots of fun to see every one deliver their flowers to the station," said Mrs. Alexis De Ternowsky, chairman of the guild in Barrington. "It's almost like a French garden scene."

In most northwest communities, the lilacs are plucked and tied into bunches, which are placed in boxes, the night before the flowers are delivered to railroad stations. Then early the following morning guild members deliver the blooms to nearby railroads which are coöperating in the campaign.

Arrangements Start Early.

Days, even weeks before the blossoms are ready to be shipped, arrangements are started. Mrs. David C. Talbot, president of the Palatine Garden club, uses the telephone for most of her requests for flowers because many Palatine residents live in the rural section. They find how many flowers are needed for a certain day and phone village residents to request permission to pick flowers for the campaign.

"It all depends on the weather," said Mrs. W. W. Severns, chairman of the Village Garden club guild in Barrington, in speaking of the number of bouquets her club hopes to contribute. Last year the unit sent into Chicago more than 2,000 bouquets of flowers. This year they hope to far surpass that number.

Mrs. Walter T. Poyer, new president of the Des Plaines Garden club, will attempt no changes in the organization of her campaign. "The drive last year was successful," she said. "We won't make any changes but will try to get even more lilacs."

Drunken Bike Riders Given Fair Warning

"Where's your license?" will be just as ominous a question for youthful cyclists as to adult motorists in Arlington Heights after Friday, the date on which the town's new bicycle licensing ordinance goes into effect.

What's more, the town's new ordinance specifically forbids drunken bicycle riding, speeding, trick riding, extra passengers on bikes, and hitching rides on other vehicles. Violations may cost the culprit a fine of $1 to $200.

With the increased number of bicycle riders since the declaration of war, Arlington Heights has been confronted with a new traffic problem—that brought about by the more than 600 wheelmen who mingle on the streets and sidewalks with motorists and pedestrians. The new ordinance was sponsored by the Lions club.

Must Have Signaling Device.

Each cycle must be equipped with a signaling device which can be heard at a distance of 25 feet. Bicyclists must attach to their vehicles a headlight and a tail light—both of which must be seen at 200 feet in the dark.

Before a rider may purchase a bicycle license, the cost of which is 30 cents, he must take his vehicle to an appointed testing center, where the bike will be inspected to denote whether or not the wheel is safe for its rider and for other citizens on Arlington Heights streets and sidewalks.

Cyclists may ride on the sidewalks, according to the ordinance, providing they operate their vehicles with the safety of pedestrians in mind. Other restrictions note that cyclists must ride on the right side of the street and ride in single file.

Rules for Parking.

Tho no legal bicycle parking places have yet been planned, the ordinance states that riders must park their vehicles in spots provided for bicycles. However, until parking places are provided, bicycles may be parked in places where they will not hinder pedestrians, traffic, or private property. As a protection to bicycle owners, it has been ruled that a properly parked bicycle may be moved by no one except members of the village fire and police departments.

In a recent Arlington Heights survey, it was found that more than 576 cycles are operated by high school and elementary students, many of whom commenced riding to school at the beginning of the tire shortage. Scores of young people have proved their interest in the ordinance—which provides owners a chance to register their bicycles and thus protect them from theft and dismantling—by applying early in the month for the licenses.

Besides the already listed rules, the new bicycle ordinance states that cyclists must observe state laws governing the operation of motor vehicles, including hand signals before making turns.

William D. Franke, chairman of the ordinance committee, is assisted by H. G. Thal and Rudolph J. Rizzi. Carl H. Skoog is chief of the police who will enforce the ordinance.

GIVES CIVILIAN CORPS A CHANCE FOR EASY STUDY

300,000 Now Taking First Training.

More than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now are attending basic training classes of the OCD, while other thousands in the suburbs also are studying or preparing to study the rudiments of emergency service.

To assist these workers, THE TRIBUNE is publishing today the outline of Lesson No. 1, prepared by the OCD training division. This lesson, one of a series to appear in the Metropolitan section, is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference.

THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. The outline for Lesson No. 2 in the series will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section. It is suggested that defense workers save the lessons.

DEFENSE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Civilian defense is an essential part of military science and is designed to counteract assault on civilian centers by air bombardment, sabotage, or other forms of attack.

1. Demolish defense industries.
2. Cripple communications.
3. Disrupt urban utilities.
4. Knock out government headquarters [including civilian defense headquarters].
5. Interrupt routine of workers, homes, restaurants, shops.
6. Destroy civilian morale.

Active military operations would include:

1. Destruction of enemy air fleet at its own bases.
2. Interception and destruction of enemy bombers.
3. Anti-aircraft.
4. Balloon-barrage.

Civilian defense is the passive as compared with active type of military operation.

The object of civilian defense is to protect and repair the lives and property of civilian population against air assault. Assault on civilian centers, whether by air bombardment or internal sabotage, is not completely new, tho greatly intensified. Every offense breeds its defense. Civilian defense is the new form of defense against the new form of offense by aerial bombardment.

The degree of probability of enemy attack should not be the determining question. Even if the percentage probability were only 1/10 of 1 per cent we must be practically 100 per cent prepared when the bombs begin to fall.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE FUNCTIONS.

Civilian defense functions, altho military in significance, are civilian in operation. They include:

1. Control of movement of people during raid.
2. Provision of shelters.
3. Rescue of trapped persons.
4. Control of fires.
5. Provision of first aid and hospitalization of wounded.
6. Repair of broken mains and utility lines.
7. Reopening of streets and restoration of traffic communications.
8. Provision of food and shelter for the homeless.

The term civilian defense is slowly coming to mean civilian protection or air raid precautions. In sense civilian defense preparations are not defense production, defense consumption [prices and rationing], defense financing, defense welfare, or defense morale.

Specific civilian defense services fall into two groups, protective and utility service, and emergency social services.

Protective and utility services include:

1. Spotting and warning.
2. Blackouts and camouflage.
3. Fire defense.
4. Gas defense.
5. Bomb disposal.
6. Shelter and refugees.
7. Rescue squads.
8. First aid and ambulance.
9. Police.
10. Roads and transportation.
11. Water supply, electricity, gas, telephone.
12. Repairs, demolition, and salvage.

Emergency social services include:

1. Registration.
2. Evacuation.
3. Information.
4. Hospitals.
5. Health.
6. Feeding and nutrition.
7. Housing.
8. Schools.
9. Recreation.
10. Insurance.

ORGANIZATION OF DEFENSE AGENCIES.

The United States Office of Civilian Defense is an independent defense agency, established under Presidential order. The order authorizes the O. C. D. to plan measures for the protection of life and property by recruiting and training civilian auxiliaries, and to secure volunteer participation in the defense welfare and morale program. The O. C. D. is emphasizing the first set of functions, and the second is being handled more and more by other federal agencies.

The country is divided into nine civilian defense regions headed by

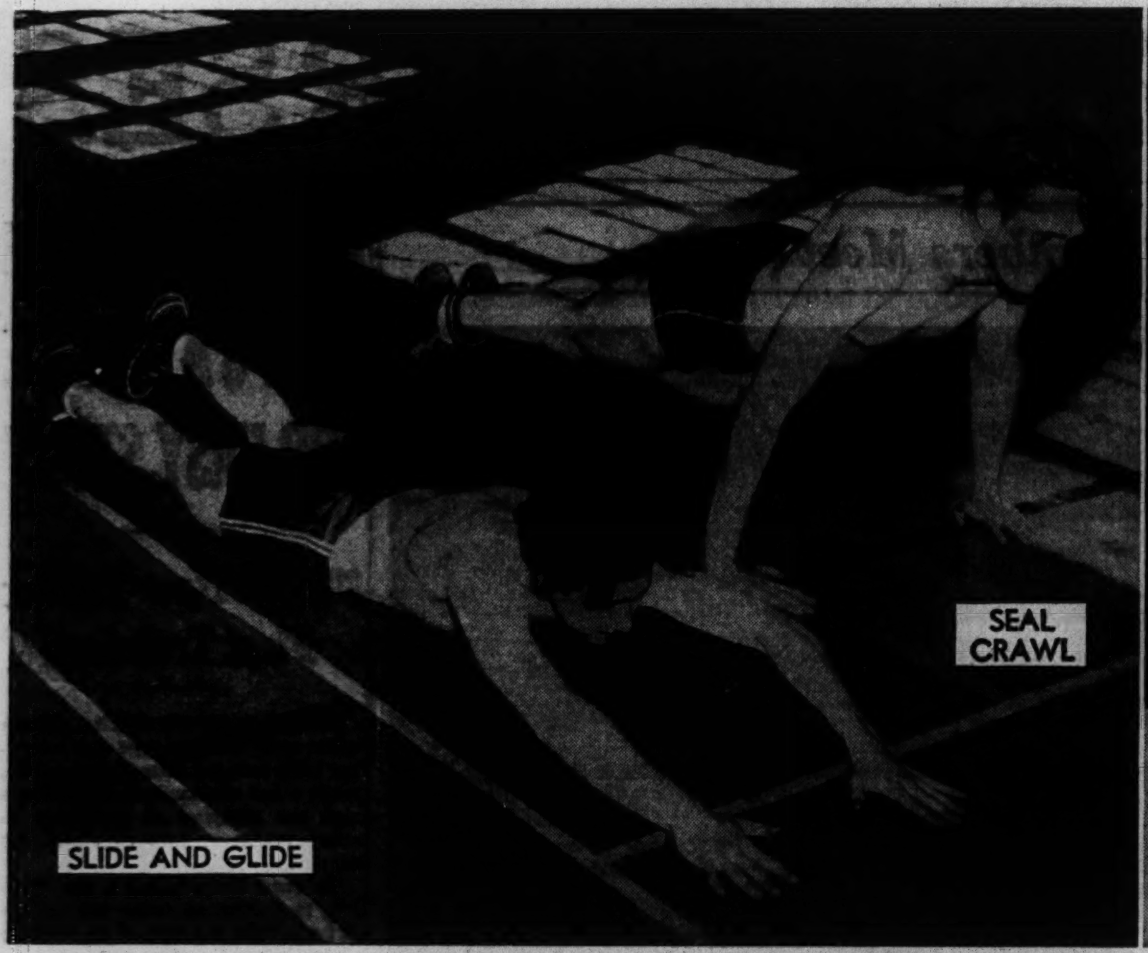
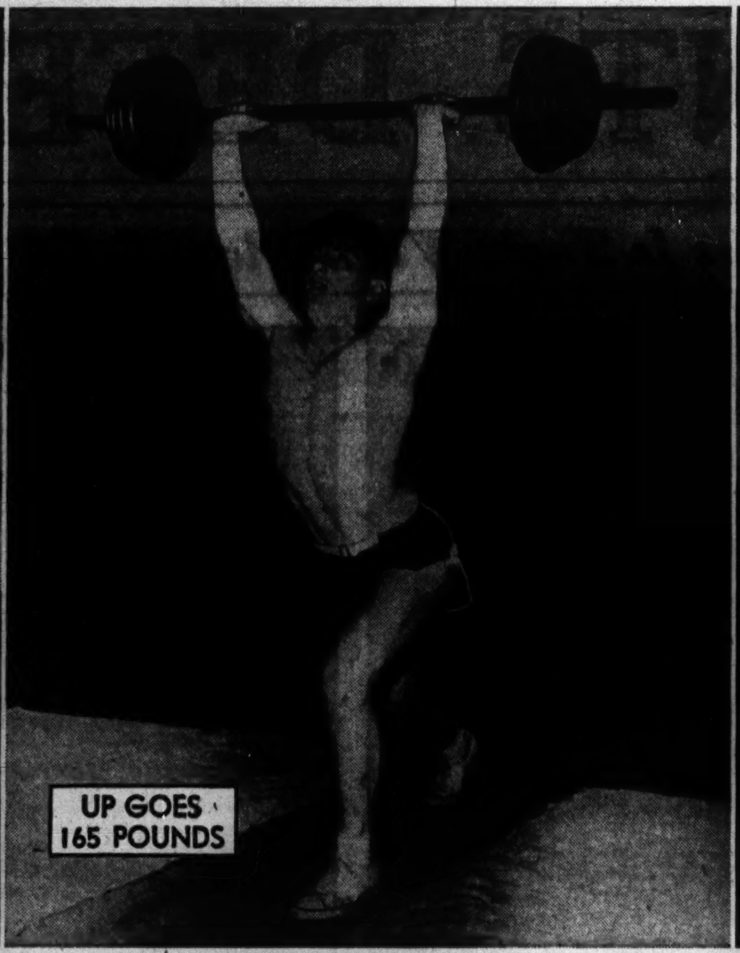
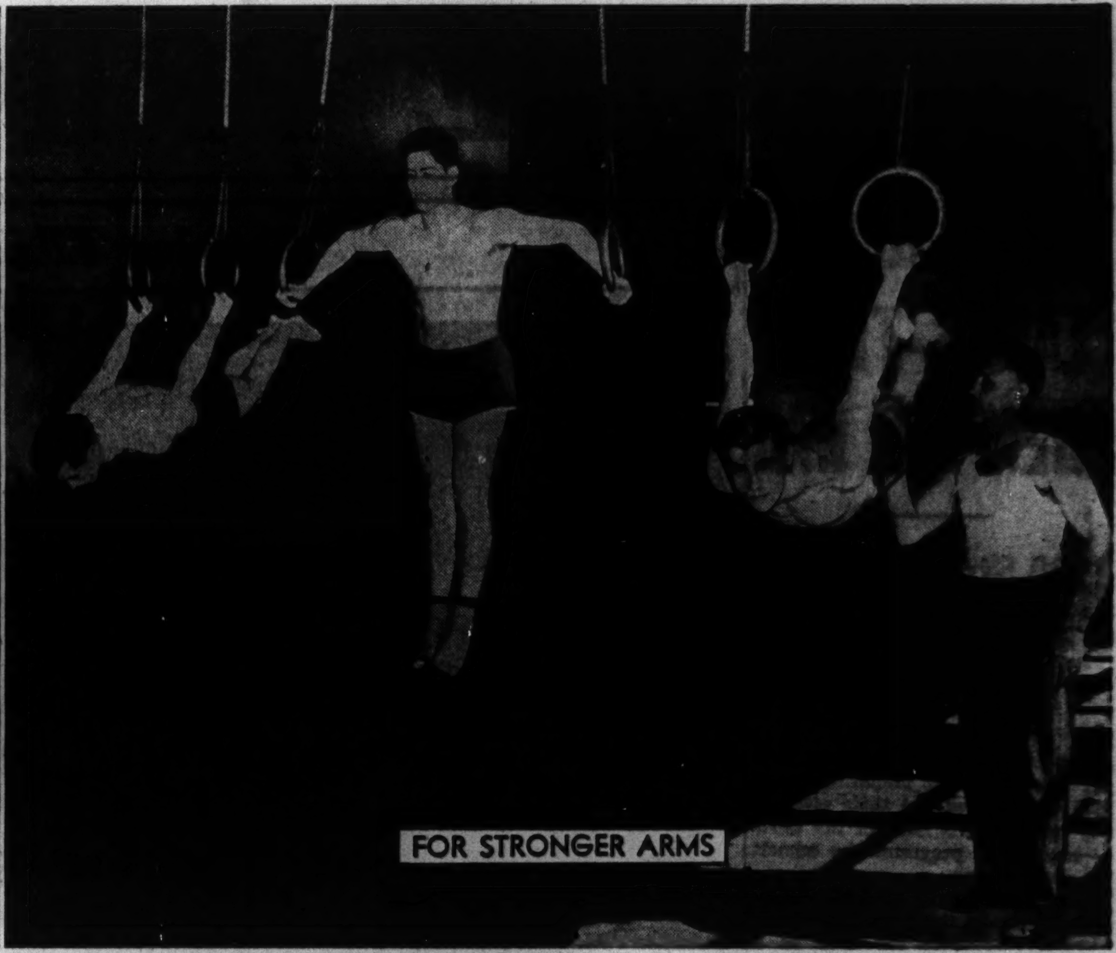
Gym Classes at Wright Junior College Build Muscles and Stamina Among Future Fighters for Nation







With the demand for physically fit young men in all branches of the armed forces the new athletic conditioning program at Wright Junior college is an important part of the school's program to prepare its students for roles in the war effort. Tougher, heavier types of exercises are emphasized. Seymour Marshall (left) and Lawrence Hines demonstrate the "slide and glide" and the "seal crawl," respectively—exercises which the athletic staff originated to develop upper portions of the body. It takes practice to lift 165 pounds above your head, but Roger Di Julio has had plenty of practice as have other students in the athletic conditioning classes. Wrestling, tumbling, and endurance running are also on the program to condition bodies and make the young men physically fit. Another advantage of Wright's athletic conditioning program is that more students may be accommodated in the classes. Before instruction in tennis, basketball, badminton, and other sports was supplanted by the new body conditioning classes only 40 students could participate in each class. Now each class has 80 to 100 members. Vito Plescia, Harry Bernhardt, and Eugene Simonsen work out on the rings, while Instructor Jack Rothacher stands by to offer suggestions.

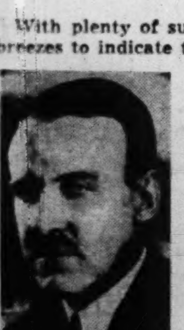
MAN WITH HOE TO BE MUCH IN EVIDENCE NOW

War Gardening Begins in Earnest This Week.



George T. Donoghue.

With plenty of sunshine and warm breezes to indicate that planting time is at hand, war gardening on the northwest side will get under way this week when gardeners laden with hoes, rakes, spades, or trowels invade their gardens to begin the planting.

"We have done a lot of planning and conferring and scores of splendid lectures on all phases of vegetable and flower growing have been given in all parts of the city," said George T. Donoghue, war garden director for the Office of Civilian defense. "Now that spring is here for keeps it is time to stop talking and get after the garden work in earnest."

So gardeners in all sections of the city may get their projects off to the right start, Donoghue announced a "war garden cavalcade" to be staged this afternoon to provide an opportunity to view gardening methods first hand. Many gardeners from the northwest side plan to join the "cavalcade," which begins at 2 o'clock at Ogden Park, 65th street and Racine avenue, where a war garden already has been started. The tour will extend to five other gardens on the south side at each of which speakers will explain the projects.

War Garden Booklet.

Before donning old clothes and rushing headlong into the work of planting and cultivating, enthusiastic garden growers might first pause to glance thru the new gardening guide to be distributed within the next few days by the War Garden committee. One hundred thousand copies of the booklet, entitled "How to Grow a War Garden in Metropolitan Chicago," will be distributed free thru war garden chairmen to prospective gardeners in the 21 defense communities on the northwest side, as well as those in other communities thruout Chicago.

Complete information on all phases of war gardening is contained in the 16 page illustrated guide. Compiled by a committee comprised of local county agents, representatives of seed and fertilizer companies, and soil specialists, it lists a number of suggestions having to do with the location of the gardens, planting arrangement, types of vegetables to plant, food value of vegetables, and other facts.

A "smoke map" included in the guide divides the city into smoky, medium, and outlying areas—according to the degree each area is subject to smoke—and an accompanying chart recommends the types of vegetables best produced in each area. April 10 is the earliest date for outdoor planting, while the latter part of April and the first two weeks of May is listed as the best planting period.

Plowing to Be Donated.

Families wishing to participate in the garden program are urged to contact that war garden warden or community chairman, Donoghue said. Where four or more families have pledged to plant gardens on a certain plot, and where the consent of the owner has been secured, plowing will be done free of charge by the War garden committee, he said. However, plots must be at least 75 feet square, and the fertility of the ground must be determined before the plows will be sent out, Donoghue cautioned.

Said Richard Beu, 4445 North Pulaski road, general war garden chairman for the northwest side, "We urge all families on the northwest side to coöperate in the garden program by planting a garden in their back yards or in near-by vacant lots. However, we don't want families digging up their lawns or flower beds to raise vegetables. The beauty of homes is important to civilian morale, too."

For those would-be gardeners in crowded areas where there are no back yards or near-by vacant lots arrangements probably can be made to find space for their gardens in some other community, Beu said. He added that in a number of neighborhoods there were vacant lots not in use which would make excellent garden spots, but whose owners could not be located.

Large Plot in Jefferson Park.

Plowing of northwest gardens will begin in earnest this week, Beu said. Two large plots have already been plowed and are ready for planting. One of these, 200 feet square, is in the Jefferson Park community located on Bryn Mawr avenue between Newark and Newcastle avenues. Fifteen to 20 families will occupy this plot. The other, located in the Edgebrook community near Loron and Caldwell avenues, is about half the size and will accommodate about 10 families.

Among other northwest gardens scheduled to receive a visit from the plowman shortly are the two granted by Ellis H. Johnson, a block captain who resides at 1935 North Newland avenue. Both plots are in the Mont Clare community, one located at 1938 North New England avenue, and the other at the southeast corner of Armitage and Newland avenues. Louis Kuester, 1905 North Newland avenue, is chairman for the community.

The garden of T. A. Nielsen, 515 Ashland avenue, Park Ridge, located at 7246 Estes avenue, also is being prepared for the plow. This plot is in the Edison Park community of which Mrs. Bee Unseth, 6615 Ottawa avenue, is chairman. Other spots are located on Lamon avenue between Hiawatha and Ionia avenues, in the Sauganash community, and at the southeast corner of Albany and Eastwood avenues in the Albany Park community.

Garden Chairmen Listed.

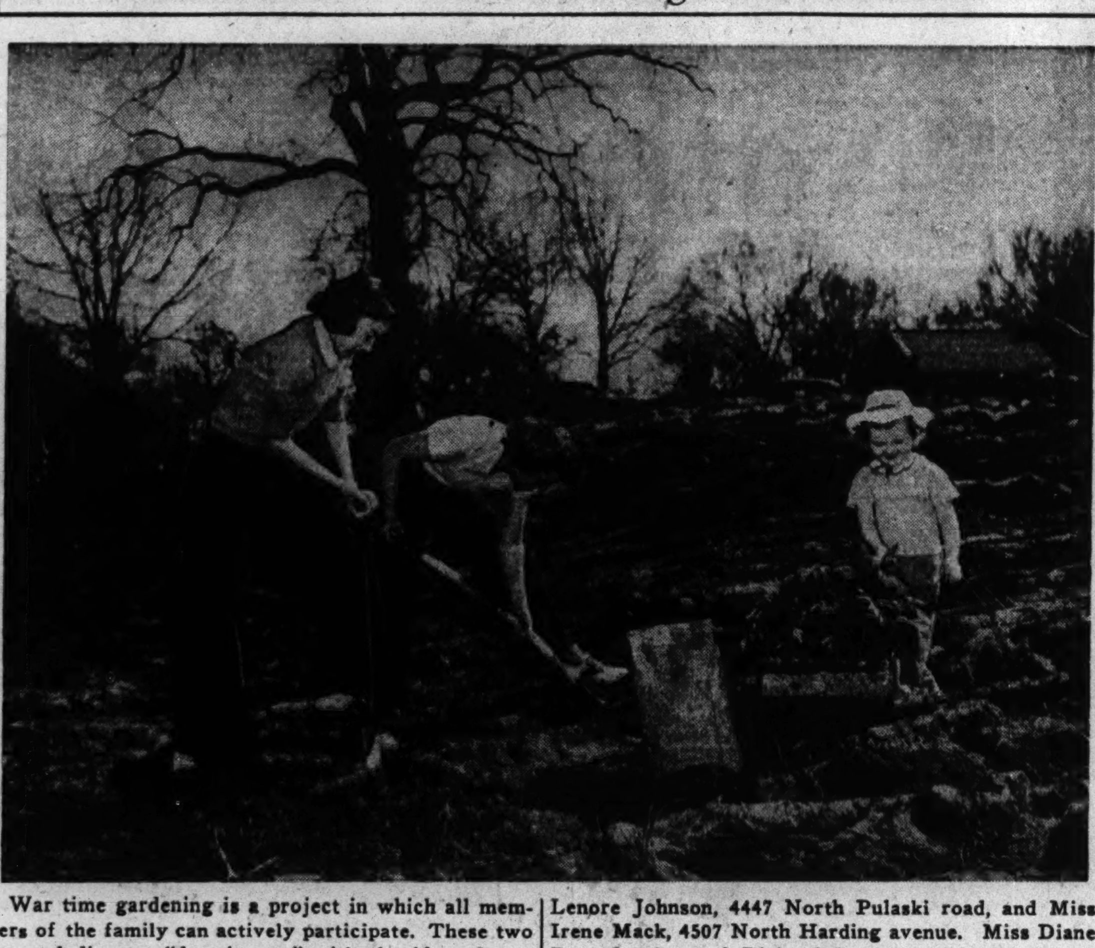
Focal points of information on all aspects of war gardening on the northwest side are the war garden chairmen in each of the 21 communities. Community chairmen are as follows:

Northwest Town, the Rev. Stephen A. Bubacz, 923 Ohio street; Humboldt Park, Paul Kleiner, 3335 North avenue; Milwaukee-Armitage-Western, Mrs. H. B. Reith, 2918 Belden avenue; Wrightwood-Fullerton, E. F. Mienert, 3322 Fullerton avenue; Belmont-Cragin, Adolph Von Eitzen, 4715 Belmont avenue.

Hanson Park, H. A. Kloss, 2427 North Linder avenue; Mont Clare, Louis Kuester, 1905 North Newland avenue; Belmont Heights, Peter Hoffmann, 3406 North Newcastle avenue; Logan Square, Mrs. Elmer J. Klope, 2611 North Albany avenue; Avondale, Marion Stankowicz, 3618 Diversey avenue; Irving Park, Mrs. F. B. Cheever, 4340 Monticello avenue; Albany Park, Harold K. MacShane, 3415 Lawrence avenue; North Park, Herman Nordlinger, 5324 Bernard street.

Sauganash, John Kreutzer, 5827 North Kenneth avenue; Mayfair, M. C. Lichtenwalter, 5061 North St. Louis avenue; Portage Park, Mrs. Fred Ott, 4107 Marmora avenue; Jefferson Park, Nick Maas, 4846 North Austin boulevard; Forest Glen, Alfred Stenlund, 5301 Ardmore avenue; Norwood Park, Earl W. Weil, 6156 North Meade avenue; Edison Park, Mrs. Bee Unseth, 6615 Ottawa avenue; Edgebrook, Mrs. Florence Nystrom, 6600 Ponchartrain boulevard.

The Girls Will Be Gardening This Summer



War time gardening is a project in which all members of the family can actively participate. These two young ladies are "heaving to" with the idea of preparing their garden for planting as soon as possible. The garden is located on Bryn Mawr avenue between Newark and Newcastle avenues. Left to right, Miss Lenore Johnson, 4447 North Pulaski road, and Miss Irene Mack, 4507 North Harding avenue. Miss Diane Beu, daughter of Richard Beu, 4445 North Pulaski road, war garden director for the northwest side, supervises the work.

NORTHERNERS, STARTING EIGHTH YEAR, WIN AWARD

An award by the Chicago Federated Advertising club to the Northerners as the outstanding evening radio show originating in Chicago will be presented during their broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday evening over W-G-N. The award will be given to Solomon Byron Smith, vice president of the Northern Trust company, by William F. Carr, chairman of the award committee for the advertising club.

The award comes just as the Northerners are preparing to begin their eighth year on W-G-N. In musical range the Northerners cover everything from modern ballads to operatic selections. Tuesday night they plan to present such popular ballads as "I Saw the Sea," by Irving Berlin; "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," by Westendorf; "One Kiss" from "New Moon," by Romberg; "There's Something About a Soldier," by Gay; "The Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss.

The Northerners program was originated by J. M. Easton of the trust company. It started as an educational program and it was planned to use music for background purposes only. After a few months it was changed to a musical program and placed under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, who has directed it ever since. The show features an all-string orchestra, a male octet, and Miss Lois Wallner, soprano soloist.

The Northerners octet is composed of Dean Reed and Henry Anderson, first tenors; Robert Kessler and Earle Tanner, second tenors; George Smith and Earle Wilkie, baritones, and Leslie Arnold and John Macdonald, bassos. George Smith and Leslie Arnold have been with the group since it originated. Helene Webb and Palmer Clark write the vocal arrangements and Walter Dellers handles the orchestral arrangements.

Conrad Thibault to Sing 'JohnnyDoughboy' Tuesday

Conrad Thibault will sing an AEF song of 1942, "Johnny Doughboy Found a Rose in Ireland" as a highlight of the American Melody hour on WBBM-CBS at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday. The orchestra will feature "Over There," war song of 1917.

PLAN MAY FAIR FRIDAY EVENING AT ERIE HOUSE

Settlement Also Will Stress Cleanup.

Walter C. Gielow.

Friends and members of Erie Neighborhood house Senior Friendship circle and Senior Friendship guild will gather Friday evening at the center, 1347 Erie street, to join in the celebration of the 5th annual May Fair, the benefits of which will go to the upkeep of the neighborhood house.

Miss Ann Chirico, president of the circle, and Mrs. Margaret Hintz, of the guild, have charge of the arrangements for the fête, which was attended last year by more than 700 persons.

Dinner and Play.

Brightly colored balloons and streamers will add to the gayety of the festival. Dressed in cotton gowns and beribboned straw hats, association members will operate booths at which candy, glassware, artificial flowers and linenware will be sold. After a dinner at 6 o'clock, members of the center's drama club will be presented in a play.

Miss Florence H. Towne, head resident, has been associated with Erie Neighborhood house for more than 27 years and is in charge of the celebration. Walter C. Gielow is president of the board of trustees.

Plan Cleanup Parade.

At 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, May 5, approximately 600 adults and children will gather at the neighborhood house to take part in a Cleanup Week parade thru the community. Using as their slogans, "Keep Our Neighborhood Clean," and "It's Patriotic to Keep Clean," the marchers will distribute handbills urging residents to help maintain a clean neighborhood.

By using the formula, "Pick up five pieces of paper each day and throw none on the walks," the neighborhood cleanup committee hopes to achieve a new high in tidy streets, alleys and sidewalks.

SYDNEY FOSTER GUEST PIANIST ON W-G-N HOUR

Sydney Foster, young pianist, will be guest soloist on the "Music That Endures" program to be heard on W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 tomorrow. This program of fine music features the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the direction of Henry Weber and the W-G-N chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

For his solo Foster will be heard in Liszt's "Concerto in E Flat, Second and Third Movement." The orchestra will be heard in Reznicek's "Overture: Donna Diane" and De Falla's "Danse Espagnole No. 2."

The chorus will be heard with the orchestra in "Sweet and Low" and in Bizet's "Open Thy Heart."

regional directors. These regions are the same as the nine army corps areas. The regional office assists and consults with the several states.

There are metropolitan defense areas set up in districts like New York and Chicago, which cut across municipal and state lines. These metropolitan areas have the same status as do the states in their relation to the civilian defense regions and to the O. C. D. The states and the metropolitan defense areas assist the local defense agencies.

The Chicago metropolitan Office of Civilian Defense covers all of Cook county, part of Du Page county and part of Lake county, Illinois, and has a total population of four and one-half million people, and an area of 1,135 square miles.

It is divided into 15 divisions, seven within the city of Chicago and eight in the rest of the metropolitan area. Under these divisions are about 228 community defense areas, 108 local community areas in Chicago and 120 suburban areas.

These communities in turn are divided into zones or districts of several blocks each. The smallest unity of operation for civilian defense purposes is the block, or some equivalent unit, of which there are about 20,000 in the Chicago metropolitan area.

CONTROL, COMMAND, AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Comparing the civilian defense organization with a system of military command, the flow of command runs from the metropolitan coödinator, thru the division chiefs, to the community commanders, or suburban coordinators, thru the zone or district commanders, to the block captains.

Air raid warden posts in the individual blocks are tied together with the control centers or the metropolitan headquarters, in a network of communications which constitutes the nerve system of the civilian defense organization under conditions of actual attack.

The mission of the communications and control system is:

1. To maintain a continuous picture of the bombings or "incidents" in the area as reported in by the wardens.
2. To dispatch crews and squads of personnel and equipment to the scene of the "incidents" by contacting the headquarters and posts of the specialized civilian defense services.
3. To notify the higher command in case reinforcements of personnel and equipment are needed for the area or division covered by the control center.

A hypothetical control center for a community of 100,000 people, according to O. C. D. standards requires the following equipment:

1. Twenty-seven telephone lines.
2. Radio equipment in case telephone services are blown out.
3. A large control map on which each "incident" is spotted with color pins or tabs.
4. A control panel which keeps a continuous visual inventory of services needed and services dispatched.

Control center personnel includes such specialized officers and workers as:

1. Controler.
2. Map plotting officer.
3. Panel clerk.
4. Record clerk.
5. Communications officer.
6. Radio aide.
7. Guards.
8. Ten telephonists.
9. Four messengers.

PERSONNEL AND TRAINING.

The civilian defense system of metropolitan Chicago, when fully manned, will have about 300,000 workers.

The classes of personnel required by OCD fall into the following groups:

1. Staff corps.
2. Air raid wardens.
3. Auxiliary police.
4. Auxiliary firemen.
5. Bomb squads.
6. Fire watchers.
7. Medical corps.
8. Rescue squads.
9. Nurses aides.
10. Drivers corps.
11. Messengers.
12. Emergency food and housing.
13. Decontamination corps.
14. Demolition and clearance crews.
15. Road repair crew.
16. Utilities repair squads.

The staff of metropolitan Chicago includes:

1. Central headquarters staff.
2. Fifteen division chiefs.
3. 228 local community commanders.
4. About 1,000 zone or district captains.
5. About 20,000 block captains.
6. Instructors, information officers.

Since the personnel must carry on highly technical duties, it must be trained before it can go into operation and before it can be certified under OCD standards. The required courses will include general civilian defense survey [5 hours], fire defense [3 hours], first aid [10 hours], gas defense [3 hours]. In addition there are about six specialized training courses for each of about 16 specialized groups of personnel.

The OCD requires each worker to be certified as trained before being allowed to wear this insignia. The training program is so large that it must be decentralized at the local community level, with the help of schools and others. The first job is to train instructors and master instructors. In addition, the training division of the metropolitan office is required to provide the curriculum, set standards, administer and coördinate the training program.

RESEARCH AND PLANNING.

Civilian defense is a scientific set of techniques. Preparations in the United States are based largely upon British experience. The British themselves approached this problem scientifically and they did research constantly. They investigated a sample of the "incidents" in order to find evidence that would help deal with future attacks.

The OCD recommends a plan for scheduling civilian defense preparation step by step as follows:

Study and planning of the communications system and the organization for civilian defense; announcement of the organization plan and recruitment of personnel; training, and testing and maneuvers.

BANDSMEN OF WRIGHT COLLEGE TO OFFER CONCERTS MAY 7 AND 8

Miss June Shabago.
[Daguerre Photo.]

The annual spring concert of Wright Junior college band will be held on Thursday and Friday evenings, May 7 and 8, under the direction of Capt. John H. Barabash. The concert, which will be held in the school auditorium, 3400 North Austin avenue, will feature Paul Zmidzinski, noted Polish conductor, who will conduct several numbers. Miss June Shabago, 1143 North Richmond street, soprano member of the vocal ensemble and a national champion among high school singers, also will be presented in several selections.

A Medley on W59C.

A medley of compositions by the Russian composer Moritz Moszkowski will be featured from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Friday on W59C when Harry Sukman and the studio salon orchestra present their arrangement called "Moszkowskiana."

YOUTH DEFENSE RALLY WILL BE HELD THURSDAY

Two hundred youths on the northwest side will take part in the first youth defense rally to be held in Chicago Thursday evening in the Wells High school auditorium, 936 North Ashland avenue.

Coöperating in planning the rally are the Near Northwest Side Community council, the children's departments of the Eckhart, Humboldt, and Pulaski branch libraries, and the Humboldt and Northwest Town civilian defense communities.

Poster Contest Held.

The event culminates a poster contest in which youths of the two defense communities, between the ages of 12 and 18, have competed to depict thru the medium of posters "Youth's Contribution to Defense." More than 100 posters were entered in the contest.

Highlight of the rally will be an address by Kenneth L. [Tug] Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern university and metropolitan director of youth activities for the Office of Civilian Defense. He will outline the program of youth activities for civilian defense. Numerous youth groups also will participate in the program which will include numbers by the Tuley High school mixed chorus, the Wells High school orchestra, and the Polish National alliance youth dance group. The Victory club of the Humboldt branch library will take part.

Will Reveal Poster Winners.

Winners in the poster contest will be announced. Awards are to be made in the form of defense bonds and stamps. Judges who selected the winning posters at a tea held recently at Blackhawk park were Mrs. M. L. Purvin, chairman of the youth section of the Chicago Recreational committee, Miss Matilde Kelly, in charge of art work at the public library, and Hubert Leckie, commercial artist.

OLD FARMHOUSE DROPS 100 YEARS IN REMODELING

Oak Beams Are Utilized in Interior Trim.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The 100 year old farmhouse on route 58, just outside Des Plaines, which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bredfeldt decided to remodel and convert into a modern American farmhouse, yielded unexpected treasures when the walls were torn out.

Old hand-hewn oak beams pegged together formed the skeleton structure of the earliest part of the house, and the architect, W. F. McCaughey of Park Ridge, saw in them an inspiration for the character of wood trim, floors, and plaster. When cleaned they took on a beautiful antique brown color to which much of the adjacent trim was blended.

Had Many Additions.

This farmhouse, like so many in the district, expressed whole generations of living from the early part of the 19th century. The house was added to, from time to time, as different family members married.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt, together with Mr. McCaughey, looked at the house with thought of purchase, the second floor was completely separated by two stairways, one in the new section and one in the old. Naturally the whole section floor was on different levels and it was decided to remove both the stairways and build one new stairway in a central location between the dining room and living room.

All the old turned spindle work, top heavy porches, old steps, and many of the partitions were pulled down and in the northwest corner a new porch and massive chimney were added.

Bay Overlooks Orchard.

There is now a living room, dining room, study, bathroom, and kitchen on the first floor and three bedrooms and two bathrooms on the second floor.

There is a large bay in the living room overlooking a large orchard and the unusual oak mantel over the stone fireplace was carved by Mr. Bredfeldt in an egg and dart motif. A Dutch door leads to a breezy screened porch, styled to compliment the sturdy qualities of the American farmhouse.

In the old section of the house new floors were laid and in process of renovation, complete new heating, plumbing, and wiring were installed. A forced warm air heating system was put in, oil fueled.

Study for Guest Room.

The study on the first floor is effectively papered and because of an adjacent bathroom can be used as a guest room when needed.

Much of the furniture is of the carved walnut and mahogany period and adds distinction to the house interior.

The house stands on 10 acres of land, surrounded by large, spreading trees, and Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt and their two daughters moved into the house last summer as the work was drawing to a finish.

The remodeling was drastic, practical, and thoughtfully and efficiently executed to yield vastly worthwhile results. The bathrooms and kitchens were carried out with modern trend, the bathrooms beautifully tiled, and from the second floor there is access to a sunny, railed deck area.

DEFENSE RALLY AT SCHURZ HIGH TO HEAR MAYOR

Mayor Kelly, United States coördinator for civilian defense in Chicago, will be the principal speaker at a patriotic rally and defense meeting to be held under auspices of the Irving Park community, Joseph Boosel, community commander, announced. The program will be held at 8 o'clock Friday evening, May 8, in the Schurz High school auditorium, Milwaukee avenue and Addison street.

The program, under direction of the Rev. Dr. R. R. Fillbrandt, civilian morale chairman, will include selections by the First National Bank orchestra and the Schurz High school band.

With one week of the spring clean-up drive behind, Roy I. Levinson, director of the northwest defense division, urged all residents of the northwest side to coöperate with the "Salvage for Victory" campaign, now being staged, by saving waste materials until contacted by salvage wardens.

"Residents of this area are urged to save any valuable salvage which may accumulate during their spring cleaning activities," Levinson said. "Especially desirable are rubber boots, rubber toys, bed springs, mattresses, accumulation of paper, magazines, corrugated boxes and cartons, rags, and similar items."

Salvage wardens in each of the 4,584 blocks in the northwest division, under direction of Edward Malloy, divisional salvage chairman, will call at the homes within the next week or two, Levinson said. Proceeds from the sale of the salvage will be used for the maintenance of the defense headquarters in each community.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 27

Some of the seeds recently sown in the garden will be up by this time and as weather conditions may remain cool the weeds will not grow as fast as they will when hot weather comes. However, it is imperative that the cultivator—usually the hoe—be used to keep the soil stirred and to remove any small weeds that have started.

Garden work can easily become very laborious if the time element fails to be taken into consideration. All work should be done on time, such as cutting weeds by cultivating when they are quite small. By so doing the soil is kept stirred, the vegetables and flowers grow rapidly, and the soil is not utilizing the plant food it contains to supply weeds.

Tuesday, April 28

Do not plant warm weather or tropical vegetables or flowers until the conditions are favorable. However, cool crops, hardy annuals, trees, shrubs, and vines can be planted now.

Perennials that have started into growth can be divided. If the hardy aster, oswego tea, false dragonhead, or plants that grow rapidly from underground stems are divided, given good, fresh soil, they will be the better for it. Divide phlox and remember that each tip will grow into a good plant.

As soon as the hardy annual seedlings are fairly well developed they should be thinned so that each one will have plenty of space to develop. Too often thinning is neglected which only results in tall, spindly plants that have few flowers. This is true of vegetables as well.

Wednesday, April 29

One of the best plants for greens is the young turnip and it is filled with health-giving vitamins. Sow in rows and be sure to thin to about three inches, using the thinnings for greens. Use the larger outer leaves of chard, lettuce, and spinach for the same purpose; the inner leaves will keep on growing and they, too, can be used when large enough.

When gathering produce like peas, beans, pole beans, cucumbers, and other similar kinds, do not pull up the plants or loosen them in the soil. Do not keep pouring water on the rows of radishes or they will grow so fast they may split.

Leaf crops require a high nitrogenous plant food while root crops need copious amounts of phosphorus and potash to develop the fruit, roots, and stems.

Thursday, April 30

If hard seeds are soaked in warm water for about 12 hours their germination will be hastened and be more uniform. Heavy, thick seeds like sweet peas, cannas, morning glories, lupins, and others can be so treated after filing thru each seed but not deep enough to injure the interior.

Thin sowing of small seeds is essential. To avoid oversowing mix the seeds with dry sand before sowing. Light colored sand against the dark soil will show how the seed is being applied and in what amounts.

You can grow some fine foliage plants from seeds, such as the tropical castor bean. This plant grows six feet high, has a wide spread, is very tropical in appearance, and is excellent as a background for other plants.

Friday, May 1

If you wish a brilliant and effective show, plant hardy chrysanthemums and plant them in the spring. Buy small pot plants because they are not disturbed when removed from pot to open ground. Depending on the kind and the purpose wanted, plant from 18 inches to 3 feet apart.

Some strains, like the azaleamums, have the capacity of developing many branches close to the ground and are covered with myriads of buds. They like a rich, deep, well drained soil for best results. Disbud for large flowers.

Saturday, May 2

Do not neglect house plants. Those who have an outdoor garden should repot all the plants that need repotting to enable them to grow luxuriantly in the open air. Simply plunge the pots to their rims and water each day, if needed.

The poinsettia, gardenia, azalea, and others that do not require partial shade, such as fancy leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, ferns, most palms, are benefited.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

There is a good reason why our advertising linage in the Metropolitan sections of the Sunday Tribune reached a 9-year high of 21,077 lines last year -- and why we are currently running a new series of fashion advertisements that should make 1942 an even greater year.

Most of our advertising is for coats, dresses and smart outerwear fashions. Located in the convenient Madison and Crawford area, we serve the great West Side. That we reach practically all our market in the Sunday Tribune is shown by these figures on increases in our apparel departments:

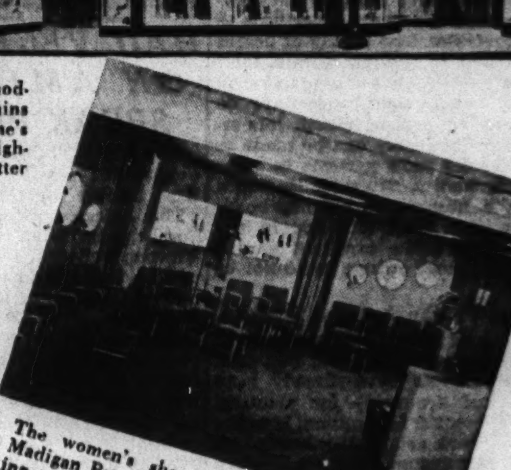
1941 was 27.85% better than 1940
1940 was 29.51% better than 1939

-- and so far in 1942, our business is 50.63% better than 1941. The only thing that is holding us back from making larger gains is lack of space.

Frankly, your zoned Metropolitan Section advertising is an excellent investment for outlying merchants. We know of nothing that equals it for results and low cost.

Sincerely yours,
J. D. Madigan
MADIGAN BROTHERS

How Madigan Brothers newly modernized store is piling up sales gains with the aid of the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers is told in the letter above.



The women's shoe department in Madigan Brothers store is contributing to the gains which this retailer attributes to consistent use of advertising in the Sunday Tribune.

WEST SIDE STORE TELLS HOW LOW COST ADVERTISING IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE SPURS SALES AND GROWTH

SALES up 29% in 1940; up another 27% in 1941; and for the first three months of this year, 50% better than last year . . . such is the progress reported in the accompanying letter by this well-known west side store which for many years has used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers.

This is the testimony of only one of the 726 retailers on all sides of Chicago who used this plan last year to go after more sales and profits.

If you want to build securely for the future, now is the time to get the facts about this low-cost, business-building plan. Chicago's greater industrial activity is widening the distribution of spendable cash in every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago. At rates scaled low enough to permit every retailer to take advantage of Tribune sales power, you can put the Sunday Tribune on the job bringing more customers right from your own trading area.

It costs you nothing to get the facts. Call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow morning and ask for the Metropolitan section advertising department. A representative will be glad to call on you at your convenience with case history evidence showing how others in your line are using this plan to build sales and profits.

TRIBUNE PRINTS DEFENSE COURSES

EAGER WOMEN MAP DETAILS OF LILAC SHARING

See Large Bloom of Fragrant Flower.

BY JEANNE McCARTHY.

Women with flowers on their hats and flowers in their gardens gathered Wednesday to plan for the distribution of their flowers and the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" days, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

The occasion was the annual luncheon of the guild. From south and southwest Chicago were two garden club divisions, the Rock Island and Illinois Central. Members of both units said that indications point to a large bloom in their districts, and, consequently, a large yield for the hospitals, community houses, and orphanages thruout Chicago. On a date, yet unnamed, lilacs will be distributed to these institutions.

Guests at Broadcast.

Lilac day workers will be guests at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening at a broadcast in the W-G-N audience studios. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will speak on "The Battle of the Wilderness."

Wednesday's luncheon was held in the tea room of Carson, Pirie and Scott. Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Ravinia, retiring chairman of the guild, introduced her successor, Mrs. Warner R. Nelson of Glencoe. Mrs. Nelson presided.

The joy resulting from the arrival of flowers at hospitals and community houses was related by Gen. McManus McCloskey, superintendent of the County hospital; Harriet Vittum of the Northwestern Settlement house, and Florence Towne of the Erie Neighborhood house. A short address also was given by Theodore Purcell, guild president.

Contributor 14th Year.

Mrs. John Klepper, 17104 Oak Park avenue, Tinley Park, guild chairman of the Tinley Park Garden club, will this year mark her 14th as a contributor of lilacs to The Tribune's "Share Your Lilacs" program. Mrs. Klepper, a motherly woman in green, said she has been growing lilacs in the yard of her Tinley Park home for the last 26 years.

Her interest in lilacs goes back to a Minneapolis childhood. Her mother was a lilac grower, and, apparently, passed on the interest to her daughter. Mrs. Klepper now has four bushes in her yard, each of which is heavy with blooms every year. The bushes were given her by another lilac enthusiast in Joliet. Members of the Tinley Park Garden club collect Tinley Park's lilacs for lilac day distribution each year, bind them and take them to the train depots for shipment to Chicago.

Heeds Elderly Woman's Request.

Mrs. W. O. Korten, 11301 Lothair avenue, received a letter last week from a resident of Lake Park avenue, who requested that lilacs be given to a little old lady, bedridden and suffering in a south side slum area. Mrs. Korten's correspondent saw her name and news of the lilac campaign in THE TRIBUNE. "We're certainly going to see that she gets some flowers," Mrs. Korten said. "That's just an idea how much they're appreciated." Mrs. Korten, a member of the Garden Club of Morgan Park, is guild chairman of the Rock Island division. She has been growing lilacs on the hillside lot on which her home stands for the last 30 years.

Clubs in the Rock Island division of the guild are the Beverly Hills Woman's club, the Garden Club of Morgan Park, Morgan Park Woman's club, Blue Island Garden club, the Tinley Park Garden club, and the Mokena garden club. At Wednesday's luncheon, the south and southwest sides were well represented.

Beverly Hills Group on Hand.

From the Beverly Hills Woman's club were Mrs. A. C. Schurna, 10428 Church street, guild chairman; Mrs. M. F. Rust and her daughter, Mrs. V. K. Brown, 11042 Prospect avenue. The president, Mrs. A. J. Johannsen, 2203 West 111th street; the guild chairman, Mrs. W. L. Pringle, 2215 West 110th place, and Mrs. Frank S. Gray, 2145 West 110th street, were on hand from the Garden Club of Morgan Park. Mrs. Charles Nielsen and Mrs. Klepper represented the Tinley Park Garden club; Mrs. Burdette Pronger, 2551 York street, was on hand for the Blue Island Garden club.

In the Illinois Central division are the Thimbles and Thumbs club, Garden Club of South Shore, Junior Garden Club of South Shore, Ivanhoe Garden club, Hazelcrest Garden club, Homewood Garden club, Homewood Woman's club, Flossmoor Garden club. Among the representatives of this division in attendance were Mrs. Charles S. Pratt, 1348 East 48th street, Mrs. Clarence D. Morrison, 5212 Greenwood avenue, Mrs. Gordon R. Close, 4536 Greenwood avenue, and Mrs. John F. Steart, Wilmette, Thimbles and Thumbs club.

The Ivanhoe Garden club also was well represented. Attending from there were Mrs. Robert Maynard, 14425 State street; Mrs. Herbert Waldon, 14433 State street; Mrs. Harry Erickson, 14430 LaSalle street, and Mrs. Mason E. Phillips, 14115 State street. The guild chairman of the Illinois Central division, Mrs. Herschel Missey, 7514 Ridgeland av., who also represents the Garden Club of South Shore, was on hand.

War Gardens to Be Visited in Parade Today

The first victory garden rally to be held in metropolitan Chicago will be staged at 2 o'clock today by the Kiwanis clubs of Roseland and Englewood and south side community victory garden organizations.

The program, expected to attract victory gardeners from all parts of the city, will start at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue. Here, Mrs. A. H. Lassman, 7047 Union avenue, victory garden chairman of Englewood, will explain the demonstration gardens.

After this inspection, the motorcade will proceed to the community garden at 70th and Morgan streets, where vegetables already are sprouting. Leaving there at 3:15 o'clock, the parade will go to the victory garden at 9024 Carpenter street. Fred Reynolds, victory garden chairman of the Brainerd community, will explain this coöperative project.

Stop in Blue Island.

The next stop will be at 4 o'clock at 107th and Woods streets, where Kiwanian William Hayden is directing a community garden. Earl Fox, victory garden chairman of Auburn Park, who will marshal the parade, has a victory garden at 121st and Gregory streets, Blue Island. This, too, will be viewed.

The parade will leave Blue Island at 5:30 o'clock, proceeding to 11110 South Wallace street, where the community garden of the Roseland Kiwanis is being sponsored by Ernest Gries. Neighborhood Boy and Girl Scouts are tending 10,000 plants in propagating benches here. The Kiwanis model victory garden also will be ready for inspection.

Several other victory gardens are being developed on the southwest side. Mrs. David McGowan has three gardens under way in eastern Englewood. She has recruited scores of families for work at 6843-49 Langley avenue and 6401-05 Langley avenue. Permission for the use of these lands was granted by Shanley Gage, 105 North Clark street, and Flora S. Arndt, 7228 Lowe avenue, respectively.

Other Garden Sites.

T. K. Gibson, treasurer of the Supreme Liberty Life Insurance company, has authorized the use of property at the southwest corner of Loomis boulevard and 61st street and the northwest corner of Loomis boulevard and 62d street for community garden projects.

In Washington Heights, Lucius M. Tolman Jr., 1514 West 104th street, victory garden chairman, has been authorized to use the northwest corner of 107th and Halsted streets, for a community garden. This territory extends a block north to 106th street.

Another project in Mr. Tolman's community is being developed by Block Captain Samuel Keating. He has secured the permission of Marielouise Carmichael to use the vacant property at the southwest corner of 100th and Sangamon streets. Neighboring families will join in a coöperative vegetable and flower growing effort.

An energetic group in Roseland is being fostered by William J. Hubrich, 10616 Wallace street. Victory garden chairman in that area, he has granted the use of his tract between 106th and 107th streets on Lowe avenue, for the victory planting project. He is rounding up community residents to care for individual family garden plots.

Fourteen families have agreed to care for individual plots 50 feet south of 76th street on the east side of Loomis boulevard, Mrs. Pearl Enhorning, a victory garden warden in that area, said. Plots for all have been staked out already. Charles McErlean, 8725 Ashland avenue, owner, has given his consent.

Mrs. Charles Nielsen and Mrs. John Klepper of Tinley Park, both members of the Tinley Park Garden club, attended the guild's luncheon Wednesday and mapped plans for Tinley Park's role in the lilac distribution. This will be Mrs. Klepper's 14th lilac contribution. The program is 14 years old this year, too.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

Two south side Chicago men have been selected to attend the officers' training school at Fort Sill, Okla. They are Second Lieut. C. D. Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Norton, 4930 Woodlawn avenue, and Second Lieut. Walter R. Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anton J. Olson, 8007 Blackstone avenue.

Lieut. C. D. Norton.

Lieut. Walter Olson.

Lieut. Norton formerly was employed by the Acme Steel company, and Lieut. Olson is a former employé of the Western Electric company. Both men will take the battery officers' course in the field artillery school.

Off to the huge tank crew training school at Fort Knox, Ky., is Pvt. Lloyd R. Arend, 4510 Woodlawn avenue. Duty with the fastest and newest land forces of the army will involve extensive training in light tank, medium tank, scouting and patroling, mortar, anti-tank machine gun, assault gun, and reconnaissance techniques. At the end of 12 weeks, Arend will join the forces on active duty.

Pvt. Morton L. Braun, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Braun, 5335 Woodlawn avenue, has been made a corporal. Corp. Braun graduated from Hyde Park High school in 1939, enlisted with the army last July. He is with the air corps at Orlando, Fla.

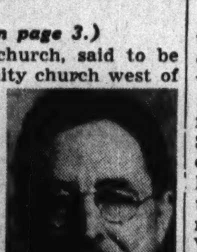
A recent graduate of the motor transport school at Atlanta, Ga., is Lieut. William L. Kleinpaste, 7832 Eberhart avenue. Directed to acquaint officers with the vehicles of their command from the ground up, this course includes 384 hours of training in operation, convoying, repair, and supply training. They learn to repair their vehicles with their own tools while on the march.

Pvt. August G. Thomas, son of August Thomas Sr. of 7927 Muskegon avenue, has recently been appointed acting noncommissioned officer in Company D., 67th training battalion, located at Camp Robinson, Arkansas.

Bethany Union Church Nears 70th Birthday

(Picture on page 3.)

Bethany Union church, said to be the oldest community church west of the Alleghenies, will mark its 70th anniversary next Sunday. Special services will be conducted in the church, 103d and Woods streets, by the Rev. Clyde McGee, pastor since 1910.



The Rev. Clyde McGee.

The musical portion of the morning program will be given by the combined choirs of the church. Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown of the First Congregational Church of Evanston, will deliver the sermon. A reception for former members and friends, as well as present members, will be held from 4 until 6 o'clock in the church's community house.

A dinner, commemorating the anniversary, will be held in the community house at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday, May 6. The Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the chapel of the University of Chicago, will speak.

Founded by 14 Members.

The church was formed May 6, 1872, with 14 charter members representing six denominations. Today there are more than 30 denominations represented in the membership of 650. The group first met at 103d street and Prospect avenue.

Some of the descendants of the founders still are on the church's roll. Among them are descendants of the Barnard families. One of these, Miss Annie Howe, was a missionary in Kobe, Japan for 40 years. She founded one of the first kindergartens in that country. Still in the church's membership, she is in retirement now, in the east. One of her nieces, Miss Alice Howe, resides in Beverly Hills, and is active in the church.

The Young family of Beverly Hills lists other pioneer members. The late Dr. Charles Young taught in the Peking Medical school, China, and was decorated by the Chinese government for his work during the bubonic plagues. His brother, Wilfrid, is a resident of Beverly Hills and a member of Bethany Union.

When the church was young, it was the main social and recreational center of Beverly Hills. It installed the

Dr. Powell became an American clergyman after engaging in a lecturing career in the British government's department of science in London. He has been a rector in churches in Ohio and Indiana, and has been in his present position since 1931. He fought with the British army in the Boer war and with the United States army in the last World war.

The award will be given to the person between the ages of 16 and 25 who is adjudged to have the most promising voice. A preliminary competition will be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday, May 10, in the Ridge park fieldhouse. The final award will be made at the May festival Saturday, May 16, at Fenger High school, 112th and Wallace streets. Miss Adee Hall, 6951 Harper avenue, is contest chairman.

Loretto High Recalls Fifty Active Years

Alumnae and friends of Loretto [Englewood] High school are this year marking the 50th anniversary of the founding of the elementary and high schools. The anniversary has been commemorated by a series of reunions and parties. The last of these will be held Wednesday, May 13, in the high school. A school-wide affair, arrangements for the card party have been entrusted to the freshman mothers, with Mrs. Harry Hullinger and Mrs. William Corrigan as co-chairmen.

The history of Loretto goes back to Sept. 5, 1892, when Mother M. St. Roque and Mother M. Aldegonde arrived in Chicago to open St. Bernard's school. They were welcomed by the Rev. Bernard Murray, since deceased, at whose invitation they came. On Sept. 6, 1892, 186 pupils enrolled in the grammar school, then located at 6520 Stewart avenue. The high school commenced with an enrollment of 4.

Graduated First Class in 1897.

The first faculty consisted of Mother St. Roque and Mother M. Evarista, who came here from Hamilton, Ont. Mother St. Roque was the first principal of Loretto. She now is a member of Loretto, Woodlawn, community. The first class was graduated from Loretto High school in 1897.

The first school of the Ladies of Loretto was opened in 1608 in St. Omar in Flanders for Catholic girls of England. Since that time the Ladies of Loretto have founded and taught in schools thruout the world.

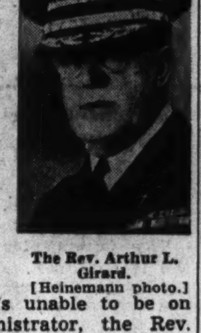
1,200 Pupils in Both Schools.

In August, 1896, the present convent was started. The property and building were to cost $25,000, but Father Murray requested a Georgia marble front to harmonize with the new church. This raised the cost to $35,000. Ground was broken for the new high school in 1926. The cost of this building was $200,000. It was opened in September, 1927, with an enrollment of 150. Pupils in the grammar school now number 851. There are now 375 girls in the high school.

Plans have been drawn for a new convent at 6546 Harvard avenue. This building, to cost $100,000, will be a part of the parish unit, consisting of St. Bernard's church and grammar school, gymnasium, and parish center.

Golden Jubilee of 'Old French' Church Today

A solemn high mass at noon today, presided over by Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch, will begin the golden jubilee of the southwest side's old "French church," St. John the Baptist, 50th place and Peoria street. The pastor, the Rev. Arthur L. Girard, a chaplain at Camp Grant, Rockford, probably will celebrate the mass. If he's unable to be on hand, the administrator, the Rev. Frank Corley, will be celebrant.



The Rev. Arthur L. Girard.
[Heinemann photo.]

At 3 o'clock, Archbishop Stritch will confirm a class of 250 children and 20 adults. A solemn high mass will be celebrated tomorrow for the children of the parish. A party will follow. A reception for present and former parishioners will take place tonight. Close to a thousand persons are expected to attend the homecoming.

First Sermons in French.

The parish of St. John the Baptist was founded in April, 1892, by Archbishop Patrick A. Feehan to care for the French speaking people living south of Root street, north of 75th street, east of Western avenue, and west of the lake.

The Rev. Frank Corley.

Originally all announcements and sermons were delivered in French. The first pastor was the Rev. Alfred Belanger. He said the parish's first mass in Oswald's hall, 52d and Halsted streets. This was used until a small frame church was purchased in 1893 from a Swedish congregation and moved to the location of the present church. The parish's first baptism and funeral took place on the same day, May 1, 1892. The first convent and sacristy were built in the middle 1890s. The sisters of St. Joseph of Concordia, Kas., took possession of the convent on June 24, 1898, registering pupils and starting the parish school.

In 1901, the parishioners built a small, wooden parish hall. In 1903, the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary took direction of the parish school. They now operate it.

New Church in 1911.

The cornerstone of the present church was blessed in 1910. On March 19, 1911, the parish moved into the building it now occupies. It was dedicated by Archbishop James E. Quigley on the feast of St. John the Baptist, in 1911.

Father Girard, who previously had served the parish from July, 1910, to April, 1917, was named pastor in 1933. He served in World War I. as an army chaplain, and saw service overseas. The Rev. T. P. Gelinas was pastor from 1900 until 1933.

The church has been redecorated. A new pipe organ has been installed in the chapel, and a shrine to Our Lady of Perpetual Help, has been added. The total cost was $20,000. Other pastoral assistants in the parish are the Rev. Albert Peterson and the Rev. Charles Draper.

When the church was first organized, practically all the members were French and spoke that language more fluently than that of their adopted country. Now, however, 70 per cent of the 800 families comprising the parish are of Irish parentage.

300,000 Now Taking First Training.

More than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now are attending basic training classes of the OCD, while other thousands in the suburbs also are studying or preparing to study the rudiments of emergency service.

To assist these workers, THE TRIBUNE is publishing today the outline of Lesson No. 1, prepared by the OCD training division. This lesson, one of a series to appear in the Metropolitan section, is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference.

THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. The outline for Lesson No. 2 in the series will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section. It is suggested that defense workers save the lessons.

DEFENSE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Civilian defense is an essential part of military science and is designed to counteract assault on civilian centers by air bombardment, sabotage, or other forms of attack.

Objectives of enemy assault on civilian centers are to:

1. Demolish defense industries.
2. Cripple communications.
3. Disrupt urban utilities.
4. Knock out government headquarters [including civilian defense headquarters].
5. Interrupt routine of workers, homes, restaurants, shops.
6. Destroy civilian morale.

Active military operations would include:

1. Destruction of enemy air fleet at its own bases.
2. Interception and destruction of enemy bombers.
3. Anti-aircraft.
4. Balloon-barrage.

Civilian defense is the passive as compared with active type of military operation.

The object of civilian defense is to protect and repair the lives and property of civilian population against air assault. Assault on civilian centers, whether by air bombardment or internal sabotage, is not completely new, tho greatly intensified. Every offense breeds its defense. Civilian defense is the new form of defense against the new form of offense by aerial bombardment.

The degree of probability of enemy attack should not be the determining question. Even if the percentage probability were only 1/10 of 1 per cent we must be practically 100 per cent prepared when the bombs begin to fall.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE FUNCTIONS.

1. Control of movement of people during raid.
2. Provision of shelters.
3. Rescue of trapped persons.
4. Control of fires.
5. Provision of first aid and hospitalization of wounded.
6. Repair of broken mains and utility lines.
7. Reopening of streets and restoration of traffic communications.
8. Provision of food and shelter for the homeless.

The term civilian defense is slowly coming to mean civilian protection or air raid precautions. In sense civilian defense preparations are not defense production, defense consumption [prices and rationing], defense financing, defense welfare, or defense morale.

Specific civilian defense services fall into two groups, protective and utility service, and emergency social services.

Protective and utility services include:

1. Spotting and warning.
2. Blackouts and camouflage.
3. Fire defense.
4. Gas defense.
5. Bomb disposal.
6. Shelter and refugees.
7. Rescue squads.
8. First aid and ambulance.
9. Police.

The jungle jamboree, annual birthday party of the Back of the Yards Neighborhood council, will be held Saturday and next Sunday at the Holy Cross social center, 46th and Wood streets. Three parties will be crowded into the two day festival which is expected to attract several thousand persons, committee spokesmen said.

The Back of the Yards Neighborhood council is composed of representatives of 200 civic, industrial, labor, religious, patriotic and youth groups.

WHAT makes a diamond truly brilliant? Naturally, the quality of the stone at the time it is mined—its inherent clarity and color. But the cutting also has a great deal to do with brilliance. For maximum brilliance, each facet of the diamond must be perfection itself. See this in the O&E Magniscope, the amazing instrument that permits the layman to see with the thoroughness of the diamond expert. Mr. D. F. McMahon
Manager
Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

There is a good reason why our advertising linage in the Metropolitan sections of the Sunday Tribune reached a 9-year high of 21,077 lines last year -- and why we are currently running a new series of fashion advertisements that should make 1942 an even greater year.

Most of our advertising is for coats, dresses and smart outerwear fashions. Located in the convenient Madison and Crawford area, we serve the great West Side. That we reach practically all our market in the Sunday Tribune is shown by these figures on increases in our apparel departments:

1941 was 27.85% better than 1940
1940 was 29.51% better than 1939

-- and so far in 1942, our business is 50.63% better than 1941. The only thing that is holding us back from making larger gains is lack of space.

Frankly, your zoned Metropolitan Section advertising is an excellent investment for outlying merchants. We know of nothing that equals it for results and low cost.

Sincerely yours,
J. D. Madigan

How Madigan Brothers newly modernized store is piling up sales gains with the aid of the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers is told in the letter above.

WEST SIDE STORE TELLS HOW LOW COST ADVERTISING IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE SPURS SALES AND GROWTH

The women's shoe department in Madigan Brothers store is contributing to the gains which this retailer attributes to consistent use of advertising in the Sunday Tribune.

SALES up 29% in 1940; up another 27% in 1941; and for the first three months of this year, 50% better than last year . . . such is the progress reported in the accompanying letter by this well-known west side store which for many years has used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers.

This is the testimony of only one of the 726 retailers on all sides of Chicago who used this plan last year to go after more sales and profits.

If you want to build securely for the future, now is the time to get the facts about this low-cost, business-building plan. Chicago's greater industrial activity is widening the distribution of spendable cash in every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago. At rates scaled low enough to permit every retailer to take advantage of Tribune sales power, you can put the Sunday Tribune on the job bringing more customers right from your own trading area.

It costs you nothing to get the facts. Call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow morning and ask for the Metropolitan section advertising department. A representative will be glad to call on you at your convenience with case history evidence showing how others in your line are using this plan to build sales and profits.

FIREMAN FOR 44 YEARS CREDITS IT TO HEREDITY

Riverdale Chief Grew Up Next to Station.

Being a fireman, Chief Edward A. Kipley of Riverdale says, is a matter of environment and heredity. He grew up next door to a fire house. His father was a fireman.

The chief has been a member of Riverdale's department for 44 years. He came to the village when he was 16 and joined immediately. For the last 10 years he has been its chief.

He was born at 28th and Loomis streets, across the alley from engine company 28. His father was a driver for that company. The chief chased his first fire when he was 5 years old, and he has been chasing them ever since. He used to help the firemen at these fires, and learned to lay lines of hose with the best of them. For this, they used to let him wear a fireman's cap.

At Iroquois Fire.

In his unofficial capacity he worked at the Iroquois fire, the Eastland disaster, the first big stock yards fire in 1922, and others that have made fire history. He recalls that he spent seven years chasing fires with engine company 9, then at 26th street and Cottage Grove avenues. And it was with them that he worked on many of Chicago's biggest blazes.

"The biggest thrill of my life," he said, "occurred when I was just fanning around at the fires." A 4-11 alarm at 31st street and Indiana avenue brought engine company 9, Kipley, and others to the site. Chief Michael Corrigan, then a division marshal, saw Kipley standing around with an ax in his hand. "Open the shutters," the division marshal ordered, and Kipley raced to the steel shutters, slipped the ax between the window sill and the shutters, pried up and unhinged them. "I read how to do that," he said, "in an old fire department examination." That feat sort of established him, he said.

Father Vetoes Work.

When he became older he wanted to join the Chicago department. His father, then retired, protested, and promised that he'd see to it that he never got in. He knew that his father would and could accomplish this, so he gave up the idea. "My father," Kipley said, "thought that being a fireman was a loafer's job.

His father was quite a fireman, too. In the first national firemen's tournament at old Dexter park, Peter Kipley Sr. won the medal for the fastest hitching of two horses to a fire engine. He did the job in eight seconds. The chief has a medal, too. He got it in 1907 at the Illinois Firemen's association tournament when he coupled a hose in four and four-fifth seconds. The chief said he thinks it's still the record.

When he came to Riverdale he and some of the other residents organized a volunteer unit. In the 44 years he has been out there he has made two rescues alone.

How to Lengthen Ladder.

Once a man was trapped on the second floor of a burning building with all means of exit, except the window, cut off. The only ladder around was four feet too short. The chief said he picked the ladder up, rested it on his chest, and that made it long enough to reach the trapped man.

His other rescue was that of a man trapped in a Riverdale tavern. The chief found him prostrate on the floor and removed him. He said he thinks the prostration was the result of smoke.

Riverdale's department today is part paid and part volunteer. Two engineers are on duty all the time, and the department is made up of 45 firemen and auxiliary firemen. When the fire department headquarters receives an alarm a loud siren wails thru the town to summon the firemen. He attends most of the town's fires and spends all of his leisure time in the department's headquarters—down the street from his home. He lives at 11 East 138th street. He is employed at the Pullman company—in the fire and watch service.

The chief has a daughter, Dolores, who is as great a fire fan as her dad. His son, the chief said rather sadly, is different. "If the house were burning down," the chief said, "he might call me up and tell me about it."

first free library in the district. It organized the seventh Christian Endeavor society in the United States and the first in Illinois. For three years after the close of World War I., the church exhibited motion pictures two nights a week. There were no theaters in Beverly Hills at that time.

The present building was dedicated in December, 1926. Built of seam faced granite, quarried near Boston, it cost $150,000. The organ and furnishings cost another $50,000. The building was designed by Raymond Hood, one of the architects of Tribune Tower.

During the 70 years of its existence, the pulpit has been filled by six pastors. The son of the first minister, the Rev. D. S. Heffron, is a member of the church. Nearing 90, Arthur D. is in the front row at services each Sunday. The son of the second minister, the Rev. E. R. Worrell, also is an active member. He is D. E. Worrell, a Beverly Hills resident.

The Rev. Mr. McGee came to Bethany Union five years after he accepted his first church in 1905. He's been there ever since, and is the oldest Congregational minister, in years of service at one church, in the city.

PRESBYTERIANS OBSERVE GOLDEN YEAR OF CHURCH

Dr. Paul Johnson Speaks at Service Today.

The 50th anniversary celebration of the 7th Presbyterian church, 86th place and Sangamon street, will terminate today with a 10:30 o'clock service. Dr. Paul S. Johnson of the Chicago Presbytery will be the speaker.

The church held its first meeting in April, 1892, at 8725 Emerald avenue, the home of J. L. Thompson, an attorney. The charter membership was composed of 26. Only one of those original founders is still alive. She is Miss Georgia E. Vosseller, 8729 Emerald avenue, who joined the church at the age of 12.

Now Almost 90.

The pre-organization pastor was Dr. J. Frank Young, now nearly 90. Dr. George Hunt, now 75, was the first resident pastor. He built the first chapel, which was dedicated in 1893. He is now pastor emeritus of the Madison church, where he served for 30 years.

In 1923, plans were made for the building of a new church. Close to $23,000 was pledged, but rising building costs prevented any action. In 1925, an addition was built to the original building.

Twelve pastors have presided at the 7th Presbyterian church in its 50 years of existence. Dr. Earl C. Morgan, who served from 1922 to 1931, held the longest pastorate in the church's history. The second longest was held by the Rev. Walter H. Chambers, who served from 1931 to 1939.

Pastor Since 1939.

The present pastor is the Rev. John Calvin Leonard. He was called to the church in 1939.

The anniversary celebration began at the 10:30 o'clock service last Sunday. The guest speaker was Dr. J. Walter Malone of the Presbyterian seminary. A dinner, attended by 200, was held Thursday. Dean Charles Gilkey of the University of Chicago, addressed an 8 o'clock meeting Friday.

COL. M'CORMICK TALKS ON BATTLE OF WILDERNESS

Speech on W-G-N-Mutual Next Saturday.

"The Battle of the Wilderness," one of the most important campaigns of the Civil war, will be the topic of a speech to be given at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The speech will be the second analysis of a major Civil war campaign to be delivered by Col. McCormick. His first subject was "The Battle of Gettysburg," presented Dec. 27. The text of his Gettysburg broadcast is now being used at West Point.

"The Battle of the Wilderness" broadcast will be heard in place of the "America Loves a Melody" program usually heard at that time.

Special guests at the program in the W-G-N main audience studio will be garden club presidents, guild chairmen, and garden club members thruout Chicagoland who are coöperating with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the annual "Share Your Lilacs" days.

The musical portion of the program will feature Marion Claire, soprano star of the "America Loves a Melody" show, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor. Background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore will present well known Civil war songs and the orchestra will feature a medley of Civil war marching tunes.

Col. McCormick, an outstanding authority on military history, has written many articles on the campaigns of important wars. He is also the author of a book on Gen. Grant and another book, just published, titled "How We Acquired Our National Territory."

NORTHERNERS, STARTING EIGHTH YEAR, WIN AWARD

An award by the Chicago Federated Advertising club to the Northerners as the outstanding evening radio show originating in Chicago will be presented during their broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday evening over W-G-N. The award will be given to Solomon Byron Smith, vice president of the Northern Trust company, by William F. Carr, chairman of the award committee for the advertising club.

The award comes just as the Northerners are preparing to begin their eighth year on W-G-N. In musical range the Northerners cover everything from modern ballads to operatic selections. Tuesday night they plan to present such popular ballads as "I Saw the Sea," by Irving Berlin; "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," by Westendorf; "One Kiss" from "New Moon," by Romberg; "There's Something About a Soldier," by Gay; "The Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss, and selections from the musical comedy "Glamorous Night," by Novello.

The Northerners program was originated by J. M. Easton of the trust company. It started as an educational program and it was planned to use music for background purposes only. After a few months it was changed to a musical program and placed under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, who has directed it ever since. The show features an all-string orchestra, a male octet, and Miss Lois Wallner, soprano soloist.

The Northerners octet is composed of Dean Reed and Henry Anderson, first tenors; Robert Kessler and Earle Tanner, second tenors; George Smith and Earle Wilkie, baritones, and Leslie Arnold and John Macdonald, bassos. George Smith and Leslie Arnold have been with the group since it originated. Helene Webb and Palmer Clark write the vocal arrangements and Walter Dellers handles the orchestral arrangements.

Heifetz to Be First Guest on Great Artist Broadcasts

Jascha Heifetz, the noted volinist, will be the first guest on the new Great Artist series to be aired on the telephone hour starting tomorrow night. The series will be aired over WMAQ-NBC at 8 p. m. Heifetz will play the Bach "Air," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "The Bumble Bee," and Sarasate's "Gypsy Airs."

the same as the nine army corps areas. The regional office assists and consults with the several states.

There are metropolitan defense areas set up in districts like New York and Chicago, which cut across municipal and state lines. These metropolitan areas have the same status as do the states in their relation to the civilian defense regions and to the O. C. D. The states and the metropolitan defense areas assist the local defense agencies.

The Chicago metropolitan Office of Civilian Defense covers all of Cook county, part of Du Page county and part of Lake county, Illinois, and has a total population of four and one-half million people, and an area of 1,135 square miles.

It is divided into 15 divisions, seven within the city of Chicago and eight in the rest of the metropolitan area. Under these divisions are about 228 community defense areas, 108 local community areas in Chicago and 120 suburban areas.

These communities in turn are divided into zones or districts of several blocks each. The smallest unity of operation for civilian defense purposes is the block, or some equivalent unit, of which there are about 20,000 in the Chicago metropolitan area.

CONTROL, COMMAND, AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Comparing the civilian defense organization with a system of military command, the flow of command runs from the metropolitan coödinator, thru the division chiefs, to the community commanders, or suburban coordinators, thru the zone or district commanders, to the block captains.

Air raid warden posts in the individual blocks are tied together with the control centers or the metropolitan headquarters, in a network of communications which constitutes the nerve system of the civilian defense organization under conditions of actual attack.

The mission of the communications and control system is:

1. To maintain a continuous picture of the bombings or "incidents" in the area as reported in by the wardens.

2. To dispatch crews and squads of personnel and equipment to the scene of the "incidents" by contacting the headquarters and posts of the specialized civilian defense services.

3. To notify the higher command in case reinforcements of personnel and equipment are needed for the area or division covered by the control center.

A hypothetical control center for a community of 100,000 people, according to O. C. D. standards requires the following equipment:

1. Twenty-seven telephone lines.
2. Radio equipment in case telephone services are blown out.
3. A large control map on which each "incident" is spotted with color pins or tabs.
4. A control panel which keeps a continuous visual inventory of services needed and services dispatched.

Control center personnel includes such specialized officers and workers as:

1. Controler.
2. Map plotting officer.
3. Panel clerk.
4. Record clerk.
5. Communications officer.
6. Radio aide.
7. Guards.
8. Ten telephonists.
9. Four messengers.

PERSONNEL AND TRAINING.

The civilian defense system of metropolitan Chicago, when fully manned, will have about 300,000 workers.

The classes of personnel required by OCD fall into the following groups:

1. Staff corps.
2. Air raid wardens.
3. Auxiliary police.
4. Auxiliary firemen.
5. Bomb squads.
6. Fire watchers.
7. Medical corps.
8. Rescue squads.
9. Nurses aides.
10. Drivers corps.
11. Messengers.
12. Emergency food and housing.
13. Decontamination corps.
14. Demolition and clearance crews.
15. Road repair crew.
16. Utilities repair squads.

The staff of metropolitan Chicago includes:

1. Central headquarters staff.
2. Fifteen division chiefs.
3. 228 local community commanders.
4. About 1,000 zone or district captains.
5. About 20,000 block captains.
6. Instructors, information officers.

Since the personnel must carry on highly technical duties, it must be trained before it can go into operation and before it can be certified under OCD standards. The required courses will include general civilian defense survey [5 hours], fire defense [3 hours], first aid [10 hours], gas defense [3 hours]. In addition there are about six specialized training courses for each of about 16 specialized groups of personnel.

The OCD requires each worker to be certified as trained before being allowed to wear this insignia. The training program is so large that it must be decentralized at the local community level, with the help of schools and others. The first job is to train instructors and master instructors. In addition, the training division of the metropolitan office is required to provide the curriculum, set standards, administer and coördinate the training program.

RESEARCH AND PLANNING.

Civilian defense is a scientific set of techniques. Preparations in the United States are based largely upon British experience. The British themselves approached this problem scientifically and they did research constantly. They investigated a sample of the "incidents" in order to find evidence that would help deal with future attacks.

The OCD recommends a plan for scheduling civilian defense preparation step by step as follows:

Study and planning of the communications system and the organization for civilian defense; announcement of the organization plan and recruitment of personnel; training, and testing and maneuvers.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

EMPLOYES and early morning visitors to the park district's administration building in Burnham park have been wondering what happened to the "smiling man who used to sweep the plaza." He was Anthony Zalumski, 4140 Campbell avenue, and he recently retired. Retirement came, as prescribed by Illinois law, at the age of 65. Tony has been a park district employé for 20 years. He spent most of them at the administration building.

OLD FARMHOUSE DROPS 100 YEARS IN REMODELING

Oak Beams Are Utilized in Interior Trim.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The 100 year old farmhouse on route 58, just outside Des Plaines, which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bredfeldt decided to remodel and convert into a modern American farmhouse, yielded unexpected treasures when the walls were torn out.

Old hand-hewn oak beams pegged together formed the skeleton structure of the earliest part of the house, and the architect, W. F. McCaughey of Park Ridge, saw in them an inspiration for the character of wood trim, floors, and plaster. When cleaned they took on a beautiful antique brown color to which much of the adjacent trim was blended.

Had Many Additions.

This farmhouse, like so many in the district, expressed whole generations of living from the early part of the 19th century. The house was added to, from time to time, as different family members married.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt, together with Mr. McCaughey, looked at the house with thought of purchase, the second floor was completely separated by two stairways, one in the new section and one in the old. Naturally the whole section floor was on different levels and it was decided to remove both the stairways and build one new stairway in a central location between the dining room and living room.

All the old turned spindle work, top heavy porches, old steps, and many of the partitions were pulled down and in the northwest corner a new porch and massive chimney were added.

Bay Overlooks Orchard.

There is now a living room, dining room, study, bathroom, and kitchen on the first floor and three bedrooms and two bathrooms on the second floor.

There is a large bay in the living room overlooking a large orchard and the unusual oak mantel over the stone fireplace was carved by Mr. Bredfeldt in an egg and dart motif. A Dutch door leads to a breezy screened porch, styled to compliment the sturdy qualities of the American farmhouse.

In the old section of the house new floors were laid and in process of renovation, complete new heating, plumbing, and wiring were installed. A forced warm air heating system was put in, oil fueled.

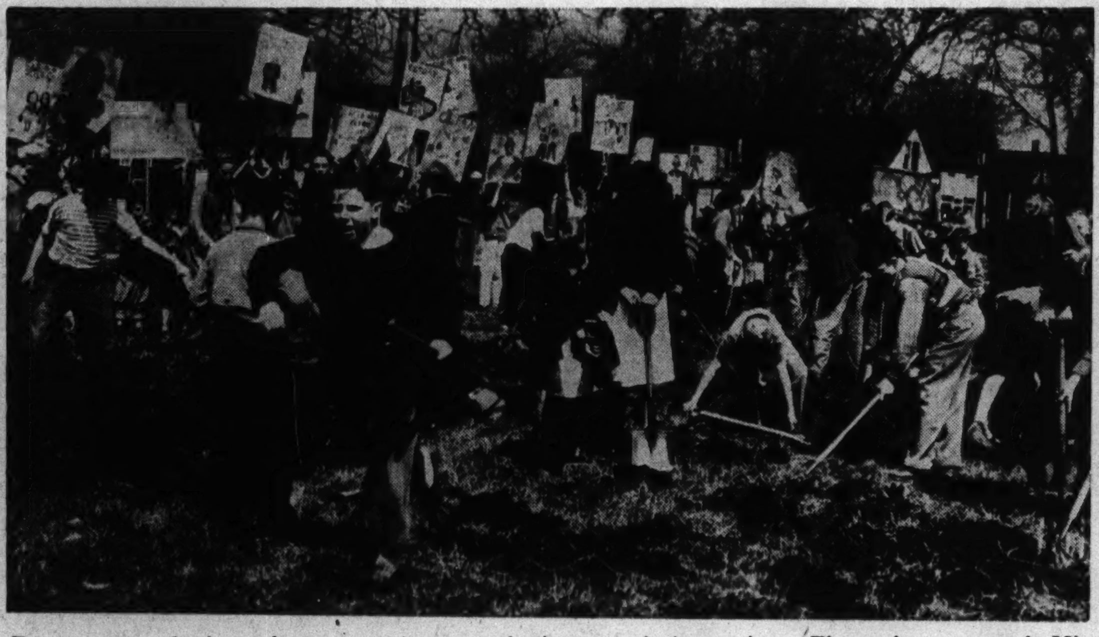
Study for Guest Room.

The study on the first floor is effectively papered and because of an adjacent bathroom can be used as a guest room when needed.

Much of the furniture is of the carved walnut and mahogany period and adds distinction to the house interior.

The house stands on 10 acres of land, surrounded by large, spreading trees, and Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt and their two daughters moved into the house last summer as the work was drawing to a finish.

Gardening Starts with Rush for Students



Turn young enthusiasms loose on a victory garden and this is what happens. Inspired by the banners prepared by younger children in the school, these pupils at Brenan school paraded to a vacant tract at 115th street and Stewart avenue and then started their own gardening project. The project sponsor is Miss Margaret Flershem, Brenan principal, and the seeds for the gardens were given thru the Chicago Outdoor Art league.

WAR GARDENER FOR KAISER NOW HELPS AMERICA

Ernest Gries to Direct Food Raising Work.

During World War 1, Ernest F. Gries, 11110 South Wallace avenue, was superintendent of a 100 acre fruit farm in Germany. Too young to tote a gun in the kaiser's army, he was put to work to bolster the army's fruit supply. In World War II., tho, he's on America's side. And, as chairman of the junior victory garden committee of the Kiwanis Club of Roseland, he is superintending the planting and care of war gardens in the neighborhood.

Gries was born in Altenhasslau, Germany. He studied in trade schools for florists and supplemented his knowledge with war experience on the farm. His transition to an American began with his arrival in Chicago in 1925. He worked during the day for a florist and studied at night at Schurz High school.

How to Learn English.

When he arrived here he was unable to speak any English. He finally mastered it with the help of a friend who had studied Spanish and recommended a pattern of study which he had found successful. It consisted of memorizing 25 words from an elementary dictionary before retiring at night, and reviewing the same words for half an hour in the morning. Gries found that it worked. He learned a lot of words. "It took me a while tho," he said, "to learn what to do with them."

He had an unhappy experience once with Lincoln's Gettysburg address. He was supposed to recite it in his class at Schurz. He had studied it for weeks and knew it well. He stood up, tried to speak, and nothing came out. He sat down. He has overcome that fear of speaking and now frequently addresses women's clubs on horticulture and gardening. He just recently spoke on victory gardens at West Pullman Park. He has never had another opportunity, however, to recite Lincoln's address.

Learns the Hard Way.

Shortly after his arrival here, some one told him that economic depressions in this country ended after three years. He waited patiently from 1929 to the end of 1931, and then launched into the florist business for himself. He found, tho, that he had been misinformed slightly.

Gries expects that there will be at least 10 victory gardens in Roseland. Boy and Girl Scout troops and other youth groups have indicated a willingness to plant and care for gardens, he said. He estimated that well over 150,000 tomato and other vegetable plants would be growing in junior victory gardens this summer in Roseland.

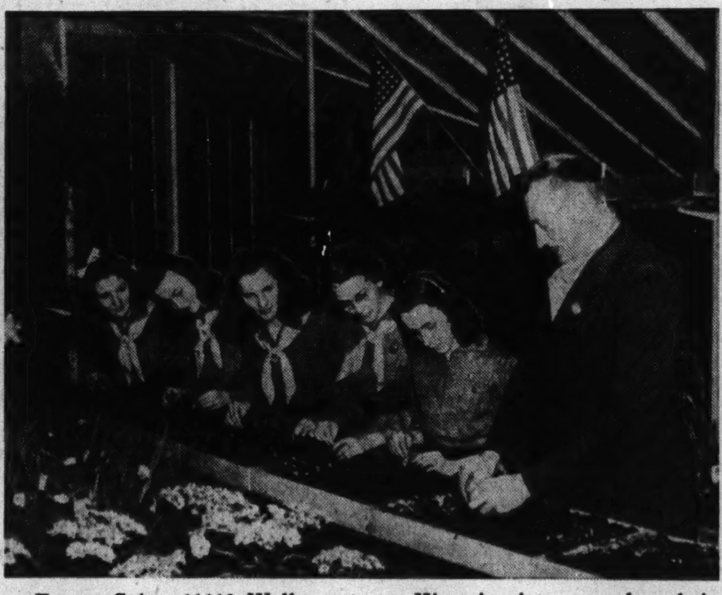
Others on Committee.

With him on the Kiwanis committee are Harry Beals, Dr. York B. Sutch, Frank Torrey, Harry Reitsma, Alpha Day, Frank Dawson, Dr. B. K. Lazarski, Chester Lundberg, George Essenberg, Dave Lofgren, and Marvin Bonnema.

The Kiwanis club will present ribbon awards this summer to the best gardens in the district, Gries said.

Morgan Park Church Club.

A publicity representative of the marine corps in the Chicago area will address the Oxford club of the Morgan Park church today. "Marines in Wartime" will be his subject.



Ernest Gries, 11110 Wallace street, Kiwanis victory garden chairman, recruited Boy and Girl Scouts from Roseland, turned over a large propagating house to them, and directed their planting. They planted seeds in flats and as they sprouted they transplanted them to other flats, and finally to outside gardens. Working here with Gries are, left to right, Jane Teninga, Nancy Zimmerman, Jewel Price, Dorothy Lewin, and Agnes Gibson.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 27

Some of the seeds recently sown in the garden will be up by this time and as weather conditions may remain cool the weeds will not grow as fast as they will when hot weather comes. However, it is imperative that the cultivator—usually the hoe—be used to keep the soil stirred and to remove any small weeds that have started.

Garden work can easily become very laborious if the time element fails to be taken into consideration. All work should be done on time, such as cutting weeds by cultivating when they are quite small. By so doing the soil is kept stirred, the vegetables and flowers grow rapidly, and the soil is not utilizing the plant food it contains to supply weeds.

Tuesday, April 28

Do not plant warm weather or tropical vegetables or flowers until the conditions are favorable. However, cool crops, hardy annuals, trees, shrubs, and vines can be planted now.

Perennials that have started into growth can be divided. If the hardy aster, oswego tea, false dragonhead, or plants that grow rapidly from underground stems are divided, given good, fresh soil, they will be the better for it. Divide phlox and remember that each tip will grow into a good plant.

Wednesday, April 29

One of the best plants for greens is the young turnip and it is filled with health-giving vitamins. Sow in rows and be sure to thin to about three inches, using the thinnings for greens. Use the larger outer leaves of chard, lettuce, and spinach for the same purpose; the inner leaves will keep on growing and they, too, can be used when large enough.

When gathering produce like peas, beans, pole beans, cucumbers, and other similar kinds, do not pull up the plants or loosen them in the soil. Do not keep pouring water on the rows of radishes or they will grow so fast they may split.

Thursday, April 30

If hard seeds are soaked in warm water for about 12 hours their germination will be hastened and be more uniform. Heavy, thick seeds like sweet peas, cannas, morning glories, lupins, and others can be so treated after filing thru each seed but not deep enough to injure the interior.

Thin sowing of small seeds is essential. To avoid oversowing mix the seeds with dry sand before sowing. Light colored sand against the dark soil will show how the seed is being applied and in what amounts.

Friday, May 1

If you wish a brilliant and effective show, plant hardy chrysanthemums and plant them in the spring. Buy small pot plants because they are not disturbed when removed from pot to open ground. Depending on the kind and the purpose wanted, plant from 18 inches to 3 feet apart.

Saturday, May 2

Do not neglect house plants. Those who have an outdoor garden should repot all the plants that need repotting to enable them to grow luxuriantly in the open air. Simply plunge the pots to their rims and water each day, if needed.

The poinsettia, gardenia, azalea, and others that do not require partial shade, such as fancy leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, ferns, most palms, are benefited.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

MORGAN PARK IS NEXT SCHOOL ON CITIZENS' PERIOD

Morgan Park Military academy will be featured on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast at 10:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon over radio station W-G-N. The program will be recorded in the audience studio of W-G-N at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, before a group of guests and school representatives. The broadcast time has been changed from the usual 1:30 hour because of a double-header baseball game between the Cubs and the Phillies.

The color guard will be composed of James S. Barry, James C. Spence, Robert P. Whitney, Liddell J. Parchman. Cheers will be led by Robert F. Goss, Kenneth H. Saul, Leonard J. Adams, George L. Stemmler.

The corps of 300 will give musical selections.

Col. Abells to Talk.

Col. Harry D. Abells, superintendent of the school, will deliver the address. His teaching career began 44 years ago, when the late William Rainey Harper, first president of the University of Chicago found a place for him at what was then a preparatory school for the university. Morgan Park was organized in 1873. One of the conditions whereby Dr. Harper of Yale university accepted the presidency of the University of Chicago in 1890 was that this academy should become the preparatory school of the university.

From 1892 it was an integral part of the University of Chicago. In 1914, 15 men, alumni or the parents of alumni, were granted a charter permitting them to conduct the academy as a nonprofit institution.

To Interview Honor Student.

Radio Principal Phil Maxwell will interview Bill Kettering, Morgan Park's honor student. He is now a cadet major serving as battalion commander at the academy.

The broadcast will be recorded before the following guests: Mrs. O. L. Appleton, president of the Mothers' club; Mrs. John E. Schulze, vice president of the Mothers' club; Fred E. Booth, president of the Fathers' club; Leroy F. Pape, president of the Alumni association and a member of the board of trustees; Fred Herendeen, an alumnus composer and playwright; H. B. Gear, vice president of the board of trustees, and the following school representatives: Col: Abells, Col. Hayden Jones, assistant superintendent; Maj. J. R. Cygon, commandant, and Col. W. A. Howland.

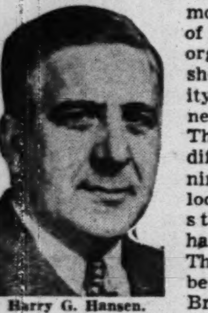
SERVICE MEN'S CENTER TO OPEN ON HOWARD ST.

Rogers Park Clubs Back Project.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.



Harry G. Hansen.

A service men's center near the Howard street "L" station—the two month old dream of 28 Rogers Park organizations—should be a reality within the next two weeks. The two most difficult beginning problems, a location and a starting fund, have been solved. The center will be housed in the Broadmoor hotel and $1,000 has been pledged by the Rogers Park Woman's club.

Harry G. Hansen, executive secretary of the Rogers Park YMCA and leader in the effort to establish the center, says the opening now depends upon how quickly the quarters can be cleaned, decorated, and equipped.

Need of the center was established by service men themselves. Every week-end hundreds of men from the Great Lakes Naval Training station and Fort Sheridan leave trains at the Howard street station and seek recreation in the neighborhood. Residents observed that many of the men simply stood about in groups, seemed to have nowhere to go and nothing to do.

YMCA Starts Plan.

By February the need had reached the talking stage. On March 2 the girls' work committee of the Rogers Park Y met with Hansen. Mrs. A. M. Kerr, 1515 Touhy avenue, chairman of the committee, reported that members had noticed the increasing number of soldiers and sailors in the Howard street area. She explained that the committee felt any center would be too much of an undertaking for the Y alone. It was decided that committee members would write to as many organizations and leading men and women in Rogers Park as they could. Eighty invitations were sent out to the first general meeting on March 13. Twenty-eight organizations were represented by men and women.

Every one agreed on the need of a center. However, various committee members were delegated to question the service men on the street. Stories they heard were both funny and pathetic. Mrs. Mona R. Inman and Mrs. Peter Poullos agreed to make actual counts at the station, and these figures were tabulated:

Count as Many as 215.

Mrs. Inman counted men from 7 to 11 o'clock on the evenings of March 15, 22, and 29. Her figures were 158, 169, and 172. Mrs. Poullos counted 215 on the evening of March 28, and 80 went thru the station from 4 to 6 o'clock April 4.

Asked why they left trains at Howard street instead of riding to the loop, the men said that the loop return trip took up an hour, so Howard street saved time. But they didn't know just what they gained by the time saving. One boy said: "Well, the train stopped at Glencoe and then pulled out. Then it stopped at a place called Winnetka and Wilmette and Evanston. So when the conductor said 'Chicago' I hopped right off. I sure wanted to see this town."

Many fighters were confused by the announcement that Howard street is at the Chicago city limits. They think they have to get off the train or miss the town. One man away from his Kentucky mountain home for the first time was discovered marveling at the North Shore National Bank building. He said he'd heard there were big buildings in Chicago, but he'd never expected to see anything like that. It is four stories high.

Hotel Owner Solves Problem.

But as the stories and the tabulations came in, the great problem of finding a location remained. Hansen inspected every available nook and cranny in the vicinity. When finding a place where expenses would be at a minimum and where there would be space enough seemed most unlikely, Harry Yavitt, manager of the Broadmoor apartment hotel at the corner of Howard street and Bosworth avenue, heard of the project. Mr. Yavitt was interested. His son, Arnold Yavitt, owner of the Broadmoor, is a sergeant in the 11th cavalry stationed at Camp Lockett in California. The elder Yavitt came forward as a patriot and as a father of a man in service.

The Broadmoor ballroom which he offered is 50 by 75 feet. Back of it and included are a recreation room 18 by 25 feet and a room 18 by 18 feet which was once a kitchen. The store in front of the ballroom is narrow, its dimensions approximately 25 by 50 feet. The service group will pay $50 a month for this space.

Seek Additional Funds.

Funds will come thru public subscription. Hansen hopes that donations will be made monthly rather than in lump sums. Expenses now will include renovating the quarters and the possible installation of an extra washroom. Some equipment has already been donated. More furniture and amusement apparatus is needed. Plans for Sharing Lilacs Go Forward When Plant Guild Meets

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Ravinia, left, and Mrs. Warner P. Nelson of Glencoe had much to say over their coffee cups at the annual Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild luncheon meeting at Carson Pirie Scott's on Wednesday. Mrs. Grace as retiring chairman of the guild was answering the questions of her successor, Mrs. Nelson.

Two members of the same club and with the same surname, but not related, discussed the merits of a victory salad in between talking about flowers. Mrs. John Newhall and Mrs. R. Kenneth Newhall are both from the Woman's Library club of Glencoe. Mrs. John Newhall is the new president, and Mrs. R. Kenneth Newhall is the nature and flower chairman.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Mrs. Rolla Pribble, president of the Lincolnwood Garden club, and Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees, chairman of the Milwaukee South division for collecting lilacs in the annual Share Your Lilacs day sponsored by The Chicago Tribune, discussed prospects for this year at the guild luncheon. Mrs. Pribble said her club was especially active in collecting lilacs in Evanston and had gathered as many as 2,000 and 3,000 bouquets in former years. Mrs. Rees, who resides in Wilmette, is also an experienced lilac helper.

Mrs. George Pope, guild chairman of the Glencoe Garden club, told her neighbors at the luncheon that membership requisite in her club was that every woman actually do her own garden work.

Mrs. R. L. Binder, Glencoe, acting chairman of the Milwaukee North division, and Mrs. Louis Kahn, Highland Park, co-chairman of the North Shore Garden club, used a flower from the table bouquet for an impromptu discussion of how to raise posies. Mrs. Binder wore a brown hat and accessories with her aqua gabardine frock. Mrs. Kahn was attired in a salt and pepper suit with gray felt hat and black and white accessories.

Lilac Sharing Plans Outlined by Plant Guild

Devotion to growing bigger and better turnips and tomatoes in Chicagoland's acres of war gardens will not interfere with or supercede the kind of flower gardening which has kept Chicago's hospitals and settlements supplied with fresh flowers summer after summer.

This appeared to be a foregone conclusion among members of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild at the organization's annual session Wednesday at the tearoom of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. Proceeding with a precision and directness probably born of budgeting time and energy for war effort members planned the new season. As usual, the year's first major effort to bring the country's blooms to the city will be coöperation in the 14th annual Share Your Lilacs day sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Ravinia, retiring chairman of the guild, and Mrs. Warner R. Nelson, Glencoe, who took office as chairman at the annual meeting, both agreed that Lilac day in May made a picturesque and inspiring opening for a season of sharing the beauty of the suburbs with the town folk who cannot have gardens of their own.

Invited to Broadcast.

Hundreds of guild members, school children, and employés of railroads running suburban lines to Chicago coöperate in the success of Lilac day. This year's Lilac day workers will be invited to a W-G-N broadcast at 7:30 o'clock next Saturday evening. The show will be "America Loves a Melody." Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. His topic will be "The Battle of the Wilderness."

The message of Theodore V. Purcell, president of the guild, was one of commendation for women who garden and share their flowers year in and year out with grateful but inarticulate recipients. He suggested that guild members visit the Chicago hospitals or settlements to see the joy the flowers bring.

Mrs. Amasa Cobb Bull, Glencoe, who represented the Skokie Garden club of that suburb, indicated that thanks for the work was scarcely necessary. "We have had a continually growing response," she said, "and I think the women find satisfaction enough in gardening itself." Wearing a light blue frock, Mrs. Bull busily knitted blue yarn as she listened to the speakers.

Story of Appreciation.

Mrs. Lloyd G. Rees of Wilmette had a story to fit the mood of faith in appreciation. She said, "I found out last Lilac day just what those flowers mean. I was standing in front of Tribune tower after the trucks had been loaded and had driven away. A little old lady came along—maybe she was 70, maybe 75—but she wore a shawl on her head and her coat was ragged and her little shoes were broken and run over. I saw her stoop and pick up a withered lilac, just one, and it had been stepped upon. There were still a few big bouquets left, so I gave her one. Well, she didn't say a word. It might have been easier if she had. She just knelt there on the street and kissed my wrist above my glove. I didn't forget her for weeks. I guess I should say, I've never forgotten her."

Mrs. Rees is division chairman for Milwaukee south. She wore a dress of two shades of blue to the luncheon.

Mrs. George Pope of Glencoe insisted that members of her club, the Glencoe Garden club, really gave their work as well as their good wishes when they shipped flowers to town. "When we started we made it a rule that everybody had to get out and dig. Of course, we had to allow a member to have help when she needed it, but we insisted on first hand gardening, too."

Four Clubs in Glencoe.

She said she thought the membership had kept pretty true to the rule. She also explained that in the beginning the club membership had been limited to 25, a good number for efficient gardening.

Glencoe now has four garden clubs, and Mrs. Pope believes more is accomplished that way than by having one large and unwieldy group.

Mrs. William C. Tragnitz, Mrs. J. Wilson McAllister, and Mrs. O. W. Eshbach, all of the Kenilworth Home and Garden club, were first timers at the annual meeting and busy with plans for the lilac collection. They said they hoped to have help from the pupils in the Kenilworth grade school. Mrs. Tragnitz wore a pecan brown outfit with the only contrast a yellow and red feather in her hat. Mrs. McAllister had a red hat and veil with her dark dress, and Mrs. Eshbach wore a victory blue frock and navy coat and hat. Also in the group was Mrs. H. C. Edmonds of the Winnetka Garden club. She wore blue and gray.

Once Prisoner of Japs, Tailor Doesn't Forget

BY ANTON REMENIH.

There is a sign pasted on the window of Henry Schurosky's modest tailor shop at 1943 Sedgwick street that reads "Attention, Soldiers and Sailors—Suits Pressed Free."

This sign is more than an invitation to impecunious servicemen. It embodies Henry's feelings—strong feelings—about this war and of our several enemies, the Japanese in particular.

"The Japanese are clever devils," Henry says, "and where we have one MacArthur they have a dozen who have lived and trained only for this war." Henry should know—for he was a Japanese prisoner for six months during the Russo-Japanese war. He was a sergeant in a light artillery unit under the czar.

Injured in Battle of Mukden.

This unit fired shells at the Japs in the battle of Mukden. They fired back. A dumdum bullet, the type that explodes on striking, hit Henry in the left leg, knocking him unconscious. When he revived he was a prisoner. After several excruciatingly painful weeks in a Japanese military hospital he was sent to Nagasaki, important present day ship building center, for the duration. This was in 1905.

The war lost, he returned to his birthplace in the Ukraine, now in Hitler's grip, and in 1907 came to America bringing with him a wife, a healed dumdum bullet wound, some nasty memories—but little else.

Son Training for Navy.

Henry became a tailor. The years rolled on. A daughter was born and then a son. "I never got wealthy but I became an American," Henry says, "and now my son, Edward, will fight the Japs like I did."

Son Edward is in training at Great Lakes. But Henry, at 62, is too old to take an important part in America's war effort.

"The only thing I can do now is to keep the clothes of the soldiers and sailors who will do the fighting neat and clean."

Altho Henry was on the losing side the last time, he isn't worried about the ultimate outcome of this war.

"No one can beat us Yankees," believes Henry Schurosky, tailor, first class.

When George Lebbin of 5101 North Clark street left last week to begin training as an air cadet, Mrs. Ida Ryerson of 1455 Carmen avenue, presented him a cake made in the shape of an airplane at a farewell party.

Using a 10 cent rubber model, Mrs. Ryerson, a postoffice employé during the day, spent three evenings making it. The fuselage was made of white cake, while the wings and tail, reinforced with popcicle sticks, were made of schaum torte. Paper insignia were added to wings, a cockpit was fashioned of celluloid, and a lead pilot completed the model.

Cake modeling has been a hobby with Mrs. Ryerson since she was 12 years old, when her grandmother taught her the art. When her daughter, Helen, was graduated from Senn High school in 1939 Mrs. Ryerson celebrated the occasion by making a scale model of the school,

300,000 Now Taking First Training.

More than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now are attending basic training classes of the OCD, while other thousands in the suburbs also are studying or preparing to study the rudiments of emergency service.

To assist these workers, THE TRIBUNE is publishing today the outline of Lesson No. 1, prepared by the OCD training division. This lesson, one of a series to appear in the Metropolitan section, is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference.

THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. The outline for Lesson No. 2 in the series will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section. It is suggested that defense workers save the lessons.

LESSON 1

DEFENSE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Civilian defense is an essential part of military science and is designed to counteract assault on civilian centers by air bombardment, sabotage, or other forms of attack.

Objectives of enemy assault on civilian centers are to:

1. Demolish defense industries.
2. Cripple communications.
3. Disrupt urban utilities.
4. Knock out government headquarters [including civilian defense headquarters].
5. Interrupt routine of workers, homes, restaurants, shops.
6. Destroy civilian morale.

Active military operations would include:

1. Destruction of enemy air fleet at its own bases.
2. Interception and destruction of enemy bombers.
3. Anti-aircraft.
4. Balloon-barrage.

Civilian defense is the passive as compared with active type of military operation.

The object of civilian defense is to protect and repair the lives and property of civilian population against air assault. Assault on civilian centers, whether by air bombardment or internal sabotage, is not completely new, tho greatly intensified. Every offense breeds its defense. Civilian defense is the new form of defense against the new form of offense by aerial bombardment.

The degree of probability of enemy attack should not be the determining question. Even if the percentage probability were only 1/10 of 1 per cent we must be practically 100 per cent prepared when the bombs begin to fall.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE FUNCTIONS.

1. Control of movement of people during raid.
2. Provision of shelters.
3. Rescue of trapped persons.
4. Control of fires.
5. Provision of first aid and hospitalization of wounded.
6. Repair of broken mains and utility lines.
7. Reopening of streets and restoration of traffic communications.
8. Provision of food and shelter for the homeless.

The term civilian defense is slowly coming to mean civilian protection or air raid precautions. In sense civilian defense preparations are not defense production, defense consumption [prices and rationing], defense financing, defense welfare, or defense morale.

Specific civilian defense services fall into two groups, protective and utility service, and emergency social services.

Protective and utility services include:

1. Spotting and warning.
2. Blackouts and camouflage.
3. Fire defense.
4. Gas defense.
5. Bomb disposal.
6. Shelter and refugees.
7. Rescue squads.
8. First aid and ambulance.
9. Police.
10. Roads and transportation.
11. Water supply, electricity, gas, telephone.
12. Repairs, demolition, and salvage.

Emergency social services include:

1. Registration.
2. Evacuation.
3. Information.
4. Hospitals.
5. Health.
6. Feeding and nutrition.
7. Housing.
8. Schools.
9. Recreation.
10. Insurance.

ORGANIZATION OF DEFENSE AGENCIES.

The United States Office of Civilian Defense is an independent defense agency, established under Presidential order. The order authorizes the O. C. D. to plan measures for the protection of life and property by recruiting and training civilian auxiliaries, and to secure volunteer participation in the defense welfare and morale program. The O. C. D. is emphasizing the first set of functions,

GARDEN TYROS AWAIT THRILLS OF FIRST RADISH

North Siders Take Over Vacant Lot Space.

The war garden program for Chicagoland, which heretofore has been restricted to verbal plowing, planting, and harvesting because of inclement weather, this week reached a more practical stage with the breaking of soil in all sections of the city and suburbs according to George T. Donoghue, director of the garden committee of the Chicago metropolitan area.

War garden chairmen for all 15 Civilian Defense divisions have been appointed or will be soon. Each division in trn is divided into 10 to 20 communities. Each community has a chairman who will be the center of information for the neighborhood and, if possible, an expert on gardening.

Parks Will Plow Lots.

To aid urban gardeners, many of whom have never experienced the incomparable thrill of a home grown radish, the central committee will shortly distribute 100,000 war garden booklets thru these community chairmen. These booklets give gardening facts for smoky or congested areas, another set for outlying residential districts and one for large gardens in excellent condition.

When at least four neighborhood families have acquired a lot at least 75 feet square the soil may be examined for fertility free of charge by staff members of the park district. If the gardeners so desire park district operators also will plow the garden without cost. Three tractor plows have been loaned to the park district by the International Harvester company.

On the north side one of the first gardens plowed and one which promises to be highly successful because of the fine quality of soil and the enthusiasm of the gardeners, is located at Chase and California avenues, directly across from Indian Boundary park green houses.

Space for 25 Families.

The plot is 100 feet by 180 feet and will accommodate about 25 families. Experts feel that the garden should provide enough fresh vegetables to satisfy all during the summer. Neighbors who have already worked on the plot include Mrs. Charles Stimpson, 2460 Estes avenue, Mrs. Roger Maris, 2558 Estes avenue, and Mrs. Dick Carsus, 2462 Estes avenue. This group is fortunate in having for its community garden chairman Frank J. Klein of 7303 North California avenue, president of the Vegetable Growers of America. He has more than 20 gardens in his community.

Another active community is that headed by Dr. M. A. Varzhabedian, 6624 North Washtenaw avenue, a dentist. Included in his community is a garden organized by Mervin H. Bower of 5507 North Artesian avenue, a consulting dairy refrigeration engineer who secured permission from George B. Meeker Jr., of 4320 North Sacramento avenue, to use the latter's property on North Artesian avenue from 5507 to 5517.

Others in Project.

Among families joining Mr. and Mrs. Bower in the garden project are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Jordan, 5507 North Artesian avenue, George Esser, 5618 North Artesian avenue, Earl Pierce, 5507 North Artesian avenue, and Eileen Dodd of 5507 North Artesian avenue.

In Evanston, the war garden committee is directed by Dr. Margery C. Carlson of the botany department, Northwestern university. A series of meetings to organize the program will be held Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evenings at the university. One of the most active community chairman in Evanston is R. W. Luce who is promoting four gardens on Evanston's west side.

In Glencoe, Frank Coffin, president of the Glencoe Men's Garden club, is chairman of the war garden committee. One of his lieutenants is Willard L. Wheeler, who with 20 neighbors, is working on a plot at Grove and Jackson avenues. Each family plot is 40 by 40 feet. Almost 10,000 tomato, cabbage, pepper, and cauliflower plants are already growing in the propagating house of the Glencoe park district and will be transplanted in the plots when danger of frost is past.

Writes a Booklet.

In Highland Park war garden projects are headed by Eugene Pfister who says "We are confident of having some of the finest gardens in the middle west." He is author of a 16 page booklet written to guide the victory gardener.

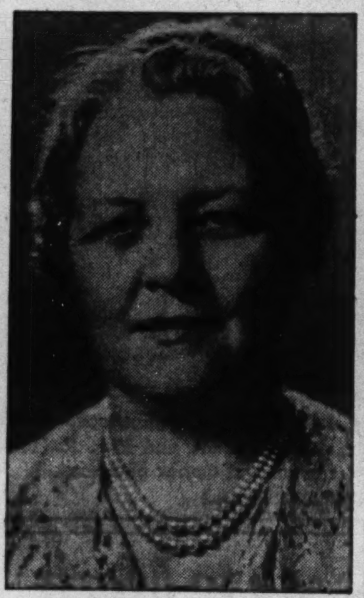
In Glenview the program is directed by Dr. J. F. Fonder, a seasoned horticulturist and gardener and head of the Permalawn Products company of Evanston. He has placed Gust Grundstrom at the head of his garden committee. Others assisting him are Mrs. H. T. Scheuer, member of the Glenview Garden club, Louis Cole, superintendent of Glenview parks, William Reiser, landscape gardener, Owen Barber, member of the chamber of commerce, and Mrs. J. F. Fonder.

The central committee is sponsoring a war garden cavalcade at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Ogden park, 65th street and South Racine avenue, where several demonstration gardens have been planted. The cavalcade will then visit by auto six community gardens in operation on the south side.

First Step in War Garden

One of the first community gardens plowed on the north side is at Chase and California avenues. Mrs. Charles Stimpson of 2560 Estes avenue is seen learning how to run a tractor plow, one of three made available free of charge to war garden groups by the Victory Garden committee of the Chicago metropolitan area. Getting a ride on today's counterpart of "Ol' Dobbin" is Dickey Carsus of 2462 Estes avenue, whose mother, Mrs. Richard Carsus, is a war gardener. Watching Mrs. Stimpson is Frank J. Klein, community garden chairman.

Arranges Party



Mrs. Samuel Topliff of Evanston is general chairman of the annual card party to be held by the Sacred Heart Household of Martha on Friday evening, May 8, at the Belden Stratford hotel. The event will be a benefit for the Catholic Church Extension society which supports missions and missionary schools in every locality under the American flag.

FLAG TO HONOR 42 FROM PARISH IN ARMED FORCES

A flag dedication ceremony will be held at St. Clement's church, 642 Deming place, at 7:45 o'clock this evening to honor 42 members of the parish serving with the armed forces.

Two of the stars will be gold. These two stars are for Frank Flannery, son of P. J. Flannery of 2510 Burling street, who died while in a training camp, and for Richard Waldron Jr., son of Richard Waldron of 2743 Dayton street, reported lost with the U. S. S. Langley off Java.

The Rev. Francis A. Rempe will conduct the service, the Daniel Gibbons American Legion post will present colors, and Col. A. V. Simoni, chaplain at Camp Grant, will bless the flag.

FORT SHERIDAN PLEAS FOR ASH TRAYS ANSWERED

Skokie Class Lends a Hand to Soldiers.

When the army at Fort Sheridan recently sent out an SOS for ash trays, magazine racks, news stands and chairs for the recreation rooms the first impulse of the fort's recreation committee was to find the best market and buy them.

Mrs. Harold Hall and Mrs. Paul Ziegler of Winnetka, committee members, thought there was another way. They contacted Albert O. Berglund, head of the Skokie school's manual training department, and told him of their need.

A Plan Takes Form.

Berglund talked it over with Miss Agnes Lilley, art teacher, Lloyd Long, shop instructor, and Chandler Montgomery, industrial arts teacher. Members of the adult evening shop class which meets each week at the school were contacted. Coöperation was spontaneous. The wood and tin were supplied by the fort's recreation committee.

Make 20 Ash Trays.

Fifteen members of the adult class met Sunday morning. Several hours later 20 three foot ash tray stands were finished. Other needed items will be made in subsequent sessions.

"The need for funds was eliminated," Mrs. Hall explained, "and we avoided taxing resources of factories engaged in vital war production. Other communities can do the same."

UNIVERSITY GUILD TO MARK GOLDEN JUBILEE MAY 4

Service to Northwestern Is Recalled.

An annual luncheon is on the calendar for the University guild, Evanston, on Monday, May 4, at the Orrington hotel. This luncheon will differ from the usual annual meeting in that it will be the golden anniversary celebration.

Reminiscences and historical sketches will be features of the afternoon. Prof. James A. James, who is writing a history of Northwestern university, will read a paper on the early days of the guild. The organization's history is allied to the university's in that the guild was primarily set up "to form an association, the object of which shall be to further in every way possible the interests of Northwestern university." Thus the purpose is stated in the minutes of the first meeting on a Saturday afternoon, June 4, 1892.

To Name New Officers.

Business will not be entirely pushed aside for history, however. The guild will hold its annual business session before the luncheon and new officers will be elected.

Eleven women attended the organization meeting of the University guild in 1892. Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, wife of the president of Northwestern, called the session. A complete list of charter members has not been found, but records show that they included Miss Cornelia Lunt, Miss Mary Lewis, Mrs. Joseph Cummings, Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller, Mrs. Frank P. Crandon, and Mrs. Eben P. Clapp.

On June 16, 1892, the group adopted both a constitution and a name. Both were brief. The constitution had but four articles. The first was simply a statement of the name—the University guild. The second, the object—"to bring to the membership . . . the intellectual resources of the university, to promote the interests of the university, to work for the collection and exhibition of objects of art and a suitable building for those collections, and to advance the development and the appreciation of the fine arts in the university and in Evanston."

Constitution Still in Effect.

The third and fourth articles set forth qualifications for membership —simply an interest in the guild and the indorsement of a member—and listed the number of officers to be elected and their terms of service. This constitution still obtains.

If the guild pioneers had any problem at all it was one of remaining loyal to the promotion of art when the university needed a dining hall.

Miss Lunt is credited with keeping alive a project to raise money to purchase art collections which would be offered at bargains at the close of the 1893 Columbian exposition. Subscription books and a concert brought $1,700, and the guild art collection was started. Next problem was housing the treasures. So the members courageously borrowed $690 and decorated the Great room in Lunt library, had a reception and the foundation of the guild art collection was secure. The original art pieces were pottery, and collecting pottery has remained of special guild interest.

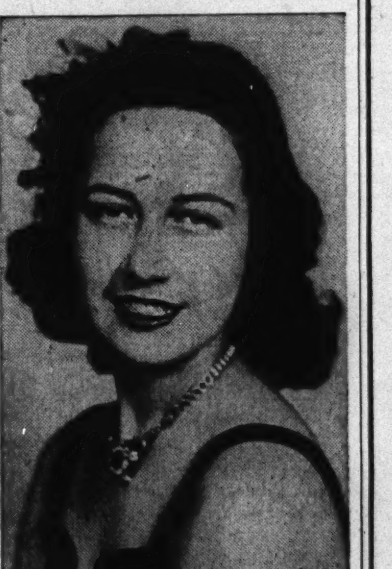
Membership Limited to 1,000.

The success of the organization was rapid; in the second year membership grew to 200. Now it is limited to 1,000.

The guild art collection is now permanently housed at Scott hall on the Evanston campus. Meetings are regularly held there on the first Mondays of the month, October to May, and the programs are always outstanding. The guild's current program is an effort to preserve American cultural ideals even tho the country is at war. The junior committee of the guild, with Mrs. Ray Johnson as chairman, is making luncheon arrangements.

Mrs. Frank M. Shieble was 1941-'42 president. Mrs. Ernest Hahne has been named by the nominating committee for the office next season.

Students Wed



Miss Jayne Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Cummings of 7938 South Paulina street, was recently married to Robert B. Mabey, a dental student at Northwestern university. Mrs. Mabey is also a student at Northwestern. [Marshal Photo.]

Why the Tribune produces greatest sales for advertisers

CHICAGO TRIBUNE: 100%

March, 1942
CHICAGO TRIBUNE: 100%

Last month Chicago Tribune total daily net paid circulation was in excess of 1,000,000. This was more than twice the circulation of any other Chicago daily newspaper. It was more than the combined circulations of any two other Chicago daily newspapers.

Since 1937 Tribune daily circulation has increased by more than 175,000—more than the combined gains of all other Chicago daily newspapers in the past five years.

These facts make clear that the Tribune delivers to readers the newspaper values they want. From long experience the people of Chicago and the midwest know the Tribune. They are familiar with its devotion to the fundamental purpose of the newspaper—to print the news. They know they can rely on the news columns of the Tribune because it is not compromised by political, social or financial tieups. They know it to be a midwest product which is steadfast in its expression of the midwest viewpoint.

As the newspaper which has achieved the greatest success in publishing what the public wants the Tribune is best equipped to help advertisers take maximum advantage of sales potentials in the great Chicago market.

WORKS AT MANY JOBS, BUT STILL SAVES GREASE

Conservation Head Says Every Ounce Counts.

Mrs. Walter J. Kelly—nearly everyone calls her Ethel—is a busy woman. Perhaps that's why she had time for just one more job, being woman's chairman of the Chicago metropolitan area for the conservation of fats and greases.

Proof of Mrs. Kelly's busy life begins with a mere statement of her pay envelope job which is the dual position of managing editor and editor of a neighborhood newspaper, the Northtown Economist. And from there the extra jobs string along like cars in a train. The amazing part of the story is that Mrs. Kelly is never content to be just a chairman in name; she works at it. She works at being secretary of the North Avenue Business Builders; at being community service chairman of the Lincoln Park unit of the American Legion auxiliary [she's a past president of that, too], and at being secretary of the Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary.

Has Many Interests.

She is co-chairman of the Northtown Junior Olympics, now going into the 10th season; she is co-chairman of the Lincoln park district for Red Cross war relief and community service. And she has at least a dozen more jobs.

One advantage of having so many jobs, says Mrs. Kelly, is the multiple opportunities for telling people to save grease, even a few drippings at a time. "I translate grease into ammunition," says Mrs. Kelly. "That point of view makes conservation pretty important."

Her translation, as she calls it, runs like this—12 per cent of all fat is glycerine; glycerine is necessary to the manufacture of high explosives which make the ammunition for warfare.

"We lost lots of material when Pearl Harbor was attacked," Mrs. Kelly says. "Now we have to make up for those losses as well as to avenge them. Women can help right at home in their kitchens. There are 30 million housewives in the United States. If each one would save only two ounces of grease a week, that would produce 500,000 pounds of glycerine, and it's priceless stuff these days."

Convert to Saving.

As Mrs. Kelly talks about saving fat her handsome dark eyes take on the earnest appealing look of a minister's as he exhorts his flock to better ways. Tall, brunette, and vital, Mrs. Kelly puts all of her enthusiasm into her conservation job which she regards as an important and possible means of patriotism.

All women can't donate time for knitting or selling bonds. Lots of women are scarcely able to buy bonds. But nearly everyone can save the cooking fat.

Thomas E. Wilson is conservation director of the Chicago and metropolitan area. Mrs. Kelly was chairman of north side conservation as well as for the metropolitan area until recently when Mrs. Burnett Dewey Warner took that responsibility.

Besides being busy in public affairs, Mrs. Kelly is a housewife. She and her husband reside at 3540 Janssen avenue. And, yes, Mrs. Kelly saves her cooking fat. She uses an electric grill, has as little as a teaspoonful of fat at a time, but it counts up. "I try not to let a drop get away," she says, "and I find that it really gets to be a pound much sooner than anyone would believe."

Community Chairman Named.

Mrs. Warner, as north division chairman of conservation, has appointed chairmen for the 19 north side communities. They are: Mrs. Leah K. Fish, 237 East Delaware place, near north side; Mrs. Pearl Ehling, 158 Eugenie street, Lincoln park; Mrs. Rose Akerman, 2241 Fremont street, Lincoln-Fullerton; Miss Marie Cleary, 516 Belmont avenue, east Lake View; Mrs. Rudolph Stluka Jr., 2417 North Racine avenue, west Lake View.

Mrs. Harvey K. Cousens, 650 Grace street, Sheridan center; Mrs. M. M. Worsek, 4823 North Hoyne avenue, Ravenswood; Mrs. Herbert W. Kelly, 3827 North Seeley avenue, north center; Mrs. Ben Sher, 912 Margate terrace, central uptown; Mrs. E. H. Johnson, 1440 Balmoral avenue, uptown Clark; Mrs. George T. Combes, 2714 Leland avenue, Lincoln square; Mrs. Rose A. Wolfson, 6101 Sheridan road, Edgewater.

Mrs. C. H. Barker, 6140 North Hamilton avenue, north town; Mrs. Margaret Weaver, 1331 Loyola avenue, Devon-Sheridan; Mrs. Forrest E. Adams, 6752 North Wolcott street, Clark-Devon; Mrs. Arthur Anderson, 1431 Farwell avenue, Rogers Park-Clark; Mrs. Grace Ward Secord, 7519 North Claremont avenue, Indian Boundary; Mrs. Joseph Florentine, 7446 North Hoyne avenue, Howard district, and Mrs. Irene Friedman, 399 Fullerton avenue, Clark-Division community.

Outstanding Students Honored at Luncheon

These north side high school students were among 92 outstanding students of Chicago honored at a luncheon Friday given by the Executives' club in coöperation with the Chicago Youth Week committee at the Hotel Sherman. Twelve winners of scholarships awarded by seven colleges and universities were announced at the luncheon. OLD FARM HOUSE DROPS 100 YEARS IN REMODELING

Oak Beams Utilized in Interior Trim.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The 100 year old farmhouse on route 58, just outside Des Plaines, which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bredfeldt decided to remodel and convert into a modern American farmhouse, yielded unexpected treasures when the walls were torn out.

Old hand-hewn oak beams pegged together formed the skeleton structure of the earliest part of the house, and the architect, W. F. McCaughey of Park Ridge, saw in them an inspiration for the character of wood trim, floors, and plaster. When cleaned they took on a beautiful antique brown color to which much of the adjacent trim was blended.

Had Many Additions.

This farmhouse, like so many in the district, expressed whole generations of living from the early part of the 19th century. The house was added to, from time to time, as different family members married.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt, together with Mr. McCaughey, looked at the house with thought of purchase, the second floor was completely separated by two stairways, one in the new section and one in the old. Naturally the whole section floor was on different levels and it was decided to remove both the stairways and build one new stairway in a central location between the dining room and living room.

All the old turned spindle work, top heavy porches, old steps, and many of the partitions were pulled down and in the northwest corner a new porch and massive chimney were added.

Bay Overlooks Orchard.

There is now a living room, dining room, study, bathroom, and kitchen on the first floor and three bedrooms and two bathrooms on the second floor.

There is a large bay in the living room overlooking a large orchard and the unusual oak mantel over the stone fireplace was carved by Mr. Bredfeldt in an egg and dart motif. A Dutch door leads to a breezy screened porch, styled to compliment the sturdy qualities of the American farmhouse.

In the old section of the house new floors were laid and in process of renovation, complete new heating, plumbing, and wiring were installed. A forced warm air heating system was put in, oil fueled.

Study for Guest Room.

The study on the first floor is effectively papered and because of an adjacent bathroom can be used as a guest room when needed.

Much of the furniture is of the carved walnut and mahogany period and adds distinction to the house interior.

The house stands on 10 acres of land, surrounded by large, spreading trees, and Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt and their two daughters moved into the house last summer as the work was drawing to a finish.

The remodeling was drastic, practical, and thoughtfully and efficiently executed to yield vastly worthwhile results. The bathrooms and kitchens were carried out with modern trend, the bathrooms beautifully tiled, and from the second floor there is access to a sunny, railed deck area.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 27

Some of the seeds recently sown in the garden will be up by this time and as weather conditions may remain cool the weeds will not grow as fast as they will when hot weather comes. However, it is imperative that the cultivator—usually the hoe—be used to keep the soil stirred and to remove any small weeds that have started.

Garden work can easily become very laborious if the time element fails to be taken into consideration. All work should be done on time, such as cutting weeds by cultivating when they are quite small. By so doing the soil is kept stirred, the vegetables and flowers grow rapidly, and the soil is not utilizing the plant food it contains to supply weeds.

In some suburban localities strong perennial weeds grow from year to year simply because those living in the neighborhood fail to remove them. Great colonies of ragweed, as an example, are permitted to grow year after year. Take an interest, organize the community and its appearance will be changed.

Tuesday, April 28

Do not plant warm weather or tropical vegetables or flowers until the conditions are favorable. However, cool crops, hardy annuals, trees, shrubs, and vines can be planted now.

Perennials that have started into growth can be divided. If the hardy aster, oswego tea, false dragonhead, or plants that grow rapidly from underground stems are divided, given good, fresh soil, they will be the better for it. Divide phlox and remember that each tip will grow into a good plant.

As soon as the hardy annual seedlings are fairly well developed they should be thinned so that each one will have plenty of space to develop. Too often thinning is neglected which only results in tall, spindly plants that have few flowers. This is true of vegetables as well.

Wednesday, April 29

One of the best plants for greens is the young turnip and it is filled with health-giving vitamins. Sow in rows and be sure to thin to about three inches, using the thinnings for greens. Use the larger outer leaves of chard, lettuce, and spinach for the same purpose; the inner leaves will keep on growing and they, too, can be used when large enough.

When gathering produce like peas, beans, pole beans, cucumbers, and other similar kinds, do not pull up the plants or loosen them in the soil. Do not keep pouring water on the rows of radishes or they will grow so fast they may split.

Leaf crops require a high nitrogenous plant food while root crops need copious amounts of phosphorus and potash to develop the fruit, roots, and stems.

Thursday, April 30

If hard seeds are soaked in warm water for about 12 hours their germination will be hastened and be more uniform. Heavy, thick seeds like sweet peas, cannas, morning glories, lupins, and others can be so treated after filing thru each seed but not deep enough to injure the interior.

Thin sowing of small seeds is essential. To avoid oversowing mix the seeds with dry sand before sowing. Light colored sand against the dark soil will show how the seed is being applied and in what amounts.

You can grow some fine foliage plants from seeds, such as the tropical castor bean. This plant grows six feet high, has a wide spread, is very tropical in appearance, and is excellent as a background for other plants.

The variegated corn is an attractive plant, easily grown, and is useful for accents. All the ornamental grasses are beautiful and useful for cutting. The burning bush, kochia, is useful when kept clipped as an edging plant. It will remain green for a long time if so treated.

Friday, May 1

If you wish a brilliant and effective show, plant hardy chrysanthemums and plant them in the spring. Buy small pot plants because they are not disturbed when removed from pot to open ground. Depending on the kind and the purpose wanted, plant from 18 inches to 3 feet apart.

Some strains, like the azaleamums, have the capacity of developing many branches close to the ground and are covered with myriads of buds. They like a rich, deep, well drained soil for best results. Disbud for large flowers.

Watch for aphids, grasshoppers and other pests. Mulch during the heat of summer. Caprice varieties can be grown and potted just before frost in the fall. They develop into beautiful specimens if taken care of by pinching, feeding, and proper potting.

Saturday, May 2

Do not neglect house plants. Those who have an outdoor garden should repot all the plants that need repotting to enable them to grow luxuriantly in the open air. Simply plunge the pots to their rims and water each day, if needed.

The poinsettia, gardenia, azalea, and others that do not require partial shade, such as fancy leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, ferns, most palms, are benefited.

Small, newly propagated geraniums can be kept potted and pinched all summer, never allowing them to flower, and they will furnish many blooms next winter.

TRIBUNE PRINTS BASIC DEFENSE TRAINING COURSE

300,000 Now Studying in Classrooms.

and the second is being handled more and more by other federal agencies.

The country is divided into nine civilian defense regions headed by regional directors. These regions are the same as the nine army corps areas. The regional office assists and consults with the several states.

There are metropolitan defense areas set up in districts like New York and Chicago, which cut across municipal and state lines. These metropolitan areas have the same status as do the states in their relation to the civilian defense regions and to the O. C. D. The states and the metropolitan defense areas assist the local defense agencies.

The Chicago metropolitan Office of Civilian Defense covers all of Cook county, part of Du Page county and part of Lake county, Illinois, and has a total population of four and one-half million people.

It is divided into 15 divisions, seven within the city of Chicago and eight in the rest of the metropolitan area. Under these divisions are about 228 community defense areas, 108 local community areas in Chicago and 120 suburban areas.

These communities in turn are divided into zones or districts of several blocks each. The smallest unity of operation for civilian defense purposes is the block, or some equivalent unit.

CONTROL, COMMAND, AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Comparing the civilian defense organization with a system of military command, the flow of command runs from the metropolitan coödinator, thru the division chiefs, to the community commanders, or suburban coordinators, thru the zone or district commanders, to the block captains.

Air raid warden posts in the individual blocks are tied together with the control centers or the metropolitan headquarters, in a network of communications which constitutes the nerve system of the civilian defense organization under conditions of actual attack.

The mission of the communications and control system is:

1. To maintain a continuous picture of the bombings or "incidents" in the area as reported in by the wardens.
2. To dispatch crews and squads of personnel and equipment to the scene of the "incidents" by contacting the headquarters and posts of the specialized civilian defense services.
3. To notify the higher command in case reinforcements of personnel and equipment are needed for the area or division covered by the control center.

A hypothetical control center for a community of 100,000 people, according to O. C. D. standards requires the following equipment:

1. Twenty-seven telephone lines.
2. Radio equipment in case telephone services are blown out.
3. A large control map on which each "incident" is spotted with color pins or tabs.
4. A control panel which keeps a continuous visual inventory of services needed and services dispatched.

Control center personnel includes such specialized officers and workers as:

1. Controler.
2. Map plotting officer.
3. Panel clerk.
4. Record clerk.
5. Communications officer.
6. Radio aide.
7. Guards.
8. Ten telephonists.
9. Four messengers.

PERSONNEL AND TRAINING.

The civilian defense system of metropolitan Chicago, when fully manned, will have about 300,000 workers.

The classes of personnel required by OCD fall into the following groups:

1. Staff corps.
2. Air raid wardens.
3. Auxiliary police.
4. Auxiliary firemen.
5. Bomb squads.
6. Fire watchers.
7. Medical corps.
8. Rescue squads.
9. Nurses aides.
10. Drivers corps.
11. Messengers.
12. Emergency food and housing.
13. Decontamination corps.
14. Demolition and clearance crews.
15. Road repair crew.
16. Utilities repair squads.

The staff of metropolitan Chicago includes:

1. Central headquarters staff.
2. Fifteen division chiefs.
3. 228 local community commanders.
4. About 1,000 zone or district captains.
5. About 20,000 block captains.
6. Instructors, information officers.

Since the personnel must carry on highly technical duties, it must be trained before it can go into operation and before it can be certified under OCD standards. The required courses will include general civilian defense survey [5 hours], fire defense [3 hours], first aid [10 hours], gas defense [3 hours]. In addition there are about six specialized training courses for each of about 16 specialized groups of personnel.

The OCD requires each worker to be certified as trained before being allowed to wear this insignia. The training program is so large that it must be decentralized at the local community level, with the help of schools and others.

RESEARCH AND PLANNING.

Civilian defense is a scientific set of techniques. Preparations in the United States are based largely upon British experience. The British themselves approached this problem scientifically and they did research constantly. They investigated a sample of the "incidents" in order to find evidence that would help deal with future attacks.

The OCD recommends a plan for scheduling civilian defense preparation step by step as follows:

Study and planning of the communications system and the organization for civilian defense; announcement of the organization plan and recruitment of personnel; training, and testing and maneuvers.

COL. M'CORMICK TALKS ON BATTLE OF WILDERNESS

Speech on W-G-N-Mutual Next Saturday.

"The Battle of the Wilderness," one of the most important campaigns of the Civil war, will be the subject of a speech to be given at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The speech will be the second analysis of a major Civil war campaign to be delivered by Col. McCormick. His first subject was "The Battle of Gettysburg," presented Dec. 27. The text of his Gettysburg broadcast is now being used at West Point.

Special guests at the program in the W-G-N main audience studio will be garden club presidents, guild chairmen, and garden club members thruout Chicagoland who are coöperating with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the annual "Share Your Lilacs" days.

The musical portion of the program will feature Marion Claire, soprano star of the "America Loves a Melody" show, usually heard at this hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor. Background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore will present well known Civil war songs and the orchestra will feature a medley of Civil war marching tunes.

Col. McCormick, an outstanding authority on military history, has written many articles on the campaigns of important wars. He is also the author of a book on Gen. Grant and another book, just published, titled "How We Acquired Our National Territory."

Peabody Joins Fret Unit.

The National Barn Dance's Lieut. Comm. Eddie Peabody, whose banjo campaign has been so ardently supported by America's leading fret organization, the American Guild of Banjoists, Mandolinists and Guitarists, has become a professional member of that organization.

OLICE WINTER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Born in Poseyville, Ind., where he attended grade and high school, Mr. Winter attended Indiana university where he starred in baseball and football. He taught for two years at Marion, Ind., then came to Harrison High school in Chicago. In 1925 he became principal of Whitney elementary school and progressed from there to the principalship of Parker High school. In 1930 he went to Lake View.

Mr. and Mrs. Winter and their daughter reside at 3210 West 66th street.

Lucille Ball Guest of Bergen-McCarthy Tonight

Lucille Ball, RKO glamour gal who played Edgar Bergen's secretary in the movie, "Look Who's Laughing," will drop in on Bergen and Charlie McCarthy tonight to give rather than take dictation. The show will be aired over WMAQ-NBC at 7 p. m.

Conrad Thibault to Sing 'JohnnyDoughboy' Tuesday

Pete Married a MENACE

When Pete first met her at a Spring dance just ten years ago she was a gay young heart-breaker. Her baby-skin glowed with dew-drenched freshness. Her deep brown expressive eyes had a come-hither magnetism. Her figure was as lithe as a ballerina as it floated about the floor. She was bewitching, irresistible, alluring and SOCKO, the Love Bug smote Pete with a force equal only to that of a Yank bomb smacking Yokohama!

It was a whirlwind of a rush but Pete managed to place a glittering nuptial band on this 18 karat gorgeous in nothing flat! That was 10 years ago. Today, his menace is still Vitamin A.B.C.D.E. plus to Pete. Her face still glows like a tulip, fresh as dawn, because she's avoided one form of fatigue (home ironing) that would, in time, rob her smooth, delicate complexion of its living charm.

★ Noted dermatologists will tell you that fatigue sends poisons through your system. Your skin, when dead tired, cannot throw off these wastes quickly enough. Its color becomes drab and loses freshness and life. Avoid Beauty Stealing Fatigue—Use SKOKIE'S SUN-GLO

4 W-G-N-MUTUAL ANALYSTS PICK NAME FOR WAR

Four of W-G-N-Mutual's news commentators have made interesting and varied suggestions in response to President Roosevelt's request for a title for a current war. The four men are Gabriel Heatter, Boake Carter, Fulton Lewis Jr., and Cedric Foster, who is heard on W59C.

"Freedom's War," says Gabriel Heatter, "is my name for it, basing it on the theory that if we don't win our freedom now, we may never have the chance to do it again. Yes, a man may eat, sleep, and otherwise live under their way of living but he'll never be free."

"The Four Freedom's War" is Boake Carter's name for it.

Fulton Lewis Jr. calls it the "World Invasion" because "it is not a mere war as we have known them in the past, but a planned coördinated attempt by a small group of nations to invade and conquer the entire world."

"Mankind's War for Freedom" is Cedric Foster's suggestion.

NORTHERNERS, STARTING EIGHTH YEAR, WIN AWARD

Advertising Club Votes Prize to Show.

An award by the Chicago Federated Advertising club to the Northerners as the outstanding evening radio show originating in Chicago will be presented during their broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday evening over W-G-N. The award will be given to Solomon Byron Smith, vice president of the Northern Trust company, by William F. Carr, chairman of the award committee for the advertising club.

The award comes just as the Northerners are preparing to begin their eighth year on W-G-N. In musical range the Northerners cover everything from modern ballads to operatic selections. Tuesday night they plan to present such popular ballads as "I Saw the Sea," by Irving Berlin; "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," by Westendorf; "One Kiss" from "New Moon," by Romberg; "There's Something About a Soldier," by Gay; "The Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss.

The Northerners program was originated by J. M. Easton of the trust company. It started as an educational program and it was planned to use music for background purposes only. After a few months it was changed to a musical program and placed under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, who has directed it ever since. The show features an all-string orchestra, a male octet, and Miss Lois Wallner, soprano soloist.

The Northerners octet is composed of Dean Reed and Henry Anderson, first tenors; Robert Kessler and Earle Tanner, second tenors; George Smith and Earle Wilkie, baritones, and Leslie Arnold and John Macdonald, bassos. DOUBLE LOAD ON REPAIR MEN AS SET MAKING ENDS

Rebuilt Receivers Seen by Next Year.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Since 1920, when broadcasting was born, more than 100 million radio receivers have been distributed in the United States. Some 57 million were in use at the beginning of the year. About 4 million have been distributed this year, it is estimated. Last Wednesday all production of radio sets for civilian use was halted by order of the War Production board.

Many sets will presumably still be distributed—just how many is a matter of conjecture since no precise figures on stocks are available. From 4 to 6 million sets have been dropped from use annually because inoperative or obsolete. After the last of new sets have been distributed and no more new receivers are available, the rate of mortality will continue to be just as high as heretofore unless strenuous measures are adopted to prevent it. The national radio audience, it would seem, will shrink unless listeners call on service men to keep all the sets operating.

By order of the WPB the radio industry will continue to supply tubes and other parts for replacement purposes. If the present radio audience is to be maintained this will mean a double servicing load for radio repairmen. They must do all of their normal servicing as they have heretofore. On top of this they must put back into operation the millions of sets which would normally be dropped from use.

To keep the nation's 60 million sets functioning will require only a very few million dollars' worth of raw materials annually, according to manufacturers. This is in contrast to the 500 million dollars involved in building and marketing 13 million receivers last year.

Several leaders in the radio industry are forecasting that rebuilt radio sets will be promoted by next year. They report that sets taken as trade-ins are being carefully stored. These will be repaired and perhaps put into good condition and then sold again.

These men forecast that department stores are likely to jump into the used radio set business when stocks of new receivers are exhausted.

Ania Dorfmann on W-G-N.

Ania Dorfmann, concert pianist, will be the featured guest on the "America Preferred" program over W-G-N and Mutual from 10:30 to 11 a. m. today.

WOMEN LINE UP FOR WAR WORK IN EDGEWATER

First Community to Complete Defense Plans.

Woman power should be one of the greatest civilian defense forces at work in the war, thinks Mrs. Patrick J. Hall, 5633 Winthrop avenue, women's chairman of Edgewater community, which is district 13 in the north side defense division. Mobilizing that extra energy is one of the many current problems of a nation-wide home defense plan which hasn't had time to begin on small scale and branch out, but has had to be big from the start.

Mrs. Patrick J. Hall. [Harry Johnson Photo.]

Cognizant of the problems, Mrs. Hall has proceeded independently. Now she is ready to announce that women's defense work in Edgewater has a beginning foundation of chairmen and program plans, one of the first 19 north side communities to complete the framework of its women's department.

Volunteer Workers at Office.

Community headquarters are at 1103 Bryn Mawr avenue, where Lee McManus and Matthew Keil preside as co-commanders. The women, however have found a separate office, a store at 5531 Winthrop avenue. This office is open daily, and volunteer workers are on duty to answer the telephone—the number is Lon. 6761—to give information on subjects from salvage to physical fitness. The community extends from Granville avenue on the north to Foster avenue south; to Glenwood avenue west and the lake, east.

Mrs. Frederick Greer, 1041 Ardmore avenue, is chairman of the Edgewater consumers' committee. Her special project began with consumer training for her committee members and others interested. They attended sessions at the Edison building. The next step, probably beginning this week, will be to appoint a consumers' warden for each block. A consumers' co-worker from the women's office will accompany the warden in a house to house canvass to acquaint housewives with the consumers' program for civilian defense.

Stress Consumers' Program.

The consumers' work is being especially stressed now since limited supplies and changing sources make an education program timely. Hardly less important is maintaining morale, however. And Miss Mildred Fahy, principal of the Pierce school, is morale chairman under Mrs. Hall.

Miss Fahy and her committee plan to inaugurate a series of community activities which will have programs of two or three five minute speakers followed by entertainment features or dancing—something that will provide a general good time.

Mrs. A. M. Wolfson, 6101 Sheridan road, is conservation chairman. Mrs. Nectar Fukal, 5955 Glenwood avenue, is publicity chairman. She interviews a different chairman each week and sends her stories to the community newspapers.

Salvage Chairman's Duties.

Miss Gertrude Hayes, 1052 Thorndale avenue, has been appointed salvage chairman. She keeps a list of salvage bureaus and advises what to do with old clothes, papers, metal, tools, or rubber bands. Miss Agnes McGurk, 5555 Sheridan road, is personnel chairman, and her job is to help find workers to fill the jobs that develop as the program grows.

The list of chairmen appointed to date includes Miss Patricia McEnroe, 5555 Sheridan road, a graduate student at Northwestern university. Miss McEnroe, who has a degree in physical education, will take charge of the physical fitness program for Edgewater women.

Mrs. D. H. Cole, 5339 Glenwood avenue, is librarian. Her job is to take charge of filing a complete list of the consumer information published in the papers. She also will catalog all neighborhood activities pertaining to civilian defense.

Mrs. Harry C. Schomaker, 6309 Kenmore avenue, as recreation chairman, expects to organize recreation groups. Mrs. Jennie Posner, 1305 Rosedale avenue, is victory garden chairman of the women.

TRIBUNE PRINTS DEFENSE COURSES

FARRAGUT HAS FIGHTERS FROM ARCTIC TO CANAL

2 in Hawaii; Many Placed at Sea.

BY MAURINE MYERS.

William F. Lundgren.

Whether it's in a coast artillery unit in Alaska, an army camp in Georgia, Puerto Rico, or the Canal Zone, or a flying field in Hawaii, you're apt to find a former Farragut High man somewhere in the personnel. There now are more than 200 Farragut graduates and former students in service, in every branch, and at every corner of the map. Farragut has been a senior high school for only the last nine years.

A card catalog of the men now in service is being compiled by the student council of the school. Its original purpose was the defense program planned by the council. Under this program, the school is sending a "victory kit" to each one in the army, navy, or marines.

Items for Boxes.

In order to buy articles to fill the boxes, each student at Farragut contributed a small sum. The young people also put on a school talent show to raise money and advertise the project. The boxes are being filled with such items as tooth paste, combs, tooth brushes, shaving cream, razor blades, handkerchiefs, stationery, and billfolds, as well as cookies and candy.

Charles Laver.

The list the council is compiling gives a picture of the various branches which have called men from the surrounding neighborhood. There are flyers at Hickam Field in the Hawaiian Islands and soldiers at Alaskan ports. There are men in the Canal Zone and sailors on both oceans. Among the number is William F. Lundgren, a graduate in 1937, who was reported wounded after the first raid on Hickam Field. Another Farragut man now in service is Charles Laver, formerly of 2230 South Kirkland avenue, who is now stationed in Puerto Rico. When he was in training at Fort Sheridan in 1938, Pvt. Laver was selected as the typical citizens' military training camp enrollee.

Plan Service Flag.

To honor all the fighters, Principal Peter B. Ritzma has ordered the preparation of a huge service flag. This will bear one large blue star on a white field, and will carry a removable placard stating the number of former Farragut boys now in service. As that number increases, the card will be brought up to date.

Information concerning the boys now in service has come from relatives, friends, and acquaintances. As Miss Alice D. Power, faculty sponsor for the student council, points out, the information the students have received may not be completely accurate because of rapid changes in army and navy assignments and changes in local addresses. The men listed thus far, their posts, their home addresses, and the years they left Farragut High or Junior High are as follows:

Richard Adamaitis, army, Fort Lewis, Washington; 2247 South Central Park avenue; 1936.

James Arient, army, Camp Grant, Illinois; 2517 South Harding avenue; 1938.

Leonard Badenick, air corps, Jackson, Mississippi; 1937.

Sergt. James Bardy, army, Camp Walters, Texas; 2615 South Clifton Park avenue; 1936.

In Coast Artillery.

R. C. Barda, coast artillery, Newport News, Va.; 1934.

Robert Beimal, navy, Auburn, Ala.; 1942.

James George Benda, cavalry, Camp Luckett, California; 2423 South Harding avenue; 1937.

William E. Bergeron, navy, San Diego, Cal.; 1940.

Robert G. Blazek, marines, Camp Elliott, California; 2541 South Harding avenue; 1941.

Joseph R. Borzym, air corps, Savannah, Ga.; 1934.

John M. Brown, marines, San Diego, Cal.; 2142 South Millard avenue; 1938.

James Burton, marines, San Diego, Cal.; 2703 South Komensky avenue; 1938.

Francis J. Caba, army, Fort Benning, Georgia; 1934.

John W. Cagney, army, Fort Flagler, Washington; 2130 South St. Louis avenue; 1938.

Dennis R. Cermak, marines, San Francisco, Cal.; 1939.

Garden Club Leaders Hear Thanks for Lilac Gifts at Luncheon

Miss Harriet Vittum of Northwestern University Settlement shows something new in flowers, a radish rose, to Gen. McManus McCloskey, superintendent of Cook County hospital. They were among the speakers appearing on the program at the annual luncheon of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild Wednesday noon. Both gave enthusiastic thanks to guild chairmen for their work in the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign staged annually in co-operation with The Tribune.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

EDGAR FULLER DAVIS, said to be the oldest resident of Hinsdale, plans to observe his 84th birthday today. Mr. Davis was born in Fullersburg, which is now a part of Hinsdale, and is the grandson of Samuel Davis and Benjamin Fuller, who were the community's first settlers.

Edgar Fuller Davis.

The two men came west by ox team from New York in 1833. Some of the buildings they erected are still standing. One is the historical mill on Salt creek which was purchased in recent years by the government. Fullersburg thrived during these days of the old plank road, but when the railroad came thru many of the settlers moved to Hinsdale.

Mr. Davis was a railroad man except for 20 years when he conducted a general store in Hinsdale. He has been retired for 12 years. A daughter, Mrs. Mabel Berlin, resides in Hinsdale. An adopted son, George, resides in California. Edgar Berlin, a grandson, resides in Western Springs. Mr. Davis resides at 323 West Chicago avenue, Hinsdale.

MISS EVELYN MARCUCCI, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Marcucci, 1217 North Grove avenue, Oak Park, will appear as a student commentator on a short wave broadcast Thursday to Latin-American countries. The broadcast will originate from St. Mary-of-the-Woods college, Indiana, where she is enrolled as a sophomore.

Miss Evelyn Marcucci.

Other west side girls who will appear on the broadcast are Jean Gottschalk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Gottschalk, 631 North Taylor avenue, Oak Park; Mary Catherine Mulhern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Mulhern, 1049 Euclid avenue, Oak Park; Dorothy Hajicek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph F. Hajicek, 2341 South Millard avenue, and Margaret Ginty, daughter of Patrick Ginty, 3501 Flournoy street.

HONOR EMBLEM GOES TO AURORA WOMAN, SISTER OF 4 FIGHTERS

A four star emblem of honor pin recently was awarded to Mrs. Laverne Thurber, 24, wife of an Aurora farmer, by the Emblem of Honor association.

The award, received by Mayor Andrew J. Carter of Aurora, came with a letter from the New York office of the association and was presented to Mrs. Thurber in recognition of the services of her four brothers in the armed forces of the United States.

The four brothers are Corp. Lincoln Plum, Corp. James Plum, First Class Private Leroy Plum, and First Class Private John Plum Jr.

The pin, fashioned of gold, is in the form of an eagle over which appears a chevron. Clutched in the talons of the bird is a banner inscribed with four stars.

Dismisses Suit to Restrain Erection of Oil Refinery

Judge John F. Bolton of the Superior court Thursday dismissed an injunction designed to restrain the Arrow Petroleum company from constructing a $500,000 refinery at Harlem avenue and the drainage canal in Forest View. Joseph Tobias, their lawyer, announced he would appeal the ruling.

CICERO KIWANIS AMATEUR SHOW STIRS INTEREST

From 150 acts involving 350 performers, 25 features have been chosen for the Cicero Kiwanis amateur show to be presented Wednesday night in the auditorium of J. Sterling Morton High school. The show, first of its kind to be given by the club, has aroused much interest among Cicero school pupils.

Among those who will appear in singing, dancing, and dramatic numbers are Marilyn Vachout, Le Roy Sklodowski, Geraldine Vaver, Elma Mae Manney, Joan Webb, and Barbara Olson.

Proceeds of the show will be used for Kiwanis charities and Boy Scout and Girl Scout activities.

PICTURE SALON ENTRIES MUST BE IN BY MAY 15

West Suburbs to Give Blooms for Lilac Day

Women from west suburban areas who are members of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild met Wednesday noon for their annual luncheon in the tearoom of Carson Pirie Scott & Co. They heard workers from Chicago settlement houses and hospitals tell of the appreciation the guild's efforts receive each season, especially during the annual "Share Your Lilacs" campaign conducted in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE.

This year's Lilac day workers are invited to attend a broadcast at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening at radio station W-G-N. The show will be "America Loves a Melody." Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be the speaker. His topic will be "The Battle of the Wilderness."

Speakers on the luncheon program included Gen. McManus McCloskey, superintendent of the Cook County hospital, who spoke of the aid the lilacs lend in recovery of many patients, especially those underprivileged children who seldom see blossoms of any kind. Mrs. W. H. Welker of the convalescent children's division of the Cook County hospital also appeared on the program.

Speaking for the welfare workers were Miss Harriet Vittum of the Northwestern University Settlement House and Miss Florence H. Towne of Erie Neighborhood House. They told of the joy the annual distribution of lilacs among neighborhood houses gives to children who seldom have any other contact with flowers thruout the year.

Gives Floral Demonstration.

Mrs. Ralph M. Roscher of Wheaton, publicity chairman of the Aurora and Elgin division, brought an instructive demonstration to the chairmen present. She emphasized particularly that those who contribute bouquets should cut them the evening before, and allow them to stand in water overnight. Unless this is done, allowing the flowers to soak up a maximum of moisture, the bouquets are apt to wilt long before they reach their destinations. Mrs. Roscher also demonstrated the arrangement of common garden flowers for corsages, and several other of the colorful projects sponsored by the guild for the benefit of the sick and underprivileged.

Other speakers on the program included Theodore V. Purcell, Evanston, guild president; Mrs. Stanley D. Grace, Highland Park, retiring general chairman; Mrs. Warner S. Nelson, Glencoe, new general chairman; Mrs. L. T. Warren, Elmhurst, treasurer of the Garden Club of Illinois, and Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton.

Some of the loveliest French lilacs to go into bouquets this year will come from the garden of Mrs. George Law, 152 South Fourth street, Aurora. When her husband passed away several years ago, Mrs. Law found in the garden they had started together an invaluable hobby to occupy her time and thoughts. She does all the work herself, and "wouldn't think of letting any one else touch it."

Gains Fame for Garden.

She has planted every tree in the yard, with the exception of one large elm which was already there. With her own hands she has built the stone terraces, set out the French lilacs and those in pink and white and blue, and planted the borders of blue ageratum which have made her garden famous among Aurora flower fanciers.

Another garden which will furnish a number of lilac bouquets will be that of Mrs. Plamondon, a former president of the Garden Club of Illinois. She has been active in the

300,000 Now Taking First Training.

More than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now are attending basic training classes of the OCD, while other thousands in the suburbs also are studying or preparing to study the rudiments of emergency service.

To assist these workers, THE TRIBUNE is publishing today the outline of Lesson No. 1, prepared by the OCD training division. This lesson, one of a series to appear in the Metropolitan section, is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference.

THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. The outline for Lesson No. 2 in the series will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section. It is suggested that defense workers save the lessons.

LESSON 1

DEFENSE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Civilian defense is an essential part of military science and is designed to counteract assault on civilian centers by air bombardment, sabotage, or other forms of attack.

Objectives of enemy assault on civilian centers are to:

1. Demolish defense industries.
2. Cripple communications.
3. Disrupt urban utilities.
4. Knock out government headquarters [including civilian defense headquarters].
5. Interrupt routine of workers, homes, restaurants, shops.
6. Destroy civilian morale.

Active military operations would include:

1. Destruction of enemy air fleet at its own bases.
2. Interception and destruction of enemy bombers.
3. Anti-aircraft.
4. Balloon-barrage.

Civilian defense is the passive as compared with active type of military operation.

The object of civilian defense is to protect and repair the lives and property of civilian population against air assault. Assault on civilian centers, whether by air bombardment or internal sabotage, is not completely new, tho greatly intensified. Every offense breeds its defense. Civilian defense is the new form of defense against the new form of offense by aerial bombardment.

The degree of probability of enemy attack should not be the determining question. Even if the percentage probability were only 1/10 of 1 per cent we must be practically 100 per cent prepared when the bombs begin to fall.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE FUNCTIONS.

Civilian defense functions, altho military in significance, are civilian in operation. They include:

1. Control of movement of people during raid.
2. Provision of shelters.
3. Rescue of trapped persons.
4. Control of fires.
5. Provision of first aid and hospitalization of wounded.
6. Repair of broken mains and utility lines.
7. Reopening of streets and restoration of traffic communications.
8. Provision of food and shelter for the homeless.

The term civilian defense is slowly coming to mean civilian protection or air raid precautions. In sense civilian defense preparations are not defense production, defense consumption [prices and rationing], defense financing, defense welfare, or defense morale.

Specific civilian defense services fall into two groups, protective and utility service, and emergency social services.

Protective and utility services include:

1. Spotting and warning.
2. Blackouts and camouflage.
3. Fire defense.
4. Gas defense.
5. Bomb disposal.
6. Shelter and refugees.
7. Rescue squads.
8. First aid and ambulance.
9. Police.
10. Roads and transportation.
11. Water supply, electricity, gas, telephone.
12. Repairs, demolition, and salvage.

Emergency social services include:

1. Registration.
2. Evacuation.
3. Information.
4. Hospitals.
5. Health.
6. Feeding and nutrition.
7. Housing.
8. Schools.
9. Recreation.
10. Insurance.

ORGANIZATION OF DEFENSE AGENCIES.

The United States Office of Civilian Defense is an independent defense agency, established under Presidential order. The order authorizes the O. C. D. to plan measures for the protection of life and property by recruiting and training civilian auxiliaries, and to secure volunteer participation in the defense welfare and morale program. The O. C. D. is emphasizing the first set of functions,

JAMES E. PEASE TO HEAD SCHOOL DISTRICT AGAIN

Superintendent Given 3 Year Contract.

Supt. James E. Pease of school district 102, comprising La Grange, La Grange Park, and Congress Park, has been given a three year contract which assures his remaining on the job until June, 1945. Mr. Pease is credited with having made a conspicuous record since coming to the district from North Muskegon, Mich., two years ago and the board of education felt it would give assurance of a stability of policies and program if he were given a three year contract instead of the usual one year term.

Supt. Pease also has been appointed division training supervisor for civilian activities in the 13th division, which includes Cicero, Berwyn, Riverside, Brookfield, La Grange, Western Springs, La Grange Park, North Riverside, Lyons, Forest View, McCook, Hodgkins, and Tiedtville.

16 Courses Are Planned.

A training officer will be appointed in each community to take charge of the instruction of the 16 special courses which are to be given. The courses will cover civilian defense surveys, first aid, gas defense, auxiliary firemen, rescue squads, auxiliary police, air raid wardens, fire watchers, emergency feeding and housing, demolition and clearance crews, and other services that might be essential.

Announcement has been made by Coördinator William Galvin and President George Brooks of the appointment of Ross Holt, dean of Lyons Township Junior college, as training officer for the La Grange defense council.

Dean Holt to Handle Details.

Training courses for special groups of civilian defense workers which have already been started and planned, and others likely to be started will be coördinated thru Dean Holt.

It is explained that as the council's program develops additional training activities will be required for many more workers.

LA GRANGE POST TRIES FOR THIRD SAFETY AWARD

Legion Winner in 1941 Enters 250 Cars.

Having competed in two traffic safety contests and each time checked among the winners, La Grange American Legion post has now entered the American Legion 1942 Traffic Safety contest, the period for which began the first of the month and will continue until Dec. 31. The contest will be the second to be conducted by the national organization.

In the 1940 department of Illinois contest the post placed third in the large fleet group with 99 cars entered, 997,824 total miles driven, and five minor accidents; an average of 10,079 miles per car and .501 accidents per 100,000 miles traveled.

Placed First Last Year.

In the 1941 contest conducted by the national organization the post entered 155 automobiles and came off in first place for completing the contest with the largest fleet entered. A total of 155 cars ran up 1,240,606 miles driven with but three minor accidents.

The 1940 award was a bronze plaque, and the 1941 award was a gold cup, suitably engraved.

Enter 250 Cars.

La Grange post will enter the 1942 contest with some 250 automobiles selected at random and not with the view of entering only those drivers known to be careful.

George E. Shiffer, chairman of the post's safety committee, said mechanics of the contest called for a big job of telephoning and that entries would therefor be confined to men near at hand. He added, "We did it before and we can do it again. But don't get the idea that the only object of entering the contest is to win an award."

LIBRARY MISSES PATRONS SERVING NATION IN WAR

Service Flag Honors 134 at Brookfield.

"It looks just the same" is the common remark made by service men on furlough when they pay a visit to the Brookfield public library. That may be the impression of residents of the village as they return briefly from far off camps where they have been making swift adjustments to military life, but Mrs. Fredrika Wiley, librarian, knows that the home library has been affected by wartimes, too.

Back of Mrs. Wiley's desk is a service flag with 134 names of those who once had book borrowing cards and are now serving in the armed forces of their country. Mrs. Wiley has arranged a blue background for the flag and each of the names is accompanied with a star.

Two Are in Bataan.

Steve Kodaj and Ray Zunda, last heard from in October, are in Bataan. Frank Bocek, who studied intensively the nautical books on the shelves before he went away, is now with the marines. Capt. Claude Johnson and Maj. Stanley Lauferski, who served in the first World war, have again responded to the call to arms.

Robert Braun entered the merchant marine before war was declared. Before going away his reading interest shifted to subjects that would aid him in a career that would carry him far from the inland.

Reader Interest Shifts.

Modern mechanical warfare and its demands was reflected in the choice of books among young men of the village as the war clouds gathered. Young men readers asked for treatises on technical subjects that they could apply to their training activities. When Mrs. Wiley lacked the desired books she sent for them to the state library at Springfield.

Books on air raid precaution, civilian defense, military basic courses, machine trades, and aviation have been in demand. Ten books on welding to meet the request of young men going into war industries were made available.

Painting of MacArthur.

Adventure books dealing with military life are still the choice of youngsters, but those seeing service ahead have selected more serious reading. No, the village library is not "just the same." Back of Mrs. Wiley's desk is a painting of Gen. MacArthur by Eugene Henderson, freshman at Riverside-Brookfield High school. There also stands the American flag presented by Edward Feely American Legion post.

On the honor roll of service men who have been patrons of the library are the following:

Guy Anderson, William Anderson, Herman Andorf, Don Arnold.

BABY SQUIRREL FINDS HAVEN IN THE CLASSROOM

Tip-a-tee Great Favorite of La Grange Pupils.

The little squirrel that followed Martha Gwen Jones to school one day, rather than being banned because of rules, has remained to provide an interesting object of nature study. Tip-a-tee, looked upon by the children as a refugee and an orphan of the storm, has taken to the classroom as others of its species take to the trees.

Tip-a-tee was made homeless by the windstorm that swept thru La Grange last Oct. 9. She was hurled to the ground and pinned under a fallen tree branch. Hearing her cries, Mrs. Stanley Williams, 17 South Waiola avenue, La Grange, hastened to her rescue and found three baby squirrels, two of which were uninjured. With feedings of warm milk two of the animals soon were strong enough to be released.

Teacher Is Interested.

Martha Gwen Jones, a pupil of Cossitt school, frequently visited the squirrels and told her classmates about them. Her teacher, Harriet Whitford Gale, also became interested. Martha was permitted to bring the baby squirrel to school.

There was a feeding problem, and a book, "Care of Pets in the Classroom," was sent for. But among the long list of pets there was no mention of squirrels.

There were serious discussions during which each child offered suggestions. It was decided that the new enrollee made hunger calls that sounded much like "tip-a-tee." That became her name.

Doll's Bottle for Milk.

A doll's bottle provided for warm milk soon was discarded for a small bowl as pecan meats, hard boiled egg yolk, carrots, and lettuce were added to the diet. Doll blankets were forthcoming and Martin Haynes Jr. of an upper grade donated a rabbit cage.

When Tip-a-tee became sleepy she would retire from her window seat, crawl back into her cage, and tuck herself within her blankets. She became accustomed to having the children peek at her. She busied herself with hiding surplus nuts in the four corners of the blanket.

Plays the Piano!

When Tip-a-tee, from her window ledge, tires of watching the cars in the street below she turns somersaults upon some child's shoulder and occasionally plays a staccato solo on the piano keys. So accustomed are the children to her presence they seem entirely oblivious of her movements during seat work periods. Occasionally she appropriates a pencil.

Tip-a-tee has been made the subject of many essays written by the children. She seems unaware of the suggestions now being made concerning her eventual release into the big out of doors.

COL. M'CORMICK TALKS ON BATTLE OF WILDERNESS

Speech on W-G-N-Mutual Next Saturday.

"The Battle of the Wilderness," one of the most important campaigns of the Civil war, will be the subject of a speech to be given at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The speech will be the second analysis of a major Civil war campaign to be delivered by Col. McCormick. His first subject was "The Battle of Gettysburg," presented Dec. 27. The text of his Gettysburg broadcast is now being used at West Point.

Special guests at the program in the W-G-N main audience studio will be garden club presidents, guild chairmen, and garden club members thruout Chicagoland who are coöperating with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the annual "Share Your Lilacs" days.

The musical portion of the program will feature Marion Claire, soprano star of the "America Loves a Melody" show, usually heard at this hour, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor. Background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore will present well known Civil war songs and the orchestra will feature a medley of Civil war marching tunes.

Col. McCormick, an outstanding authority on military history, has written many articles on the campaigns of important wars. He is also the author of a book on Gen. Grant and another book, just published, titled "How We Acquired Our National Territory."

4 W-G-N-MUTUAL ANALYSTS PICK NAME FOR WAR

Four of W-G-N-Mutual's news commentators have made interesting and varied suggestions in response to President Roosevelt's request for a title for a current war. The four men are Gabriel Heatter, Boake Carter, Fulton Lewis Jr., and Cedric Foster, who is heard on W59C.

"Freedom's War," says Gabriel Heatter, "is my name for it, basing it on the theory that if we don't win our freedom now, we may never have the chance to do it again. Yes, a man may eat, sleep, and otherwise live under their way of living but he'll never be free."

"The Four Freedom's War" is Boake Carter's name for it.

Fulton Lewis Jr. calls it the "World Invasion" because "it is not a mere war as we have known them in the past, but a planned coördinated attempt by a small group of nations to invade and conquer the entire world."

"Mankind's War for Freedom" is Cedric Foster's suggestion.

HAIL VENEZUELA ON AMERICAS SPEAK PROGRAM

The life of Simon Bolivar, famed Venezuelan patriot, will be dramatized during the Chicago portion of "The Americas Speak" program to be heard on W-G-N at noon, Tuesday. Vincent Pelletier and Bret Morrison will be featured in the dramatization on the first half of the program from W-G-N.

During the second portion of the program to be heard from Caracas, capital of Venezuela, the Rotary club there will give a colorful and interesting word and music description of present day life in Venezuela.

"The Americas Speak" is presented by the Mutual Broadcasting system and the Rotary clubs of the Americas to foster international good will and understanding.

The Northerners will celebrate their eighth year on W-G-N Tuesday and will be presented with an award during the broadcast from the Chicago Federated Advertising club for being judged the best evening program on the air originating from Chicago. NORTHERNERS, STARTING EIGHTH YEAR, WIN AWARD

Advertising Club Votes Prize to Show.

An award by the Chicago Federated Advertising club to the Northerners as the outstanding evening radio show originating in Chicago will be presented during their broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday evening over W-G-N. The award will be given to Solomon Byron Smith, vice president of the Northern Trust company, by William F. Carr, chairman of the award committee for the advertising club.

The award comes just as the Northerners are preparing to begin their eighth year on W-G-N. In musical range the Northerners cover everything from modern ballads to operatic selections. Tuesday night they plan to present such popular ballads as "I Saw the Sea," by Irving Berlin; "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," by Westendorf; "One Kiss" from "New Moon," by Romberg; "There's Something About a Soldier," by Gay; "The Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss.

The Northerners program was originated by J. M. Easton of the trust company. It started as an educational program and it was planned to use music for background purposes only. After a few months it was changed to a musical program and placed under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, who has directed it ever since. The show features an all-string orchestra, a male octet, and Miss Lois Wallner, soprano soloist.

The Northerners octet is composed of Dean Reed and Henry Anderson, first tenors; Robert Kessler and Earle Tanner, second tenors; George Smith and Earle Wilkie, baritones, and Leslie Arnold and John Macdonald, bassos. George Smith and Leslie Arnold have been with the group since it originated. Helene Webb and Palmer Clark write the vocal arrangements and Walter Dellers handles the orchestral arrangements.

TRIBUNE PRINTS BASIC DEFENSE TRAINING COURSE

300,000 Now Studying in Classrooms.

and the second is being handled more and more by other federal agencies.

The country is divided into nine civilian defense regions headed by regional directors. These regions are the same as the nine army corps areas. The regional office assists and consults with the several states.

There are metropolitan defense areas set up in districts like New York and Chicago, which cut across municipal and state lines. These metropolitan areas have the same status as do the states in their relation to the civilian defense regions and to the O. C. D. The states and the metropolitan defense areas assist the local defense agencies.

The Chicago metropolitan Office of Civilian Defense covers all of Cook county, part of Du Page county and part of Lake county, Illinois, and has a total population of four and one-half million people, and an area of 1,135 square miles.

It is divided into 15 divisions, seven within the city of Chicago and eight in the rest of the metropolitan area. Under these divisions are about 228 community defense areas, 108 local community areas in Chicago and 120 suburban areas.

These communities in turn are divided into zones or districts of several blocks each. The smallest unity of operation for civilian defense purposes is the block, or some equivalent unit, of which there are about 20,000 in the Chicago metropolitan area.

CONTROL, COMMAND, AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Comparing the civilian defense organization with a system of military command, the flow of command runs from the metropolitan coödinator, thru the division chiefs, to the community commanders, or suburban coordinators, thru the zone or district commanders, to the block captains.

Air raid warden posts in the individual blocks are tied together with the control centers or the metropolitan headquarters, in a network of communications which constitutes the nerve system of the civilian defense organization under conditions of actual attack.

The mission of the communications and control system is:

1. To maintain a continuous picture of the bombings or "incidents" in the area as reported in by the wardens.

2. To dispatch crews and squads of personnel and equipment to the scene of the "incidents" by contacting the headquarters and posts of the specialized civilian defense services.

3. To notify the higher command in case reinforcements of personnel and equipment are needed for the area or division covered by the control center.

A hypothetical control center for a community of 100,000 people, according to O. C. D. standards requires the following equipment:

1. Twenty-seven telephone lines.
2. Radio equipment in case telephone services are blown out.
3. A large control map on which each "incident" is spotted with color pins or tabs.
4. A control panel which keeps a continuous visual inventory of services needed and services dispatched.

Control center personnel includes such specialized officers and workers as:

1. Controler.
2. Map plotting officer.
3. Panel clerk.
4. Record clerk.
5. Communications officer.
6. Radio aide.
7. Guards.
8. Ten telephonists.
9. Four messengers.

PERSONNEL AND TRAINING.

The civilian defense system of metropolitan Chicago, when fully manned, will have about 300,000 workers.

The classes of personnel required by OCD fall into the following groups:

1. Staff corps.
2. Air raid wardens.
3. Auxiliary police.
4. Auxiliary firemen.
5. Bomb squads.
6. Fire watchers.
7. Medical corps.
8. Rescue squads.
9. Nurses aides.
10. Drivers corps.
11. Messengers.
12. Emergency food and housing.
13. Decontamination corps.
14. Demolition and clearance crews.
15. Road repair crew.
16. Utilities repair squads.

The staff of metropolitan Chicago includes:

1. Central headquarters staff.
2. Fifteen division chiefs.
3. 228 local community commanders.
4. About 1,000 zone or district captains.
5. About 20,000 block captains.
6. Instructors, information officers.

Since the personnel must carry on highly technical duties, it must be trained before it can go into operation and before it can be certified under OCD standards. The required courses will include general civilian defense survey [5 hours], fire defense [3 hours], first aid [10 hours], gas defense [3 hours]. In addition there are about six specialized training courses for each of about 16 specialized groups of personnel.

The OCD requires each worker to be certified as trained before being allowed to wear this insignia. The training program is so large that it must be decentralized at the local community level, with the help of schools and others. The first job is to train instructors and master instructors. In addition, the training division of the metropolitan office is required to provide the curriculum, set standards, administer and coördinate the training program.

RESEARCH AND PLANNING.

Civilian defense is a scientific set of techniques. Preparations in the United States are based largely upon British experience. The British themselves approached this problem scientifically and they did research constantly. They investigated a sample of the "incidents" in order to find evidence that would help deal with future attacks.

The OCD recommends a plan for scheduling civilian defense preparation step by step as follows:

Study and planning of the communications system and the organization for civilian defense; announcement of the organization plan and recruitment of personnel; training, and testing and maneuvers.

SANDLOT GAMES WILL GIVE WAY TO WAR GARDENS

West Siders Ready for Spring Planting.

Thruout the west side, ground which has lain fallow for decades will be broken this year. A civilian army equipped with rakes and hoes will march forth to battle on clods and weeds and worms. In all sections of the city the vacant lots which had been used for softball games will burst forth into neat rows of cabbages, tomatoes and lettuce. The corner weed patch which has furnished only a shortcut path for generations will this year furnish onions, radishes, and beans.

George T. Donoghue, director of war gardens in the Office of Civilian Defense, states that the Chicago metropolitan area is rapidly lining up for the victory garden program. War garden chairmen have been appointed, or are in process of appointment, for every one of the 15 civilian defense divisions into which Chicago and surrounding regions are divided. These divisions are in turn divided into communities, of which there are 11 in the west metropolitan area. In each of these communities a garden committee chairman has been, or will be appointed.

These chairmen will distribute information in their respective neighborhoods. They will have available typical plans of gardens, special bulletins on what to plant, and copies of the newly published guide book. This is available free of charge to all who need it, and it is anticipated that 100,000 will be distributed thruout the Chicago metropolitan area. The booklet gives gardening facts for smoky or congested areas, another set for outlying residential districts, and one for large gardens under excellent conditions.

Plowing Offered Free.

When at least four neighborhood families have acquired a lot 75 feet square, the soil is examined for fertility by the park district staff. If desired, a committee under Mr. Donoghue then will plow the area free of charge.

One of the first gardens to be plowed was at 5438 Ferdinand street, in the Central Austin community. Frank Bennett is the war garden chairman for that community. An executive of the Baldwin Piano company, Mr. Bennett is an old time farmer and an ardent gardener. He is making a successful community garden and has already recruited more than a dozen families to take part in his project.

The Rev. Raymond H. Laurie, the war garden chairman for the Central West Side community, is pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, 608 South Ashland boulevard. He is organizing a garden group among his parishioners, and will have a community garden on some outlying vacant lot which is convenient to transportation. He featured a war garden rally at St. Paul's community hall last week, where the program included a gardening talk illustrated with slides.

Name Garden Chairmen.

General information of any kind about gardens, including bulletins and literature, can be obtained from the garden chairman of each community. The west side communities, in which chairmen have been appointed, are as follows:

Central West Side, the Rev. Raymond H. Laurie, St. Paul's Methodist church, 608 South Ashland boulevard.

West Garfield, Philip Scanlon, 4149 Madison street, Van Buren 2525.

Central Austin, Frank L. Bennett, 5438 Ferdinand street, Austin 0116.

North Austin, Charles J. Glaser, 5352 Iowa street, Estebrook 0921.

The first celebration for war gardens in Chicago and suburbs will be held this afternoon under sponsorship of the Englewood and Roseland Kiwanis clubs. This will include a motor cavalcade to sites of gardens already started in Auburn Park, Brainerd, Blue Island, Roseland, and other communities. It is anticipated that the tour will draw interested gardeners from the entire metropolitan area.

Feted at Dinner

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cohen, 1817 South Millard avenue, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary recently as guests at a dinner and reception held at the Hamilton hotel. They are the parents of six children, and have 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. For the last 45 years they have made their home in Chicago.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, April 27

Some of the seeds recently sown in the garden will be up by this time and as weather conditions may remain cool the weeds will not grow as fast as they will when hot weather comes. However, it is imperative that the cultivator—usually the hoe—be used to keep the soil stirred and to remove any small weeds that have started.

Garden work can easily become very laborious if the time element fails to be taken into consideration. All work should be done on time, such as cutting weeds by cultivating when they are quite small.

Tuesday, April 28

Do not plant warm weather or tropical vegetables or flowers until the conditions are favorable. However, cool crops, hardy annuals, trees, shrubs, and vines can be planted now.

Perennials that have started into growth can be divided. If the hardy aster, oswego tea, false dragonhead, or plants that grow rapidly from underground stems are divided, given good, fresh soil, they will be the better for it. Divide phlox and remember that each tip will grow into a good plant.

Wednesday, April 29

One of the best plants for greens is the young turnip and it is filled with health-giving vitamins. Sow in rows and be sure to thin to about three inches, using the thinnings for greens. Use the larger outer leaves of chard, lettuce, and spinach for the same purpose; the inner leaves will keep on growing and they, too, can be used when large enough.

When gathering produce like peas, beans, pole beans, cucumbers, and other similar kinds, do not pull up the plants or loosen them in the soil. Do not keep pouring water on the rows of radishes or they will grow so fast they may split.

Thursday, April 30

If hard seeds are soaked in warm water for about 12 hours their germination will be hastened and be more uniform. Heavy, thick seeds like sweet peas, cannas, morning glories, lupins, and others can be so treated after filing thru each seed but not deep enough to injure the interior.

Thin sowing of small seeds is essential. To avoid oversowing mix the seeds with dry sand before sowing. Light colored sand against the dark soil will show how the seed is being applied and in what amounts.

Friday, May 1

If you wish a brilliant and effective show, plant hardy chrysanthemums and plant them in the spring. Buy small pot plants because they are not disturbed when removed from pot to open ground. Depending on the kind and the purpose wanted, plant from 18 inches to 3 feet apart.

Saturday, May 2

Do not neglect house plants. Those who have an outdoor garden should repot all the plants that need repotting to enable them to grow luxuriantly in the open air. Simply plunge the pots to their rims and water each day, if needed.

The poinsettia, gardenia, azalea, and others that do not require partial shade, such as fancy leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, ferns, most palms, are benefited.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield Park conservatory.

OLD FARM HOUSE DROPS 100 YEARS IN REMODELING

Oak Beams Utilized in Interior Trim.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The 100 year old farmhouse on route 58, just outside Des Plaines, which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bredfeldt decided to remodel and convert into a modern American farmhouse, yielded unexpected treasures when the walls were torn out.

Old hand-hewn oak beams pegged together formed the skeleton structure of the earliest part of the house, and the architect, W. F. McCaughey of Park Ridge, saw in them an inspiration for the character of wood trim, floors, and plaster. When cleaned they took on a beautiful antique brown color to which much of the adjacent trim was blended.

Had Many Additions.

This farmhouse, like so many in the district, expressed whole generations of living from the early part of the 19th century. The house was added to, from time to time, as different family members married.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt, together with Mr. McCaughey, looked at the house with thought of purchase, the second floor was completely separated by two stairways, one in the new section and one in the old. Naturally the whole section floor was on different levels and it was decided to remove both the stairways and build one new stairway in a central location between the dining room and living room.

Bay Overlooks Orchard.

There is now a living room, dining room, study, bathroom, and kitchen on the first floor and three bedrooms and two bathrooms on the second floor.

There is a large bay in the living room overlooking a large orchard and the unusual oak mantel over the stone fireplace was carved by Mr. Bredfeldt in an egg and dart motif. A Dutch door leads to a breezy screened porch, styled to compliment the sturdy qualities of the American farmhouse.

In the old section of the house new floors were laid and in process of renovation, complete new heating, plumbing, and wiring were installed. A forced warm air heating system was put in, oil fueled.

Study for Guest Room.

The study on the first floor is effectively papered and because of an adjacent bathroom can be used as a guest room when needed.

The house stands on 10 acres of land, surrounded by large, spreading trees, and Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt and their two daughters moved into the house last summer as the work was drawing to a finish.

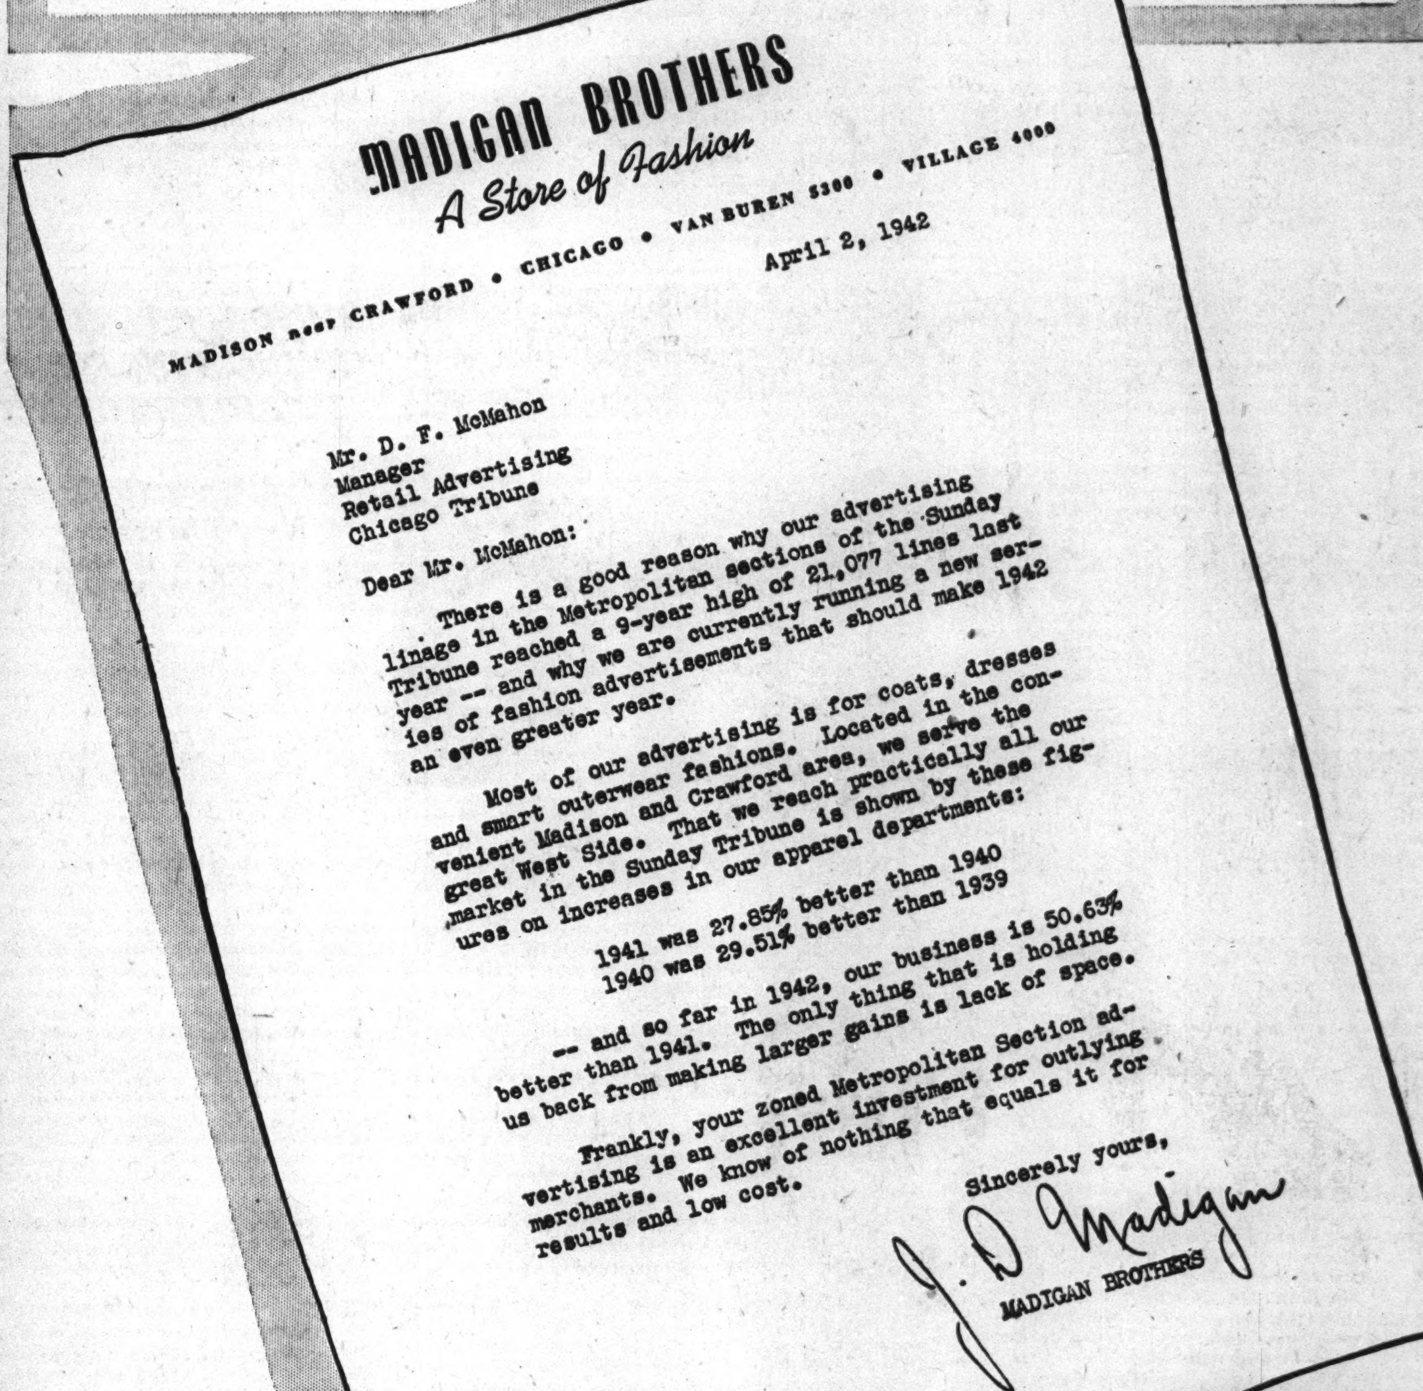
"Nothing equals it for results"
—J. D. Madigan, MADIGAN BROTHERS



MADIGAN BROTHERS
A Store of Fashion
MADISON near CRAWFORD • CHICAGO • VAN BUREN 5300 • VILLAGE 4000

April 2, 1942

Mr. D. F. McMahon
Manager
Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

There is a good reason why our advertising linage in the Metropolitan sections of the Sunday Tribune reached a 9-year high of 21,077 lines last year -- and why we are currently running a new series of fashion advertisements that should make 1942 an even greater year.

Most of our advertising is for coats, dresses and smart outerwear fashions. Located in the convenient Madison and Crawford area, we serve the great West Side. That we reach practically all our market in the Sunday Tribune is shown by these figures on increases in our apparel departments:

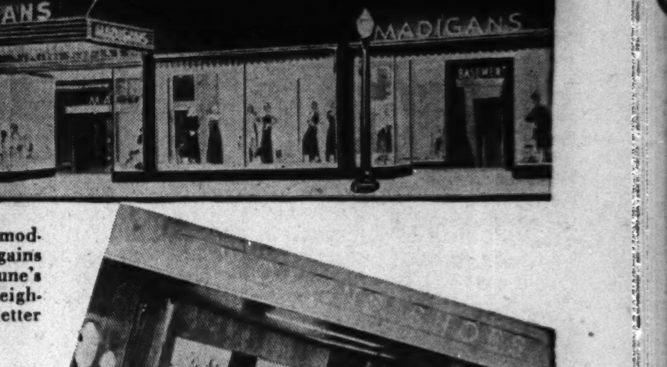
1941 was 27.85% better than 1940
1940 was 29.51% better than 1939

-- and so far in 1942, our business is 50.63% better than 1941. The only thing that is holding us back from making larger gains is lack of space.

Frankly, your zoned Metropolitan Section advertising is an excellent investment for outlying merchants. We know of nothing that equals it for results and low cost.

Sincerely yours,
J. D. Madigan
MADIGAN BROTHERS

How Madigan Brothers newly modernized store is piling up sales gains with the aid of the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers is told in the letter above.



The women's shoe department in Madigan Brothers store is contributing to the gains which this retailer attributes to consistent use of advertising in the Sunday Tribune.

WEST SIDE STORE TELLS HOW LOW COST ADVERTISING IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE SPURS SALES AND GROWTH

SALES up 29% in 1940; up another 27% in 1941; and for the first three months of this year, 50% better than last year . . . such is the progress reported in the accompanying letter by this well-known west side store which for many years has used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers.

This is the testimony of only one of the 726 retailers on all sides of Chicago who used this plan last year to go after more sales and profits.

If you want to build securely for the future, now is the time to get the facts about this low-cost, business-building plan. Chicago's greater industrial activity is widening the distribution of spendable cash in every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago. At rates scaled low enough to permit every retailer to take advantage of Tribune sales power, you can put the Sunday Tribune on the job bringing more customers right from your own trading area.

It costs you nothing to get the facts. Call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow morning and ask for the Metropolitan section advertising department. A representative will be glad to call on you at your convenience with case history evidence showing how others in your line are using this plan to build sales and profits.

URGES PLANTING OF WAR GARDEN WITHIN WEEK

Director Reveals Big Scope of Project.

BY JOHN WILHELM.

Geo. T. Donoghue.

Now is the time to plant your victory garden. This advice to get busy with the spade and have the seeds in the ground by May 1—next Friday—came yesterday from George T. Donoghue, park superintendent and director of victory gardens in the metropolitan area.

"We have done a lot of planning and conferring and scores of splendid lectures on all phases of vegetable and flower growing have been given in all parts of the city," Donoghue said. "Now that spring is really here it is time to stop talking and get the seeds in the ground."

To lend emphasis to this appeal, Chicago's first victory garden cavalcade will be held today and will give gardeners thruout the city an opportunity to visit six outstanding garden projects on the south side where seeds are already sprouting. Donoghue also has prepared a 16 page booklet containing instructions on gardening in Chicago, and 100,000 copies will be available thru community garden chairmen this week.

Plots Plowed Free.

Extent of the garden movement was regarded as of record breaking proportions by park district officials who are supervising the city-wide project. The park district has offered to plow free any plot that has the approval of the community civilian defense chairman. Plots must be large enough to make the operation practical, however.

"The most interesting development in the garden movement has been the community garden," Donoghue said. "People who do not wish to disturb land already planted in flowers or lawns, people who have no garden space at all, and others are combining to plant a community garden on nearby vacant lots. They secure the consent of the owner of a vacant lot and have the soil examined by one of the staff of the park district. Where the soil is sufficiently fertile, and the lot at least 75 feet wide and 75 feet deep, with at least four families pledged to make a garden on it, the plowing is being done by our men on tractors that have been donated for the purpose."

The garden cavalcade will meet at 2 o'clock today at Ogden park, 65th street and Racine avenue, where Mrs. A. H. Lassman, 7047 South Union avenue, will explain the demonstration gardens there. The motorcade, sponsored by the Englewood and Roseland Kiwanis clubs, then will proceed to a community garden at 70th and Morgan streets where many vegetables are already sprouting.

To Visit Brainerd Community.

Leaving there at 3:15 o'clock, the cavalcade will visit a community garden at 9024 South Carpenter street where Fred Reynolds, garden chairman of the Barinerd community will explain the coöperative project. The cavalcade will visit other gardens at 107th and Wood streets, at 121st and Gregory streets in Blue Island, and then will go to 11110 South Wallace street where the community garden of the Roseland Kiwanis club is being conducted under the guidance of Ernest Gries.

These members of the Thimble and Thumbs Garden club are collaborating in city-wide efforts to make "Share Your Lilacs" day a success. They were present at the annual luncheon of the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild where plans were outlined. From left to right are Mrs. Charles S. Pratt, Mrs. Clarence D. Morrison, Mrs. Gordon R. Close, an Mrs. John F. Stewart.

These aren't lilacs, but they're flowers and that's all that's necessary to create a stir among these gardeners. They are promoting Lilac day, when flower growers thruout Chicago contribute their lilacs for distribution in hospitals, orphanages, and community houses. From left to right, are Mrs. Robert Maynard, Mrs. Harry Erickson, Mrs. Herbert Waldon, Mrs. Mason E. Phillips, and Mrs. Herschel Missey. With the exception of Mrs. Missey, the women are members of the Ivanhoe Garden club. Mrs. Missey is a member of the Garden club of South Shore and chairman of the Illinois Central division of the guild.

Mrs. Charles Nielsen and Mrs. John Klepper of Tinley Park, both members of the Tinley Park Garden club, attended the guild's luncheon Wednesday and mapped plans for Tinley Park's role in the lilac distribution. This will be Mrs. Klepper's 14th lilac contribution. The program is 14 years old this year, too.

Mrs. W. O. Korten, in the flowered print, is chairman of the guild's Rock Island division. As such she's one of the prime movers in its annual lilac campaign. Beside her is Mrs. Burdette Pronger of the Blue Island Garden club.

Lilac Sharing Gets a Boost at Guild Rally

BY JEANNE McCARTHY.

Women with flowers on their hats and flowers in their gardens gathered Wednesday to plan for the distribution of their flowers and the 14th annual "Share Your Lilacs" days, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild.

The occasion was the annual luncheon of the guild. From south and southwest Chicago were two garden club divisions, the Rock Island and Illinois Central. Members of both units said that indications point to a large bloom in their districts, and, consequently, a large yield for the hospitals, community houses, and orphanages thruout Chicago. On a date, yet unnamed, lilacs will be distributed to these institutions.

Guests at Broadcast.

Lilac day workers will be guests at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening at a broadcast in the W-G-N audience studios. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will speak on "The Battle of the Wilderness."

Wednesday's luncheon was held in the tea room of Carson, Pirie and Scott. Mrs. Stanley D. Grace of Ravinia, retiring chairman of the guild, introduced her successor, Mrs. Warner R. Nelson of Glencoe. Mrs. Nelson presided.

The joy resulting from the arrival of flowers at hospitals and community houses was related by Gen. McManus McCloskey, superintendent of the County hospital; Harriet Vittum of the Northwestern Settlement house, and Florence Towne of the Erie Neighborhood house. A short address also was given by Theodore Purcell, guild president.

Contributor 14th Year.

Mrs. John Klepper, 17104 Oak Park avenue, Tinley Park, guild chairman of the Tinley Park Garden club, will this year mark her 14th as a contributor of lilacs to The Tribune's "Share Your Lilacs" program. Mrs. Klepper, a motherly woman in green, said she has been growing lilacs in the yard of her Tinley Park home for the last 26 years.

Her interest in lilacs goes back

GIVES CIVILIAN CORPS A CHANCE FOR EASY STUDY

300,000 Now Taking First Training.

More than 300,000 civilian defense workers in Chicago now are attending basic training classes of the OCD, while other thousands in the suburbs also are studying or preparing to study the rudiments of emergency service.

To assist these workers, THE TRIBUNE is publishing today the outline of Lesson No. 1, prepared by the OCD training division. This lesson, one of a series to appear in the Metropolitan section, is intended to refresh workers on their classroom studies and give them a permanent record for reference.

THE TRIBUNE makes no effort to interpret these courses since they are self-explanatory. The outline for Lesson No. 2 in the series will appear in next Sunday's Metropolitan section. It is suggested that defense workers save the lessons.

DEFENSE ORGANIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Civilian defense is an essential part of military science and is designed to counteract assault on civilian centers by air bombardment, sabotage, or other forms of attack.

Objectives of enemy assault on civilian centers are to:

1. Demolish defense industries.
2. Cripple communications.
3. Disrupt urban utilities.
4. Knock out government headquarters [including civilian defense headquarters].
5. Interrupt routine of workers, homes, restaurants, shops.
6. Destroy civilian morale.

Active military operations would include:

1. Destruction of enemy air fleet at its own bases.
2. Interception and destruction of enemy bombers.
3. Anti-aircraft.
4. Balloon-barrage.

Civilian defense is the passive as compared with active type of military operation.

The object of civilian defense is to protect and repair the lives and property of civilian population against air assault. Assault on civilian centers, whether by air bombardment or internal sabotage, is not completely new, tho greatly intensified. Every offense breeds its defense. Civilian defense is the new form of defense against the new form of offense by aerial bombardment.

The degree of probability of enemy attack should not be the determining question. Even if the percentage probability were only 1/10 of 1 per cent we must be practically 100 per cent prepared when the bombs begin to fall.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE FUNCTIONS.

Civilian defense functions, altho military in significance, are civilian in operation. They include:

1. Control of movement of people during raid.
2. Provision of shelters.
3. Rescue of trapped persons.
4. Control of fires.
5. Provision of first aid and hospitalization of wounded.
6. Repair of broken mains and utility lines.
7. Reopening of streets and restoration of traffic communications.
8. Provision of food and shelter for the homeless.

The term civilian defense is slowly coming to mean civilian protection or air raid precautions. In sense civilian defense preparations are not defense production, defense consumption [prices and rationing], defense financing, defense welfare, or defense morale.

An island to separate opposing traffic streams will be part of the project.

3. Plans are complete for installation of traffic actuated signals at the intersection of Ridge and Grant roads in Gary, and are now waiting the approval of the Nickel Plate railroad, the council was told.

4. Stop lights would be erected at the intersection of Indianapolis boulevard and State Line road at 106th street in order to protect pedestrians who are transfering from the Ewing avenue street car to continue on the bus lines to Gary, Whiting or Hammond, according to plans of the council.

BOYS TO MAKE SERIOUS USE OF 'SUGAR' HOLIDAY

When Chicago adults use the public schools to register for the sugar rationing program—May 4 to 7—school children will find a holiday at hand. To make the unexpected vacation "real sport," and at the same time to utilize it, the South Shore YMCA will offer a special schedule of softball, swimming, bike hiking, trips, and instruction in handicraft for schoolboys.

A "learn to swim" campaign will be conducted from May 4 to 9 at George Williams college, 5315 Drexel avenue, by the South Shore Y. Boys wishing to participate in any of these programs are asked to contact their grade school principals or the YMCA at 2320 East 75th street.

Registration is open to any boy in the south shore community, and schools participating include Parkside, Bryn Mawr, Madison, Horace Mann, Bradwell, Avalon Park, and O'Keeffe.

A bike hike for boys over 11 years old will start from the South Shore YMCA, 2320 East 75th street, at 12:45 o'clock Tuesday. Thursday will find the boys on an all-day trip to Wolf lake, leaving the Y at 9:30 o'clock in the morning.

At the South Chicago YMCA, 3039 East 91st street, 500 boys from 12 nearby grammar schools are expected to enroll in the 16th annual free Learn to Swim week which begins tomorrow.

Admitted to Federal Bar

Miss Frances D. Brown, 4432 Drexel boulevard, was recently admitted to practice in the federal court. A graduate of the University of Chicago, Miss Brown is also distinguished because she is the only woman member of the Chicago Bar association orchestra in which she plays the violin.

MICHIGAN CITY IS SITE OF STATE BAND CONTEST

High School Musicians to Compete Saturday.

Citizens of Michigan City are in the midst of preparations to accommodate 3,500 visitors who are expected for the Indiana high school band and orchestra contest which will be held there Saturday. Overflow bleachers are to be erected in the local high school stadium to provide room for an additional 2,000 persons beyond the normal seating capacity of 5,000 spectators, it has been announced by C. F. Humphrey, Elston High school principal and contest chairman.

Featured at the contest in which bands from 50 Indiana cities are expected to participate is the crack Hobart concert band which has won several national titles. Palmer J. Myran, director of instrumental music in the Michigan City schools, is in charge of a patriotic pageant.

Massed Bands in Pageant.

The pageant will present the 50 bands in mass formation in the Ames field stadium. Batons and instruments will be illuminated, and red flares and spotlighted colors will highlight the climax of the band meet.

Starting at 8 o'clock Saturday morning contest eliminations will be conducted thruout the day in the high school auditorium, the junior high school auditorium, and in the new Marsh school auditorium. Baton twirling and marching band contests will be conducted at the same time in the stadium, with elimination winners competing at night.

"In recent years Indiana's high school musical contest has grown so large," explained Humphrey, "that it has been divided into two sections—the solo and ensemble group and the band and orchestra group.

Two District Eliminations.

"The band and orchestra group is by far the larger of the two, and it is that event which is coming to Michigan City for the first time in the city's history. Northwest and northeast Indiana district eliminations will be held at Whiting and Columbia City to determine which bands shall enter the finals."

Humphrey said that Michigan City can well furnish facilities for the visitors. Assisting Humphrey and Myran are Fred Weber, school musical director, and Loran Linard, publicity director.

Memorial Group to Honor Founder Wednesday Night

The National Du Sable Memorial society will honor its president and founder, Mrs. Anne E. Oliver, with a banquet Wednesday evening at Morris' restaurant, 410 East 47th street. Organized in 1928, the group has as its purpose the commemoration of Jean Baptiste Point Du Sable—one of the first settlers in Chicago.

Retail Advertising
Chicago Tribune

Dear Mr. McMahon:

There is a good reason why our advertising linage in the Metropolitan sections of the Sunday Tribune reached a 9-year high of 21,077 lines last year -- and why we are currently running a new series of fashion advertisements that should make 1942 an even greater year.

Most of our advertising is for coats, dresses and smart outerwear fashions. Located in the convenient Madison and Crawford area, we serve the great West Side. That we reach practically all our market in the Sunday Tribune is shown by these figures on increases in our apparel departments:

1941 was 27.85% better than 1940
1940 was 29.51% better than 1939

-- and so far in 1942, our business is 50.63% better than 1941. The only thing that is holding us back from making larger gains is lack of space.

Frankly, your zoned Metropolitan Section advertising is an excellent investment for outlying merchants. We know of nothing that equals it for results and low cost.

Sincerely yours,

J. D. Madigan

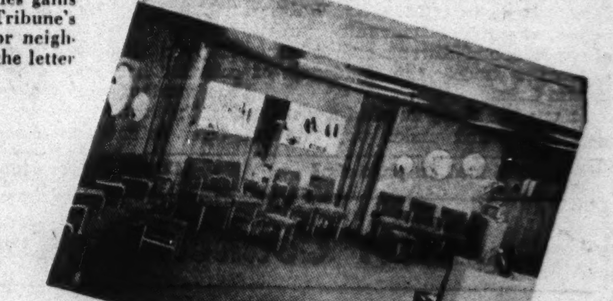
WEST SIDE STORE TELLS HOW LOW COST ADVERTISING IN THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE SPURS SALES AND GROWTH

How Madigan Brothers newly modernized store is piling up sales gains with the aid of the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers is told in the letter above.



The women's shoe department in Madigan Brothers store is contributing to the gains which this retailer attributes to consistent use of advertising in the Sunday Tribune.

SALES up 29% in 1940; up another 27% in 1941; and for the first three months of this year, 50% better than last year . . . such is the progress reported in the accompanying letter by this well-known west side store which for many years has used the Sunday Tribune's low-cost advertising plan for neighborhood retailers.

This is the testimony of only one of the 726 retailers on all sides of Chicago who used this plan last year to go after more sales and profits.

If you want to build securely for the future, now is the time to get the facts about this low-cost, business-building plan. Chicago's greater industrial activity is widening the distribution of spendable cash in every neighborhood and suburb of Chicago. At rates scaled low enough to permit every retailer to take advantage of Tribune sales power, you can put the Sunday Tribune on the job bringing more customers right from your own trading area.

It costs you nothing to get the facts. Call SUPerior 0100 tomorrow morning and ask for the Metropolitan section advertising department. A representative will be glad to call on you at your convenience with case history evidence showing how others in your line are using this plan to build sales and profits.

COL. M'CORMICK TALKS ON BATTLE OF WILDERNESS

Speech on W-G-N-Mutual Next Saturday.

"The Battle of the Wilderness," one of the most important campaigns of the Civil war, will be the topic of a speech to be given at 7:30 p. m. next Saturday on W-G-N and the Mutual network by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The speech will be the second analysis of a major Civil war campaign to be delivered by Col. McCormick. His first subject was "The Battle of Gettysburg," presented Dec. 27. The text of his Gettysburg broadcast is now being used at West Point.

"The Battle of the Wilderness" broadcast will be heard in place of the "America Loves a Melody" program usually heard at that time.

Special guests at the program in the W-G-N main audience studio will be garden club presidents, guild chairmen, and garden club members thruout Chicagoland who are coöperating with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in the annual "Share Your Lilacs" days.

The musical portion of the program will feature Marion Claire, soprano star of the "America Loves a Melody" show, and Attilio Baggiore, tenor. Background will be supplied by the W-G-N Symphony orchestra under the baton of Henry Weber and by the chorus directed by Robert Trendler.

Miss Claire and Mr. Baggiore will present well known Civil war songs and the orchestra will feature a medley of Civil war marching tunes.

Col. McCormick, an outstanding authority on military history, has written many articles on the campaigns of important wars. He is also the author of a book on Gen. Grant and another book, just published, titled "How We Acquired Our National Territory."

Mr. Smith will tell of the war activities and history of his school and Mr. Winter will respond to Philip Maxwell, the program's principal of the air and master of ceremonies, who will nominate him to the program's roll of service.

The Fenger chorus, directed by Miss Irene Conner, will sing two numbers, "Thanks Be to God," by Dickson-Lucas, and "If My Songs Had Wings," arranged by Noble Cain. Two more outstanding senior students will be added to the student roll of honor. They are James Wegener, ROTC cadet major at Fenger, and William Sunstrum, athlete and journalist of Oskaloosa, Ia.

ORGANIZATION OF DEFENSE AGENCIES.

The United States Office of Civilian Defense is an independent defense agency, established under Presidential order. The order authorizes the O. C. D. to plan measures for the protection of life and property by recruiting and training civilian auxiliaries, and to secure volunteer participation in the defense welfare and morale program. The O. C. D. is emphasizing the first set of functions, and the second is being handled more and more by other federal agencies.

The country is divided into nine civilian defense regions headed by regional directors. These regions are the same as the nine army corps areas. The regional office assists and consults with the several states.

There are metropolitan defense areas set up in districts like New York and Chicago, which cut across municipal and state lines. These metropolitan areas have the same status as do the states in their relation to the civilian defense regions and to the O. C. D. The states and the metropolitan defense areas assist the local defense agencies.

The Chicago metropolitan Office of Civilian Defense covers all of Cook county, part of Du Page county and part of Lake county, Illinois, and has a total population of four and one-half million people, and an area of 1,135 square miles.

It is divided into 15 divisions, seven within the city of Chicago and eight in the rest of the metropolitan area. Under these divisions are about 228 community defense areas, 108 local community areas in Chicago and 120 suburban areas.

These communities in turn are divided into zones or districts of several blocks each. The smallest unity of operation for civilian defense purposes is the block, or some equivalent unit, of which there are about 20,000 in the Chicago metropolitan area.

CONTROL, COMMAND, AND COMMUNICATIONS.

Comparing the civilian defense organization with a system of military command, the flow of command runs from the metropolitan coödinator, thru the division chiefs, to the community commanders, or suburban coordinators, thru the zone or district commanders, to the block captains.

Air raid warden posts in the individual blocks are tied together with the control centers or the metropolitan headquarters, in a network of communications which constitutes the nerve system of the civilian defense organization under conditions of actual attack.

The mission of the communications and control system is:

1. To maintain a continuous picture of the bombings or "incidents" in the area as reported in by the wardens.

2. To dispatch crews and squads of personnel and equipment to the scene of the "incidents" by contacting the headquarters and posts of the specialized civilian defense services.

3. To notify the higher command in case reinforcements of personnel and equipment are needed for the area or division covered by the control center.

A hypothetical control center for a community of 100,000 people, according to O. C. D. standards requires the following equipment:

1. Twenty-seven telephone lines.
2. Radio equipment in case telephone services are blown out.
3. A large control map on which each "incident" is spotted with color pins or tabs.
4. A control panel which keeps a continuous visual inventory of services needed and services dispatched.

Control center personnel includes such specialized officers and workers as:

1. Controler.
2. Map plotting officer.
3. Panel clerk.
4. Record clerk.
5. Communications officer.
6. Radio aide.
7. Guards.
8. Ten telephonists.
9. Four messengers.

PERSONNEL AND TRAINING.

The civilian defense system of metropolitan Chicago, when fully manned, will have about 300,000 workers.

The classes of personnel required by OCD fall into the following groups:

1. Staff corps.
2. Air raid wardens.
3. Auxiliary police.
4. Auxiliary firemen.
5. Bomb squads.
6. Fire watchers.
7. Medical corps.
8. Rescue squads.
9. Nurses aides.
10. Drivers corps.
11. Messengers.
12. Emergency food and housing.
13. Decontamination corps.
14. Demolition and clearance crews.
15. Road repair crew.
16. Utilities repair squads.

The staff of metropolitan Chicago includes:

1. Central headquarters staff.
2. Fifteen division chiefs.
3. 228 local community commanders.
4. About 1,000 zone or district captains.
5. About 20,000 block captains.
6. Instructors, information officers.

Since the personnel must carry on highly technical duties, it must be trained before it can go into operation and before it can be certified under OCD standards. The required courses will include general civilian defense survey [5 hours], fire defense [3 hours], first aid [10 hours], gas defense [3 hours]. In addition there are about six specialized training courses for each of about 16 specialized groups of personnel.

The OCD requires each worker to be certified as trained before being allowed to wear this insignia. The training program is so large that it must be decentralized at the local community level, with the help of schools and others. The first job is to train instructors and master instructors. In addition, the training division of the metropolitan office is required to provide the curriculum, set standards, administer and coördinate the training program.

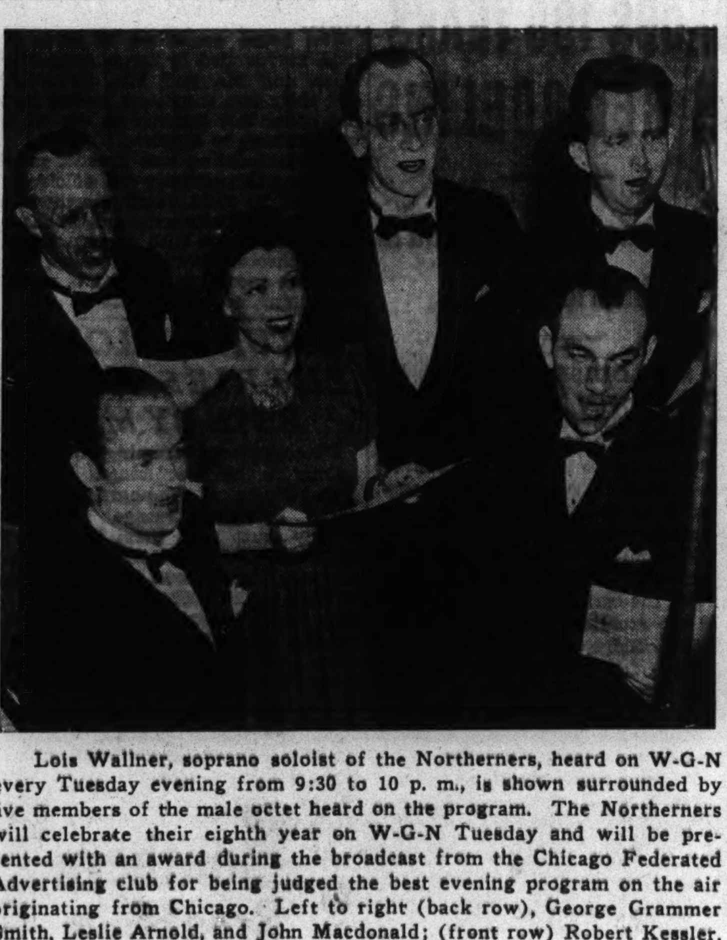
RESEARCH AND PLANNING.

Civilian defense is a scientific set of techniques. Preparations in the United States are based largely upon British experience. The British themselves approached this problem scientifically and they did research constantly. They investigated a sample of the "incidents" in order to find evidence that would help deal with future attacks.

The OCD recommends a plan for scheduling civilian defense preparation step by step as follows:

Study and planning of the communications system and the organization for civilian defense; announcement of the organization plan and recruitment of personnel; training, and testing and maneuvers.

Northerners to Get Award



Lois Wallner, soprano soloist of the Northerners, heard on W-G-N every Tuesday evening from 9:30 to 10 p. m., is shown surrounded by five members of the male octet heard on the program. The Northerners will celebrate their eighth year on W-G-N Tuesday and will be presented with an award during the broadcast from the Chicago Federated Advertising club for being judged the best evening program on the air originating from Chicago. Left to right (back row), George Grammer Smith, Leslie Arnold, and John Macdonald; (front row) Robert Kessler, Miss Wallner, and Dean Reed.

8 Years on W-G-N

An award by the Chicago Federated Advertising club to the Northerners as the outstanding evening radio show originating in Chicago will be presented during their broadcast from 9:30 to 10 p. m. Tuesday evening over W-G-N. The award will be given to Solomon Byron Smith, vice president of the Northern Trust company, by William F. Carr, chairman of the award committee for the advertising club.

The award comes just as the Northerners are preparing to begin their eighth year on W-G-N. In musical range the Northerners cover everything from modern ballads to operatic selections. Tuesday night they plan to present such popular ballads as "I Saw the Sea," by Irving Berlin; "I'll Take You Home Again Kathleen," by Westendorf; "One Kiss" from "New Moon," by Romberg; "There's Something About a Soldier," by Gay; "The Emperor Waltz," by Johann Strauss.

The Northerners program was originated by J. M. Easton of the trust company. It started as an educational program and it was planned to use music for background purposes only. After a few months it was changed to a musical program and placed under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, who has directed it ever since. The show features an all-string orchestra, a male octet, and Miss Lois Wallner, soprano soloist.

The Northerners octet is composed of Dean Reed and Henry Anderson, first tenors; Robert Kessler and Earle Tanner, second tenors; George Smith and Earle Wilkie, baritones, and Leslie Arnold and John Macdonald, bassos. George Smith and Leslie Arnold have been with the group since it originated. Helene Webb and Palmer Clark write the vocal arrangements and Walter Dellers handles the orchestral arrangements.

With AMERICA'S FIGHTERS

First Lieut. Berle K. Hufford, 1953 West 63d street, has been chosen to attend battery officers course 48 of the Field artillery school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Lieut. Hufford is the son of Bert L. Hufford. Before his induction, he was employed as a teacher. He is 27 years old.

Lieut. Hufford.

James Cunningham, 11426 Hale avenue, enlisted last week for flight training in the United States naval aviation reserve. He will report for primary flight training at the air base at Glenview, Ill. Cunningham, a graduate of Brown university, was an insurance broker before his enlistment.

During World War I. a German aviator flying over No Man's Land, crashed and was taken prisoner. His binoculars, standard equipment in the German army, were removed and acquired by the Italian officer who captured him. The Italian later presented them to Clare H. Law, 1759 West 100th street. Law has now sent them to the navy, after reading a newspaper account citing the navy's need for that type of instrument. The navy said that they will be used on the deck of an American man o' war, against their former owners. The navy's seeking two types of these instruments: Carl Zeiss or Bausch and Lomb, 6x30, or 7x50. They should be shipped to the naval observatory, Washington, D. C.

The appointment of Corp. Arthur L. Anderson, 6901 South Ashland avenue, to sergeant in the army's medical corps was announced recently by the commandant at Camp Grant.

Max Oklob, 4736 South Paulina street, is now a student of aircraft engine at the Curtiss Wright Technical institute. The school is training mechanics for the army.

Paul W. Wernich, 7836 Sangamon street, has begun training as an aviation cadet at the air corps replacement center at Santa Ana, Cal. Prior to his appointment as an aviation cadet, Cadet Wernich served with the regular army for a year. He attended Whitefish Bay High school at Milwaukee, Wis.

An air corps enlistee is John B. Slingerland, 10555 La Salle street. He will report soon at Glenview, Ill., for primary instruction. After training at Glenview, he will be assigned to Jacksonville or Pensacola, Fla., or Corups Christi, Tex., for secondary flight instruction. After completion of this advanced training he will be commissioned an ensign and receive his navy wings.

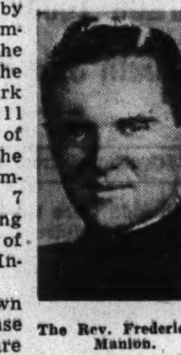
RALLIES, PARADE FOR DEFENSE ARE SOUTH SIDE PLANS

Two neighborhood civilian defense rallies and a twilight parade are being planned by south side communities for the near future. The Jackson park community will hold a rally of members of the nine blocks comprising zone 7 Tuesday evening at the Museum of Science and Industry.



The Rev. Frederic T. Manion.

The Woodlawn civilian defense headquarters are planning an all-star dance in the Trianon ballroom, 63d street and Cottage Grove avenue, for Wednesday, May 6. On the evening preceding the dance several thousand people and a number of bands will parade on 63d street.

At the Jackson park rally the Mount Carmel High school band will provide a musical background for the program composed of introductions of block captains, two sound movies.

A tour of a new national defense exhibit will be conducted by the authorities of the Museum of Science and Industry after the meeting. The community commander, Ralph E. Silverwood, will welcome the audience at the meeting.

The Woodlawn community's civilian defense dance is being held to raise funds to maintain the local defense organization.

The Woodlawn community parade will consist of 1,000 defense workers, police platoons, the Hyde Park High school band, the Mount Carmel band, the University of Chicago band, several military and naval units, several Boy Scout troops, and several American Legion posts.

General chairman of the Trianon Victory party is D. E. Northam, 6052 Harper avenue. Floyd B. Millis, manager of the Southmoor hotel, is cochairman. The Rev. Timothy Moore is chairman of the ticket sales committee and the Rev. Frederic Maniom and P. J. Wehle are in charge of hall arrangements. Others working on the project are W. T. Sloan, Charles Zeller, John Klinck, Leo Heid, H. R. Gaskins, and H. M. Gardner.

NOW IS THE TIME TO PLANT YOUR VICTORY GARDEN

Parade Today Will Visit South Side Projects.

south side were several being done by school children. At the Avalon Park school 60 children of grade school age are planting a large garden under direction of Miss Dorothy O'Nell, a teacher. Miss O'Nell said the children have worked three afternoons a week clearing the vacant lot on the corner of 80th street and Dorchester avenue. As soon as they secure necessary black dirt, the children will plant the seeds.

Miss Marie Koehler of Shakespeare school, who is victory garden chairman of the Kenwood community, has two projects to her credit. One is on the south side of 48th street between Ellis and Greenwood avenues where school children also are working on a garden. The other is near 49th street and Drexel boulevard where the entire neighborhood is working on a garden.

Large Garden on Jeffery Avenue.

Further south Fred Thomason, 7622 Luella avenue, victory garden chairman of the South Shore community, has stimulated a neighborhood group to establish a garden at the corner of 72d street and Jeffery avenue. This is a large garden, 126 feet by 176 feet.

At 7411 Constance avenue a victory garden project is being sponsored by the block captain, N. J. Bohling. In the Avalon Park community, Harry Turrell, 8211 Kimbark avenue, is in charge of several gardens on the west side of Dorchester avenue from 83d street to 85th street.

First Step in Victory Garden

Victory gardens that meet with the approval of the community garden chairman will be plowed free by the park district. Requirements are that at least four families work on the garden and that the lot be at least 75 feet wide and deep. Getting their prospective garden plowed by the park district service are Mrs. Martin J. Weiland, 8034 Ingleside avenue, M. L. Simmons, 8035 Drexel avenue, and John D. Harris, 8013 Ingleside avenue. Operating the tractor in the Chatham district garden is Elmer Metzger, park district employe.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, April 27

Some of the seeds recently sown in the garden will be up by this time and as weather conditions may remain cool the weeds will not grow as fast as they will when hot weather comes. However, it is imperative that the cultivator—usually the hoe—be used to keep the soil stirred and to remove any small weeds that have started.

Garden work can easily become very laborious if the time element fails to be taken into consideration. All work should be done on time, such as cutting weeds by cultivating when they are quite small. By so doing the soil is kept stirred, the vegetables and flowers grow rapidly, and the soil is not utilizing the plant food it contains to supply weeds.

Tuesday, April 28

Do not plant warm weather or tropical vegetables or flowers until the conditions are favorable. However, cool crops, hardy annuals, trees, shrubs, and vines can be planted now.

Perennials that have started into growth can be divided. If the hardy aster, oswego tea, false dragonhead, or plants that grow rapidly from underground stems are divided, given good, fresh soil, they will be the better for it. Divide phlox and remember that each tip will grow into a good plant.

Wednesday, April 29

One of the best plants for greens is the young turnip and it is filled with health-giving vitamins. Sow in rows and be sure to thin to about three inches, using the thinnings for greens. Use the larger outer leaves of chard, lettuce, and spinach for the same purpose; the inner leaves will keep on growing and they, too, can be used when large enough.

When gathering produce like peas, beans, pole beans, cucumbers, and other similar kinds, do not pull up the plants or loosen them in the soil. Do not keep pouring water on the rows of radishes or they will grow so fast they may split.

Thursday, April 30

If hard seeds are soaked in warm water for about 12 hours their germination will be hastened and be more uniform. Heavy, thick seeds like sweet peas, cannas, morning glories, lupins, and others can be so treated after filing thru each seed but not deep enough to injure the interior.

Thin sowing of small seeds is essential. To avoid oversowing mix the seeds with dry sand before sowing. Light colored sand against the dark soil will show how the seed is being applied and in what amounts.

Friday, May 1

If you wish a brilliant and effective show, plant hardy chrysanthemums and plant them in the spring. Buy small pot plants because they are not disturbed when removed from pot to open ground. Depending on the kind and the purpose wanted, plant from 18 inches to 3 feet apart.

Saturday, May 2

Do not neglect house plants. Those who have an outdoor garden should repot all the plants that need repotting to enable them to grow luxuriantly in the open air. Simply plunge the pots to their rims and water each day, if needed.

The poinsettia, gardenia, azalea, and others that do not require partial shade, such as fancy leaved caladiums, tuberous begonias, ferns, most palms, are benefited.

OLD FARMHOUSE DROPS 100 YEARS IN REMODELING

Oak Beams Are Utilized in Interior Trim.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

The 100 year old farmhouse on route 58, just outside Des Plaines, which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Bredfeldt decided to remodel and convert into a modern American farmhouse, yielded unexpected treasures when the walls were torn out.

Old hand-hewn oak beams pegged together formed the skeleton structure of the earliest part of the house, and the architect, W. F. McCaughey of Park Ridge, saw in them an inspiration for the character of wood trim, floors, and plaster. When cleaned they took on a beautiful antique brown color to which much of the adjacent trim was blended.

Had Many Additions.

This farmhouse, like so many in the district, expressed whole generations of living from the early part of the 19th century. The house was added to, from time to time, as different family members married.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt, together with Mr. McCaughey, looked at the house with thought of purchase, the second floor was completely separated by two stairways, one in the new section and one in the old. Naturally the whole section floor was on different levels and it was decided to remove both the stairways and build one new stairway in a central location between the dining room and living room.

All the old turned spindle work, top heavy porches, old steps, and many of the partitions were pulled down and in the northwest corner a new porch and massive chimney were added.

Bay Overlooks Orchard.

There is now a living room, dining room, study, bathroom, and kitchen on the first floor and three bedrooms and two bathrooms on the second floor.

There is a large bay in the living room overlooking a large orchard and the unusual oak mantel over the stone fireplace was carved by Mr. Bredfeldt in an egg and dart motif. A Dutch door leads to a breezy screened porch, styled to compliment the sturdy qualities of the American farmhouse.

In the old section of the house new floors were laid and in process of renovation, complete new heating, plumbing, and wiring were installed. A forced warm air heating system was put in, oil fueled.

Study for Guest Room.

The study on the first floor is effectively papered and because of an adjacent bathroom can be used as a guest room when needed.

Much of the furniture is of the carved walnut and mahogany period and adds distinction to the house interior.

The house stands on 10 acres of land, surrounded by large, spreading trees, and Mr. and Mrs. Bredfeldt and their two daughters moved into the house last summer as the work was drawing to a finish.

The remodeling was drastic, practical, and thoughtfully and efficiently executed to yield vastly worthwhile results. The bathrooms and kitchens were carried out with modern trend, the bathrooms beautifully tiled, and from the second floor there is access to a sunny, railed deck area.

PICTURE SALON ENTRIES MUST BE IN BY MAY 15

Hubbard Shattuck, director, has warned. Entry blanks may be had by writing to the society located in Lincoln park at Clark street and North avenue. The salon will be held from June 1 thru Sept. 7 in the Historical society's museum at Clark street and North avenue.

Children's Chorus to Sing in Annual Civic Music Festival Next Sunday

By Edward Barry.

With the first greening of the trees each spring the Chicago music season loses its worldly, sophisticated character and becomes homey and simple. Nearly all the major musical series close, and the "name" artists who have been rushing into the city at frequent intervals since November to lend the glitter of their personalities to the local opera stage and concert platform suddenly rush elsewhere—to their own homes and farms or to spring festivals in other towns.

The music calendar here begins to fill with amateur groups—and amateur means nonprofessional, not poor, Hundreds of persons who, as members of choirs or choruses, have been quietly practicing and learning about music during the winter months or perhaps filling relatively obscure engagements in churches or schools, emerge into the limelight of the loop concert stage in April or May. The performances they give are often so refreshing that they merit the attention of the city's concertgoers for their own sake. In addition there is nearly always an interesting story behind these performances—the story of how and why and under what circumstances the necessary musical training was received.

• • •

One may comb the entire spring concert calendar without finding an event that offers a better example of this dual appeal than the 29th annual Civic Music association festival to be held in Orchestra hall next Sunday afternoon. Here is something which is delightful in itself, which will give the most hardened and jaded concertgoer a new and refreshing experience, and which at the same time will reward the seeker after whys and wherefores with a warming tale of devotion to an ideal and of gruelling and almost unpublicized effort.

As to the attractiveness of the festival itself, the singing of the 500 voice children's chorus which is its chief feature possesses a kind of appeal which nothing in the year's sophisticated fall and winter concert season can match. The simplicity and sweetness of the children's delivery is not spoiled by their slight nasalness. On the contrary, this nasalness (for some obscure and doubtless nonmusical reason) actually enhances the music's beauty. Probably the quality of childishness (which nearly everybody but children finds so appealing) is kept consistent, and therefore subtly strengthened, by the presence of this gentle twang.

The music that the chorus sings consists mostly of dewy, naïve little folk songs. This year, in deference to the good neighbor policy, there will be a whole group of Latin American songs as well as excerpts from the folk literature of the United States, France, ancient Palestine, Italy, and Czecho-Slovakia.

The persuasiveness of the performance is further increased by the use of aptly written orchestral accompaniments. These accompaniments (Continued on Page 3.)

Maurice Evans in 'Macbeth' Opens at the Erlanger Tomorrow Evening

By Cecil Smith.

One of the least praiseworthy features of the American theater is its lack of loyalty to the classic repertory of the theater. All professional theatrical enterprise nowadays must be measured by the commercial yardstick of the box office. With production and running costs what they are, the staging of past masterpieces has become a risky business indeed. Most producers prefer to deal, whenever they can, with lucky moneymakers like "Life with Father" and "My Sister Eileen" and "Junior Miss."

In such a naughty world we must be grateful, therefore, for the devoted labors of Maurice Evans (who opens tomorrow night in "Macbeth" at the Erlanger theater) on behalf of the greatest dramatist in the history of the English speaking stage. If it were not for the efforts and accomplishments of Mr. Evans, Shakespeare would be almost as extinct as Strindberg on the professional stage of this country. In the past five years Mr. Evans has been associated with every moneymaking Shakespearean production; no Shakespeare production has been a financial success in which he was not involved.

• • •

It was in 1935, after a busy decade of diverse assignments on the British stage, that Maurice Evans came to the United States to tour as Romeo with Katharine Cornell in "Romeo and Juliet." He was thus introduced to the American public under the most favorable auspices: Miss Cornell's prestige assured "Romeo and Juliet". of huge audiences wherever it went, and the new Romo enjoyed the advantage of a handsomely mounted, meticulously cast, and carefully directed production.

After a second appearance with Miss Cornell, as the Dauphin in Shaw's "Saint Joan," and a subsequent success as Napoleon in "St. Helena," Mr. Evans felt ready early in 1937 to set himself up as a Shakespearean star. For his first part he chose the title part of "Richard II," a play absent from the professional stage for many years, and widely thought to be one of the weaker historical dramas. His own polished performance in the central rôle won immediate favor, both among critics who had assumed that it would not be possible to make "Richard II." a lively enough drama to satisfy modern tastes and among laymen who were fortunate enough to approach the performance without such cramping preconceptions.

"Richard II." awakened such a good response that Mr. Evans was able to revive it three years later for a second tour, during which audiences across the country gladly went back to see it a second time. In the meantime, however, he has enhanced his personal reputation by adding two contrasting Shakespeare characters to his growing list—the roly-poly Falstaff in "Henry IV., Part I." and the melancholy Dane in "Hamlet."

If his impersonation of Falstaff, in a huge sheath of padding, was a tour de force, his entire "Hamlet" production was a major triumph. Amid (Continued on Page 2.)

Chicago Cafes Bring in New Talent to Bolster Shows

Phil Regan of Movies Singing at Chez Paree

By Will Davidson.

Taking a cue from the much bombed London shopkeeper, Chicago's café world has hung out a sign, "Alterations as usual during business."

Chez Paree has replaced misplaced Jean Sablon with Phil Regan, and little Estelita, whose Cuban fire fizzled a bit in those surroundings, with the Murphy sisters. Harry's New Yorker has discovered that its name star, Lya Lys, was not yet strong enough for such a show and has brought in the Three Randall sisters as replacements. The Mayfair room of the Blackstone has finally had to say adieu to joyous Jane Froman and pays her tribute by following her with TWO name acts [Hildegarde, please note] of high caliber—John Buckmaster and Yvette.

The Trianon and Aragon ballrooms at last have given in to the rhumba trend, if any, and will provide free lessons to regular patrons on Tuesday and Wednesday nights, respectively. Handsome and very expert Louis Gomez will be in charge of the instruction.

The La Salle hotel, finding its Pan-American café on the upgrade in a business way since the advent of that suave salesman and tunesmith, José Manzanares, has taken the cotton out of its ears and decided that removal of the largest loudspeaker would make the Manzanares music sound a little less like a medium tank in a hurry. Further, it has removed a little of the bamboo cage around the dance floor and shifted the band to the north side, with its back to the entrance instead of about a third of the customers. It is a highly commendable change and an indication of alert management.

• • •

Phil Regan.

If the movies, as our John Chapman says, are furrowing brows in a hunt for A1 but not 2A leading men, they should furrow in the direction of Chez Paree. There's a lad over there who's been doing some pretty competent movie acting for a good many years, who is acquiring new entertainment savvy by branching out into the night club field, and who has the looks, voice, and manner of a very swell gent. He's Phil Regan, and he's adding life and appeal to the Chez revue with his songs—especially his Irish songs. I was a bit tardy in catching Mr. Regan's show, and he made haste to call my attention to the laudatory review a hurley bird had given him. Now all I can do is repeat, with a bow, my competitor's commendably discerning citation of Phil's restraint from ambidextrous and pedal song plugging. He's a singer, so he sings. And he's Philling the bill very well.

The other additions to the Chez revue, the Murphy Sisters, are pleasant enough, most especially when they analyze "Moonlight Cocktail." And the rest of the show, Mata and Hari, Key Taylor, Jackie Miles, the Adorables, and Buddy Franklin's band, of course, are very good.

• • •

I seem to be making a continuity of my comments on the dancing of Gower and Jeanne in the Empire room of the Palmer House, but I do want to add another thought. If in casting about for "different" routines, perhaps with the concert stage in mind, they can evolve serious numbers with as much charm and delightful expressiveness as their "Missionary and the Maiden" number, they will do the concert audiences a high favor. This amusing little pantomime of the capitulation of a cleric to the spell of the South seas is admirable dance technique. It is witty, it has exquisite touches of philosophy and an understanding of human nature—all without being anything more imposing than a thoroly enjoyable encore number.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Tiny Hill brings his bulk and his band into the Trianon ballroom Saturday night to double with Lawrence Welk, then goes north to the Aragon Sunday to split billing with Orrin Tucker. . . . Orrin, they tell me, is breaking up his band at the end of the Aragon run. Draft trouble.

Altho at one time his hands were crippled from rheumatism, Hal Pruden, pianist with Chuck Foster's band in the Stevens hotel Continental room, has developed into one of the fastest players in the business. In a stunt recently he played 100 bars, containing 2,400 notes, in 52 seconds. I don't know, but it sounds fast. Any challengers? . . . Look for a break for Don Di Flavio, the Continental room's handsome singer. . . . John Schlotterbeck, popular manager of the Seneca hotel, is supervising a hotel administration course now for Michigan State college.

Skinnay Ennis probably won't follow Eddy Duchin in the Empire room after all. He's afraid of the draft's effect on his band and is heading for the lucrative theater field, I'm told. . . . Griff Williams, who holds the all-time high record for the Palmer House, also holds it now for the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston. He has caught on there beautifully, booking agents to the contrary notwithstanding. Looks as if he'll open in the Waldorf Astoria, New York, on May 14.

After watching some café juveniles attempt to be romantic I come to the sad conclusion that they are just tyros—and not tyro Powers, either.

IN PRIZE WINNING PLAY

Mady Christians is a member of the hand-picked cast of "Watch on the Rhine," the Critics' Circle prize play, opening at the Grand Opera house on May 11.

Notes of the Theater

When "Watch on the Rhine" opens on May 11 at the Grand Opera house, Lucile Watson will make her first Chicago stage appearance in more than 20 years. She last played here in "You and I," the first hit play to issue from the pen of Philip Barry. A series of rôles has kept her busy in New York during recent years, except for time she spent in Hollywood making movies.

Miss Watson's genuinly distinguished career in the American theater covers a period of 42 years. A native of Quebec, she made her stage debut in that provincial Canadian capital in 1900, and found her way to the New York stage two years later. "A Morning Call" was her first professional play; "Watch on the Rhine" is her 199th.

Success came quickly after she had gotten her start in New York, for she won great praise in 1903 for her acting in the leading rôle of "Glad of It," by Clyde Fitch, one of the leading American dramatists of the time. In Fitch's popular "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," produced in 1907, she appeared with Ethel Barrymore for the first time.

In 1928 Miss Watson married Louis Evan Shipman, a playwright, and retired from the stage. Her husband's death five years later led her to resume her American stage career in A. E. Thomas' comedy, "No More Ladies." Her subsequent engagements have included Mrs. Bennet in "Pride and Prejudice" and the Countess d'Agoult, the mistress of Franz Liszt, in "Prelude to Exile." Some of her most successful movie assignments have been in "What Every Woman Knows," "Sweethearts," "The Women," "Waterloo Bridge," "Mr. and Mrs. Smith," and "Rage in Heaven."

Skeets Gallagher, now cutting high jinks in "Good Night, Ladies," the unrestrained farce at the Blackstone, might have been an engineer if his parents had not rewarded his scholastic achievements at Indiana university by sending him to New York for a vacation. Here, for the first time, he became acquainted with the theater, and fell under its fascinating spell. When he returned to college his grades became as low as they once had been high. Shortly he and his chum wrote a college life sketch and went into vaudeville with it. This initiated a theatrical career which he has never deserted. His last previous flesh-and-blood appearance in Chicago was as Rudolph in the light comedy, "Hollywood Holiday," with Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels, in 1935.

The management of "Blithe Spirit," the Selwyn theater's current tenant, is licking its chops over the New York Drama Critics' Circle award, which was allotted to the Noel Coward farce a few days ago. This year the award takes on added significance, for the conclave of critics decided that no play of American authorship deserved their honor this season. Two of the critics voted for "The Moon Is Down" and four for "In Time to Come," but a majority of the writers felt that neither play measured up to an altogether satisfactory standard. Last year "Watch on the Rhine" received the critics' award for the best native play, and "The Corn Is Green" was singled out as the best play of foreign authorship.

"Oy Is Dos a Leben," the Yiddish musical starring Molly Picon and based on some of her life experiences, concludes its engagement at the Civic Opera house with afternoon and evening performances today. At each performance 50 Jewish soldiers, sailors, and marines have been admitted without charge.

Katharine Cornell is reviving Bernard Shaw's "Candida" in New York this week at four special matinées for the benefit of Army and Navy relief under the auspices of American Theater Wing War Service, Inc. An altogether amazing cast includes Raymond Massey as Morell; Private Burgess Meredith, on special leave from the army, as Marchbanks; Mildred Natwick, the Mme. Arcati of the New York "Blithe Spirit" company, as Prossy, and Stanley Bell as Lexy. Guthrie McClintic will direct. Since Miss Cornell still has the scenery and costumes from her memorable revival of the comedy, no production cost is entailed.

The Belfry players at Williams Bay, Wis., are the second summer theater group to reveal their intention of operating this year. The new directors have been engaged to coöperate in this lively community project, Harold Gregory of Minneapolis, and John Ross Winnie of St. Paul. The Port players have already announced a season to be presented in Shorewood, a suburb of Milwaukee.

Richard Tyler, the boy who appears as Lady Macduff's little son in the Erlanger theater production of "Macbeth," got his start as the youngest boy in the Dorothy Gish-Louis Calhern company of "Life with Father." He is a direct descendant of President Tyler, and is also related to Tippecanoe Harrison and President Benjamin Harrison.

The London premiere of "Watch on the Rhine" took place last Wednesday at the Aldwych theater. Hugh Beaumont had purchased the production rights, and Emlyn Williams staged the performance. Anton Walbrook, Diana Wynyard, Athene Sayler, and Charles Goldner are playing the parts in which we are to see Paul Lukas, Mady Christians, Lucile Watson, and George Coulouris.

Tributary theater notes: Lillian Hellman's "The Children's Hour" continues tonight and next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings in the playhouse of the Actors Company of Chicago, 218 South Wabash avenue. . . . "Ladies in Retirement" will conclude the season of the Little Theater of Western Springs on May 7, 8, and 9. The production, directed by Mary Cattell, will be given in the Village club. . . . On May 22 in Kimball hall a performance of Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall" will be presented under the direction of M. Ferdinand du Pont, director of the Garfield Park Theater Guild.

the shaking heads of wisacres, Mr. Evans determined to present "Hamlet" in its uncut entirety. This was an experiment to be likened only to the presentation of an unabridged Wagner opera. With its original text intact, "Hamlet" runs for four hours. It was a daring adventure to trifle with the affections of America's fickle and uneducated Shakespeare audience by running the risk of boring listeners with an embarrassment of riches. Not since the relentless days of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude" and "Mourning Becomes Electra" had audiences been asked to come early and stay late. The 8:30 to 11 schedule for plays had become so rigid a standard that many professional phophets doubted Mr. Evans' wisdom in requiring a longer span of attention.

The impossible happened with this extraordinary "Hamlet" production, however, for the play gained so greatly in logic and fluency that its unfolding actually gave the illusion of occupying less time than the ordinary spotty, jumpy abridgement of the play. No single factor has contributed more largely to Mr. Evans' présent enviable reputation than the shrewdness of his judgment in foreseeing that the whole of "Hamlet" would be more engrossing than the sum of part of its parts.

• • •

Last season Mr. Evans joined forces with the Theater Guild to participate in a revival of "Twelfth Night," in which he was co-starred with Helen Hayes. He made a blithe field day of his characterization of the cross gartered Malvolio, cursing him with the possession of a Cockney accent, and treating his braying egotism with amusingly mannered humor.

During the tour of "Twelfth Night" his dressing room was cluttered with preliminary sketches of costumes and settings for "Macbeth," which he had already settled upon as his 1941-'42 production. The advent of "Macbeth" was preceded by many months of discussion and preparation. For weeks rumors flew about as to the probable identity of the Lady Macbeth, with Flora Robson, who had just made a deep impression in "Ladies in Retirement," as a frequently mentioned candidate. It was Judith Anderson, however, who was finally engaged for the part, on the strength of her outstanding success as Lady Macbeth in London a few seasons ago. The choice was a wise one, for Miss Anderson and Mr. Evans alike have shared in the brilliant press notices and the wide approval "Macbeth" has elicited.

• • •

"Macbeth," which opens at the Erlanger theater tomorrow evening, has topped all the previous Evans' productions in popular success. It ran longer in New York than any other "Macbeth" in the history of the Broadway stage. On its present tour it has been garnering fantastically large grosses at all the eastern box offices, and more recently has repeated its financial triumph in Detroit and St. Louis. I do not have reliable figures at hand, but I have heard "Macbeth" described as the biggest moneymaker on the road this spring. When Chicago and a few other midwestern cities have been visited, the company will disband for the summer, but the tour will be resumed in the autumn, with the Pacific coast as an ultimate objective.

The most inspiriting feature of the saga of Mr. Evans' "Macbeth" is that his entire success is the result of high artistic achievement. No cheap appeals have been made, in the hope of "popularizing" Shakespeare by vulgarian tactics. The best standards have been maintained in casting, staging, and direction, and the public has responded because the production is known to be genuine.

• • •

An immense share of the credit for the integrity of "Macbeth" and Mr. Evans' earlier productions goes to Margaret Webster, the noted stage director. Now the preëminent Shakespearean director of the American stage, Miss Webster is the daughter of two English actors, Ben Webster and Dame May Whitty [both of whom were seen here with Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet"]. Miss Webster was born in New York, in as much as her father and mother were here because he was then acting in "The Marriage of Asche." Soon afterward she was taken back to England, where she remained until Mr. Evans induced her to return to America in order to undertake the direction of "Richard II." She remained in New York, and her name has become permanently linked with that of Mr. Evans by virtue of the succeeding productions of "Henry IV.," "Hamlet," "Twelfth Night," and the current "Macbeth." Two seasons ago she turned away from Shakespeare long enough to direct "Family Portrait," in which Judith Anderson, the present Lady Macbeth, was starred.

• • •

When Miss Webster came to New York to direct "Richard II.," she was only 32. Earlier in England she had been known chiefly as an actress. While she played a wide variety of rôles in contemporary plays, as any gifted young actress will, she was also able to obtain a good deal of Shakespearean experience with the Ben Greet players and in a variety of other productions. In this country she has acted only twice, appearing as Masha with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "The Sea Gull," and playing Mary of Magdala in "Family Portrait."

Other important collaborators in the "Macbeth" production, apart from Miss Webster and the stars, are Samuel Leve, the designer of Orson Welles' "Julius Caesar," who created the settings; Lemuel Ayers, the costume designer, and Lehman Engel, who composed the new incidental music.

The principal members of the supporting cast are Herbert Rudley, Staats Cotsworth, Harry Irvine, Viola Keats, Henry Brandon, Ada McFarland, Ralph Clanton, Abby Lewis, Philip Huston, Richard Tyler, Alex Courtenay, John Ireland, John Parrish, and John McQuade.

Report Miss Cornell to Appear in Bolton Play

Whenever Katharine Cornell is without a play, rumors start to fly around. One persistent rumor holds that she will appear next season in a new play by Guy Bolton which would be staged coöperatively by Miss Cornell, her husband, Guthrie McClintic, and John Golden, who owns the rights to the play. Miss Cornell toured briefly during the winter in Henri Bernstein's "Rose Burke," but the play was not a success.

Newspaper Men Best Dramatists, Says Actor

It is pleasant to learn that Dennis King, of "Blithe Spirit," thinks that newspaper men make good dramatists. "Newspaper people learn to condense a story into a series of dramatic effects, and this is the essence of any play," he explains. In proof of his assertion he cites the names of such former newspaper men as George S. Kaufman, Maxwell Anderson, Robert E. Sherwood, Charles MacArthur, Ben Hecht, and Jack Kirkland.

SINGS AT VODVIL LOUNGE

The happy songs of Dorothy Davis are among the reasons that the popular instrumental ensemble, the New Yorkers, is making such a hit in its return engagement at Helsing's Vodvil lounge.

Guthrie McClintic Takes Option on Batson Play

Guthrie McClintic, the producer, has taken an option on George Batson's play, "Treat Her Gently." Jane Cowl is interested in playing the lead. The play was written by a former automat bus boy, and was tried out briefly by Ruth Chatterton on tour in the spring of 1941. The world première took place in Amarillo, Tex. Miss Chatterton reports that the citizens of Amarillo stayed away in large numbers, because they saw no possible reason why Amarillo should have been chosen as the locale of a world première of any good play; since such a thing had never happened before, they were suspicious of the merits of the Batson opus.

"It Happens on Ice," the ice show at the Center theater in New York, established a record of 650 performances before closing and yielding the theater to Fortune Gallo's San Carlo Opera company.

Vaudeville

Wayne King.

Wayne King, the "waltz king," and his orchestra are headlined in the Chicago theater's stage show this week. The program of the orchestra will be supplemented by Ross Wyse Jr. and June Mann, comedians; Chris Cross, ventriloquist, and the three Tanner sisters, singers. On the screen Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland are starred in "The Lady Has Plans." Beginning on Friday the Chicago will offer a double headline bill of Gene Krupa's band and Connee Boswell.

At the Oriental theater the patrons are currently being baffled by Rajah Raboid, "supermaster of the supernatural, seer without peer, and grand wizard of blindfold wizardry." Also featured is Maj. Bowes' "1942 All-Star Revue," as well as Will and Gladys Ahern, Rae and Rudells, and other performers. The picture is "Call Out the Marines."

'Corn Is Green' to Resume Road Tour After Summer Rest

When "The Corn Is Green" terminates its spring road tour on May 30, Thelma Schnee will sever her connection with the cast. The Emlyn Williams play will set out upon a further tour, however, on Sept. 14, with Ethel Barrymore still starred and most of the original cast, which Chicago saw, intact. The booking schedule is now filled thru June 1, 1943.

"Watch on the Rhine," Herman Shumlin's other stellar touring production, will end its spring peregrinations after the Chicago engagement. Like "The Corn Is Green," it also will tour again in the fall, with bookings already arranged thru March 13, 1943. While the two companies are taking well earned summer vacations, Mr. Shumlin will spend the warm months on the Pacific coast in the service of Warner Brothers.

Witch Roles of 'Macbeth' Long Popular

The witches in "Macbeth" are not only the strangest, most bizarre characters known to the stage, but they are often the most vivid creations that the reading of the Shakespearean plays in school leaves in the memory of the adult.

So popular were they with audiences as far back as the reign of Charles II. that Sir William Davenant contrived elaboration of their scenes, gave them additional songs, put them in flying machines and whooped them up all round, so that the inveterate playgoer, Pepys, wrote in his diary, "Tho I have seen it ['Macbeth'] often, yet it is one of the best plays for a stage and for variety of dancing and music that ever I saw."

• • •

The return to the stage in the production of the great play by the actor-manager, Maurice Evans, with Judith Anderson co-starring as Lady Macbeth, due at the Erlanger theater for two weeks beginning tomorrow has behind it a variegated history of changing fashions in public taste, as well as of the persistence of some sort of belief in witchcraft. The witch of Endor in the Bible indicates how ancient is the conception and reports today about agitation and violent action in stirred communities against persons alleged to have evil powers bring home why the witches of "Macbeth" are so readily accepted as no doubt real beings to the Scottish folk of the play. So terribly real were they to audiences of Shakespeare's day that King James in a book of his own authorship warned the public that witches are demons.

King James believed that the storm which had overtaken him on his bridal journey from Denmark to Scotland was begotten by the group whom he prosecuted and even, himself questioned. The report of this witch trial under the title of "News from Scotland" had become exciting popular reading and gave to Shakespeare some of his most realistic details, peculiar to his witches and appropriate to the drama which in several ways celebrates his patron, that same King James. The hanging of some score of witches almost a century later on this side of the ocean as an upshot of the witchcraft trials in Salem indicates something of the former universality of belief in them.

• • •

Yet strange to say, the irreverent theater soon found in the witches of "Macbeth" opportunities to exploit grotesque, uncanny beings of the nether world in a kind of stage Mardi gras. The play in revision by Sir William Davenant became half opera and half bloody melodrama and remained so until the memorable production of David Garrick in 1744, when the "rubbish" was cast out and the witches returned to their evil business tho still holding onto some of Davenant's "improvements" on the author.

With John Philip Kamble in 1794 on the expansiveness of the Drury Lane stage, the hags became spirits of the four elements with serpents curling about them. But in the scores of productions of "Macbeth" since then was more and more reflected the awakened demand for the witch scenes just as Shakespeare wrote them and for the aids of technical inventions in achieving effects of supernatural awesomeness wholly in the spirit of the play.

To the modern audience, these beings who play so large a part in initiating the dramatic action are simply the poet's enbodiment of the mystery of that evil which is sometimes seen possessing the souls of men.

Amateur Organizations Hold Center of Musical Stage

Paulist Choir to Sing Annual Concert Today

By Cecil Smith.

Father Eugene O'Malley.
[De Gueldre Photo.]

With the professional music season almost over, two local amateur organizations of prestige and renown occupy an important place in the week's music. This afternoon in Orchestra hall the Paulist choristers, under the direction of Father Eugene O'Malley, will sing their annual spring concert program for an audience which is almost sure to be of capacity size. Later in the week, on Wednesday, in the same hall, the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, with Frederick Stock as guest conductor and Agnes Conover as piano soloist, will play its closing concert of the season.

For 38 years the Paulist choir has been one of the history making musical institutions of the city. The distinguished group of boys and men was first brought together in 1904 by Father Finn. Under his direction the choir grew and prospered for 14 years, providing the liturgical music for St. Mary's church, its permanent home, and making a local and national name for itself in supplementary concert engagements.

• • •

Placing strong emphasis upon the proper and authentic interpretation of 16th century polyphonic church music, the Paulist choristers soon began to receive many awards of merit for their superior singing. In 1912 the organization made a highly successful European tour, in the course of which Pope Pius X. granted a private audience. Six years later, with the United States at war, the choir made a memorable tour of this country and Canada, singing 238 concerts in 113 cities for the benefit of French war relief. During this period many concerts also were given for soldiers and sailors in the training camps.

One of the early members of Father Finn's choir was Eugene O'Malley, who was led by Father Finn's influence to decide to devote his life to religion and music. When Father Finn moved to New York in 1918 to establish the Paulist choristers there, Father O'Malley, then only 16 years old, made a remarkable name for himself as Father Finn's assistant, and as organist and choirmaster of a large New York church.

• • •

A decade of intensive study followed in which Father O'Malley acquainted himself thoroly with choral literature and methods, first in this country and later in Europe. Upon his return in 1928 he was appointed director of the Paulist choristers of Chicago, a post he has filled with increasing renown ever since that time.

Following a well established pattern, the Paulist choristers will divide this afternoon's program between religious choral works, ancient and modern, and a variety of secular works. The concert will open with a group of polyphonic motets by Byrd, Palestrina, and Vittoria, followed by contemporaneous madrigals by Gibbons, Morley, and Di Lasso. In addition to religious works by Bach, Rachmaninoff, and Gretchaninoff, the choir will present a new motet by Leo Sowerby, "Tu es vas electionis," written for the Paulist choristers. Robert Kalal, boy soprano, and Robert Fitzgerald, tenor, will make their debuts. Other soloists will be William Brown, soprano; John Lynch, countertenor; Carl Honzak, baritone, and Walter Curran, tenor.

• • •

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra, that group of capable and enthusiastic amateur instrumentalists who gather together once a week for the sheer joy of playing symphonic music, have set themselves a challenging test in Wednesday's program, for the symphony will be Sibelius' first. This work is not easy to play or interpret, but Dr. Stock has an infinitely compelling way with amateur performers, and he can be counted upon to bring the playing to a high point of polish and communicativeness.

Miss Conover's solo vehicle will be the poetic fourth piano concerto of Beethoven. The other purely orchestral works listed are Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla" and Sibelius' tone poem, "Finlandia."

Frances Allis and her dance group will present a program at the Goodman theater this afternoon. In preparation for the new work to be offered, "And So I Danced," Miss Allis has been experimenting in the field of the theater and seeking methods by which the dance may become more understandable without sacrificing the principle of abstract movement. The music for "And So I Danced" has been composed by Katherine Hart. A varied program will precede the new piece.

Theodore Charles Stone, baritone, has announced a recital for next Sunday afternoon in Curtiss hall.

Muriel Rahn, Boston born soprano who has received favorable notice in the east, will give a Chicago recital at the Studebaker theater next Sunday afternoon. She is a graduate of the conservatory of music of the University of Nebraska and has taught music in various Negro schools and colleges. Her Chicago program will include old Italian music, German lieder, and several American and English songs.

Paula Knight, soprano, and Arthur Eisler, pianist, will give a joint recital in Curtiss hall the evening of May 5 in the Young American Artists series.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra offers a new payment plan for season ticket subscribers for the season of 1942-'43. Only one-half of the subscription price is payable Sept. 15, the remainder Jan. 2. The full federal tax is payable on the earlier date.

Marjorie Maulsby, pianist, was the winner of the Society of American Musicians young artists contest held in Kimball hall on April 14, it was announced this week by Bertha Ott.

Giovanni Martinelli, who served as artistic director of the Chicago Opera company during the 1941 season, has been appointed coördinator of radio activities for the Cincinnati Summer opera. His first duty will be to select 12 semifinalists in the opera company's "aria auditions," a nation-wide contest for singers which the Cincinnati Summer Opera company is sponsoring and in which many regional radio stations are coöperating.

The Chicago Singverein, Theodore Lams, director, will climax its 32d season with a concert at the Germania club this afternoon. Freda Draper, contralto, will be the soloist. Excerpts from Brahms' "A German Requiem," the same composer's rhapsody for alto and male chorus, and the choral and finale from Wagner's "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg" are the program's most important items.

The Illinois WPA Symphony orchestra, Izler Solomon, conductor, will present its own talented first cellist, Jenska Slebos, as soloist at tomorrow night's concert in the Eighth Street theater. Miss Slebos will be heard in Boccherini's B-flat major concerto and in the cello obbligato of Ernest Bloch's "Voice in the Wilderness." The latter work has never been performed in Chicago. The program's other items will be Haydn's "Military" symphony, and excerpts from Mussorgsky's "Boris Godunoff." At this concert Solomon will make his last Chicago appearance for some time, as he has been engaged to conduct three May concerts in New York.

The Chicago Symphony orchestra, following a custom established at the very beginning of the century, will journey to Mount Vernon, Ia., next week-end for the Cornell college May music festival. The principal events are to be matinée and evening concerts on Saturday, with the Cornell college choir joining the orchestra at the afternoon session for a performance of excerpts from the Bach B minor mass. Frederick Stock will conduct the instrumental parts of the matinée concert and the entire evening concert. Hans Lange will be in charge of the section of the afternoon concert devoted to the mass. Mr. Lange will also conduct the "Little symphony," a group of 16 musicians drawn from the big orchestra, in an extra concert Friday evening.

Fern Hammers, a Chicago contralto who has had extensive experience as a church soloist, will give a recital in Kimball hall this afternoon. Her program is an interesting one. An Italian group is followed by songs by Wolf, Dvorak, and Brahms, and these by the aria, "Amour, viens aider," from Saint-Saëns' "Samson and Delilah." A group of three songs in French and five in English make up the program's second half.

A concert of contemporary music will be given at the first Unitarian church, 1174 East 57th street, Tuesday evening by Gilman Chase, organist, and by the church choir [which he directs]. The program consists of Paul Hindemith's first and second sonatas for organ, Gustav Holst's "To the Unknown God," the first movement of Leo Sowerby's symphony in G, and two liturgical motets by Healey Willan.

The free midday "Victory" concert to be given in Fullerton hall of the Art institute next Wednesday by the Illinois WPA Symphonic ensemble will be conducted by Leo Kopp. The program consists of the andante from Bach's A minor violin sonata [arranged by Frederick Stock]; the third movement of Brahms' C minor string quartet; Grainger's Irish Tune from County Derry; Johann Strauss' Pizzicato Polka; "Burnt Rock Pool," from the Sowerby suite, "From the Northland," and d'Indy's Serenade and Waltz.

Will Benes, violinist, has already released the program for the recital which he will give in Kimball hall on May 9. It consists of a Vitali chaconne, the Wieniawski D minor concerto, and pieces by Kreisler, Elgar, Brahms, Shostakovich, Szymanowski, and Wieniawski.

The Chicago Sunday Evening club will present the Elmhurst Woman's chorus, Helen Leefelt, director, as well as its own 125 voice choir under Edgar Nelson at tonight's Orchestra hall meeting. The Elmhurst group will appear at the early [7 o'clock] service, the club choir at the main meeting [8 o'clock].

The New First Congregational church will celebrate the 15th anniversary of the dedication of its mammoth organ with a special concert at 6 o'clock tonight. William Lester is organist of the church.

The Lutheran Oratorio Society of Chicago, Robert Reuter, conductor, announces a performance of Handel's "Jufas Maccabaeus" for the Goodman theater next Sunday afternoon.

The Arts club's annual professional members concert will be given next Friday afternoon. Among the performers will be Sonia Sharnova, contralto; Daniel Ericourt, pianist, and the Russian trio [Nina Mesirow Minchin, pianist; Michael Wilkomirski, violinist, and Ennio Bolognini, cellist]. A song by Hazel Felman, Chicago composer, will receive its first public performance at this concert.

The Oak Park-River Forest Symphony orchestra, Gladys Welge, conductor, will play the final concert of its 10th anniversary season at the Oak Park club Tuesday evening. The soloist will be Ennio Bolognini, cellist.

500 Children Will Sing in Civic Festival

are the work of Marx E. Oberndorfer, conductor of the chorus [who rigidly excludes the fussy and the onate as out of place in accompaniments designed to support children's voices] and they are played by the expert Civic orchestra.

The orchestra plays alone, also, thus giving the program a pleasing variety. This year it will be heard in the minuet and rondo from Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" and in an excerpt from Schubert's ballet music for "Rosamunde."

Mr. Oberndorfer will conduct the songs, Hans Lange the instrumental items.

Altho the public is never reminded of this festival until well into the spring, the work of preparation for it goes on for months before. During all this time the Civic Music association is sending out its teachers to playground centers, orphanages, and settlements to train small groups of children in community singing. Many of these children have no other means of acquiring the rudiments of a musical education.

As the date of the festival draws near as many are selected for the big chorus as the stage of Orchestra hall will hold. The 500 who are to sing next Sunday were picked from the 1,000 who have been receiving regular training.

• • •

This work of the Civic Music association among the city's children has been going on since 1913. The good it has done is incalculable, and not all of this good has been of a purely musical kind. In a city like Chicago, where great colonies of the foreign born live side by side with little contact with one another, the value of an enterprise which brings the children of these groups together and teaches them to know and understand and like one another can hardly be overestimated.

It is hardly too much to claim that in the work of the Civic Music association one can actually see, or hear, the melting pot bubbling away. Children whose forbears came from Europe, Asia, and Africa, meet one another and learn to work harmoniously together under very favorable circumstances. Everyone knows what a softening, mellowing effect music possesses—and in the case of music made in common this effect is strengthened a hundredfold.

• • •

Mr. Oberndorfer has himself given out a statement as to the Americanizing value of the association's work. "Its effect on democratic understanding is amazing," he says. "We try to include music of the motley of nations these children represent. And the Americanizing that is done thru song is unbounded. The children go home singing the favorite songs of their parents' homeland—but in English. Many a foreign born father or mother has been stimulated to learn English from this beginning."

The admirable work of the Civic Music association is made possible by the generosity of a number of public spirited citizens who believe that both the musical and the general value of the project are such as to justify the most enthusiastic support. The revenue from the sale of tickets for the annual festival is also important to the association, but these tickets are priced so low that even if Orchestra hall should be sold out the sum realized would be a moderate one.

The Civic Music association is officered by some of Chicago's most distinguished citizens. Henry B. Vanzwoll and Frederick Stock are president and honarary president, respectively. The first and second vice presidents, respectively, are G. T. Hellmuth and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham. Priscilla Carver is secretary and Edwin S. Fetcher treasurer. Mr. Oberndorfer is musical director and Werra Schuette executive secretary.

CLASSICAL RECORDINGS

Those who have put off making acquaintance with the works of Sibelius because of the reputation for extreme austerity which the Finnish composer enjoys in some circles might do well to acquire the new recording of the first symphony which the Philadelphia orchestra, under Eugene Ormandy's direction, has just made for Victor.

The symphony's numerous and often evocative melodies are put forth with a beauty of tone which, while it does not become lush, certainly gives the work a great and immediate appeal. Moreover, a man with Ormandy's gift for good showmanship knows how to make the most of the symphony's opportunities for impassioned or majestic delivery and for arresting turns of phrase. Even a person who has had no previous experience with Sibelius will have little difficulty getting to the bottom of this first symphony.

The new recording is not without appeal even to those to whom Sibelius is an old and familiar story. Blasé concertgoers and record collectors have forgotten that when the first symphony was produced [at the end of the 19th century] Sibelius was regarded as a bold and original new voice. This vivid performance by Ormandy and the Philadelphians will serve as a reminder.

Survey Reveals No Immediate Teacher Dearth

By the Rev. John Evans.

A survey of teachers' colleges, universities, and offices of superintendents of public schools discloses that what has been described as a serious teacher shortage thruout the country is at least thus far more scare than fact. War industries, it was stated, have cut into certain specialties such as industrial arts, but in the main the outlook is reported at least fair.

Prof. William S. Gray, professor of education at the University of Chicago, explained that a shortage exists but that it is by no means critical. In his view, such shortage as exists is mainly among younger men who either have been drafted or have obtained jobs in industry at higher wages than teachers receive. In the social sciences, humanities, and elementary education, Prof. Gray said, there is no shortage.

• • •

At the office of the Illinois superintendent of public instruction in Springfield, Assistant State Superintendent C. H. Engle, expressed little immediate concern over the situation. He, said that when the shortage seemed imminent, the department simply had "locked the door before the horse was stolen." By this he meant that in coöperation with state normal schools, a drive was instituted to increase the state's teacher reserve.

"The principal method used in the drive was the urging of teachers who have let their certification drop because of marriage or other reasons to renew and bring them up to date," Engle explained. "Refresher courses were offered at normal schools designed to reinstate teachers."

Engle pointed to the specialty fields, such as vocational arts and teachers of commerce as being the only real trouble spots, altho he said he could not forsee what coming months might do to the entire state system.

• • •

Edna Dean Baker, of the National College of Education, Evanston, pointed to placement records in that school as a possible evidence of impending shortage altho she was not certain.

"From the point of view of appointment of teachers," Miss Baker stated, "our records show that on April 21, 1942, we are approximately 35 per cent ahead of April 30, 1941 in the number of June graduates who have secured positions. Whether this indicates a fear of shortage or is due to some other cause, we do not know."

Noble J. Puffer, Cook county superintendent, said that there is no present shortage of rural teachers, and that only a few industrial and vocational teachers have left the field.

"The most important item is that rural school teachers be placed on tire rationing priorities so that they can drive to schools where boarding accommodations are not available," Puffer said. "Tire shortage rather than teacher shortage is the real rural teacher problem."

• • •

Education For Victory, published by the United States office of education, Washington, D. C., anounced a survey of the country which disclosed a shortage of 491 elementary school teachers and 455 high school teachers in 355 systems of the country reporting shortages. Three thousand, two hundred and forty-seven school systems were queried.

Reports from 264 superintendents on methods of meeting shortages showed six principal procedures: Reinstatment of married teachers, using substitute or less experienced teachers, lowering of standards for teacher employment, increasing the teaching load on the teachers, increase of salaries to retain teachers in competition with defense work and discontinuance of certain courses.

Here's Film to Remind You of Flagg, Quirt

"TWO YANKS IN TRINIDAD"

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Well, if this one doesn't send your thoughts winging back to the days of Capt. Flagg and Sergt. Quirt ["What Price Glory"] I'll be surprised. For Pat O'Brien and Brian Donlevy make the same sort of raucous team as were Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe.

Tim Reardon and Vince Barrows are fellow racketeers as the picture opens and Vince is about to give Tim a birthday party—because he thinks he loves Tim like Damon loved Pythias. . . . Not knowing much about D. and P.—excepting by rumor—he invades the public library to read up on their friendship in order that he may refer to it smartly in his speech of congratulation. . . . [Police learning that he's in the institution, rally round, for where Barrows ventures there also is usually trouble. . . . However, this time all's on the up and up.]

• • •

The party is finally ready—speech, dinner, gang, and gift of auto with bulletproof glass. . . . THEN——

Out of the blue, Vince gets the notion [as how film shall depict] that Tim has been making a monkey of him. . . .

And NOW when Tim appears at his surprise party—it's that indeed. He's greeted by ominous silence and black, racketeering looks. . . . Chaos ensues. . . .

Tim joins the army to get rid of Vince. . . . Vince joins to get even. . . . The two land in Trinidad, where they carry on their private war until —PEARL HARBOR!—and the declaration of war by the United States. . . .

Then—HOW the boys come thru—together—for Uncle Sam!

• • •

This is rough and tumble slapstick, ridiculous both as to some of its army angles and other situations. . . . but it's fun in its screwy fashion and well acted. . . .

Tho there are two pretty girls in the cast the piece has no moonlight and roses sequences. For the ladies both impersonate femmes who are as hard and sharp as new brass tacks.

See you tomorrow.

Serlin Turns Down Film Bids for "Father" Rights

The movies have not yet been able to persuade Oscar Serlin to sell the screen rights of "Life with Father." M-G-M. has made an offer of $350,000, it is said, and Mary Pickford is reported to have gone above that figure with an offer of a cool half million. Not that Miss Pickford would appear in the picture, but she would like to produce it. Mr. Serlin keeps saying, meanwhile, that the film rights will not be available until the stage version of "Life with Father" has visited every possible city, town, and hamlet in the country.

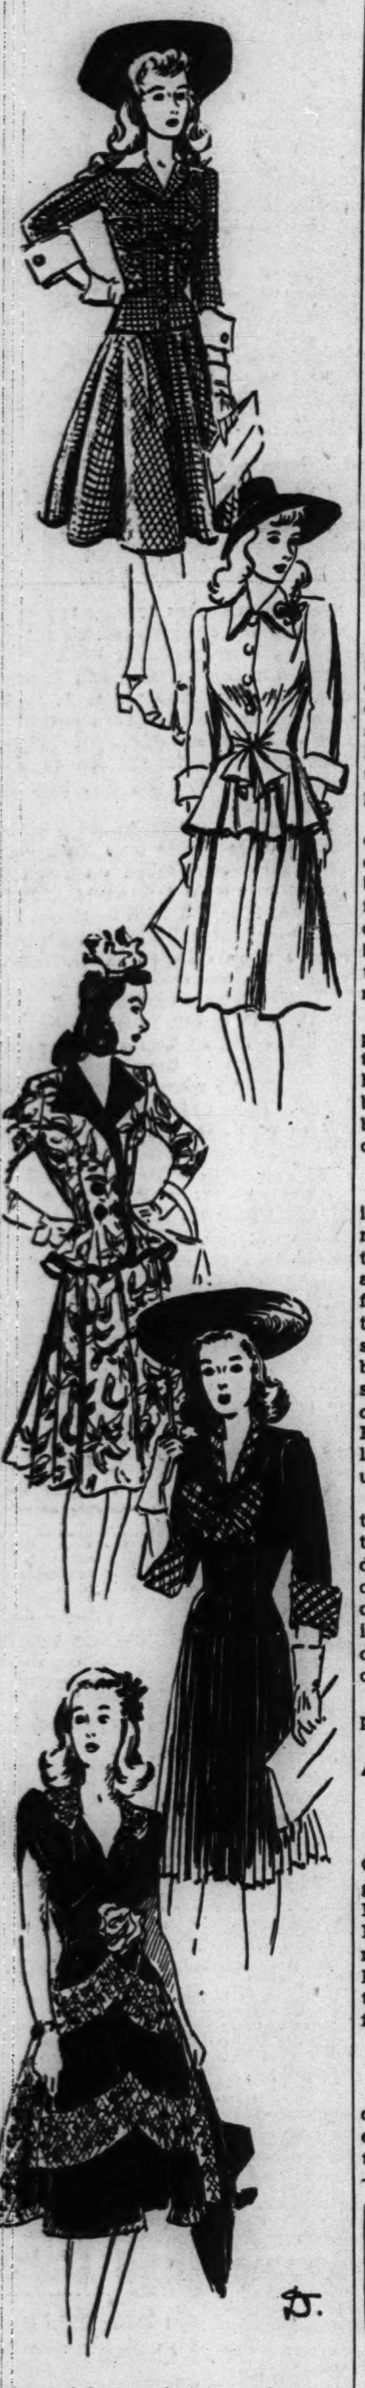
Fashions

By Angela

For the days and weeks between now and June we need some new clothes to help alleviate the enervating influences of "spring fever." We should look for something "in between" to match the season when unpredictable changes in temperature may be expected. Something light weight, maybe sheer, for comfort on the warm days; yet something of a suitable body and color to look well dressed and fashionable.



Sketched at top is a crisp young taffeta. You might call it a suit-dress. It resembles a suit, altho it actually is a two piece dress. It is a black and white check, with white pique cuffs and collar. The skirt is circular, falling into wide, billowing folds. Under $8.

The material of the second suit-dress is a new achievement for the synthetic fabric designers. It is a loose weave, a nubby texture, with a frosty look about it. Streamers on the blouse tie snugly in front, accentuating the rippling peplum. Comes in a soft blue, aqua, or rose.

The printed two piece dress is available in color combinations such as blue with brown print, red with Kelly, or gray with red. Grosgrain ribbon trims the revers and continues down to outline the front closing and edge the rippling skirt of the blouse.

A good, practical sheer is illustrated fourth. It is navy blue. A big bow and wide cuffs of taffeta in a subdued red, white, and blue check take it out of the ordinary class.

The short-skirted dinner dress, or dancing dress, is a very important fashion this season. It is the outgrowth of the fashionable woman's need, during wartime, for something dressy and feminine, and still casual and informal. This is a black sheer. There is an overskirt of black lace which permits the pink and black stripes under it to glimmer thru. Under $13.

Manufacturers Working Out Special Details

By Edith Weigle.

Highlights of the midseason home furnishings markets which open tomorrow at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart and continue to May 2 will be the special displays made by manufacturers who are working out solutions of defense housing problems.

At the Merchandise Mart 80 or more sketches submitted in the recent national competition of professional interior decorators for suggestions on defense housing interiors, using present available merchandise, will be shown. Included will be data and proposed plans on small scale furnishings, layouts, and basic house plans, and a group of 8 or 10 architectural models of defense homes.

Samples, designs, drawings, blue prints, and photographs will be on view, also, at the American Furniture Mart. These will deal with war and defense projects—housing, camp equipment, blackout material, etc. A number of government agencies will be represented at the market.

• • •

In the field of floor coverings both marts will show manufacturers' use of rayon in rug weaving. Rugs made entirely of this material are now done so cleverly that the observer can hardly tell them from woolen products. Two or more colors are employed in the designs.

Unit furniture items—upholstered chairs that push together to make couch or love seat; chests that may be used in pairs or in threes and fours, or that may be combined with open shelves or cabinets of the same height—continue in popularity, as they readily adapt themselves to so many sizes and kinds of rooms.

In the drapery fabric lines emphasis will be on cotton. Rough textures will take the place formerly held by silks. And new finishes and bleaches have been developed for both furniture and fabrics, conserving chemicals.

• • •

The trend toward built-in furnishing units will be noticeable at this market. A firm known for its distinctive modern pieces is bringing out a number of these units finished like furniture rather than like interior trim and designed to economize on space. Of walnut with a choice of bases, drawer pulls, trims and finishes some are designed for the bedroom, others for living and dining rooms. Built-in closets will be seen in this line and will be so made as to be used on any wall space.

The photograph today shows one of the displays of more costly furniture that will be on view at the Merchandise Mart. The Queen Anne wing chair copies an English antique. The cushion has 80 or more small springs instead of the customary 8 or 10 large ones in its construction. They are covered by layers of hair and cotton. The upholstery is a woven cotton print. The legs are walnut.

Sunday, April 26.

Morning favors making plans for immediate future; whole day calls for control of feelings—don't imagine yourself too innocent. Week ahead—less brutal than the week just passed; but study grand perspective of your general position.

Forward—Look!

There will always be differences of opinion and the need of reconciling them. There will always be periods when mankind must adjust to new conditions. In the past these times have almost invariably produced war, due to the peculiar habits of man—the habits that make most men prefer to die rather than look ahead and set up proper safeguards against the periodic settlements that are ever needed.

Lady of the House

The Little Roads.

They seemed a bit reluctant to smile this spring—those little roads—as if with all the grim business the world has, they could not quite give themselves to beauty.

I wondered if the birds would feel it worth their while to trill their old sweet songs when otherwhere there was only the wild and terrifying din of war. I wondered if the skies remained so darkly gray because other skies were black with sinister shadows. I wondered if the flowers stayed away because along so many little roads there was only the hideous débris of wanton destruction. I wondered if indeed God could find time to make a spring at all.

But then, one cold and windy dawn, a robin voiced his cheery greeting to the day in major key, and the maple bough whereon he swung flung out its own red badge of courage to match his scarlet breast. The beneficent sun unlocked the icebound brook and drew a heartening fragrance from the softening earth beneath my feet. Bright splashes of green rimmed tiny pools and bits of color dotted sunny banks. I found a little windblown flower as I had in other springs and, as clean air swept about me, I knew that, tho men still hate and slaughter and destroy, God will always make a spring to give us hope and promise.

To My Boys in the Service.

It seems but yesterday the school bell rang
And I called you in from play—
From baseball game or "mibs,"
From football scrimmage or from snowball fray.

For each of you I held a shining hope—
A dream that future days
Would find you great and good.
[A prayer alike to those a mother prays.]

But then 'twas yesterday the bugle blew,
And called you forth to fight,
To sacrifice and pain—
Perhaps long years of battle for the Right.

For each of you I hold this golden thought—
That God your fortress stands,
Your refuge is and strength;
That you are safe, secure within His hands.

'Twas yesterday the school bell rang
And called you in from play;
Just boys with laughing eyes—
The boys who are the heroes of today.

For each of you I'll breathe this daily prayer—
In air, on land or foam,
[Where'er you be, my boys],
"Dear God, I pray Thee, bring them safely home."
—Dorene Tanner Oehler.

"I was greatly moved a short time ago on reading a list of the boys from this community in the service of our country," writes Mrs. Delmar Oehler, former teacher at Wilmington, Ill., "to find that over 50 per cent of them had been 'my boys.' School teachers are more sympathetic and sentimental than most people think."

April.

Thirty days are April's portion,
Thirty days of spring;
Thirty days of preparation,
Hope in everything.

Hope in growing vegetation,
Hope for oats and hay,
Hope that every budding flower
Blossoms forth in May.

Blossoms promise great fulfillment,
Blossoms pledge success;
Blossoms bring to tree and garden
Outdoor loveliness.
—Harold J. Wilson.

The Copper Bowl.

A burnished bowl of copper
Upon my table stands—
Highlights playing on its surface,
Petaled fragrance in its hands.

Life is strong, life is sturdy,
Like the copper's gleaming bowl;
And we, too, may hold its blossoms,
Hold them gently in our soul.
—Lydia Fisher.

The Man Behind the Plow.

All honor to the plowman
Who works from sun sto sun!
He feeds the U. S. soldier,
The man behind the gun.
—Margaret Ahern Moore.

Aunt Ella's Almanac for Ladies.

28. Tues.—Napoleon exiled to Elba, but he came back. Wind and weather changeable.

New Wedding Costumes Match Uniforms for Splendor

War Era Gowns Are Beautiful and Romantic

By Rea Seeger.

Weddings in wartime are even more romantic and more exciting than in time of peace. If ever a wedding compares to a pageant it is now, when uniforms, shining gold buttons, gold braid, swords, and the rest of the military or nautical pomp and glory combines with yards of ethereal tulle net, clouds of drifting chiffon, lace, and gowns of stately satins and clinging crêpes to make weddings rival anything in the films.

Trousseau hunting this spring has been reduced to the minimum, because of unknown future plans. Only necessities are wanted, but because of this the selection of the wedding gown becomes even more important. All the romance of the occasion is spotlighted in the gown for the bride and the dresses for the bridesmaids. They must be the proper foil for all the uniforms. That takes some shopping. This spring, the collections are especially tempting. There are wedding gowns expressly designed for the time of day, for weddings that are planned for a sudden leave, for weddings for home, garden, church, and the gay hurried weddings with a rush to the city hall because of skimpily measured hours of leave for the soldier or sailor bridegroom.

• • •

You will find wedding gowns of great beauty ready to be packed away after the ceremony, with the veil, for future generations of brides. Incidentally, you'll find this spring the last of the lace bridal veils, museum pieces, many of them, and unquestionably the last of the lovely things until peace comes again. You will find crisp cotton wedding gowns, made of sheer organdies, embroidered sheers, dimities, cotton lace, and swiss that look like twice the sums marked on the tags.

Traditional gowns of shimmering satin, faille, brocade, silks that rustle and some that are stiff enough to stand alone are particularly tempting, because of the patrician elegance of the fabrics and the unadorned simplicity, the better to dramatize the material and the silhouette. Also of exceptional beauty and glamor are the gowns of jersey, fluidly graceful as the draperies of a Tanagra figurine, and the filmy models of dozens of yards of chiffon that drift dreamily with each step. Every gown in any of the showings assures a picture book bride!

• • •

White and ivory still are first favorites, but many subtle tints of ice blue, shell pink, and deep cream are available for the brides to be asking for something a little bit different. Satin in a luscious pale shade of ice blue, crêpe with just a suggestion of blush rose, old ivory satin or crêpe, with the tints just a film of color, make some eye filling models of breath taking beauty.

Veils are especially designed and cut to compliment the bride and the gown. So are the headdresses, gloves, slippers, and lingerie. Nearly every store and shop in Chicago boasts a bridal bureau staffed with experts of long experience. Every problem of the particular bride and wedding can be solved and answered in these sentimental spots.

Five new wedding gowns are illustrated, all sketched in one shop and from one collection. Others with the same charm and beauty, with varying prices, are star attractions during these next few weeks. For information call Superior 0200.

Leftover Lamb and Potatoes Go Clever

On The House

By Louise Bargelt

If you are rummaging in the attic these days for derelicts you can bring back to usefulness, if you want to bleach your woodwork or any piece of wood, there's a product on the market which will bleach floors and woodwork darkened with age, and give your occasional pieces the color of "blond" wood. . . . For use indeed in all refinishing work where a lighter shade is desired. . . . A few dollars spent for this bleach, 00 sandpaper, painters' steel wool, and clear lacquer, plus some effort, and you have the means of modernizing old furniture, woodwork, and floors.

* *

When you go shopping for special paints this spring it is well to keep them in mind by their special types since there are paints manufactured by different firms for every purpose, in and around a house. . . . We've prepared a list of different types of paints—materials which will protect the dangerous spots that weather can attack and which will freshen and beautify many a surface.

When drains are sluggish and slow there are commercial preparations for clearing them up, as well as rubber suction cups to loosen grease and also handy "plumbers' snakes." . . . These "snakes" are useful if pipes persist in clogging even after a suction cup has been used or the trap drained.

A . . . Clinging crepe in dull white makes simple gown with sweeping train. Fitted basque top is effectively accented by narrow bands of appliqued crepe braid. • B . . . Traditional wedding gown of gleaming white satin, fashioned with dramatic sweep of train. Wide, loose sleeves are new. So is deep square neckline and beaded band trim. • C . . . One of loveliest of lace wedding gowns features long puffed sleeves copied from mauve decade gowns. Transparent yoke of fine net is contrast to lace of bodice top. • D . . . Ruffles and more ruffles, yards of fine lace insertion combine in picture book wedding dress for petite and slender bride. Material is fine, smooth organdy with lace banding. • E . . . One of finds of the season in both modest price and romantic beauty, a gown made of dozens of yards of fine, smooth chiffon.

Household Forum

by LOUISE BARGELT

[Have you some household help that lightens labor, is there some comfort you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. Fred T., Chicago—I fold my linens differently from time to time; instead of always folding sheets in the center I alternate by folding in thirds. And I press iron lightly so creases aren't too sharp. I do the same with table cloths, pillow cases, etc., and feel this preserves them and lengthens their life.

Katharine M., Racine, Wis.—My husband bolted the comb from an old safety razor to the edge of our scrubbing pail and it is a convenience when I want to shred bar soap so it will dissolve easily in water. It is always handy and does the work.

Emma G., Chicago—I have often thought, while wheeling my babies about in the summer time, that it would be a good idea if designers would specify some sort of insulation for the buggy's hoods, as protection against the hot sun.

Mrs. Betty F., Detroit, Mich.—When rummaging in the attic for old things there might be need for, I cam across several old fashioned wooden mixing bowls. I applied a good quality quick drying varnish in a thin coat to outside and inside of pieces and then used a few decals to outside [not inside] of dishes. Now I have some good looking salad bowls for use.

Sadie Anderson, Chicago—It seemed to my husband that he should be able to do something for those chain-pull switches in a couple of our rooms, that certainly worked hard. So he slit a fuller ball and slipped it over the chain next to the socket. By this arrangement the chain pulled out horizontally and now works easily.

Babies Need Love in Order to Be Happy

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It is odd that this letter should have come in my mail just at a time when I was planning an article on very much this subject.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans:

"Your recent article headlined 'Small Child Can Learn Lots of Things at Home' interested me tremendously. Why, I could even recall some of the dear familiar things you mentioned as taking place in my home when I was a tot, perhaps a little over 4 years of age. But my childhood was sadly broken up when my mother died, and I was placed in an orphanage at the age of 5. I am 30 now and can still remember almost pining away for my mother. In the orphanage my bodily needs were supplied, I must admit, and more abundantly than my own parents could have afforded, as we were terribly poor, in money that is. But there was a richness in something my own mother supplied that in all my years at the orphanage I never could feel.

"And even as a young woman, when I had completed my education and was on my own, I still felt, and do yet, that I was on the outside looking in, if you can understand what I mean. Boys and girls I came in contact with, reared at home, did not seem to have this deep rooted feeling of loneliness.

• • •

"Love and genuine affection are terribly important factors in the infant's and young child's life. Isn't that true, Mrs. Bevans? In fact, about the most important. Please do not misunderstand me. I do not mean coddling or spoiling. I mean imparting the feeling that the little one is wanted, loved, and has a definite place in the household.

"I had occasion to visit an orphanage last week together with some friends, and we were in the toddler's cottage. It so happened that the children were being bathed, and I could not help feeling a little sad, knowing what a pleasant thing bathing can be to a child, how the children were so mechanically and hurriedly rushed thru their baths. Everything was such routine, and the children were so small. Soon they had their supper. Grace was said, and they dutifully ate what was given to them. The food was good, the place clean and airy, a schedule was followed out, and yet I knew that something so important in a baby's life was not there. Do all children miss love and affection, Mrs. Bevans, or 'can't I take it,' as the slang expression goes?

• • •

"I remarked to the woman who was with me that, while their physical wants were supplied, individual love was so lacking. She replied that they were much better off there than the very poor homes which they no doubt came from, where perhaps creature comforts were lacking. Is she right? Could you write an article on child rearing in an institution versus the home? I should so much like to have your opinion on the subject.

"Do children of 2, 3, and 4 need more love than older ones? These youngsters could not talk well enough to state such things, of course, but I sensed something vital lacking, and it showed in their personality and their faces. I am married and hope to have a baby of my very own some day and do so much want to do the right thing by it, but do not want unduly to pamper it because of the love that was denied me in my childhood."

It seemed to me that the young woman who wrote so sensitively and understandingly needed reassurance so that she would have a sense of conviction about the importance of love in a child's life. I understand her misgivings, thinking that she may be placing too much emphasis on something because she did not have it.

• • •

But that is not the case here. So I wrote to her in reply:

"You are, indeed, right in everything you said about the need of babies and little children for the love and companionship of their parents. No amount of perfect physical care, food, cleanliness, and medical attention, can take the place of affection. The friend with whom you visited the orphan asylum was entirely wrong in her comment. It is not true that children are better off in up to date asylums than they are in poor homes, provided those poor homes furnish them with love and understanding. She is wrong even to this degree, that in the asylums for babies the percentage of infant mortality always was unreasonably high, and it was found by science [not sentimentality] that the babies really could not thrive without love.

Even poor fosterhomes were better for them, with their warm home atmosphere and family life. This boarding out care is replacing asylum care as much as possible, but where the babies do have to be in 'homes' the nurses are instructed to pet and play with the babies and little children and give them as much personal, individual attention as they can.

• • •

"I am writing you thus fully because I want you to know now, and when you have your own baby, how very right you are in everything you said in your letter. You did, indeed, sense something lacking in the lives of the little children in that orphan asylum."

One question in the letter I did not answer, and that was "Do children of 2, 3, and 4 need more love than older ones?" It is hardly possible to answer that, as it is a rather complex subject. But this I can say: That the early years are very tender years, when a baby is just getting started in life, and needs every possible help to thrive and be happy. A mother has to give what is, in a way, almost constant physical care to her baby or very small child, but that is not all there is to it. For, if she is a real mother, love and playfulness and interest, little stories and observations of the changes in her small one, and responsiveness and the answering of questions, all become intertwined with the physical acts of bathing and dressing and eating, and putting her child to bed.

No, to love our children deeply and let them sense it is not coddling or pampering them.

How may a child be taught obedience? Should children be permitted freedom of the house? You will find answers to these and other problems in Gladys Bevans' latest booklet, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents; postpaid, 18 cents.

The more our women take to uniforms, slacks, tailored shirts, efficient walking shoes, the more we find them flirting with ways and means of offsetting mannish characteristics of dress with fairly frivolous items, such as feathery haircuts, flower hair distractions, and giddy bits of jewelry. And so it should be. Beyond that, there is something else for self-appraisal. It's your voice. It may be dulcet-toned, for which "he" will love you; men are like that, you know. Let your words fall melodiously on their ears, and it won't matter so much whether you're blonde or brunette, thin or plump, snub nosed or Grecian.

Smart women spend as much time as they can on grooming hair, face, and silhouette. Why not grooming for the voice? "A harsh, rasping voice, slovenly pronunciation, and exaggerated accents can ruin the impression created by the best gown, the most stunning makeup or hair-do," says a voice teacher.

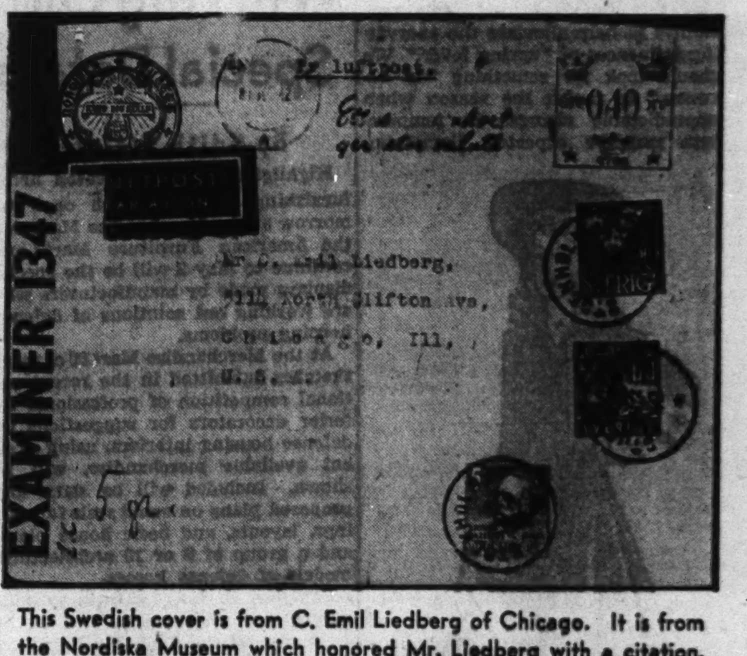
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps but not value. The column in this page contains offers to buy and sell. Includes a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.



This Swedish cover is from C. Emil Liedberg of Chicago. It is from the Nordiska Museum which honored Mr. Liedberg with a citation. The cover bears a new 60 ore stamp issued in connection with the 50th anniversary of Skansen.

Shortly after the outbreak of the Civil war the federal postal authorities prepared new issues of stamps and stamped envelopes to replace the current issue. This change was necessary since great quantities of each remained in southern postoffices. Thru the assistance of friends in the north, these could have been converted into money to the advantage of the south and the consequent loss to the Union. The preparation and substitution of a complete new issue of stamps and envelopes was a task which had never been required before and probably will never be required again. Ordinarily new issues are placed on sale at the various postoffices after the current stock has been used up. In this case the attempt was made to provide the new stamps and have them on sale thruout the country within about three months.

The envelopes made their appearance before the stamps and on Aug. 14, 1861, the new issue was the subject of editorial comment in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and on the same day there was an advertisment of the Chicago postoffice which instructed the public about exchanging old envelopes for new varieties. This advertisment informed the citizens of Chicago that the exchange would be made up to and including Aug. 19, and that the new issue would be used exclusively after that date. From these notices it would appear that Aug. 14, 1861, is the earliest dated Chicago postmark which may be found on an entire envelope of the new series and that Aug. 19, 1861, is the latest date which should appear upon an envelope of the previous issue used in Chicago.

On Aug. 21, 1861, the new series of adhesive stamps was placed on sale in Chicago, according to a news item and an advertisment in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of that date. In cities somewhat nearer the stamp printer in the east certain values of the series were placed on sale a few days earlier. Generally speaking, the date of sale varied according to the nearness to the seceded states and some of the most remote states were not supplied with the new varieties until a month or two later.

The announcements of the new adhesive stamps stated that they would be exchanged for the old until the close of business on Aug. 27, and that after that date the old stamps would be without value. These dates, of course, are applicable only to Chicago and any letters bearing old stamps passing thru Chicago after Aug. 27 were considered as fully paid, for it was the duty of the office of origin to determine the validity of the old stamps.

The exchange of the stamps reached large proportions in this city and on Aug. 24, 1861, a news item stated that since the new varieties had been received some 50,000 envelopes and over 130,000 stamps, chiefly 1 and 3 cent values, had been handled. Apparently as the deadline of Aug. 27—for Chicago—approached many subscribers in the country became worried about their stamps, for on Aug. 28 THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE stated editorially for the benefit of out of town friends that the old stamps would be good thruout Illinois and Indiana until Oct. 1, and the envelopes until Sept. 10, unless the particular postoffices were earlier supplied with the new varieties. In Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Michigan the old envelopes would be good until Oct. 1 and the old stamps until Oct. 15, unless the offices were earlier supplied. Later these dates were modified.

At about this time THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE began to publish an announcement at the top of the editorial column which requested subscribers and others to cease to remit small amounts in the old stamps—and to confine their stamp remittances to the 1 and 3 cent denominations of the new series.

On Aug. 22, two days after the old envelopes became obsolete, a list of letters mailed in such envelopes was published with the statement that if they were not redeemed within a certain time they would be sent to the dead letter office. In all cases names and addresses were given. On Aug. 30 the list was expanded to include letters bearing the obsolete adhesive stamps. This daily list which often contained 50 or more names was continued until Nov. 28. It is likely that a change of policy was the reason for the stopping of the list rather than a complete cessation of the use of the obsolete stamps.

Since these lists are so complete in detail it would be possible to check up any Chicago covers which bear the marking "Old Stamps Not Recognized," providing the covers do not bear a return card. When the return card was used undoubtedly it was the practice to return the envelope to the sender's postoffice box, rather than to advertise it, and such letters would then be remailed with the proper stamps without any newspaper notice.

Postmaster General Mulock of Canada has announced that an entirely new set of postage stamps will be issued early in July. The new stamps, which are the first from Canada since the Royal Visit issue of 1939, will illustrate Canada's part in the war. Hil F. Best, Detroit advertising man and resident of Windsor, has been pushing this issue since Canada's entry into the war.

It is expected that the new issue of United States envelopes will make its appearance during the summer. In addition there is a possibility that there will be a stamp issue of some sort to advertise the position of the United States in the war.

Collectors who consider starting a collection of covers bearing the postmarks of the army postoffices should get into their stride at once. The list is growing by leaps and bounds. New American base forces A. P. O. branches of the New York postoffice and dates of establishment follow: A. P. O. 811, Jan. 10; 812, Jan. 10; 813, Jan. 14; 814, Feb. 21; 815, Feb. 21, and 817, Feb. 9.

Forty-six United States army postal service units of the New York postoffice were established on April 1, 1942. These were designated A. P. O. 825 to A. P. O. 870, both inclusive.

Fifteen United States army postal service units of the Seattle, Wash., postoffice were established April 1, 1942. These were designated A. P. O. 935 to A. P. O. 949, both inclusive.

Fifteen United States army postal service units of the San Francisco, Cal., postoffice were established April 1, 1942. These were designated A. P. O. 950 to A. P. O. 904, both inclusive. The following branches of the San Francisco office were established on the dates given: A. P. O. 921, March 23; 922, March 18; 923, March 16; 924, March 26; 925, March 26, and 927, March 16, 1942.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. As a result, many brides use over-strong solutions of acids for feminine hygiene which can actually burn, scar and harm delicate tissue.

Today such risks are needless. Science has given womankind Zonite. So powerful, it kills instantly all germs and bacteria with which it comes in contact. Deodorizes—by actually destroying odors. Protects personal daintiness. Yet! Zonite is non-caustic, non-poisonous, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles bought. Get Zonite at your druggist today.

They'll Come Thru Travels in Fine Shape

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1942: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Cakes, cookies, and candies that will travel cross-country to some soldier without losing shape or flavor on the journey are in great demand these days. Sugar cookies and layer cakes are out. Neither type of goody carries well.

Plain cakes which don't need a frosting are the best choice. If there is fruit in them they'll keep. The same is true of cookies, which should be of the bar or drop cookie type, usually. Fudge should be sent uncut, possibly with a knife to accompany it.

Don't spare the waxed paper in packing cookies or other sweets for your service men. And don't spare the packing.

Here are a few recipes for good things which I think particularly well suited to stand the strains of travel.

Mincemeat Cookies.

[Six dozen.]

1 cup shortening [solid]
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
2 beaten eggs
½ teaspoon each, cinnamon and nutmeg
½ cup strong, cold coffee
About 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 pound can mincemeat
1 cup nuts

Cream shortening thoroly. Add sugar gradually and cream until light. Add eggs and mix well. Add spices, then coffee. Sift soda and salt with flour. Add flour gradually, in alternate portions with mincemeat and nuts. Drop dough from teaspoon onto greased baking sheets. Bake at 400 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes, or until done. Cool on soft paper. Have cookies thoroly cool before packing. Pack them in a wax paper lined box, if they're going to travel, and separate each layer of cookies with more of the paper. If you have a tin box in which to pack the cookies, so much the better. They'll be certain to keep fresh in a tightly closed container.

Chocolate Prune Cake.

[9 by 5 inch loaf pan.]

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup solid shortening
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¾ cup dark corn sirup
1 egg, well beaten
1 square chocolate, melted
¾ cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped, cooked prunes

Sift flour, soda, and salt together three or four times. Cream shortening thoroly, add brown sugar and cream well. Add corn sirup slowly, beating constantly. Add egg and mix well. Stir in chocolate. Add dry ingredients and sour milk in alternate portions, beating well after each addition. Add vanilla, then prunes. Bake in greased, wax paper lined pan at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until done. Cool cake in pan 10 minutes, then turn out onto cake rack to cool thoroly. Sprinkle with confectioner's sugar and send the cake uniced, or top it with a fudge or mocha frosting, not the "gooey" kind. It should be a rather firm, hard frosting.

Applesauce Raisin or Date Cake.

[8 inch square loaf.]

½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg
1 cup thick, unsweetened applesauce
⅔ cup chopped raisins or dates
1 cup broken nut meats
1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda

Cream shortening and sugar together thoroly. Add salt and spices and beat well. Beat in the egg. Sift flour and soda together several times and add ¼ cup of the mixture to raisins and nuts. Add to creamed mixture. Alternately add remainder of flour and applesauce, beating well after each addition. Bake in greased pan at 350 degrees for about an hour. If you frost this cake, use a thin mocha icing. It needn't be frosted at all.

Orange Gum Drop Cookies.

[Two 9 by 11 inch pans.]

2 cups packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons orange juice
Grated rind of 1 orange
4 eggs, separated
2 cups sifted flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 cup chopped nut meats
1 cup sliced orange gumdrops

Combine sugar, orange rind and juice with slightly beaten egg yolks. Mix well. Sift flour with baking powder, and add nuts and gumdrops. Add to first mixture and beat thoroly. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into greased, floured pans and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour. Cut in strips while warm and roll in confectioners' sugar.

Pineapple Raisin Drops.

[About 40 cookies.]

½ cup shortening
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 egg
½ cup raisins
½ cup crushed pineapple, drained
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt

Cream shortening and sugar together until light and fluffy. Add vanilla. Add beaten egg, then raisins and pineapple. Sift flour, baking powder, soda, and salt together several times and add to creamed mixture. Drop from a spoon onto a greased cookie sheet and bake in a 375 degree oven until lightly browned, about 15 minutes.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass

Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Can an ordinary little felt "beanie" go to the dressiest of functions? It certainly can, if it is glamorized as Mrs. Marshall G. Sampsell did hers at a fashionable luncheon recently. Mrs. Sampsell dressed up her little round of blue felt with a lavish amount of delicate green veiling, arranged completely to cover the hat, swooshed down and around under her chin. There was a hint of a diamond clip somewhere in this breathtaking effect. A point of interest in the handsome tweed suit Mrs. Sampsell wore was in the fastening of the side placket of the skirt. Instead of a zipper, now difficult to obtain because of priorities, the skirt was fastened with three buttons covered with matching tweed. The tweed was a gray-blue in color, the blue tone heightened by the blouse Mrs. Sampsell was wearing, collar out, as the fashion seems to be these days. . . . Another pretty gray tweed suit at the same luncheon—a meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations—was worn by Miss Shirley Slade. It had three-quarter length sleeves, and Miss Slade heightened the effect of being dressed up by wearing long, white gloves, a white blouse, a red sailor and red shoes. . . . Mrs. Chauncey McCormick had on a striking hat that day, a pink felt one with a small brim trimmed with two wings. The hat exactly matched the pink satin blouse Mrs. McCormick was wearing with her black suit. The blouse was high-necked, and tied in a little bow at the throat, with a diamond clip pinned to either side. At Mrs. McCormick's table sat Mrs. A. H. Patterson in a wide brimmed black sailor. Its only trimming was a gracefully twisted bow of wide, white ribbon. Her earrings were pearl buttons.

A stunning knit dress and hat in gray was worn by Mrs. Horatio B. Hackett. The dress was made in vertical ribs that caused the skirt to flare gracefully. The hat was a little crocheted one with loops of yarn as its only decoration. Miss Mary Harrington was wearing a shirtwaist type, navy wool coat with accents of red. There was a red silk scarf at her throat, and more of the color was used to line two wings on her off-the-face hat. . . . Mrs. Ernest S. Ballard received the grateful thanks of the English Speaking union for her charming and homelike arrangements for a luncheon at which Sir Gerald Campbell, head of the British information service, spoke recently. At the center of the speaker's table, which boasted a stunning arrangement of red and white spring flowers, sat Mrs. Ballard in an equally stunning spring dress. It was made of black crêpe, cut with interesting front fullness that sprang from under an abbreviated apron of green print that was set in, and which tied in back. The front of the bodice and the collar of the dress were of the same fresh print, and gay little white stephanotis sprang saucily up from the crown of her black, rough straw hat. . . . Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, at the union luncheon, was wearing an intricately cut, but perfectly tailored, wool coat of beige. It had patch pockets, which no longer are available, and front fullness springing from just below the belt line. Mrs. Dempster wore the coat over a two piece dress, the top of which was of rose and black print, over black; and a draped turban of black jersey fastened with an old gold, jeweled clip.

• • •

Miss Frances Whedon and Mrs. Denison B. Hull were other women dressed in black. Miss Whedon's slim crêpe frock was topped with a snowy collar of lace and sheer linen, and her hat was a tiny white straw sailor with a flat crown made entirely of white flowers. Mrs. Hull was wearing a brilliant green hat of felt, trimmed with a yarn pompon at the front. It matched exactly a long necklace of green beads. Mrs. Edward A. Leight wore a stunning hat to the same luncheon, a pale blue felt one, high-crowned, which was trimmed with two oversize poppies. . . . Mrs. Donald F. McPherson has a new spring coat that is a beauty. It is of deepest navy blue, cut with sleeves that flare out at the cuffs. Another stunning spring coat, also in navy, but in a lighter shade, is worn by Miss Mary Kennedy. It is distinctly a dressmaker coat, made with raglan sleeves, bloused at the waistline, and cut with a full skirt. The coat is particularly effective with a wide brimmed, navy straw sailor, the brim of which is edged in white straw.

Mrs. William Sherman Hay. [Wilhite Photo.]

Those hand woven scarfs of purest wool that are made in the Carolina mountains have been more in evidence than ever before lately. Mrs. Samuel T. Chase was wearing a lovely one in shades of blue recently with a navy blue tailored suit. . . . There has been lots of bright green in evidence lately, too. Mrs. William M. Spencer the other day was wearing a hat all of big red flowers, held to her head by green net, and Mrs. John A. Carpenter has a green beret and long scarf to match. The hat is crocheted, and she wears it well back on her head, so that her bangs show, and the scarf is one of the Carolina ones. . . . At the symphony concert one day recently was Mrs. William Sherman Hay, wearing a tiny white straw hat trimmed with tiny ruffles, wide across the front. At either side were narrow black bows, adding a final fillip of chic. Mrs. William W. Dixon, in the audience that afternoon, was wearing a black suit and a cunning black hat with aviation wings in black grosgrain ribbon, edged in gold. . . . Since symphony-goers have been permitted to wear their hats during the concerts, headgear has become more noticed. Mrs. Edwin Hadley recently was wearing a fetching gray straw bonnet with a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses at the front. Mrs. Albert A. Sprague's symphony hat one day was a white faille one made with a narrow brim and trimmed with several loops of white faille at the front. Mrs. John Paul Welling was wearing a black straw hat with five or six pink roses at the front. Mrs. James Offield's hat was trimmed with fruit, luscious pears and apples, tied with purple veiling.

Bettina Bedwell Says:

Printed materials are likely to prove as precious to the fashion world as tires have turned out to be to the automobile world. That is, if certain increasingly dire prophecies about the end of all printed materials in the not-distant future turn out to be true. It seems to me most women will want a printed outfit, just in case.

There's nothing new about the fact that printed dresses and ensembles dominate our streets in summer. What IS new is that women and designers who used to turn up their noses at such clothes, now are collecting these same things for themselves. And they like the small design print, which has either just two colors or, if more, colors that are subdued and blended.

Possessiveness Is Irritating and Bad Taste

What should you say when acknowledging an introduction? For the answer to this and other questions about making and receiving introductions in good taste, read "The Etiquet of Introductions," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

A mistake that many of us make, women more than men, is that of being too possessive. In the privacy of the home it is a poor psychological approach, and in public it has the added quality of being bad taste.

You all have seen these overly devoted wives who offer too much advice, have too many instructions on how a job should be done, unnecessarily call attention to little shortcomings in their respective husbands that otherwise might go unnoticed, publicly correct their behavior or their grammar or tell them how much sugar they need in their coffee, to the embarrassment of all. These women always know what their husbands should wear and how they should wear it. Nor do they stop there. Instead of forgetting about the little argument and allowing the husband to forget, too, they repeat the episode to long suffering friends.

These too helpful women should realize that the common psychological reaction is exactly the reverse of the effect they have in mind to bring about. Human beings are contrary beasts, and in a situation such as the above they instinctively do the thing for which they were criticized, just to demonstrate their independence and cultivate their own ego. And I can't say I blame them. Goodness knows, their egos need a little pampering when they are frequently beaten to a pulp by a tactless one, even if it is a loved one.

And while we are on the subject, this possessiveness sometimes takes the form of being too demonstrative in public. The public show of affection is most embarrassing, and somehow it gives the impression of being put on just for the sake of showing off, and has not the littlest bit of really sincere feeling behind it.

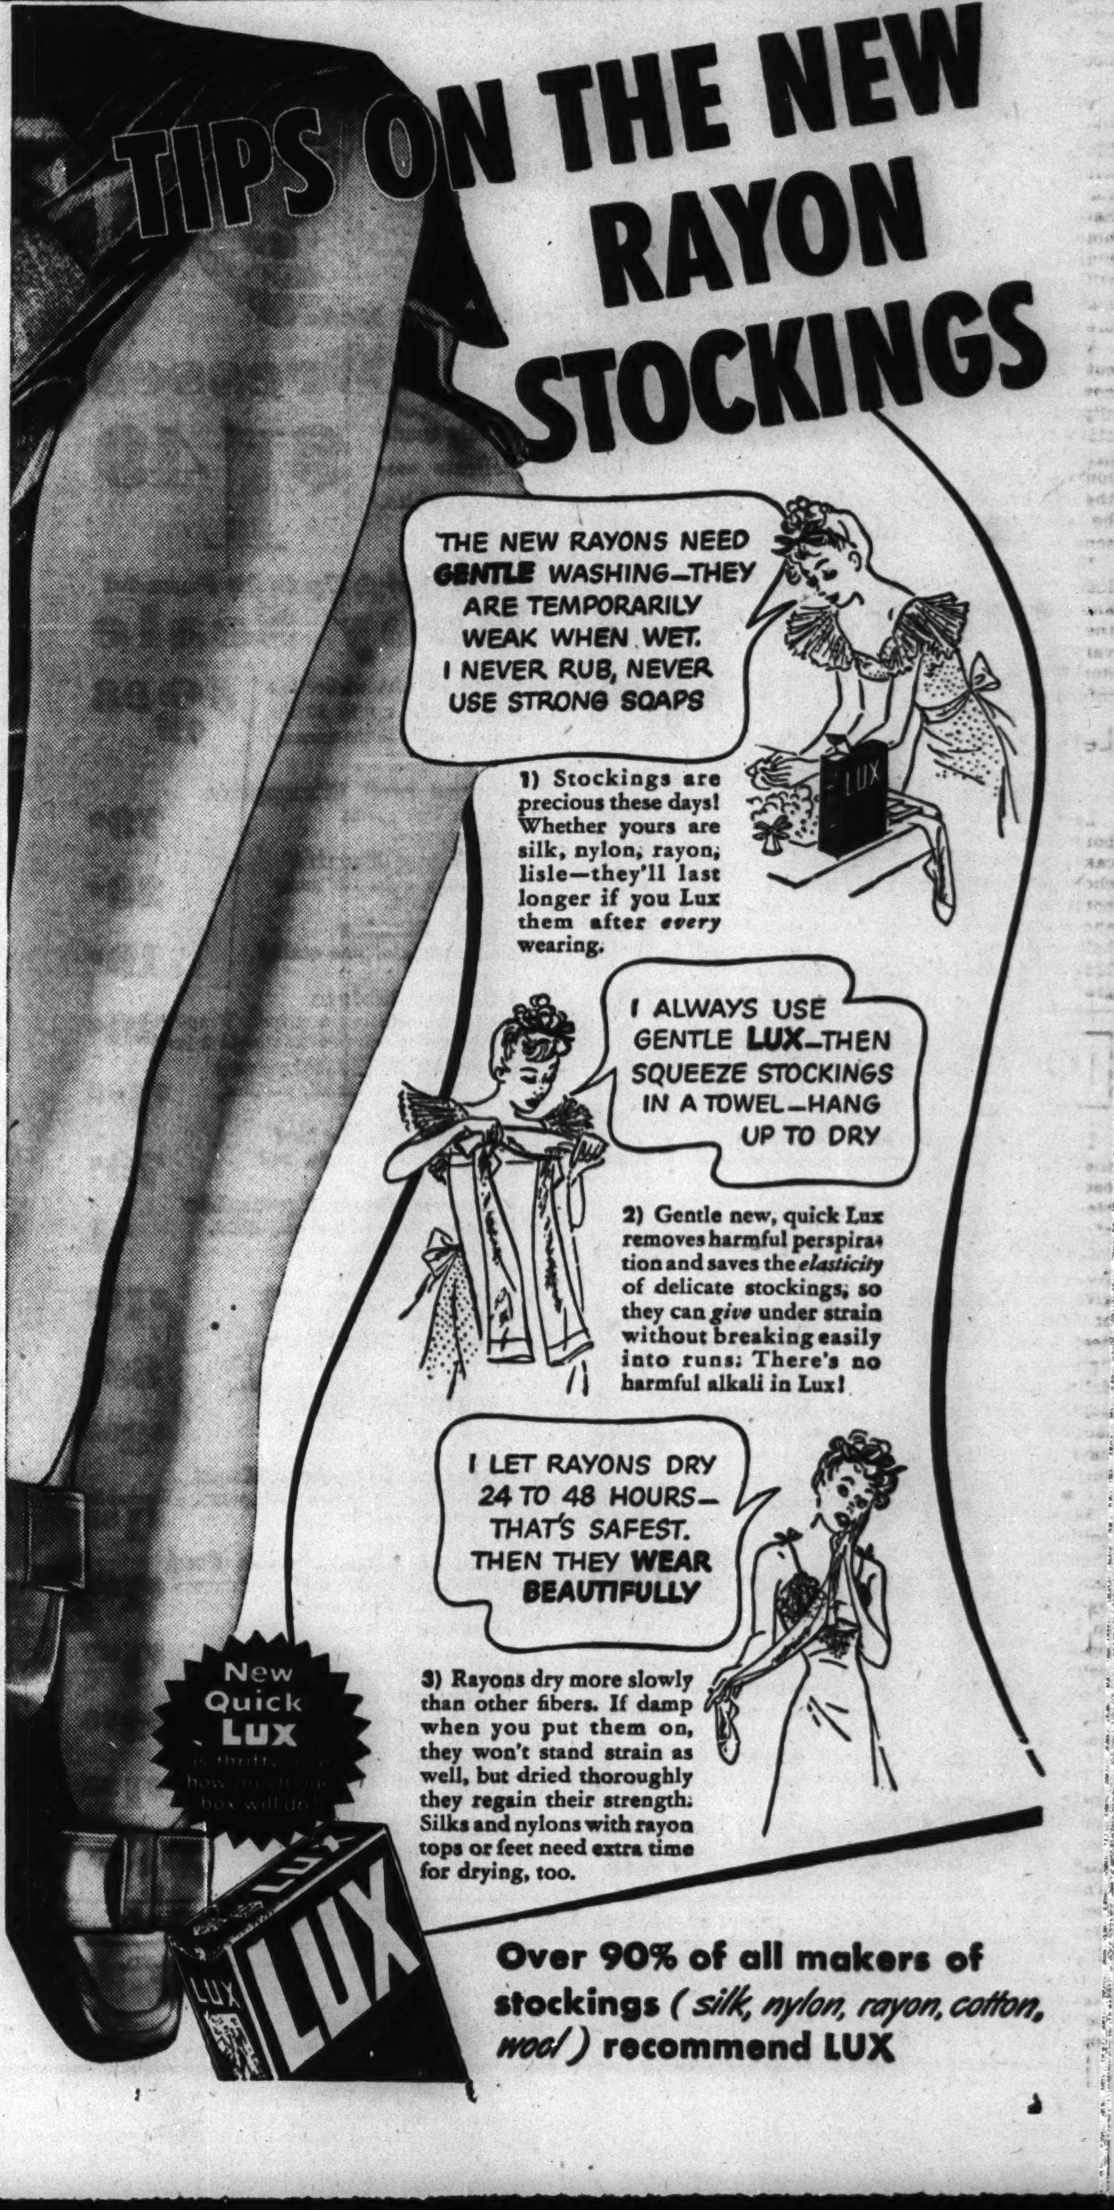
HOME OWNERS' QUERIES

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor].—Is it okay to paint bricks around a fireplace a cream or white? Our house is colonial type.—J. M.

Answer: Yes, this simulates an oldtime treatment discovered in houses where the fireplace was often painted white.

Oak Park—[To the Home Building Editor].—What can we do for woodwork that has dried out so that it no longer seems to take a polish well? We also have some occasional pieces that seem in the same condition.—Mrs. Frances M.

Answer: Make a mixture of one part turpentine and three parts linseed oil. Apply with soft cloth, let stand for a few minutes and then wipe with a cloth dampened with a mixture of alcohol and water. Afterward you should be able to polish wood nicely.



TIPS ON THE NEW RAYON STOCKINGS

THE NEW RAYONS NEED GENTLE WASHING—THEY ARE TEMPORARILY WEAK WHEN WET. I NEVER RUB, NEVER USE STRONG SOAPS

1) Stockings are precious these days! Whether yours are silk, nylon, rayon, lisle—they'll last longer if you Lux them after every wearing.

I ALWAYS USE GENTLE LUX—THEN SQUEEZE STOCKINGS IN A TOWEL—HANG UP TO DRY

2) Gentle new, quick Lux removes harmful perspiration and saves the elasticity of delicate stockings; so they can give under strain without breaking easily into runs. There's no harmful alkali in Lux!

I LET RAYONS DRY 24 TO 48 HOURS—THAT'S SAFEST. THEN THEY WEAR BEAUTIFULLY

3) Rayons dry more slowly than other fibers. If damp when you put them on, they won't stand strain as well, but dried thoroughly they regain their strength. Silks and nylons with rayon tops or feet need extra time for drying, too.

New Quick Lux

Over 90% of all makers of stockings (silk, nylon, rayon, cotton, wool) recommend LUX

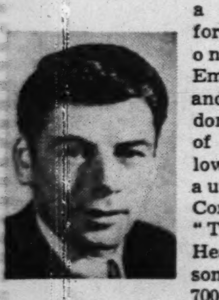
Critic Sees a Short Run for New Muni Play

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK—[Special].—The Theater Guild thought it had found a good play for Paul Muni in one written by Emlyn Williams and called in London "The Light of Heart." Following the same author's "The Corn is Green," "The Light of Heart" ran for something like 700 performances on the other side. If it should get seven weeks over here, it will be a surprise, even to its friends.



Paul Muni.

For America "The Light of Heart" has been retitled "Yesterday's Magic." In it Muni plays an old actor who drank himself out of the theater eight years ago and, so the stage story goes, tried to stage a comeback recently.

Actors, as you may know, love to play their kind, and those of us who hold the old actors, and the older theater, in fond memory, love to see them do it. But there cannot, under the best of theatrical circumstances, be either a great anticipation or a holding suspense built up for the story of the old actor whose crippled daughter stood ready to sacrifice her own happiness to her care of him, and escaped that sacrifice only thru his death.

• • •

"Yesterday's Magic" is just that, yesterday's theater magic in sample as well as in name. And so satisfying to many playgoers is the older sentimental drama, that many Theater Guild audiences have found it completely satisfying, despite the critics. Any summer theater boasting a good character actor could play it with great profit.

Muni is not the personality that you would, offhand, select to play an old English actor, in his cups or out, but Muni is one of the best of character actors, and any part he elects to play you may be sure will be ably characterized and played with great technical facility.

In "Yesterday's Magic," Muni, as Maddoc Thomas, is making a few shillings a week being a Santa Claus in the Selfridge department store in London. When mothers complain that it is not nice for their children to smell whisky on Santa Claus' breath, he loses even this small job. Then a musical neighbor, a young composer, gets him a chance playing a straight part in a musical comedy. It is a small part, but the old actor gives it an impressive dignity and no less a producer than Charles Cochrane decides that, if he will keep straight, he [Thomas] can stage a sensational comeback in a revival of "King Lear."

• • •

All goes well until a gossipy neighbor tells Thomas that his daughter, who has been his staff and his life for the eight years of his failure, is planning to marry the composer and go to the United States once her father is reëstablished on the stage. The shock sends the old fellow out for a stimulant, and his chance is lost. Pretty obvious, but still effective.

Thomas throws himself off the balcony of his apartment house after he hears the daughter confess her determination to stand by him, even at the expense of her own dream of a home and children.

Jessica Tandy plays the daughter. She is lame because her father had fallen with her in his arms when she was a baby. Hers is a sensitive performance, and never sentimentally cheapened. Alfred Drake is the composer, and there are character bits by Margaret Douglass and Brenda Forbes.

As I understand it, the New York Drama Critics' Circle, in deciding as it did last week that none of the plays of American authorship produced in New York this season was worthy of its annual award as a prize play, did not intend you should believe that none of them was worth seeing. The critics, abnormally jealous of their standards, were merely trying to say that, whereas they have hertofore been divided as to the merits of individual plays, this year they were convinced, 11 to 6, that no American play had been produced that was worthy to stand alongside their selections of previous years.

The circle and I usually are in disagreement on the issue of its proper function as an organization of guides to, or guardians of, the professional theater. I feel that, if the circle is true to its statement that one of the purposes of its organization is the encouragement and reward of the native dramatist, it also is committed to select a best play of American authorship each season, even if that play must be excused as the best of a poor lot.

This year the circle could, it seems to me, have quite reasonably said: "We find that the best American plays of native authorship this year included 'In Time to Come,' 'The Moon Is Down,' 'Jason,' 'Junior Miss,' 'Candle in the Wind,' 'Letters to Lucerne,' and 'Hope for a Harvest.' None of these plays, however, in the estimation of the drama critics' circle, is of such outstanding quality as to deserve a citation."

But to blanket all the native plays of a season as being unworthy of so much as an honorable mention is, to me, not only unfair to the native dramatists and the theater but also unfair to the critics. It tends to confirm an already too common impression that critics see themselves as a group of superior minds in the theater from whose decisions there can be no reasonable appeal. Which is, at least, a little silly.

• • •

The circle had an easier time in the selection of the best play of foreign authorship. Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit" achieved that honor, with only "Angel Street" as a distant contender. "Angel Street" is as well written and expertly contrived as melodrama, by Patrick Hamilton, as "Blithe Spirit" is well written and expertly contrived as farce by Coward. But it is the more novel, the gayer and wittier of the two, and therefore got the majority vote.

The money the circle would ordinarily have spent on a dinner, a plaque, and a scroll for the successful plays and their authors was voted to the American theater wing war service.

GOP Women's Club Luncheon Gala Success

By Cousin Eve.

In the way of celebrities and wild enthusiasm, the Woman's National Republican club of Chicago had it over all the other great gatherings of the season when they lunched the Republican National committee last Sunday. It was in the La Salle ballroom, which was boiling over with Republicans. There was music, there were flowers, and the raised speaker's table had 74 members of the national committee, men and women who had traveled far for the conclave. Mrs. Jacob Baur was chairman of the meeting and wielded a snow white gavel. Her costume was becoming beige with a beige straw hat, and on her right was the chairman of the Republicans, Joseph W. Martin, congressman from Massachusetts, and on her left, Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois. As the distinguished guests filed in there were roars of greeting for our handsome governor and a tremendous ovation for Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, the beloved "Curly" who has the chubby face of a boy, the courage of a lion, and an orator's tongue.

Down the line went the venerable Henry W. Fletcher of Rhode Island, former ambassador to Italy—one remembers well his stunning appearance in Rome. Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Cyrus McCormick of New Mexico, the erstwhile Cy-Cy of Chicago. Also handsome, stately Mrs. Ruth Pratt of New York and dashing Mrs. Worthington Scranton of Pennsylvania, who was to make one of the two speeches of the day—a marvelous speech, by the way, full of wit and feminine allure.

• • •

In the first row of tables were a notable number of women of our society acting as hostesses of the hour—for late coming delegates were seated everywhere. David Ingalls was there, an American ace of the last war with six enemy planes to his credit; Barney Goodspeed, former national treasurer, and among the women Mrs. George Langhorne, Mrs. A. H. Patterson, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Walter Wolf, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Miss Eleanor McClurg, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, Mrs. Henry Melcher of Boston, her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Sneath, and Mr. and Mrs. James Rawleigh, and Mrs. Frederick Schaaf.

Gov. Green and Sen. Brooks ate and had to run soon after, each addressing the rally briefly. And Sen. Brooks' voice was full of pathos when he recalled our boys already scattered over the earth's surface, and what it meant to the wounded to have American nurses to care for them.

Their departure left two vacancies at the speakers' table and Mrs. Baur called to Ralph Church, who aspired once to the United States senate, "Come and take Sen. Brooks' seat." "He'd like to very much," cried out a nearby congressman, amid great laughter.

Mrs. Scranton's beige costume de sport and straw hat with fruits in front were perfect. She began by saying in a charming, fluty voice that she'd like to be a nurse holding Curly Brooks' hand any time, and was very much for women as war aides. She then described the three bills before the house at the moment, each for a different form of feminine participation in the war.

• • •

And then in another vein she etched a nocturnal incident in Florida, calling it war in our front yard. There was a little dinner, a game of bridge, and the quiet of the tropic night broken by a great explosion at sea.

Hours later as she sat up reading calls for help came ringing in from the water. Looking out, Mrs. Scranton saw boats and men, survivors of a torpedoed ship. Mostly they were naked men who came ashore on the Scrantons' beach, and the whole neighborhood roused up to receive them. The sailors were bathed, clothed, fed and cheered and were gallant fellows all, she said.

Congressman Martin's keynote speech was plain and upstanding.

TO MARRY CLASSMATE

Miss Jacquelyn Glair, whose engagement to Henry T. Fielding II., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding of Plainfield, N. J., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Glair of Flossmoor. Miss Glair and Mr. Fielding will be graduated from the University of Michigan in May. She is majoring in physical education and he in aeronautical engineering.

[Carlos Photo.]

Unity and more unity was the watchword for Republicans and we will win in November, he said.

• • •

This gala luncheon began with the "Star Spangled Banner," sung uproariously by all the guests. Our national anthem as sung by a single lady soloist sounds very thin indeed, with much worry as to whether she gets safely over the high spots. Yet women soloists bring it invariably to sing at these big banquets.

Dr. Frederick Stock, our Chicago Symphony conductor, gives the best "Star Spangled Banner" I know. The great audiences at Orchestra hall have been thrilled all winter by the orchestra's performance of the piece. He puts "guts and brass" into it, things we need to win this war, said a witty man in a nearby seat. One would buy a ticket just to hear our symphony men rise to the occasion, ruffling the drums, blowing the horns and smashing the cymbals. Richard Wagner himself couldn't put more backbone in the plaintive air of a century and a half ago—for under its lilting refrain one senses the pulse of our young nation rising to a faster beat amid trumpets, fifes and drums.

• • •

A long time wish to gaze upon Count Byron de Prorok took one Thursday to the ballroom of the Woman's Athletic club. I had really a curiosity about the man. He has traveled and dug in the wild places I like best, deserts, and lonely mountains where have flourished great civilizations and cities and now faded and vanished from the earth's face.

Unfortunately, it was pitch dark and the picture was on so that it was an hour or so before the tall, broad shouldered explorer with thick curly black hair came into view. His topic was North Africa and his films were marvelous, in color and covering thousands of square miles. Beginning with Libya and its vast areas of desert, the explorer brought forth the gold rose beauty of the ruins Leptis Magna and Sabratha, ancient and magnificent Roman cities buried 2,000 years under a sea of sand. There were glimpses of Tripoli, the late Marshal Balbo's glittering capital and its long avenues of flowering azaleas.

• • •

Strangest of all were the Abyssinian slides, and views of its native warriors and its bustling little Emperor Haile Selassie now reseated upon his Lion throne. According to Count de Prorok, the Negus traces his ancestry back unbroken to King Solomon and the queen of Sheba.

There also were Arabian desert slides, very beautiful, with a plethora of camels and handsome Arabs. And because the gallant Italian had died a war prisoner in Africa a fortnight earlier, there were pictures of the Duke d'Aosta and his tall athletic frame, and also a sight of the royal duchess of Aosta, a sister of the French Orleans pretender. It was most luxurious to let Count de Prorok do the traveling and exploring, and suffer all the discomforts while we sat happily in the beautiful ballroom of the Women's Athletic club.

This club has had a popular program this year. Wednesday evening there was an exciting contract tournament in the beautiful lounge arranged by Mrs. William N. Pelouze. Husbands were included, and the game was staged by the club's expert and lecturer, Mrs. Maxine Miner. The games were set, the answers and correct bidding were all duly printed and set forth, and the whole kept locked snugly away in the club safety vault. War bonds for prizes were awarded to the high scores. The lounge was filled with tables and some distinguished French people among the players wondered wherever else in the wide world could one find such a club functioning today.

Quite a few of our Chicago men have been training at Quonset, in Rhode Island. Among them was Brayton Slade who joined up in February and has been visiting his parents, the Arthur Slades, in North State street before leaving for the west. Brayton looks splendid in uniform, slim and well set up. Pat Hamill was at Quonset, too, and came near not making the grade as to weight. However, a steady diet of bananas and water got him into the navy after due process of training. Pat's two tiny children were enchanted with him in uniform. And so was Suzette, his wife, one of our loveliest and most gifted young matrons, only daughter of the Sterling Mortons.

Mrs. Hamill runs the Pocahontas Press and occasionally gives an illustrated lecture on her famous ancestress, the Princess Pocahontas, of whom she is tremendously proud. Nicholas Bodman is among the men of this town experiencing the real thing in this war. His line of service is at Pearl Harbor and his letters to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bodman, are cheerful and vivid.

Another Chicago man whose service began last August is J. De Navarre MacComb Jr. who is one of the most brilliant Chicago lads who ever made a hit in New York. He not only speaks Spanish, French, and German fluently, but can make a piano talk, and in private was the life of any party with an endless fund of gayety and charm. Navarre has been serving in Panama in the jungle since last August. The MacCombs live in Evanston, and the mother of this young officer was formerly Miss Leonie Lentilhon of New York, one of an old French family prominent in the early social history of New York. Andy Rebori Jr. also is one of those in Panama under arms, and we know this hed-headed lad will be a good fighter from the looks of him.

There were two interesting luncheon meetings last week where you met many friends. The first at the Blackstone was in honor of a tall, rugged Scotchman, Sir Gerald Campbell, British minister at Washington, and was as attractive as a private party.

The second was an immense affair at the Palmer House and featured Maj. Alexander De Seversky, famous airplane designer and ace of the last war. The grand ballroom was full of electricité when Richard Bentley called members of the Foreign council to order. People are avid to know all about air power these days. Seated at the high table was another Russian officer of the last war, George Voevodsky, now, like Seversky, an American citizen. Alexander De Seversky is a thin, dark man and, I hear from a Russian friend, came of a gifted family in Russia and has a brother who is an artist. "Victory Thru Air Power" was the subject of the address, which was not too long or too deep for the laiety to understand.

Culling at random from his most striking utterances we have these phrases: "Only air power can defeat air power. We can't slacken until we have long range power to strike. Until then, carriers and fighters are necessary.

"Glenn Martin has plans for planes carrying 800 men. You can't defeat a nation with a great air force. America invented planes for commerce not for destruction, but must readjust quickly or become obsolete. Anti-aircraft is a mere palliative, altho the German anti-aircraft at Brest is extraordinarily good."

• • •

Sir Gerald Campbell was seated at table behind an immense barrage of white flowers in the Blackstone ballroom. At his right was Mrs. Ernest Ballard, who, had said president Frank Hecht, innovated something at this meeting: Each luncheon table had a hostess who distributed the guests and introduced them, and among these lady hostesses were Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Mrs. Frederick Schaaf, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Frank Fuller, and a dozen others.

Sir Gerald is the British ace speaker in this country. He has lived in America over 22 years and knows our ways well. Thus his talk was full of Scotch humor, and delivered in a soft pleasing voice. There were many laughs when he spun a tale of the difficulties of war press announcements, his previous job in New York.

The American Opera society had a matinée musical Tuesday morning in the Fortnightly ballroom. Many things were charming about this occasion. Mrs. Helen Rend Clarke, president, wore the prettiest print yet seen, black covered with all the flowers in the garden. The guests one and all had on their loveliest hats—there were chapeaux pink, red, green and white, and the effect was magfcal.

The program was one of songs in English sung by a handsome young baritone, Bruce Foote. So curly was his hair, so round his face, that he might have been a young brother of Sen. Brooks. Mr. Foote has a lovely voice, and he also had a wonderful accompanist at the piano, Sherman Schoonmaker, who played a Chopin waltz divinely. Mme. Elaine De Sellem presented the musicians, and after that there was luncheon at small tables.

Chicago Boy The Star of Tucson Fiesta

"Local boys make good" might well be the caption of this item.

TUCSON, ARIZ. Ralph Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Barker of Chicago, starred in the Fresnal fiesta last week-end, and John Caron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otis J. Caron of Rochelle, caught a 140 pound marlin down at Guaymas on Monday. A local horse made good, too. Sheba, young mare owned by Mrs. Louis P. Stein of Chicago, won honorable mention at the University of Arizona horse show last Sunday afternoon.

Ralph Barker is a student at the Fresnal Ranch school, located in the Baboquivari mountains 52 miles southwest of here. Fresnal is locally famous, for the ranch is the haunt of Red Cochrane's ghost. Red was top hand at Fresnal, beloved by the Mexican vaqueros, and was killed a few years back in an automobile accident. Eerie and thus far unexplained lights seen on the desert east of the ranch are asserted by the Mexicans to be Red's ghost. There were no ghosts, only healthy boys and horses, at the Fresnal fiesta when Ralph Barker and two teammates won the pack race in the record time of four minutes and four seconds.

• • •

John Caron is a student at the Southern Arizona school for boys. Last week-end he made a trip below the border to Guaymas. Accompanied by headmaster Russell B. Fairgrieve and two fellow students, John spent three days fishing in the Gulf of Lower California. John's marlin outweighed Capt. Fairgrieve's by 20 pounds, but Classmate Winston Cook of Jefferson City, Mo., caught one weighing 230. The figures, says John, are vouched for by the Sud Pacifico de Mexico and the Hotel Playa de Cortes, where the Izaak Walton leaguers stayed. The marlin refused to be quoted.

Mrs. Stein, whose mare also took a blue ribbon at the live stock show in February, is staying at the Conrad ranch and will be joined by her husband next month. With her are her nephew and niece, Gordon and Gay Bitterman of Wheaton, and her grandson, Clark Bell, 4 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis A. Bell of River Forest. They are enhusiastic esquestrians.

Christopher Square is still a busy close-to-town resort. Mrs. Lewis P. Stacey left there to return to her Evanston home a few days ago. Miss Janet Phillips of Danville and Burt Stevens of Chicago are recent arrivals there. The Misses Loretta M. and Eleanor Berry of Evanston have recently come to the El Presidio.

The Santa Rita, too, is still popular and populous. Miss Alice H. Miller, Miss Muriel Larimore, and Boynton R. Rogers of Chicago, and Carl A. Smith of Rockford are there.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, April 24, 1894.

Dear Julia: We have a fine new statue in Lincoln park, placed there yesterday and I shall take you to see it the very first time you come to visit us. Late April is usually lovely in Chicago and Will and I enjoyed driving to the park for the unveiling of the Shakespeare statue, which we admire very much. The ceremony, which was quite simple, was particularly appealing because a little child was the central figure. This was tiny Cornelia Williams, granddaughter of the donor, Samuel Johnston. She is the daughter of warm friends of ours, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Williams, and was appropriately chosen to loose the folds of the covering and reveal the figure of the poet.

Frank L. Stanton.

Mr. Franklin H. Head, one of Chicago's foremost citizens, made an excellent speech, congratulating the city on receiving such an addition to the works of art which adorn its parks, and then the sculptor, William Ordway Partridge, was called on. He said he had been three years in making the statue we saw and he called it a labor of love. He visited London and Stratford-on-Avon, walking in the footsteps of the great dramatist and communing with him in spirit. "But," he ended, "how little we can put of this man's personality in bronze. He needs no bronze. His monument is England, America, the whole of Anglo-Saxondom." I was interested to hear him say that he put faith in only three of the portraits of Shakespeare which he studied when he went to England. The first was the effigy at Stratford; the second was the death mask; the third, the picture in the "Folio" edition of his works.

Telegrams were read from Henry Irving and from Wilson Barrett. I thought Barrett's was especially appropriate, couched as it was in Shakespearian language. He wired: "May your 'counterfeit presentment' endure 'not for a day, but for all time'." E. S. Willard, the actor, was called upon and spoke, as did Robart A. Waller, president of the park board.

The same evening at Hooley's theater where we went to see E. S. Willard in "The Middleman" we saw the sculptor, Mr. Partridge, with his wife and Frank L. Stanton and his wife in a box as guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kohlsaat. Mr. Partridge, seen more closely than at the park, showed an intellectual countenance and refined features. One noted little European mannerisms, acquired, doubtless, during his student days in Paris. He was born in Paris, by the way, but was educated here, finishing his art studies in France later.

Quite a contrast to him was Frank L. Stanton, called "the Riley of the south," because of his dialect poems and stories. His verses, you know, are quoted widely in the papers. He is quite young—under 40, I should say—and his pleasant countenance was what one would expect from the philosophy found in his writings. Will often brings home the Atlanta Constitution to read aloud to me the column, "Just From Georgia." He finds much joy in Stanton's anecdotes told in Negro or "Georgia Cracker" dialect. The poet writes unaffectedly of his own emotions and you feel as if you knew him, from reading his words. He is popular, we are told, in England and many of his pathetic poems have been set to music.

Your lovely invitation to visit you at the time of the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Philadelphia May 9, 10, and 11 sounds most enticing. If I decide to go I certainly shall go over to New York for a day or two with you. But Will hates to have me go off and leave him, and I usually end in staying with him. We are an old Darby and Joan now. Much love, dear friend.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

William O. Partridge [1861-1930] has many other works of art to his credit besides the Shakespeare statue in Lincoln park, among these being an equestrian statue of Grant in Brooklyn. Frank L. Stanton [1857-1927] wrote many poems which have been set to music. "Mighty Lak A Rose" is one of the best known of these.

Women Voters Assembling on Historic Site

By Irene Steyskal.

The National League of Women Voters is assembling on historic ground for its first wartime convention, for it was in Chicago 22 years ago that Carrie Chapman Catt stood before the Victory convention of the National American Woman Suffrage association, at the triumphant close of a 100 year battle for women's right to vote, and read a telegram of felicitation from the President of the United States:

"'Permit me to congratulate your association upon the fact that its great work is so near its triumphant end that you can now merge it into a League of Women Voters to carry on the development of good citizenship and real democracy,'" Mrs. Catt read, "'and to wish for the new organization the same success and wise leadership.'" The signature to the message was Woodrow Wilson's.

• • •

That occasion is vividly remembered by Miss Marguerite M. Wells, national president, who arrived here last Thursday from league headquarters in Washington, D. C., to lead the Chicago born organization in another meeting which promises to have historic significance.

One of the founding members, Miss Wells, was seated in that early convention that happily applauded Mrs. Catt and the Wilson message.

There are others of the founders returning to participate in the forthcoming meeting. There is Mrs. George Gellhorn from St. Louis, who was elected vice chairman of the national board at the meeting of organization, who directed the league's merit system campaign in the '30s, and who now is national finance chairman and a director. There is Miss Katharine Ludington of Old Lyme, Conn., one of the original regional directors. And there is Mrs. Richard Edwards of Peru, Ind., the first national treasurer, now serving her state league as wartime service director.

• • •

They are here, with hundreds of other members, to measure the political knowledge gained by the league in its 22 years to the needs of the day; to determine how that knowledge can be put to effective use in the nation's war effort.

If the demands of the times loom formidably large to the delegates they may find reassurance in the "Chicago to Chicago" legislative review of league experience which Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin of Washington, D. C., the first vice president, has prepared for the convention, a record of notable success in several fields to improve national legislation.

• • •

No sooner was it organized in 1920 than the league found itself in the midst of a campaign for public protection of maternity and infancy, fighting against a storm of protest for the Sheppard-Towner bill, and winning against the opposition's accusations of communism, socialism, paternalism, and federal midwifery!

Reposing in the league's archives is one of the pens used in the signing of the TVA act, giving testimony of the organization's part in the Muscle Shoales battle. Five years' work for a modern food, drug, and cosmetic law, and advances in the long and continuing fight for the "merit system" in federal, state, and local government employment, Mrs. Baldwin also lists among her "reminders" to the delegates in her legislative review.

• • •

In the field of foreign policy, prevention of war in the world was the purpose to which the league was dedicated from its earliest days. When war seemed inevitable the organization spent its effort in trying to stop the conflict before it spread to the United States. The Women Voters have supported various moves for the limitation of armaments. They worked for the application of embargoes, at the discretion of the President, clinging to the principle of discrimination against treaty violators or aggressor nations.

They supported the "cash and carry" policy in 1939 as the best means available to discriminate against the aggressor nations, and worked for the passage of the lend-lease act on the same grounds.

• • •

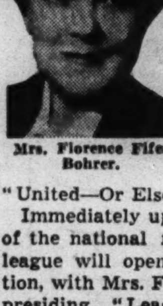
A biennial meeting, the 1942 session is the league's 15th national convention. Headquarters have been established at the Palmer House, where the program proper will open Tuesday night. The local committee on arrangements is headed by Mrs. Robert C. McNamara of Winnetka. Mrs. Walter T. Fisher of Winnetka, a member of the national board, heads the program committee.

Mrs. R. C. McNamara.
[Corboy Photo.]

A large public assembly will be held in the grand ballroom of the hotel Wednesday night when delegates and guests of the convention will hear an address by Dr. Hu Shih, ambassador to the United States from China. Dr. Hu will speak on "The Freedom We Are Fighting For."

• • •

Bernard De Voto, American author and editor, is to give the keynote address Tuesday night. The closing luncheon session on Friday will bring Edgar Ansel Mowrer, deputy director of the Office of Facts and Figures, former correspondent, as guest speaker. Mr. Mowrer's subject will be "United—Or Else."



Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer.

Immediately upon the adjournment of the national meeting, the Illinois league will open its annual convention, with Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer presiding. "League Work Is War Service" will be the theme of the state program. Mrs. George Blossom of Lake Forest heads the general arrangements committee. The state meeting will continue thru Saturday afternoon.

TO BE MARRIED MAY 2

Role of YWCA as Peace Builder to Be Discussed

The part of the YWCA, as an international organization of Christian women, in building toward a lasting peace will be studied and discussed by leaders of the association from 12 states, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Missouri, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, and Kansas, when they meet Friday, May 8, in the Hotel Sherman for a three-day central regional conference. Presiding over the session will be Mrs. Ernest Johnson of Lake Forest, who is a member of the national board.

Mrs. Ernest Johnson.

National and international officers of the association will be here to discuss the conference subject, "The Rôle of the YWCA in a World at War," among them Miss Charlotte T. Niven, American YWCA secretary, who recently returned after two years of service with the British YWCA, and Mrs. Henry Ingraham, president of the American association's national board.

Reports on "Y" war services in many lands will be presented. The conference also will study specific problems growing out of war conditions which confront associations in the middle west.

Harriet Moore Browne Is Bride of James F. Wilkes

Season Draws to a Close in Phoenix, Ariz.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

The season is just about over. With the exception of Camelback inn, the resort hotels will all be closed by May 1 and the majority of Chicagoans living in the valley will be homeward bound. While there is no denying that the season is below normal, still it has been better than was anticipated after war was declared. The Arizona desert with its vast distances and ever changing shadows gives one a sense of rest and infinity. Perhaps that very surcease which the desert alone can give from a wartorn world will draw people to it as long as there are any possible means of transportation.

It will be another month before the schools are over and the Chicago boys and girls are on their way home. The schools have had an excellent year, undoubtedly because they are the solution for a household broken up by the demands of the war. The outdoor life with swimming and riding every day makes the desert schools particularly popular with the youngsters.

• • •

Edward Schwinn, after bidding farewell to his parents, the Frank Schwinns, who returned to Chicago, has become a resident member of the school. He has moved into the same dormitory with Herbert McAllister and George Spalding. George Spalding and David MacKenzie have done their bit in helping to whip the Judson track team into shape. George is the manager while young Dave is his willing assistant. Herbert McAllister, son of the Sidney McAllisters, was top man in the school's rifle shooting contest. On a recent fishing trip, taken by several of the Judson boys to the Verde river, Herbert reported that the outing was fine but the fish elusive. Jerry Bowes III. continues to be the social leader for the Chicago contingent. He manages, however, to find time for a whirl at golf. In the recent Phoenix Open golf tournament he took part in the 7th flight.

Under the guidance of Miss Lilias Bill, the Jokake School for Girls, founded in 1934, is rapidly gaining prominence. Miss Bill, who is from Chicago, will be remembered by many of her former pupils as director of the European travel school. Chicago is well represented on the advisory board by Robert Maynard Hutchins and Kenneth Burgess. A Jokake alumnae luncheon will be held in Chicago at the Palmer House in June.

• • •

The Hotel Westward Ho is an all year around hotel and with its shady patio and splendid air cooling system is always delightfully comfortable. [We don't deny that the summers are long and hot.] Mr. and Mrs. Haven Kelly are enjoying a month's holiday at the hotel. While Mr. Kelly plays golf with Earl Grace, the ex-Cub player who is now athletic director at Luke field, Mrs. Kelly relaxes in the patio of the hotel. She has been active in the Red Cross motor corps since the close of the opera season, when she was subscription chairman of the Illinois Opera guild. Their daughter, who is a student at the Faulkner school, joined them for a week's visit. Mrs. Charles Raymond of Hinsdale, who has been at the hotel every season since its opening, has returned and will stay until June. Her son, Walter Coleman, has a citrus ranch in the valley.

Camelback inn, which will stay open until May 10, still continues to do a "capacity business." Robert Gordon Stuert, who is a guest at the inn, produced a musical review entitled "It's Fun to Be Free" to a sizable Phoenix audience in the Little theater Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Carey [Virginia Melody] who were married last week, are occupying the Edward Swift house in Arcadia awaiting Mr. Carey's orders from the navy..

Women in War Work . . . .

By India Moffett

We are devoting this column today to a letter from an army wife who recently joined her husband at his post. She is Juanita Daly, a TRIBUNE reporter who is spending her vacation and a brief leave of absence with her husband, Lieut. William R. Denslow, who may be sent overseas before long. Every wife and sweetheart and mother is interested in conditions in army and navy posts and nearby towns, so we hope this letter will be of interest to our readers.

Juanita Daly.

"Dear Mrs. Moffett: I thought you might like to hear about some of my experiences as an army wife. As you know, I had visited Bill for weekends when he was in the armored force replacement center at Fort Knox, so I knew a little of what to expect here at Fort Meade, Md., where he is with a GHQ tank battalion.

"Uncertain of what I was to find and since I was driving from Chicago, I brought along such things as towels, wash cloths, soap, some linens, even a clothes bag. I find I'll be able to use them all and I wish I had more.

• • •

"The problem near every army camp is housing. Laurel is the nearest town of any size to Fort Meade and the problem here is similar to that in every small town adjacent to an army post. Before the war, Laurel was a cozy, quiet little town of 3,000 on the main highway between Washington, D. C., and Baltimore. There were tourist homes and cabins along the highway, but this just meant business for a few citizens; it did not affect the lives of all.

"Today every home that has a spare room is housing an army wife. And the occupants of the room change, sometimes as often as every week; always at least every few months. We're just all over the place. Before I arrived, my husband wrote that it would be hard to find a place to live, but that it was worth anything to have me here. I realize now that he meant that literally and that it takes all his pay [first lieutenant, too] to live.

"There are only a dozen or more furnished apartments in town. They rent from $55 to $75 and this means without bed or table linens, cooking utensils, dishes, or silverware. And the furniture is sparse, to say the least. Many of these apartments do not have a bedroom, just a studio couch or an old fashioned sofa that opens into a bed.

• • •

"The next alternative is a room. That's what I have and probably will keep. Many husbands cannot get home every night, so that is one point against an apartment. I wanted one at first because Bill said he was anxious to get back to my cooking [he apologized for any criticism of it he ever had made], but now he's going to have battalion meetings and classes three nights a week, so he'll have to eat at the officers' mess those nights anyway. When you start the day at 6:30 you can't wait until 7:30 or 8 o'clock for dinner.

"We wives have a lazy existence, altho we promise ourselves that we'll get out on hikes when the weather clears up. We've had two beautiful days, but no one was up before 10 o'clock. I arose at 6 o'clock this morning and took Bill to camp in order to have the car. This idea to write you came as an early morning brainstorm, so when I returned I slipped back in bed and started writing.

"Two army brides have rooms in the private home I'm in and since the owner works, we're allowed to prepare our lunch in the kitchen. She also serves us fruit juice and coffee for breakfast. This is the nicest living arrangement I know about and very unusual. Many of the wives must eat every meal at a restaurant.

• • •

"The greatest diversion recently was a blackout the same night they had one in the capital. There was some slight confusion here in the office where the street lights are put on and off and the lights went off a half hour early, and the citizens all followed suit. Then when the alarm came a half hour later, the street lights came on and so did most of those in the homes. However, we had our blackout regardless, and the young son in our house was a messenger and rushed in while the test was on to get a napkin for his arm so he could be seen in the dark. To be truthful, most of the army men and their wives slept thru the whole thing since the alarm didn't sound until 10:10 p. m. and in order to get seven or eight hours sleep the boys must get to bed early.

"It's certainly a blessing to have a car. You're really stuck without one. The camp is six miles away and altho a bus goes out at infrequent intervals, many rooms such as mine are a mile from the bus stop. Without a car we'd also be forced to eat at the very limited number of decent places in town.

"When Bill's mother dropped in for a few days yesterday, Bill obtained permission from the officer of the day to show us thru the tank park. We had a close look at the tractor trucks, jeeps, and peeps [sometimes known as a son-of-a-jeep] and the light tanks which are used in Bill's battalion.

"He had just finished driving one thru the woods knocking down trees and going thru deserted brick houses, and this tank had not been locked up, so Bill stepped in again and showed us how it worked. After five men get in with their sleeping bags, three days' rations, and several submachine guns [in case they have to abandon the tank] there isn't enough room for any of them to move except to operate the guns. In battle the tank is 'buttoned up' and only the drivers can see out thru little slits, but in driving the tanks around the practice course at the fort, the commander stands in the turret and directs the driver by kicking him on his shoulders, back, and head.

"We also drove by the alien concentration camp which has recently been set up and were surprised to see how young many of the interned men were. We couldn't tarry, for the guards eye every car carefully and have orders to shoot at the least disturbance.

• • •

"The men get acquainted in the service clubs provided by the army, but the officers have no comparable social life, therefore most of the officers' barracks have one room set aside as a clubroom. I met many of the officers' wives at a party in the clubroom last Friday night and I'm looking forward to seeing even more of them tomorrow night when the officers are giving a party for their new commanding officer.

"Two other wives and I have discussed the possibilities of following our husbands if they go on manuevers this summer—as is rumored. A bunch of wives traveled around together last summer fairly inexpensively and the husbands really appreciated it for they have the weekends off with nothing to do and like to join their wives if possible. But I'll write more of this later if anything comes of it."

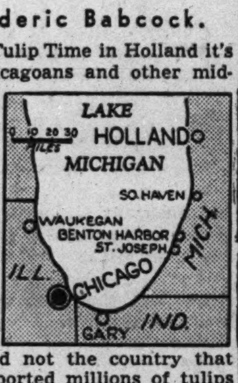
Tulip Time Fete Revives Horse and Buggy Days

By Frederic Babcock.

When it's Tulip Time in Holland it's time for Chicagoans and other midwesterners to take in one of America's finest festivals. [The Holland referred to is, of course, the Dutch colony in western Michigan, and not the country that grew and exported millions of tulips before Hitler came along and put a stop to culture—agri-, horti-, or otherwise.]



This year's fête will be held May 16 to 23, and word comes across Lake Michigan that the horse and buggy days will reappear at the same time. The Dutchmen anticipate that thousands of visitors will arrive by water, on the excursions from Chicago and Milwaukee, whereas, in other years, the trip was made by auto. Once there, the guests will not have their cars to carry them to the tulip farms and along the tulip lanes. So every kind of horse drawn vehicle will be pressed into service for the duration [of the festival and later, perhaps, of the war].

• • •

There will be other forms of transportation. Water taxi service is planned on nearby Lake Macatawa. Bicycle rental places, which do quite a business in Michigan's summer resort towns thruout the summer, have been canvassed for 70 miles around, and several hundred bikes have been lined up. Singles, tandems, and machines for three and four riders will be available. "Bicycling Thru the Tulips" threatens to become the 1942 theme song.

The celebration is to follow another great festival—Michigan's Blossom Time, in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph May 3 to 8. This year the twin city event will be in wartime garb. Some of the familiar parts of the program have been eliminated and others changed, but the rolling hills of southwestern Michigan will, as usual, put on their splendid display of blossom laden fruit trees.

• • •

Holland will have plenty of tulips to show the visitors. Since the exporting of bulbs from The Netherlands came to an end the Dutch-Americans have taken over most of the industry. Millions of blossoms are promised in town and countryside.

As in former years, the fête will begin with a street scrubbing ceremony, a wooden shoe dance, and a volks parade. Thereafter, daily except Sunday, there are to be pageantry, exhibitions, concerts, klompen dances, costume parades, and everything else that has helped to give the show an international reputation. Last year one cruise ship carried Chicagoans to the festival. This year there will be three ships. The first will leave this city in time for the opening ceremonies; the second is to provide a visit at the time of the midweek events, and the third will land its passengers in Holland for the windup.

THEY GO KLOMP KLOMP

[Clyde H. Geerlings Photo.]

One thing that impressed this observer at the 1941 celebration was the absence of the street carnival atmosphere typical of many other American fêtes. There was no gambling, no racketeering, no throwing of baseballs for the awards of kewpie dolls. It was a welcome relief.

We remarked on that fact as we interviewed Sipke Harke Houtman, American born son of Friesian parents, and manager and guiding spirit of Tulip Time. The purpose of the festival, he pointed out, is twofold: to celebrate the blooming of the town's 3 million tulips, and to keep alive, in this democracy, the traditions and customs of one of the fatherlands now threatened with absorption as vassal states into a totalitarian government.

Holland's "Americans by choice," as they call themselves, no longer are ashamed of their ancestry. They are proud of it—as they should be! In his unusual phraseology Mr. Houtman tells how the change was brought about.

"Bedecked in the gypsy hued raiment of my ancestors," he says, "I parade, each mid-May, down the same streets over which I furtively slunk not so many years ago.

"In my boyhood days I took to the alleys whenever a peek around the corner revealed that there were other youngsters on the street. For my parents were immigrants from Holland and my speech and clothes bore the marks of a foreign heritage. I was a subject of childish derision—a Hollakie!

• • •

"How thoroly ashamed I was of being, not only a Dutchman, but a Friesian styjkop [stubbornhead] to boot! Stubborn we Hollanders admittedly are, but here is a case where we not only changed our minds, but did a complete right about face. The racial earmarks we Michigan Dutchmen tried so hard to hide some years ago are now our pride—at least for a few days each spring!

"Come the month of May, we dig out from the attic a pair of baggy pantaloons, a faded magenta shirt, a stubby visored cap, and white starched dickey—all musty from 12 months' storage. A pair of hand carved, clumsy, wooden shoes are dusted off and a check made to assure a large supply of the heavy woolen socks necessary to their use.

"Then for eight days, beginning the Saturday nearest the middle of May, several thousand of us burghers, with our wives and children, dress and act as nearly as possible as did our forefathers from the banks of the Zuider Zee."

The Voice of the Traveler

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THE LAND OF THE SKY.

Blue Mounds, Wis., April 5.—To the Travel Editor: In response to Miss Katherine Hempel's letter, I, as a "local," am glad to give this information. It may be of interest to other readers, inasmuch as the region asked about is at Chicago's outskirts, so to speak.

The "blue hill" that Miss Hempel observed in the course of her trip from Dubuque, Ia., to Madison, Wis., is an outstanding feature of the landscape. No wonder the district has been acclaimed "the Land of the Sky"!

The structure rises not quite 2,000 feet above sea level. It forms a striking contrast to the surrounding rolling prairies and green hills. It is called a mound because it is an isolated formation, just outside the glaciated area and just inside the driftless area. Its size is due largely to its large, flint boulders, which have resisted crumbling thru the years. In general, the mound is capped by Niagara limestone, which has acted as a protection for the underlying Hudson river shale.

The coloring is due, I believe, to atmospheric conditions—the slant of the sun's rays, dust particles in the air, etc.

I have seen the mound in every mood. Just after a summer shower the landscape appears as clearly outlined as crystal glass. The next day, perhaps, it is surrounded by a haze. Again, the clouds float in the valley below. In winter the blue and white picture rivals the blue and white of the Swiss Alps. Each sunset, sunrise, and moonlit night brings forth its special color and enchantment. Tourists often drive up for the sunsets. As the sun disappears it leaves a light that is neither red nor rose, but a blending of the two. As one looks over the seven ridges visible the flame of the sun mingles with the blue of the distance and casts the softest of violet tones over the whole scene. The fields in the foreground are of pale mauve, and each succeeding ridge has a deeper tone, while the haze itself seems to catch the filmy clouds of purple.

Color, indeed! That's the way we who have always lived near it see it.

MATILDA A. MINIX.

A CORRECTION.

Muskegon, Mich., April 1.—To the Travel Editor: Not long ago you ran an announcement in your department concerning the new forest service publication, "National Forests of Michigan," and indicated that this book could be obtained from the Manistee National forest, Manistee, Mich.

We are very glad to distribute these booklets to the public upon receipt of specific requests, but we should appreciate your running a correction to the effect that requests should be addressed to the Manistee National forest at Muskegon, Mich., since our headquarters are here.

Inquiries addressed to Manistee go to our district ranger's office. He is not equipped to handle the mailing of these booklets, and the addressing of inquiries to Manistee rather than Muskegon results in some delay before the requests reach this office.

Your coöperation in bringing the attention of the public to this booklet is greatly appreciated. W. I. WHITE, Supervisor, Manistee National forest.

After reading Longfellow's "Evangeline" many years ago I have always supposed that Nova Scotia's population is largely of French and English descent. The other day I was told it is largely Scottish. Is this true. —R. B.

Yes. In one county—Inverness—nearly three-quarters of the inhabitants speak Gaelic, whereas less than half of the people of the county of the same name in Scotland can speak that ancient tongue. The opening of Nova Scotia's parliament is accompanied by the skirl of bagpipes, and some of the newspapers are printed partly in Gaelic.

Write the state game and fish commission, Cheyenne, Wyo.

I understand there is to be a fishing contest this summer in the Manitowish region in Wisconsin. When will it be held? To whom should I write for further information? —T. V. L.

May 25 to Oct. 15. The Manitowish Waters Chamber of Commerce, Manitowish, Wis.

Friends of mine, returning from the American southwest, have been raving about the coolness of the adobe houses there. How does adobe compare with other building materials when it comes to temperature ratings? —A. J. S.

It is classified as 20 per cent cooler than brick, 39 per cent cooler than concrete, and 43 per cent cooler than limestone.

Where is the world's largest stalagmite? —F. C. McC.

The honor is believed to be held by the Giant Dome in Carlsbad caverns. The formation is 62 feet high, and its age is estimated to be 60 million years.

THE SUN IS MY UNDOING

Over 300,000 People Have Bought This $3.00 Book—But You Can Get It FREE!

THE SUN IS MY UNDOING is a story on the heroic scale—with wild, roistering, black-browed young Michael Flood as the kind of hero who never takes "No" from a woman or a situation! A headstrong, but fascinating youth, forever at odds with authority. You see him first in 1760, arriving in Bristol after ten years, to visit old Hercules Flood, the grandfather who had disinherited him. And what a scandalous visit it proved to be! To spite the psalm-singing uncle who had influenced his grandsire, Michael staged a lusty, uproarious drinking bout and cockfight in the invalid's sick room! Old Hercules loved it, along with Michael—now grown into a he-man after his own heart—and before the richest man in Bristol collapsed and died in the small hours, he had signed a new will—making Michael his heir!

All the action of ANTHONY ADVERSE—All the thrills of GONE WITH THE WIND!

Starting with a scandal that echoed all over the world for a hundred years, this breathless book carries you bodily into the great days of sailing ships at the height of the African slave trade, which was the mainstay of the great Flood fortune.

Because he refused to give up that horrible commerce in human lives, Michael's adored one, the aristocratic Pallas Burmester, said "No!" and sent him off aboard one of his slave-ships—to cover half the globe for half a century—and tangle the destinies of three generations of women!

The Sun Is My Undoing is the story of one undying love and a dozen interwoven tales of ambition, romance and intrigue, of daring and adventure. The colorful lands that this wide-horizoned story traverses are the reeking coast of Africa, the Caribbean isles in the days of the buccaneers, gay and scheming Cuba, Tropical Barbados, the haunts of Barbary pirates, the stately palaces of Seville and Madrid. And, at last, the most surprising scene of all finds white-haired Michael once more at home in Bristol. You'll be thrilled to the very end of his stupendous and exciting life-story! One critic has called Michael "a hero to rival and surpass Anthony Adverse and Rhett Butler!"

"A Magnificent Book!"

"Almost twelve hundred pages long, this wide-horizoned tale of eighteenth century life holds love, passion, intrigue, violence, death. . . It has characters which move with clarity and force against the backgrounds of their time in history and their place on the globe. . . 'The Sun Is My Undoing' is a magnificent book of its genre."
—ROSE FELD in N. Y. Herald-Tribune BOOKS

"The Art of a Superb Story-Teller!"

"Marguerite Steen has written nothing which commands attention as this gigantic chronicle is bound to do—Her widely ranging scenes—the Bristol waterfront in the great days of the slave trade; the steaming swamps and poisonous jungles of the African Coast; the luxurious Havana mansions of the Cuban sugar planters; the gilded and uneasy palaces of Madrid. Only the art of a superb story-teller could have laced together so intricately the story of the Bristol Floods and those who mingled in their veins the dark, imperious blood of Sheba from the Combre River country in Africa."
—MARGARET WALLACE

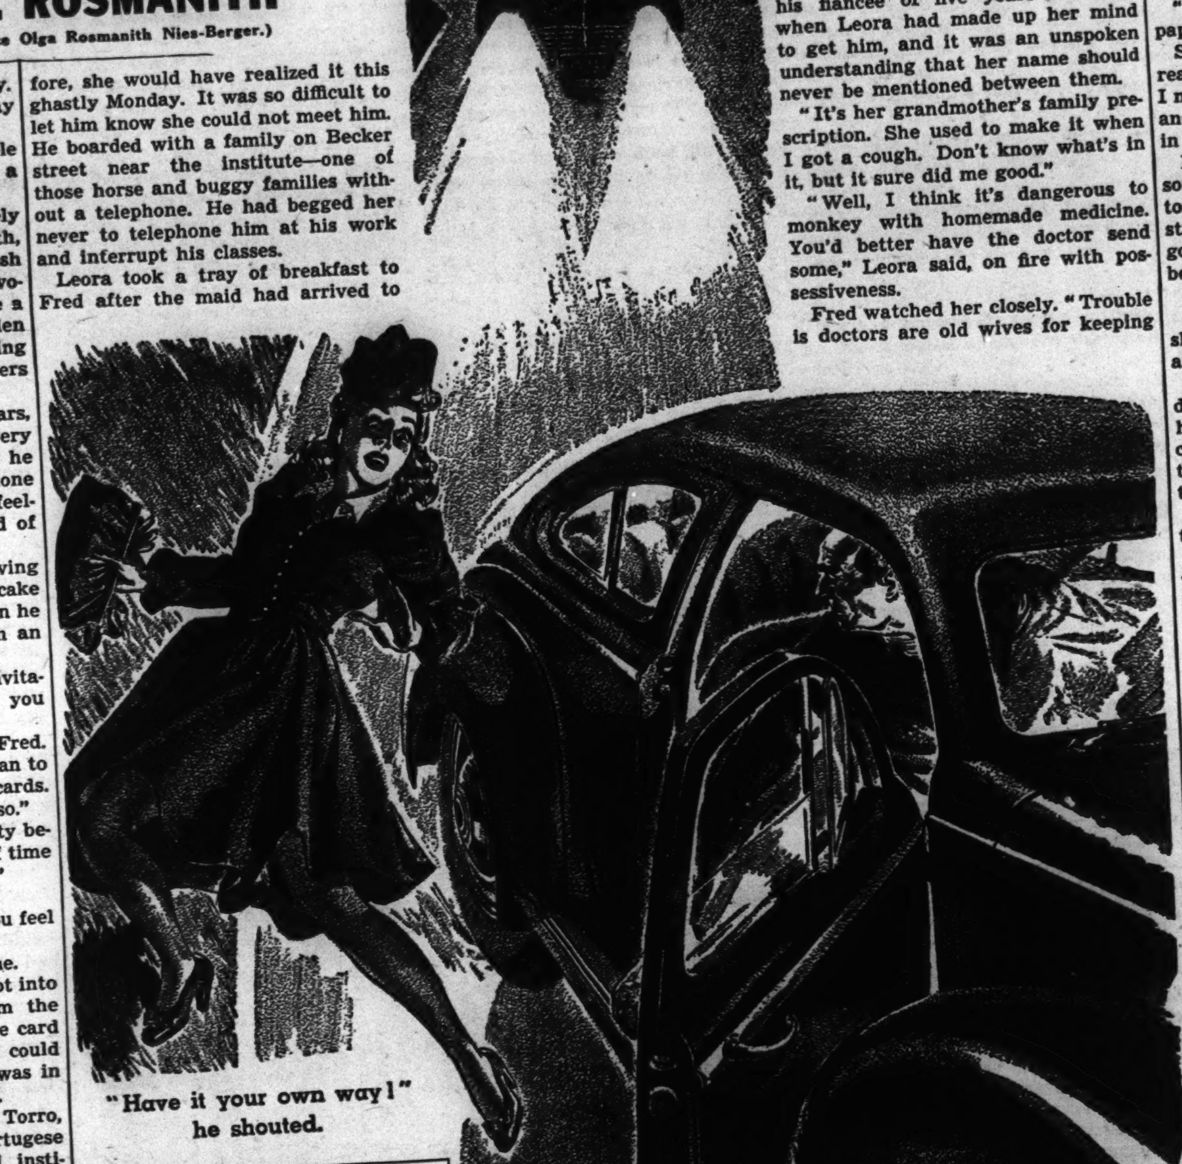
THE TRAVELING MAN'S WIFE

By OLGA L. ROSMANITH

(Copyright: 1942: By Grace Olga Rosmanith Nies-Berger.)



"Have it your own way!" he shouted.

LEORA had come to hate Sunday. It was still Fred's favorite day of the week.

He was sitting at the table in the breakfast nook gouging out a picture in a wood block.

He thought Leora was divinely pretty with her full sensuous mouth, fragile features, and deep childish dimples. She had a slender but voluptuous figure and she moved like a dancer. Fred didn't notice the sullen look of her mouth. He was watching the grace of her long white fingers deftly icing a chocolate cake.

They had been married two years, but he still had the feeling that every week-end was a honeymoon. But he still felt guilty about what he'd done to Kathryn Cooper. That uneasy feeling was growing stronger instead of diminishing.

The telephone rang in the living room. Leora went on with her cake and Fred went to answer it. When he returned, she surprised him with an unaccustomed show of temper.

"You've turned down some invitation. I heard you. What were you saying 'No' to?"

Geniality was a habit with Fred. "Nothing much. The Becketts plan to waste their evening playing cards. They want us to waste ours also."

Leora was driven by a necessity beyond control. "So it's a waste of time now for us to enjoy ourselves?"

Fred stared at her aghast.

"All right, Lee. We'll go if you feel that way."

He went back to the telephone.

Lee felt relieved when they got into the car and drove away from the house, but when she was at the card table she felt no happier. She could not concentrate her mind. It was in a ferment of gnawing anxiety.

She was in love with Ramon Torro, professor of Spanish and Portugese at the Somerton Commercial institute. He had been trying to get a better paying business job for a long time. Now a coffee importing company in New York had summoned him for an interview. How could she go on living if he got a job that would take him back to South America?

"That's the second time you've revoked, Leora." Fred's voice held an irritating hint of sternness.

"Sorry I can't play. I'm not myself tonight." She threw down her cards with unashamed ill temper. The Becketts were tactless. They wanted to know if she had a headache or something. Fred began to cough and Mrs. Beckett was diverted.

"That cough sounds pretty bad. You shouldn't have come out in this wind. I'm going to take your temperature."

It turned out to be up three degrees. Mrs. Beckett was officious. "You should be home in bed. And stay there tomorrow. Now wrap up well and go home."

Fred coughed nearly all night in his twin bed and apologized to Leora for keeping her awake. But her own misery was keeping her awake anyway.

She had known when she married Fred that she would never love him the way he loved her, but she had figured that security would compensate for everything. She had not dreamed that when she had forgotten her brush with terror, his week-end presence would become such an irritant.

"It'll soon be morning, Fred. I'll get you something from the drug store to take with you."

Fred felt a quiver of pain round the ribs. A twinge of his old enemy—pleurisy.

"Take with me? I'm not going. Elaine was right. I'll stay where I am for a day or two."

Leora woke out of a doze, heart hammering with panic. She had a date with Ramon for Monday night and a date with Tom the night after. Tom had been to Florida and was bringing her presents from Miami. But he could wait. She only encouraged him for the money he spent on her. But every hour not spent with Ramon was the very stuff of life wasted.

Everything was Ramon now. Everything. If she had not known it before, she would have realized it this ghastly Monday. It was so difficult to let him know she could not meet him. He boarded with a family on Becker street near the institute—one of those horse and buggy families without a telephone. He had begged her never to telephone him at his work and interrupt his classes.

Leora took a tray of breakfast to Fred after the maid had arrived to prepare it. He refused to touch anything but the coffee.

"Looks good, honey, but I'm so hot and thick in the head."

She was as fresh and pretty as a bunch of daffodils standing beside his bed. But only a mirage of wifely comfort. Fred closed his eyes to shut out the sight of it.

"That's right, Fred. Try to get a little nap while I go to the drug store."

She asked the druggist to recommend a cough mixture, and took the first one he offered. Then she went to the telephone box. It was always easy to get Tom. He was a cigar wholesaler, the boss in his own office.

Leora Postpones Her Date with Tom

His deep, jovial voice was at once available.

"Yes, Tom, it's I. About our date Tuesday, it'll have to be Wednesday."

His voice wasn't so jovial after all. "That's bad, baby. In fact, it's terrible. I need you like I never needed you. I haven't seen you for three weeks.

"I'm in a spot of trouble, Leora. I have to keep quiet about it, but I sure could do with a few comforting words."

"All right, Tom. I'll say some on Wednesday."

She hung up the phone and forgot him. She went into the Western Union and sent Ramon a telegram. She addressed it to Beeker street after a torture of indecision.

The villa Fred's income provided was modern and spacious, but this hideous day it felt like a mouse trap because it was full of him.

She unlocked a drawer full of Tom's presents to get out a bottle of perfume. It was expensive, but her hair smelled like the memory of a flower garden after a dash of that liquid gold in the rinsing water.

"Why do you keep your dresser drawers locked?" Fred spoke to relieve his boredom, not from the slightest actual curiosity.

Leora's vivid blush roused it.

"You know what maids are. Silk stockings and things. I don't trust them."

Una, the colored girl, was far too large to wear any of Leora's things, even if she would steal, which Fred thought ridiculous. He didn't feel well enough to argue. He lay propped up on the pillow watching his wife, and it seemed to him she was standing before the open drawer as if she wanted to hide it. She turned round when she had got what she wanted and relocked it and saw his watching eyes on her.

Her nerves betrayed her. "What's got into you? You're too sick to work, but you're well enough to spy on me."

Fred looked his appalled astonishment. He had never known what it was to burn with frustrated love and agonize with suspense, so he did not recognize the symptoms. But as an ace salesman he was a natural psychologist. He knew resentment when he saw it. He knew that his presence in the house when he should have been driving to Detroit was some kind of disaster for Leora.

He turned his face into the pillow without answering her. Leora went out of the room and closed the door, glad to escape his attention. She was unaware she had given him something dark to think about during his long, inactive day.

Una was pleased to get a chance to do something for "nice Mr. Wilson." She arranged a delicate lunch and coaxed him to eat some, after which she gave him a dose of the drug store cough medicine. He was sleeping at 4 o'clock when Leora, gleaming with perfumed freshness, looked in to see him. She crept out again.

At 6:30 he awoke and called her.

"This medicine's no good," Fred complained. "I wish you'd call Kathryn and ask her to make some for me."

Leora was shocked into complete attention. "Fred Wilson, whatever do you mean?"

Fred was kind and unsuspicious, but he was not a fool. Her cynical exhibition of selfishness had got his back up. Kathryn Cooper had been his fiancée of five years' standing when Leora had made up her mind to get him, and it was an unspoken understanding that her name should never be mentioned between them.

"It's her grandmother's family prescription. She used to make it when I got a cough. Don't know what's in it, but it sure did me good."

"Well, I think it's dangerous to monkey with homemade medicine. You'd better have the doctor send some," Leora said, on fire with possessiveness.

Fred watched her closely. "Trouble is doctors are old wives for keeping coughs in bed. Don't want to be stuck here for a week." He saw her face drain of expression, but not before apprehension had quivered across it.

"We don't need either. You're right about getting involved with the doctor."

"Then call up Kathryn. I want some sleep tonight. She cares what happens to me. She wasn't going to stay home and paint her finger nails while I went off alone. She was going to travel with me."

"My Lord! Then why didn't you marry the perfect woman?"

"You know why, Leora."

She did know why. But he didn't. He couldn't possibly have guessed that a girl with such instant power over men could get in a wild panic over what was to become of her. He thought any one of a dozen would have been glad to marry and support her.

"I don't know what you mean, Fred, but let's not quarrel. It's only natural I won't have——"

The telephone bell shrilled thru the house. Leora's stomach felt like shooting up in an elevator. Seven o'clock! Suppose it were Ramon.

Una had finished and gone. Leora left her sentence in midair and flew down the stairs. She shut the living room door behind her and picked up the blind instrument of so many fates. Came the one voice that had ever had power over her.

"O, Ramon——"

He hadn't got the telegram. He hadn't been home all day. He hadn't been at the institute. He was going away and he'd got the job for a friend already.

"I wondered what was keeping you, Leora——"

"Ramon, it's terrible, I know, but I can't come tonight."

He did not sound particularly upset. "Too bad. I'm going to New York Wednesday. I thought we could talk tonight and have a last dance tomorrow."

Only two nights left. Leora became reckless.

"Wait for me, Ramon. Get a newspaper to pass the time. I will come."

She went back upstairs with a lie ready. "Fred, that was Ellen Dunne. I made a date to go to her apartment, and she won't let me put it off. She's in some sort of trouble."

Fred accepted the story. "No reason why you shouldn't go if you want to." He pulled himself up in bed and stretched his arms. "In fact, I'm going to get up and go—I feel much better."

"Go? Go where?"

"To Detroit. I'll have time for a short sleep in the morning. It's clear and dry—and I like night driving."

Leora got his bag ready while he dressed, cheerful with unexpected happiness. She poured out a dose of cough medicine and packed the bottle. Fred left the glass untouched on the bathroom window sill.

As they drove downhill toward the town Fred asked:

"Where does Ellen live now? Or where shall I drop you?"

Leora thought of the streets round the Tadworth Building.

"The Castle Apartment Hotel."

Fred whistled. "That's reputed to be a shady place, Leora."

"That's all right. She lives in a made-over house a little way round the corner."

Fred dropped her with a casual kissless good-by in case he infected her with his cold, and at last she was rid of him. She felt worn out with all she had gone thru, of disappointment and emotion, but as she walked toward love her strength flowed in again.

Leora Finds Ramon Waiting at Wall Table

She saw Ramon sitting at a wall-side table before he saw her—his dark liquid eyes engrossed with the evening paper. She was stabbed by his compelling charm every time she saw him, but coming loss made tonight's stab unbearable.

"What's the matter?" he asked as she sat down beside him.

She slipped her hand into his under the table and a tingling warmth ran thru her. Now she was really happy. She was facing darkness, but for the moment the sunlight was on her.

"All my troubles are gone now. Tell me what happened."

"I got the job, but only if I go immediately. So I took it. And how glad I am to leave this colorless, uninspiring country."

"O, Ramon, there are such wonderful things in America."

"I agree—for those with money. But there is color and pleasure with little in Buenos Aires."

"O, Ramon, please take me with you."

"How can I, foolish one? You are married. I have no money."

"There must be a way. There are always ways if one wants something enough."

"Then tell me just one. Please, you tell me."

But her mind was too numb to think of one.

Her throat was so tight she could not swallow her dinner, but Ramon was eating with a good appetite. Indeed he seemed in better spirits than usual—radiant with a quiet satisfaction. That was to be expected in a man who had just got himself a new job. He seemed already far away from her. It would be different when they were in his little coupé isolated in the country darkness. She would be able to think efficiently when he could stop and take her in his arms.

But when they went out to the street he said they had better go to a movie. "I had a chance to sell the car. I didn't want to give it up till Wednesday, but he insisted. When you're not turning it in for a new one you can't miss a chance to dispose of it."

After her nerve-racking week-end, the evening was an anticlimax of sickening disappointment.

Ramon was free from the institute, but he said he had much to do before meeting her the following evening.

NEXT SUNDAY—"THERE'S A WAY," A SHORT STORY BY T. T. FLYNN

HIS FABULOUS FORTUNE

By RUPERT HUGHES

(Copyright: 1942: By Rupert Hughes.)

What Has Gone Before

The Gregory Zivotti, son of a notorious New York racketeer known as the Brute, has been brought up in California under his mother's maiden name of Williams, he has been spending all his spare time learning his father's trade. In gangster circles he is called Grongo from his likeness to the vicious sea eel, the conger. Wheely, crippled protege of the Brute, tries to get Grongo to join the army and fight for humanity instead of against it, but Grongo is determined to go his own way. The Brute loved his saintly wife and swore to her on her deathbed that he would hide the $200,000 she had saved for their son and not give it to him or tell him about it until he was 25. Anxious to carry out her wish, the Brute hides the money in her statue for her grave in California and tells his son to erect a better monument later, making Grongo promise to break the present one into bits with his own hands, thus being sure he will find the money his mother left him if anything happens to the Brute. Grongo convinces his father he can regain control of the restaurant racket that has been dwindling since the law caught up with the Brute several years ago. The only way the Brute escaped prison at that time was to promise Wolf Jaegel $100,000 to take the rap for him. Jaegel's prison term is now almost up and the money will be due him. Grongo starts out to get control of the wealthy Regal chain restaurants by making love to Tony Rever, daughter of the president. He also hires Puff McGarvin, whose brother Sandy is one of Grongo's gang, to make love to Tony's brother Harry. Grongo plans to marry Tony and blackmail her father. When she rejects his proposal, but agrees to spend a week-end with him, he decides to kidnap her under the guise of romance. He and Sandy are thwarted in the kidnap attempt by a Rever detective. Sandy and the detective kill each other and Grongo is arrested. The Brute has to spend $70,000 of the $100,000 he has been saving to pay Jaegel, to bribe his judge and lawyer to get Grongo out of the scrape.

INSTALMENT V.

GRONGO drove by the Rever house in his ferociously swift and powerful car, and Tony was on the steps, then inside the car, and they were on their way to and thru Central park and points north. He tried to gather her in with his right arm, but she said:

"Let's wait for that till we get a few questions answered. First, you were present when the double killing was done right next door to us. True or false?"

"True," he said.

"Your chauffeur murdered my father's manager."

"False."

"What?"

"True and false."

"Phooey, eh? If you've brought me out here to scatter a little more of your confetti of lies, let's go back."

"Listen, darling," he pleaded. "Sometimes it's hard to dress up facts so that they look like facts."

He told her the truth as he had seen it: His encounter with Sandy; the attack on them by a supposed thug; Sandy's effort to free Gregory; Gregory's horror when Sandy drew a knife and killed the stranger, who then killed Sandy.

Tony listened in growing excitement.

"Well, there I was with my boy Sandy dead and an utter stranger dead. Put yourself in my place. If I had waited there till the police came, I might have been forced to explain that I had planned to take you away on our little picnic party. That wouldn't have looked very pretty in the papers, would it? I thought it might save you if I dashed into your house right away."

"But you lied to me."

"Darling, I didn't want to unload the horrible facts on you. I wanted to keep you out of it at all costs. And I did, didn't I?"

"True," she said, reluctant yet eager to acquit him of double-dealing. "But you lied to me a lot. Even the name you gave me was false."

"It was the name my dead mother gave me—her family name. I knew no other all my life till she died. She was a good woman and tried to make a good man of me. My father is a sweet old fellow, and he dotes on me; but I've been trying to live down his past and make an honest future for myself. You were my future."

This tender confession that he had lied for a noble purpose, had cheated in order to go straight, made a deep impression on Tony's sort of mind. She was a bit of a crook herself. She was under no compulsion to make money crookedly or otherwise; but she had a sincere dislike for obeying rules or conforming to standards. It fascinated her to be vaguely involved in a double murder because of an amour with a handsome young man who turned out to be the son of a famous criminal.

She was advancing famously along the road to disaster. She did not suspect, what Grongo had not, of course, hinted at, his original purpose in cultivating her, and his ruthless plans for using her as a weapon of extortion. Instead of that he was saying:

"I was a fool to hope that I could escape the penalty of being my father's son. I was even insane enough to propose marriage to you. You weren't fool enough to consent, but I'll always love you, Tony. Forgive me for it, won't you?

"I'm going to get a job in New Jersey. This horrible situation makes it better for me to keep away from New York for a while."

"Well, by the time you've found a job and it's paying enough for the upkeep of a bride, I may be back from California."

"California?"

"California. My parents are so furious with me for coming so near to getting a lot of purple publicity, that they're shipping me out to the care of an old harpy of an aunt, my father's sister. Fortunately she has a home in Palm Springs for the season. That will be my address, in care of Mrs. Arthur Clinton—in case you might be writing—or visiting Sunkist California."

Grongo was in a blind rage at the situation. With Tony gone, his occupation was gone, the Regal chain was gone. To follow her to California would take money, a steady stream of it. He wondered how long his father would go on supplying it.

"I'll have to wait for you here," he said. "Till then, Tony sweet, be true to me."

"In Palm Springs?" she demanded. "You ask a lonely gal to play solitaire in Palm Springs while her fine-feathered, flirtatious friend is consoling himself in merriest Manhattan?"

"New Jersey," he corrected dolefully.

"Well, even in New Jersey they must have some diversions. Let's just take rain checks. Remember the address: Mrs. Arthur Clinton, Palm Springs. If we meet again under happier skies we'll ask no questions and tell no lies, and maybe we can get married some day—to each other or somebody else as the case may be."

And that was all she would promise. When he let her out at last at her door, she ducked under his clutch and ran up the steps. But she threw him a kiss as she put her own key in the door. Grongo decided to get after his father as soon as possible and raise enough money for carrying on a long campaign against Miss Tony Rever. But somebody else had got to his father first.

The Brute had returned to his apartment in disorder and dismay. His boy was further from him than ever, and now in grave danger. Jaegel would be out of Sing Sing in the morning, and Zivotti shuddered to think how unreasonable those convicts got after being walled up for a few years—"stir-crazy," they called it.

The Brute opened his wall safe and and studied that depleted $100,000. It was only $29,000 now. But he had $2,000 more that he kept for emergencies. He pounded his head with both hands to try to beat out an idea of where and how to raise the balance of the Jaegel fund. He telephoned to every one he could think of, but everybody was out or had a good excuse.

The next morning he began again, telephoning, going out on visits, cajoling, threatening, but with absolutely no success, except to confirm the general gossip that he was broke.

At noon he went back to his apartment to find some special telephone numbers not listed in the public book. He left the elevator and hurried to the door with the key ready.

There stood Wolf Jaegel, as unexplained and sudden as a ghost.

Jaegel Ignores Brute's Offer to Shake Hands

"Allo, Jaegie!"

Jaegel kept his right hand deep in his pocket. It might have been a pistol that poked its muzzle into the corner of the pocket; it might have been merely Jaegel's long forefinger. But it might have been expensive to make sure.

Jaegel ignored the Brute's hand and nodded at the door. The Brute opened it and stepped back to wave Jaegel in. Jaegel motioned him in ahead.

"Have a chair," said the Brute. Jaegel's gaunt stare ran around the gaudy luxuries, the cushions, the view of the river. He compared the room with the barren cell, the iron bed, the slop pail that had been his for years. But he said nothing. He had acquired silence.

He sat down on a gaudy overstuffed chair and seemed surprised by the softness of it. He took his hand out of his pocket. It had a pistol in it, a big one, an ugly one.

"I came for my wages," said Jaegel.

"O, your wedges," the Brute smiled. "You mean 'at hunner' t'ousan' dollars."

"A hundred and seventy-eight thousand, three hundred and six dollars."

The Brute's eyes popped.

"W'ere you get those extras?"

"You promised to pay me compound interest. I have had time to figure it out. For five years it amounts to $78,306. Throw off the six. I'll throw off the 300, for cash. Call it an even 78,000, plus the principal. Give it to me and I'll go."

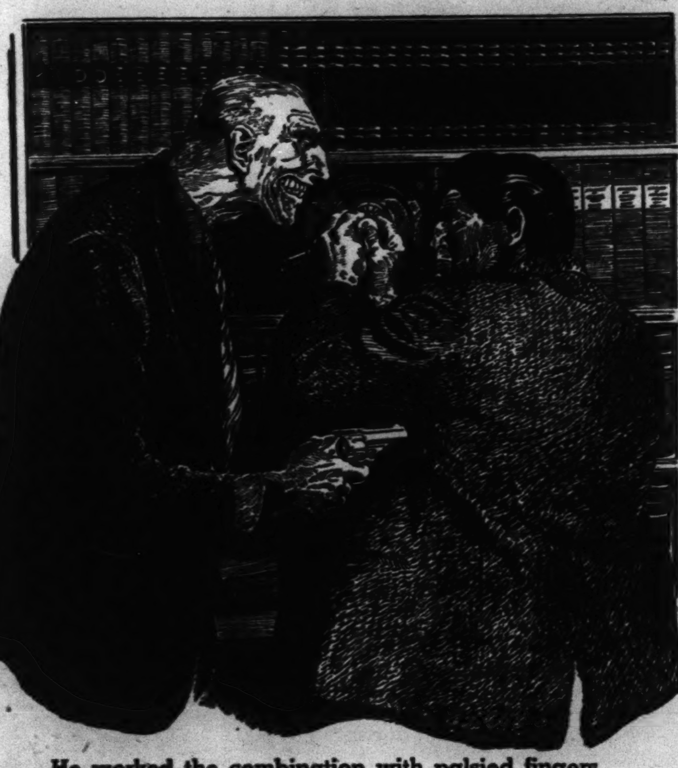
"I don' remember no compoun' int'res'!" the Brute roared. "You got crazy notions up there."

"You swore on your mother's grave."

"I swore a hunner' t'ousan'. But compoun' int'res'? No. I never swore no compoun' int'res'."

Jaegel's rage was frightful.

"I knew you'd welch. But—well, give me the straight interest then—6 per cent for five years—that's 30,000."



He worked the combination with palsied fingers.

The Brute was so addled with fear he leapt at that.

"Ho kay! I'll give you the t'irty t'ousan'. It's all I got."

Jaegel could hardly believe his ears.

"All you've got? Where's the hundred?"

"The t'irty, not the hunnerd, is all I got. All I can get. Later—soon—you can have it all. But just now——"

"I ought to kill you now. I ought to, by God—and I will. I don't believe you've got even the thirty, you——"

"Yes, I got it. I get it."

He hated to let Jaegel see where his wall safe was hidden, but that pistol was the supreme arbiter. He pushed aside some books in his $4,000 library and disclosed a steel door. He worked the combination with palsied fingers, and scraped the cupboard clean to make up the 30,000. He laid it on a table before Jaegel, who sifted it with his left hand, and counted it. It was an enormous fortune to a pauper evicted from prison, but it was not what he had expected at the end of his four-year nightmare. However, he raked it up and stuffed it in his pocket, saying:

"That's my tip. Now pay the bill."

"I swear to God 'at's all I got," said the Brute.

Jaegel was cursed with an inability to believe that anybody could or would tell the truth. He went mad with anger and roared:

"And I swear to God I'll choke it out of you!"

He stuffed his pistol back in his pocket, his long arms shot out, and he took the Brute by his fat throat. Ghastly sounds came from it as the Brute tried to tear the steel claws away before he took the last desperate step of reaching for his knife.

As he wriggled and glugged, a door burst open and that little chariot of Wheely's came in at full speed. Seeing what he had imagined from what he had overheard thru the keyhole, he raised the scepter to bring it down on Jaegel's skull. But Jaegel was tall and his broad back was arched above his head as he pinned the Brute down across a table.

Wheely's legs were helpless to lift him and his scepter struck no higher than Jaegel's shoulder blade. It felt like a fist on a grizzly bear, causing more surprise than pain.

Glancing over his shoulder Jaegel recognized the Brute's ancient retainer and simply lashed out backward with a mighty kick that sent the wheeled chair backward till it struck the wall.

But Wheely sent it forward again and came on with his puny weapon poised. Hurling the Brute to the floor, Jaegel whirled, took the scepter blow on an upraised left forearm, then caught Wheely by the lapels of his coat, whisked him up out of his chair, flung him down, and kicked him senseless. He had his heel lifted to shatter the white face of Wheely, but a side glance showed him the groggy Brute crawling toward him with a dirk in his right hand.

Before the Brute could get to his feet, Jaegel whipped out his pistol and was about to shoot, when discretion checked him. A pistol shot would attract outside attention and solve no problems. But his rage was so great that he twirled the pistol in his hand, gripped the barrel, and brought the butt of it down on the Brute's head, nearly cracking his skull. The Brute went forward to the floor, the blood from his scalp mingling with the pattern of the rug.

The explosion of wrath eased Jaegel's tension a little. It also gave him a chance for meditation. If Zivotti died Jaegel would have to go into hiding without a penny of his principal. The police would hunt him down and send him back to Sing Sing, perhaps to the chair. He must save his victim to save himself. Noting that Wheely was still motionless, Jaegel kicked the wheelchair over on him, dashed to the bathroom, soaked towels in water, returned, knelt, and bathed Zivotti's wounded scalp. Tenderly as a nurse he touched the raw wound with alcohol to sterilize it and got ice from the refrigerator, wrapped the cubes in a towel, and made an ice-cap of it.

Zivotti came back thru pain to wonderment where he was and what had struck him. Suddenly Jaegel was lifting him and dumping him into a chair, slapping him in the face with a towel soaked in ice water. Zivotti opened his eyes and looked into eyes like ice water. He knew what he had to deal with. Jaegel was saying:

"Look here, Brute. You had time enough to get the money—four years. I gave you fair warning from up the river of what I'd do to you if you didn't have it ready for me. I get that hundred thousand or you die. You know I mean it."

If he had not been hit over the head the Brute's singing brain would never have betrayed their secret, but before he knew it his loose mind had let it slip:

"Listen, Jaegel, I had the money. Not the compoun' int'res'. I di'n' unnerstan' about 'at. But I had me the hunner' t'ousan'. Then my boy he gets into some trouble. It is no fault of him. He is mix up wit' a murder. I hadda get him out. I hadda buy me a judge. I hadda buy Poshler for fifty t'ousan', so's my boy can get to New Jersey. I hadda take your money. But gimme time."

"Time!" shrieked Jaegel. "Don't use the word. I've done it. Four years! Four years waiting for today and my money.

"I took your rap, didn't I? Don't forget it. Four years! You had a wife. I had nobody, nothing. I know you're lying to me. You always did. You're holding out on me. You've got the money. I'm going to get it. You remember what you did to your old playmate 'Pig' Spetts? Well, unless I get my money—all of it—I'll do that to you and to your mama's boy besides. As God's my judge, I will. Remember Spetts?"

The Brute's memory was working so hard inside his skull that the outside of it sweat. Many years before, in his gangster days, a former partner of his called Pig Spetts had turned stool pigeon. Zivotti and a friend had captured him by the familiar device of a pocketed pistol stuck in his ribs. They had compelled Pig to enter a car, had driven him to the river, put him in a rowboat, paddled to the middle of the deep Hudson, and set his bare feet in a box in which they poured fresh concrete.

They talked to Pig while the concrete slowly and horribly hardened. They laughed at his frenzied prayers, then they rolled him over the side of the boat, knowing that his body would never rise to the surface. They had given him half an hour of living hell and that had been their recompense.

The Brute did not relish the idea of such a death for himself, but the mere thought of his son having his life finished so hideously was beyond all bearing. He wrung his hands and rocked from side to side in his chair. He was sick with the thought that he might have brought torture and death on his boy, giving Jaegel's money to Poshler.

Abruptly a shaft of light struck thru the curled black smoke of his misery. He remembered the two hundred thousand dollars in that statue of his wife. It was Grongo's money, to be given to him on his 25th birthday. But he would never live to reach it, unless Jaegel were pacified. Half of Grongo's fortune would send Jaegel on his way, still leaving Grongo rich and alive. The Brute knew that mamma would want to save her boy from torture, not to say death. His half-crazed brain could see her statue putting out its marble arms to him in appeal. He said to Jaegel:

"Look, Jaegel, my son has money—he has planty money to pay you. I di'n' want to use his money to save me; but to save him it is right."

"What kind of game is this?" Jaegel snapped. "What are you trying to put over now?"

"I'm telling you! My son has the money. He has two times the money. His mamma lef' him two hunner' t'ousan' dollars in cash.

"I swear on my mother's grave, Jaegel. My son has two hunner t'ousan' in a safe place."

Jaegel laughed: "Telephone him to come here and bring it with him."

"He cannot come into town. I don't know no telephone for him. But I know where to find him in New Jersey. I go find him."

"We go find him," said Jaegel. "I'll just escort you on this little hunt. I'll be right with you and if you try anything—well, you know me, Brute. You know better than to make a break or call a cop or anything."

"I know better."

Jaegel put a patch of tape over the Brute's scalp wound and his hat over that. The Brute pleaded:

"Before we go, pick up poor Wheely and fix him like you done me and put him on his bed."

"Ah, leave him lay," said Jaegel. "Get going."

The Brute was afraid to tell Jaegel that the money was in California until they were in a cab. He must give Jaegel only a piece of the truth at a time lest Jaegel take a plane,

HIS FABULOUS FORTUNE

What the Brute was planning was to get a word with Grongo privately and then arrange with Jaegel to hold the Brute as hostage while Grongo flew out to California and secured the cash, or let Jaegel hold Grongo as hostage while the Brute flew out.

Traffic was heavy, but not a taxicab came along empty. There was one standing across the street, however. The Brute pointed to it and Jaegel nodded. They both beckoned, whistled, shouted; but the driver was listening to his radio. So Jaegel said:

"We'll have to cross over to him. Don't try any funny business."

He took the Brute by the arm and they waited for an opening in the torrent. They were half way across when a drunken driver pursued by a police radio car shot down the street in a wavering course. Jaegel and the Brute hesitated, then broke in opposite directions. There was a loud thud as if a giant club swinging at 50 miles an hour had struck the fat body of the Brute. It went flying, skidding, sprawling, bleeding, bones and flesh breaking. The car swirled and crashed against the curb as the police car came to a stop. Jaegel thought it best to lose himself in the gathering crowd.

The uproar in the street caught the ear of Wheely, who was just regaining consciousness. He went forward to the window on his hands, dragging his feet after him. He raised himself to the window sill, and, pushing the window up, lay out across the ledge and stared into the street far below. There he saw the body of the Brute lying in the street and recognized it by the clothes it wore.

He longed to let himself slide forward and take the fall to the street. It would end his troubles and he would follow the Brute to plead for him at the Throne of Mercy. But Grongo was still alive. Wheely might still be useful somehow to him. So he lay and watched the departure of the Brute.

An ambulance arrived. The doorman of the apartment house identified Zivotti. The wreckage of him was lifted to a litter and carried off to the hospital where all the skill of the surgeons was devoted to saving a life that all the skill of the police had been unable to take.

An officer rang the bell of the apartment and waited till Wheely had worked himself back into his chair and opened the door.

Wheely satisfied the officer that he knew nothing of the accident, and promised to let Zivotti's son know of it, if he could get in touch with him. The officer went away satisfied. But there was nothing in the world now to satisfy Wheely.

That night Grongo bought in New Jersey an early edition of a next morning's paper and read under a small topline the statement that Brute Zivotti had been hit by a car in front of his residence and taken to the hospital.

Mere risk never kept Grongo from anything. The fear of rearrest in New York could not keep him from his father at such a crisis. He drove his car thru the Hudson tube, and sped to the hospital. He was admitted at once and walked into the room where his father's heavy body bulged the blankets.

The door opened. Her boy stood there. God was good and had let Zivotti live till he could tell his son where the money was. But now his peace was gone, for God had not left him anything to talk with. His tongue was torn almost out of his shattered mouth and both his hands were bandaged pulp. He could neither talk nor write. His effort to smile was pitiful, his struggle to speak was heartbreaking. He could not say what it was so necessary to say:

"Beware of Jaegel—beware of Jaegel. Your mamma's money is in her statue."

He struggled, but only uncouth gibberish issued from his lungs.

Grongo tried to help him by pretending that he got the messages.

"I understand, Babbo. If you don't pull thru—you will, of course—but if you don't, I'm to take you to mamma and put up a granite slab with your name and her. And I'm to take away the statue so that no one else can have it."

The Brute nodded violently at each phrase. Yet Grongo said nothing about breaking the statue. The Brute's soul screamed at him, but the result was only a wolf's howling and snarling. Finally Grongo said:

"O, yes, and I'm to break the statue to pieces—small pieces, all by myself."

The Brute's eyes rejoiced, but he had much else to tell. Of this Grongo could make nothing at all, and at last the nurse drove him away.

"I'll see you tomorrow, Babbo," he said, leaving.

He knew that he would not; but of all the lies he ever told that one must have been the lightest sin in his ledger. He bent and kissed his father on the brow and smiled down into eyes of such torment as only an unlanguaged animal can feel.

On his way out, Grongo talked to the doctor, who told him gently that there was no hope for his father's recovery. So he went to the office of the hospital and arranged for the shipment of the body to the cemetery at Brawley. From the desk he called up the Berti Brothers and asked them to make the granite slab with the two names on it, and ship it at once. It was expensive but simple—cheaper than going out to California himself. Later he would telegraph to have the statue removed and stored until further orders.

Grongo was overwhelmed now with loneliness. He had no parents, no friends. The only person he could think of to turn to was Puff McGarvin. He realized that he had sent her no word of sympathy for the loss of her brother. He might give her money to pay for Sandy's decent burial and to pay for her own upkeep during her period of grief.

Instead of telephoning he went to the little flat that served as her headquarters and point of departure. To his surprise he found her at home, and dressed in black. She had evidently been crying. She could be lonely, too; she also was an orphan, and the last of her family was gone. Grief had given her a surprising look of almost saintly purity.

When she opened the door and let Grongo in, she was so dazed that she could not speak. Then she threw off the mask of saintliness.

"You murderer! How can you come here after you sent Sandy to his death? You stood by and let that big brute kill him. No, you didn't stand by. You ran away. I wish to God I could stand by and see you killed. I wouldn't run away."

"I'm heartbroken about Sandy," he said. "I came to tell you so, and to offer you money enough to give him the funeral he deserves."

"I don't want your dirty money. I don't need it. Harry Rever took care of that, and of me. You sent me after him for your own rotten purposes, but he's as white as you're yellow."

"I'm sorry, Puff," said Grongo. "I won't annoy you any more, but if ever you need a friend or any money, you can leave a message for me at Joe Torella's restaurant in Jersey City. I usually eat there."

"There'll be no messages from me, no matter where or what you eat. I hope it's poison—rat poison."

Underworld Story Starts Puff on Hunt

The very next day Puff chanced to run into the gossip spreading like wildfire thru the underbrush, that Wolf Jaegel was out of prison and had been with Brute Zivotti when he died. Some said that Jaegel had thrown Zivotti under the car that killed him, because Zivotti had given Jaegel's money to Grongo. And they said Jaegel was combing the town for Grongo.

This story gave Puff a new purpose in life and she set out on a still hunt.

Two days later, when Grongo was having his luncheon alone in Joe Torella's restaurant, a tall man he had never seen before walked to his table and sat down without being invited. He introduced himself:

"I am Mr. Jaegel—Wolfgang Jaegel, an old friend of your father's."

This was Grongo's first sight of the man, and he was entirely ignorant of the fact that Jaegel had been with his father and had been unintentionally the cause of his death. But the name "Jaegel" had no pleasant or promising connotation in Grongo's mind; and it was only with an effort that he achieved a smile and a pleasant greeting:

"My father often spoke of you, Mr. Jaegel. He was expecting you. It's too bad that he—passed on before you met him. He had some money for you, I believe."

Jaegel's eyes were no more encouraging than a hungry wolf's. He said in his low, confidential voice:

"But I did see your father before he—passed on, as you put it so well. But he didn't have the money. He told me you have it."

This was too ridiculous. But Grongo's sincere smile looked like pure bluff when he said:

"I have the money? It was a hundred thousand dollars, wasn't it?"

"It was. But with compound interest it is exactly one hundred seventy-eight thousand three hundred six dollars. I'll compromise for one hundred forty-eight thousand three hundred six dollars—in fact, for cash, I'll accept an even one forty."

Grongo grinned:

"If you'll cut off the last three ciphers I might manage the one forty. But I couldn't go much higher. Fact is, poor Dad didn't leave me a cent, so far as I know."

"But your mother did," said Jaegel.

"That's news to me," said Grongo. "How much did she leave me?"

"Your father told me that your mother left you two hundred thousand dollars and he was on his way over here to find you and get part of it when he was hit by that car. What have you got to say to that?"

"Plenty, but I don't dare say it. You're bigger than I am, and I haven't got a gun."

"But I have," said Jaegel. "I've got it aimed at you now under the table. You'd better talk fast."

Grongo could see by the man's eyes that he meant what he said.

"I don't doubt your word, Mr. Jaegel. My father must have been just sparring for time. I never even heard of a penny left me by my mother. I haven't the faintest idea where the money could be if she left it. I don't believe she had any money to leave me. She never spoke of it. My father never mentioned it. I'm telling you the truth. On my word of honor!"

"Your word of honor! Do you think your word of honor is worth the spit you waste on it? Do you think I'm idiot enough to believe you? On my word of honor, I'll blow a hole thru you this minute unless——"

Grongo did a bit of thinking; then he shrugged his shoulders and laughed:

"Well, the jig's up, I guess. There's no fooling you, Mr. Jaegel. Come along with me to the bank, and I'll draw out the money."

Jaegel smiled with triumph and relaxed a little.

THE TRAVELING MAN'S WIFE

Otherwise he would have spent the whole day with her.

The next day seemed as long as a week to Leora. A poignant fear was added to her grief and frustration. If he loved her, would he be so cheerful about leaving her? Was it possible he did not mind the separation?

She began to dress long before it was necessary. It was important she should look her best on his last night. She must make him remember her charm, and this was the way he would remember her.

On the way to meet Ramon the solution of their problem came to her. She would borrow enough money from Tom to go to New York. She would get a job there and keep looking for the chance to join a dance troupe going to the Argentine.

Moving to the music in Ramon's arms, her body seemed to fill with blue sky. It was her human right to be thus happy. Nothing could be wrong that would perpetuate this feeling for a lifetime.

"Ramon," she whispered. "I've figured the way to join you before long."

Ramon was serious about his dancing. "Don't talk now. Tell me later."

Back at their table in its little booth, the evening got further out of hand. Fear robbed her of her teasing self-confidence and exposed her supplicating ardor. Yet Ramon had never shown less. He said politely—"Yes, I'm sure you can do it. Of course I think you are good enough."

But Leora, psychic with pain, was aware of his lack of enthusiasm. He did not believe in her ability to succeed in such a venture—or worse, he did not want her to succeed. The final shock wiped out even this misery. He looked at his wrist watch at 11 and said they'd have to get to the station. He'd decided not to wait till morning. His bags were there waiting. The train came thru at midnight.

Leora went to see him off, acting to hide her pessimism, but feeling her life was over.

Next day her fright returned to her. Ramon was Latin. Queer, moody, and difficult to understand. How could he say what he wanted to say with no car, where they could have a little privacy? It would be different when she got to Buenos Aires. Ramon was right. What could Somerton offer them of the color and glamor of living?

Tom Harris was waiting for her at 7 at the corner of the next avenue. Leora felt a tide of pure hate rise up when she saw his big glossy car. Why should men like Tom always have money when men like Ramon were always thwarted for lack of it? But she smiled as she got in beside him, and her firm cheeks were pitted with dimples.

Tom was gray at the temples and bald on top, but he considered himself romantic. He showed no lack of enthusiasm on seeing her. "O, gorgeous, it sure does me good to be looking at you."

She questioned him about his trip to Florida. She wasn't going to hint she needed money, till he had a good dinner and a little wine in him. Tom had a similar idea. He said nothing about the comfort he needed till they had dined well and expensively in the Commodore Grillroom.

Leora was thoughtful as the big car rolled south into the country after crossing the suspension bridge over the falls. She had never asked a man for a loan. She wondered how best to approach the subject. Tom drew off the road, under the trees, parked on the grass, and lit a cigar.

"Well, baby, you haven't said a word about the trouble I'm in."

Leora laughed. "You in trouble? You don't know what trouble is. You never will know."

"And I suppose you do?"

"You suppose right. I do. I tell you, Tom, the only real trouble in the world is not having enough money."

"Agreed. But who are you to say that I'm immune from that ill?"

Leora felt faint. "Not you, Tom? You don't mean——"

"That's what I do mean. I'm going broke, that's what—and there's nothing to save me." He continued after a long, painful silence. "I'll have to start again from the bottom. I can do it if I can raise a little wind—a very little. I don't suppose you have any personal savings?"

"No, Tom. I'm most awfully sorry."

His big, warm hand closed over hers. "Well, it's something to have some one that loves you. I knew you would be——"

Leora Struggles Against Tom in Car

Leora drew her hand away. It was the wrong thing to do, but she couldn't help it. Tom threw his cigar out of the window and put hungry arms around her. She fought him off, remembering Ramon, and wild with the bitter memory.

"Why—you little tramp!" He wiped the blood from his cheek where her nails had torn it.

"Right, I'm a tramp. But let me get out of here."

"Not on your life. You've been stalling for months and taking every darn thing you could get. You knew they had to be paid for. Now you can pay for them."

Leora tugged at her trapped wrists. "What makes you think I'm for sale for a few cheap presents? I took them to please you—and never used them. You can have them back——"

His grasp was like a steel handcuff biting into her flesh.

"You're hurting me. Let me go. Let me get out of here."

He trod on the starter and released one of her hands to pull off the brake and drive back on the road. Leora's heart thumped with horror. He was going to drive out into lonelier country where the lakes began. She wrenched her other hand free, opened the door, and jumped before he had time to straighten into the road and put on speed.

"Have it your own way," he shouted. She heard him slam the door as she lost her balance and rolled into the highway. A car was coming up behind. Like a great jungle beast with eyes of flame it reared on top of her. There was no pain — only a drifting down into deeper darkness.

She opened her eyes 18 hours later to find herself in a white hospital cot with screens round her. A young student nurse sat knitting in a chair beside her. Her ears were ringing and her head felt peculiar, but she remembered what had happened almost immediately. When her chin moved she could feel a bandage under it. Suppose——

"Nurse, is my face disfigured?"

The girl turned round, instantly attentive. "Not a scratch. You don't have to worry."

"I don't believe you. Bring me a mirror."

"It's true. Don't talk. I must fetch Sister."

Leora moved slightly and hot pain woke in both legs, the right one throbbing with unbearable violence.

"Nurse, wait! This terrible pain! Are my legs injured?"

The girl's worried look deepened into obvious pity. "They're badly broken, dear. But don't worry, we'll have you walking again. Our best bone surgeon worked on you. We were glad you weren't a dancer. But you'll walk in six months—maybe sooner——"

Leora heard no further. A shrill scream of anguish burst from her. Sister appeared round the screen wheeling a tray, wiped Leora's arm with alcohol, and injected a hypodermic.

Sleep postponed stock-taking for another 12 hours. Leora woke slowly with the feeling that something terrible had happened before it shaped in her memory. The pain in her legs that would go away and leave them too weak for professional dancing. The pain in her heart that would stay there forever.

Now she would have to be resourceful, or in addition to this misfortune she would be in trouble with her marriage.

She began to think with her eyes closed as if she were still sleeping. She must plan her story before doctors and police began to question. How had she got on Somer Falls road out past Ellenville? What could she say she had been doing there?

Because now it mattered what Fred thought. Now Fred was her only friend. He must not only believe in her, he must continue to worship her. He would be crazy with sympathy when he saw her, and from then on she'd have to be careful. No more nerves like she had at the week-end. She might have dimmed some of his worship already.

And all for nothing. Because Ramon didn't want her in Buenos Aires. She'd known it from the time he told her he was going away. She'd been trying to kid herself.

Anyway it was over. Her future lay with Fred who'd always been good to her. Fred, who had given her a lovely home and was working like mad to get on and give her a car of her own and all the lovely clothes he said she ought to have for what he called her "beauty." Fred, who, when you came to think of it, was the kindest man who ever existed. Fred, who—sweeter than anything in this uncertain world—was legally responsible for her.

It was too difficult to think of a plausible story. She'd been hit on the head. All right—she'd say she didn't remember a thing since she left the house—and stick to it. Amnesia they called it. Tom wouldn't come forward and tell. He wouldn't dare to.

She opened her eyes to find an older nurse watching her.

"What day is it, nurse? Where's my husband?"

"Saturday. We haven't been able to get in touch with him yet. But his office expects him to be driving back today. So he may be in any time."

"There should be a letter at home. He always writes."

"Your maid brought one. With a Detroit hotel address on the envelope. We telephoned, but he'd gone. Do you feel able to read it?"

Leora took it and held it against her breast warmed by the security it gave her, while the nurse sponged her down and made her comfortable. She learned that the police were waiting to talk to her when she could cope with them. It seemed she'd been struck by a hit and run driver.

When the nurse had left her, Leora took Fred's letter out of the envelope, thrilled for the first time in anticipation of his awkward expressions of love for her.

She held the single sheet above her face because she lay on her back. It started right away being different from the usual—"Honey-darling, he loves you."

"Dear Leora:

"You don't think I'd really start off in the middle of the night in that state, did you? Well, I didn't. I went to Kathryn and her mother where I knew I'd get love and care, and I didn't deserve it, but I got it. She forgave me everything.

"She's going to marry me when you and I get untied—which I'll fix next week when I'm home again.

"I know it'll be O. K. with you since you want that other fellow so badly. I thought it was odd you'd go downstairs to the phone when you could take it upstairs. I figured you didn't want me to hear something. I was about fed up being treated like an interloper in my own house, so I went to the studio and listened in on you. I got the picture.

"I went back when I dropped you at the Castle Apartments and gave your dresser the once-over. So you'll be well fixed for money too. All the things you ever wanted.

"That's about all, I guess. I don't blame you—much. Love's a kind of lunacy in the beginning. You stop seeing straight. You've got it a hundred per cent and I guess you didn't realize how tough you were on me. I was tough myself once—on Kathryn.

"You don't have to be sorry, Leora. We're glad to be back together. So glad I don't know how we got separated. The best of luck to you and your Ramon is the wish of

"Yours truly,
"Fred Wilson."

Fine Paintings of Flowers in Beneduce Show

By Eleanor Jewett.

Several attractive shows are making the last of April and the first of May as brilliant as tho the season were at its height. To celebrate the approach of summer to our gardens and parks Antimo Beneduce has hung an amazingly fine exhibit of flower paintings in the Marshall Field galleries. Beneduce calls them "Portraits of Flowers."

His versatile brush has recorded the likenesses of several of the better known flowers and has done it with an ingenuity of composition that makes the show very effective. He presents us with dogwood, geraniums, poppies, petunias, tulips, lilies, roses, and a gorgeous desert cactus that is one of the startling successes of the exhibit. For sheer pleasure, we commend this show to you. It is one of the most beautiful, most decorative, most inspiring, and least controversial shows in town. In war filled days such havens for the spirit as Beneduce supplies in his pictures should be counted an essential to successful living.

• • •

An exhibit of paintings by Frederic Taubes, this year the guest artist at the University of Illinois and a recent exhibitor at the Arts club, will follow the "Portraits of Flowers" by Antimo Beneduce at the Marshall Field galleries in May.

• • •

A stunning exhibit of recent water colors by Dwight Shepler is current in the Ackermann galleries, 408 South Michigan avenue, to May 6. The paintings were done in New Mexico and on the Maine coast and are well worth seeing. They are fresh, direct, eloquent and knowledgeable. Mr. Shepler is an artist to reckon with and one to note carefully as a man whose future work will give a great deal of pleasure to a vast public. He includes in his exhibit a group of skiing pictures painted in New England and the northwest. These are somewhat in the vein of others by him which were shown here a season or so ago but they are definitely finer, stronger, and more intense. In a time of slipshod art, Dwight Shepler and his confrères who paint well are to be treasured almost as jewels without price.

• • •

Just a few minutes from the Ackermann galleries are the Roullier galleries, in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue, and there to April 30 is the fine exhibit of etchings by members of the Chicago Society of Etchers. This is another must show, there is so much on the walls to delight the visitor.

The Findlay galleries, 338 South Michigan avenue, are showing an important group of 19th century French Masters. The exhibit is well hung and rather exciting in context. "La Tête d'Ilias" by Ingres and "Les Joueurs d'Echecs a Jersualem" by Delacroix introduce us to two very well known names, men who were outstanding in their generation and upon whose fame certain turns in the development of modern art are orbited. Corot, probably chiefly associated with tender landscapes, is represented with a figure painting, "Le Muse Pensive."

"Portrait of Mme. Oliviers" by Courbet and the strong "Portrait of a Man" by Degas thrust us into the field of realism. Another technique, impressionism, is illustrated in the paintings by Pissaro [Cuoillette de Pommes] and Sisley [Haystacks]. In earlier years both Pissaro and Sisley were featured at the Chester Johnson and later the Quest galleries in Chicago. Seurat, whose finest paintings hang in the Art institute, is represented in the current exhibit by "Le Moteur."

Modigliani, Gauguin, Toulouse-Lautrec, Berthe Morisot, Matisse, and Vuillard complete the group. Two paintings by Boudin and one by Jonkind are included in the show, which to a certain degree gives a well rounded impression of what French painters were doing in the last century.

"RUBRUM LILIES," BY ANTIMO BENEDUCE

An exhibition of dog portraits, with one or two of horses and cats slipped in for good measure, by Arthur Lloyd, is on view at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mr. Lloyd exhibited recently at the stockyards during the International Dog show and his work met with great approval. Unfortunately he lost the little book of names and addresses of some would-be owners of dog portraits and is uncertain as to how he can make their acquaintance again. Mr. Lloyd is a chemist by profession and a painter by avocation. He has had many opinions given him on his work, running all the way from "corny" to "very good." For dog lovers' his paintings are attractive; he gets a good likeness.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

Bridge can be roughly divided into two parts, theory and fact. The play of the cards falls into the second category; bidding can be defined as the application of theory to a given set of circumstances involving the cards held, state of the score, opponents' and partner's calls, and myriad factors of psychology.

The department of opening leads is in the no-man's land between the two mentioned forces. Technically, of course, an opening lead is a play, but the fact that it is so often made blindly, or on the basis of the bidding, throws it into the realm of the abstract. Frank Perkins, New England authority, points out the troubles of the opening leader in his current Bridge World article. I quote:

"There are two schools of thought on the subject of 'blind leads.' One group prefers a 'safe' lead, forcing declarer to develop the hand, even at the risk of giving him the initiative. Others incline toward leads that are more constructive—and more dangerous.

"North, dealer.

"The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 spades	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass

"The bidding has several questionable spots, but it is the opening lead that is of interest.

"The 'safe-looking' club jack lead lets declarer make his game. South wins and leads a low heart for the defenders to win. They can come back with another club, which dummy will win, and then South ruffs a second round of hearts. South leads a trump to finesse dummy's jack, and then South ruffs a third round of hearts. The spade ace lets South ruff a fourth heart, and the spade king pulls West's last trump. Then the diamond ace allows dummy to cash the long heart for the game-going trick.

"If West happened to be the gambling type of player, he might lead the diamond five with the idea of 'leading a suit that has something to set up.' This lead would spoil the plan used against the club opening, for it would immediately remove one of dummy's entries; and dummy would be unable to get the lead often enough to set up the long heart and bring it in.

"Of course the diamond lead would turn sour if South held the diamond queen and two little ones, plus three worthless clubs. How can you blame West if he picks the wrong horse? Incidentally, a trump lead looks crazy, considering the auction of this hand, and yet a trump lead would also cut down dummy's entries.

"Pity the poor leader who must select one of the very two leads that look worst from his holding!"

There are no trumps and South leads. North and South are to win four tricks against any defense.

Solution—South leads a club, North discarding a heart. If East leads ace, queen of spades, South sheds a small heart, while North lets the spade queen hold. Now if East leads a diamond, North leads a heart. If East leads hearts instead of diamonds, the result is the same.

If East leads a diamond instead of a spade, or leads a diamond after playing the spade ace, North starts the hearts and the rest is easy.

If East leads a heart for the second trick, South puts the jack on the three, and if West puts on the ace and returns the ten, South wins with the king and makes the club trick, North discarding spade. Now the three of diamonds is won by North, who leads the nine of hearts and gets another trick later.

If West leads the spade after winning the heart, North plays small, and East must return a heart.

The trap in the problem is preventing West from discarding the diamond on the jack of clubs, as that would force South to lead a heart instead of the diamond in the main variation.

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

Clewiston, Fla Thriving Town Built by Sugar

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Just 60 miles west of West Palm Beach as the crow—or rather, the snow white heron—

flies, is the beautiful and enterprising little city of Clewiston, built on a foundation of sugar. This town of some 3,000 is as symmetrically laid out as a park. Its hotel, artistically designed and decorated, would do credit to any smart community; but Clewiston is closely allied to big business, as it is the heart of the vast sugar industry of the Everglades.

The big sugar mill has just quit grinding, and we were assured by James A. Dew, well known Everglades developer, on whose tires this trip was made, that the mill has ground approximately 890,000 tons of cane since it opened last November. Translating this in terms of the family sugar bowl, Mr. Dew said it would represent about 180,000,000 bowls of sugar, if the bowls held a pound each—a heap of sugar. The raw sugar is shipped to Savannah, Ga., to be refined.

• • •

Every activity in Clewiston is related to the sugar industry. Even the theater is called the Dixie Crystal. Experiments are now being carried on with a view to using sugar by-products as cattle feed, as that section also is coming rapidly to the fore as a cattle center. The Clewiston inn features "molasses fed" steak. And it's delicious. All the houses in Clewiston are pretty and freshly painted. The administration buildings of the sugar company and the country club are especially easy on the eyes, while there are any number of small homes, storybook cottages cunning enough to house Hansel and Gretel.

Surrounding the town are waving fields of sugar cane, glossy and green in the sunlight. A few miles from the town is the flying field where cadets of the royal air force are trained. These boys are husky looking, with light complexions seldom seen in this semitropical region.

The road to Clewiston parallels canals, the banks of which are guarded by closely planted Australian pine trees which grow tall in perfect cone shape. Belle Glade is 30 miles from West Palm Beach, and if Clewiston is built on a foundation of sugar, then Belle Glade just as surely rests on a foundation of beans — string beans.

In one big shed the work of packing was going on at a steady gait, the sorters being women who live at the neat government migrant camp nearby. These workers ranged in age from young girls to women of middle age. Nearly all had permanent waves, and the fingers which flashed so swiftly sorting out and removing cull beans were nicely manicured. The women stood on both sides of a wide moving canvas conveyor, discarding the imperfect pods. It was the duty of some of these workers to select the unusually long, fancy beans and place them in a special box. When the green beans reached the end of the moving tables they fell into a hamper, or rather two hampers, and were packed in by men who were able to sit down to their work. The extra fine specimens were arranged symmetrically on top and the lid of the hamper clamped down. Another moving belt took the unending row of hampers far down the side of the building, where cars were being loaded.

• • •

The entire bean country had been subjected to a drenching rain that damaged much of the crop. That meant higher prices for a limited number of growers, while spelling crop failure to many, and worked a hardship on laborers who had remained to help harvest the crop.

While bean pickers were busy in field and shed, a celebration was in progress at the Negro migrant camp nearby. A King and Queen of the May, wearing paper crowns, their faces wreathed in smiles, sat among their court on the grounds, while children in their white Sunday best sang, played band instruments, and danced about two gayly decorated May poles.

An important center in Belle Glade is the drug store, where everybody congregates. This drug store is widely known for having microphone outlets about the streets. In the bean season many buyers are there, and when the home office in Chicago or New York wishes to get in touch with the representatives at Belle Glade, the drug store is called and Doc Murphy calls the name of the buyer into his microphone. It sounds out at these several street sites with every chance that the agent is found if he is in town.

Palm Beach is not yet a deserted village, tho the social blackout is just around the corner. A number of small hotels and apartments will remain open until late, and a few will stay open all summer. The Villas, opposite the Everglades club, will not close at all. Volunteers for Victory will maintain summer headquarters on Worth avenue, and Thrift, Inc., also will remain unshuttered indefinitely.

Two world famous painters who view art from opposite sides of the fence are in Palm Beach at present, C. Bosseron Chambers and Salvador Dali. Mr. Chambers has achieved renown as a painter of madonnas and religious subjects, as well as portraits. The spectacular Dali is exponent extraordinary of surrealism.

Dali is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George De Cuevas, and came especially to do a portrait of Mr. De Cuevas. The artist, who has taken out first papers toward American citizenship, is small, dark, and volatile. He has unruly black hair and a suspicion of a black mustache. His eyes, dark and penetrating, seem to be viewing the world thru a surrealist haze. He declares that the De Cuevas will be the most classic thing he has ever done. Dali and his wife have just returned from Hollywood, where he went to work on the picture which will introduce the French star, Jean Gabin, to America. Dali's work, however, will not be used in the film as he and the producers reached an impasse as to ideas.

Dali and his attractive Russian wife were guests of honor at a smart luncheon given by the Le Ray Berdeaus at Villa Today. It was one of those days where it not only rained but poured, and guests came practically with their shoes in hand.

Mrs. Berdeau was wearing one of her smart pajama suits, this time in black gabardine. Mme. Dali wore a bright red blouse with navy pajamas. It was at the Berdeau home that Dali was delighted to see a picture of his that he had entirely lost sight of.
